round the first available corner. Once more I found a quiet place, but this time I was interrupted by a cab turning into the street and coming along behind me. The third time, however, was more successful. I looked carefully about me. The street was empty in front and behind. On either side were rows of respectable middle-class houses, with never a light in a window or a policeman to be seen.

Trembling like a leaf, I stopped the cab, and when I had made sure that there was no one looking, placed my foot upon the lever. So perfect was the mechanism that it acted instantly, and, what was better still, without noise. Next moment Bartrand was lying upon his back in the centre of the road. As soon as his weight released it the bottom of the vehicle rose, and I heard the spring click as it took its place again. Before I drove on I turned and looked at him where he lay so still and cold on the pure white snow, and thought of the day at Markapurlie, when he had turned me off the station for wanting to doctor poor Ben Garman, and also of the morning when I had denounced him to the miners on the Booga Range, after I had discovered that he had stolen my secret and appropriated my wealth. How little either of us thought then what the end of our hatred was to be! If I had been told on the first day we had met that I should murder him, and that he would ultimately be found lying dead in the centre of a London street, I very much doubt if either of us would have believed it possible. But how horribly true it was!

As to what I was now, there could be no question. The ghastly verdict was self-evident, and the word rang in my brain with a significance I had never imagined it to possess before. It seemed to be written upon the houses, to be printed upon the snow-curdled sky. Even the roll of the wheels beneath me proclaimed me a murderer. Until that time I had had no real conception of what that grisly word meant. Now I knew it for the most awful in the whole range of our English language.

All this time I had been driving aimlessly on and on, having no care where I went, conscious only that I must put as great a distance as possible between myself and the damning evidence of my crime. Then a reaction set in, and I became aware that to continue driving in this half-coherent fashion was neither politic nor sensible, so I pulled myself together and tried to think what I had better do. The question for my consideration was whether I should hasten to Hogarth Square as arranged and hand the cab over to Nikola, or whether I should endeavor to dispose of it in some other way, and not go near that dreadful man again. One thing was indisputable: whatever I did, I must do quickly. It was nearly one o'clock by this time, and if I wanted to see him at the rendezvous I must hurry, or he would have gone before I reached it. In that case, what should I do with the cab?

After anxious thought I came to the conclusion that I had better find him and hand him his terrible property. Then, if I wished to give him the slip, I could lead him to suppose I intended returning to my hotel, and afterwards act as I might deem best for my own safety. This once decided, I turned the vehicle round, whipped up the horse, and set off for Hogarth Square as fast as I could go. It was a long journey, for several times I missed my way and had to retrace my steps; but at last I accomplished it and drove into the square. Sure enough at the second lamp-post on the left hand side, where he had appointed to meet me, three men were standing beside a hansom cab, and from the way they peered about, it was evident they were anxiously awaiting the arrival of someone. One I could see at first glance was Nikola, the other was probably his Chinese servant, the man who had brought me the cab earlier in the evening, but the third's identity I could not guess. Nor did I waste time trying.

As I approached them Nikola held up his hand as a signal to me to stop, and I immediately pulled up and got down. Not a question did he ask about my proceedings or otherwise, but took from the second cab a bowler hat and a top coat, which I recognised as the garments I had left at Levi Solomon's that evening.

"Put these on," he said, "and then come with me as quickly as you can. I have a lot to say to you."

I did as he ordered me, and when my sou'wester and cape had been tossed into the empty cab, he beckoned me to follow him down the square. His servant had meanwhile driven that awful cab away.

"Now, what have you to tell me?" he asked, when we had walked a little distance along the pavement.

I stopped and faced him with a face, I'll be bound, as ashen as that of a corpse.

"I have done your Scandish bidding," I hissed. "I am—God help me—unintentionally what you have made me—a murderer."

"Then the man is dead, is he?" replied Nikola, with icy calmness. "That is satisfactory. Now we have to divert suspicion from yourself. All things considered, I think you had better go straight back to your hotel, and keep quiet there until I communicate with you. You need have no fear as to your safety. No one will suspect you. Hitherto we have been most successful in eluding detection."

As he spoke, the memory of the other murders which had shocked all London flashed through my brain, and instantly I understood everything. The victims, so the medical men stated, had in each case been killed by some anaesthetic: they had been found in the centre of the road, as if dropped from a vehicle, while their faces had all been mutilated in the same uncanny fashion. I turned and looked at the man by my side, and then, in an unaccountable fit of rage, threw myself upon him. The man who actually did the deeds were innocent—here was the real murderer—the man who had instigated and egged them on to crime. He had led my soul into hell, but he should not escape me!

The suddenness of my passion took him completely by surprise, but only for an instant. Then, with a quick movement of his hands, he caught my wrists, and held me in a grip of iron. I was disarmed and powerless and he knew it, and laughed mockingly.

"So you would try and add me to your list, would you, Mr. Gilbert Featherstone? Be thankful that I am mercifully inclined, and do not punish you as you deserve."

Without another word he threw me from him, with the ease of a practised wrestler, and I fell upon the pavement as if I had been shot. The shock brought me to my senses, and I rose an altogether different man, though still hating him with a tenfold loathing as the cause of all my misery. Having once rid himself of me however, he seemed to think no more of the matter.

"Now be off to your hotel," he said sharply, "and don't stir from it until I communicate with you. By making this fuss you might have hung yourself, to say nothing of implicating me. To-morrow morning I will let you know what is best to be done. In the meantime, remain indoors, feign ill health, and don't see any strangers on any pretext whatever."

The Drummer Boy
Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer . . . of 10 Mining Lots.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the corporate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the testment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1903.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for another Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1,200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $18,127.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 15 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $3,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 15 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORTELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 15 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $50,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 15 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

Having once rid himself of me however, he seemed to think no more of the matter.

"Now be off to your hotel," he said sharply, "and don't stir from it until I communicate with you. By making this fuss you might have hung yourself, to say nothing of implicating me. To-morrow morning I will let you know what is best to be done. In the meantime, remain indoors, feign ill health, and don't see any strangers on any pretext whatever."

Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Office [illegible] Building, Victoria Street.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1909.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 24th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $180,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,800,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he can afford one can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,200.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, one of Peterboro's most progressive and, industrially speaking, aggressive manufacturing institutions, on Saturday shipped to London, England, twenty cases containing camping goods of all descriptions.

RE LICENSE REDUCTION

Correspondent Writes Against Suggested Reduction of Licenses

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—No man interested in the business life of Peterboro can afford to vote today for a reduction in the number of liquor licenses in this city. It is an agitation promoted by men who are not satisfied unless endeavoring to introduce crank legislation, and, unfortunately, in this city they have been allowed too much scoring in the past. If permitted to succeed in their present efforts, they will come down next year with a demand for a further reduction of six more licenses, and if the second attempt to cut down hotel accommodation, now not enough for the city's needs, be successful, there will be a third one to wipe out the remaining balance. They who wish to see the city run on village lines and controlled by people who, neither by wealth, business ability, nor, in some cases, even owning enough land in the city to bury a dog, are entitled to special notice, should vote for the reduction, but those who desire to see our civic affairs managed on a broad, liberal and enlightened basis will vote against the proposal and against such petty meddling, mostly introduced by only temporary residents.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

Mr. Hall, who is employed in the Test Department, received an electric shock which resulted in very painful burns, especially those on his face.

DR. GRAY WRITES

Advocating Claims of Messrs. Stevenson and Dumble for Board of Education

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

I wish to make a statement to you in as few words as possible, and it is as follows, viz.: We have recently discarded the garb of a town, and replaced it by one for a city. Now is the time that we must not make mistakes, and we must have competent leaders in all branches of the city's service. I am glad to state we have a good leader in our Mayor, Mr. Best. Now we want the same thing in the management of our School Board, as we want no mistakes there. On that board we want men as leaders who are not afraid to express themselves for the right in private or in public, no matter who they may offend. We want men who have had experience and are above reproach: and we have got them in the present list of new aspirants for the Board of Education. Now without offering any slight to to any of the present nominees on the list, I would state that the electors of the City of Peterboro will not make any mistake by placing Mr. James Stevenson and Mr. D. W. Dumble at the head of the poll. I do not take any active public part in educational matters, but I watch how the tide is flowing: after weighing and summing up the whole matter, I have come to the above conclusion, namely, that we want fearless leaders, such as the two gentlemen I mention, viz., Mr. James Stevenson and Mr. D. W. Dumble. Wishing that you may see it in the same light as I do.

I am, yours,
(Signed) J. W. GRAY.

Handsome Clock Presented

STOMACH CURE

An Easy Way from Standpoint of Convenience.

The so-called cures for indigestion are almost as numerous as the victims themselves, and scarcely a day passes without the hopes of thousands of sufferers being raised by the discovery of some novel method of cure for this prevalent disease.

Until a combination of unusual remedies, heretofore but little known in this country, was made in Mi-o-na tablets, no certain cure for indigestion had been found, and it is therefore hardly to be wondered at that our leading druggist, who has the Peterboro agency, is selling large quantities of Mi-o-na.

Mi-o-na is a guaranteed cure for all diseases of the stomach excepting cancer. If you have pains or distress after eating, headache, belching of gases, sour taste in the mouth, dizziness, heartburn, specks before the eyes, furred tongue, sleeplessness, backache, debility or weakness, it shows that the stomach needs to be strengthened with Mi-o-na.

Just one little tablet out of a 50 cent box before meals for a few days, and you will soon regain perfect health and strength.

If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your case from a leading stomach specialist which will be sent free. The R. T. Booth Company, Ithaca, N. Y.

Murder Confession Being Questioned

Detectives Doubt Veracity of Horton's Remarkable Story of Barton Murder---Some Facts Go To Support Man's Statement

Hamilton, Jan. 3.—The Hamilton police place little confidence in the remarkable confession made by John Horton at Flint, Mich., implicating two Mexicans in the sensational mountain murder mystery. If what Horton states is true, the Hamilton police and Provincial Officer Greer have been on the wrong track from the start. There was nothing of the Mexican about the tall, well-built, fair man who stopped at the American and Commercial Hotels with the murdered woman and was seen walking with her towards Marshall's bush on Oct. 6. Those who heard him speak say he had no foreign accent, and the only theory held by the police regarding his nationality was that he was an American or Englishman.

WHAT THE CHIEF SAYS.

Chief of Police Smith gave out the opinion of the confession as follows: "I place very little faith in it, and yet it is one of those stories that has to be thoroughly investigated. It looks highly improbable that if the man had a hand in the crime he would wander into a police station with a circular of the murder and then confess to the police. Then again, no connection has been shown between the real murderer and any other man while in Hamilton. I think Horton is not right in his head. Detective Greer was immediately notified, however, and will fully investigate the story."

Detective Inspector McMahon expressed himself similarly. "It looks like a fake to me," he said.

MOTIVE THE BEST PART.

One detective who has been working on the case from the start said: "While there may be nothing in this the motive Horton gives for the crime is the best part of his story. There was certainly a big motive for the murder, and it has not been shown yet."

Another discrepancy in Horton's story, as told in an Associated Press despatch yesterday, is the statement that the victim was strangled to death. It has been established almost beyond a doubt that she was living down with her handkerchief over her face and the shot was fired through it. One point in Horton's story about the real murderer taking the woman for a drive fits in with the Hamilton story, and as it was not mentioned in the circular found on him, some weight is attached to it. His alleged statement, however, that the woman was driven to the spot by the murderer on the first day is wrong.

HORTON LIVED ON MOUNTAIN.

A telegram received yesterday by the police says Horton is a nephew of James Horton, who resides three miles back on the mountain, and that he stayed there until December. An endeavor will be made to find Horton this afternoon.

There was no notice in circulation of counterfeit money at the time of this murder to show that foreigners were here for the express purpose of uttering it.

DON'T PUNISH THE SQUEALERS

But Mr. Jerome will Prosecute High Officers of Big Insurance Companies

New York, Jan. 3.—The World says: "District Attorney Jerome will today begin the serious work of preparing for the prosecution of officers of life insurance companies who have abused their trusts.

"It was stated yesterday by a man in a position to know what is going on within the various insurance companies that Mr. Jerome will undoubtedly receive aid from unexpected sources.

"He added that before the month was out Mr. Jerome would receive overtures from at least one 'squealer' in each of the companies—the Mutual Life, the Provident Savings Life, the Life Association of America, the Life Association of America, and the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association. While no promises of immunity are ever made by the District Attorney to a 'squealer,' it is the unwritten law in Mr. Jerome's office not to prosecute those who give evidence which enables the people to convict offenders who might otherwise escape punishment."

WITTE BEGINS TO FEEL STRONG

Will Pursue to Bitter End Policy of Putting Down the Reds

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—The Government's strongly-worded announcement yesterday that it proposes to pursue to the bitter end the policy of putting down the "Reds," following on the heels of the crushing of the revolt at Moscow, demonstrates the confidence of Premier Witte's government that it has the ability to complete the task it has undertaken. The main cause of this confidence is the fidelity displayed by the troops.

THE CHIEF REMEMBERED

Mr. Tom. Rutherford, Head of Fire Brigade Presented With Morris Chair

A very pleasing event took place, to mark the beginning of 1906, when the members of our efficient fire brigade presented their popular chief with a handsome Morris chair.

This gift was a token of appreciation of the respect and regard, gained during a quarter century's good service, for Chief Rutherford.

It might be noted that this handsome presentation came as a complete surprise to Mr. Rutherford, who had received no previous intimation of the new accomplished remembrance was intended. Accompanying the gift was the following address;—

To Mr. Thomas Rutherford, Chief of the Peterboro Fire Brigade.

Dear Sir.—In asking you to accept this gift as a tangible expression of our regard for you, we, the members of the Peterboro Fire Brigade, wish to recognize your long and faithful services on behalf of the fire-fighting services on behalf of the fire-fighters of the city. For twenty-five years you have led in the fight with the flames and during that service, a quarter of a century, you have been found faithful to your duty.

Not only have we long learned to respect you for the manner in which you have filled the position of chief, but in other ways have you gained the friendship and esteem of the members of this brigade. We wish you and you better half a prosperous and a happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the brigade.

It might be added that the successful passage of the Fire Bylaw on Monday last was, in great measure due to the energetic work done by, and the popular esteem held for, Chief Rutherford. Now that Chief Rutherford has received such tangible support for his brigade as given by this bylaw, Peterboro will soon have not only a brigade, but fire appliances compatible with our present strenuous progress. In another column, appears a card of thanks from Chief Rutherford.

As only fifteen names were on the ballots for electing members of this year's council, and only twelve could be elected, New Year's Day, saw a good hot contest between the fifteen aspirants for municipal honors.

Tonora

The weather, shortly before and after the polls opened, threatened to be against a good vote being polled; some three inches of snow had fallen, and was still falling when the election opened.

At every polling division the 'Moral Reform League,' had representatives generally unknown personally to property owners of the city, stationed to advise voters, and hand their cards on which appeared the names of their 'candidates,' strange to say, among their nine candidates appeared the names of five candidates supporting the Licensed Victuallers' Association platform, viz., Messrs.

FRANK ADAMS.
ROBERT HICKS.
THOMAS KELLY.
GEORGE BALL.
THOMAS J. WILSON.

Monday's vote was rendered particularly interesting as, apart from Council and Board of Education questions by them being the important fire bylaw to be decided upon; quite a number also turned out to vote on the reduction of licenses' question.

For the first time in the history of the town the Board of Education was reduced to nine members, elected by the general vote of the whole people. Mr. James Stevenson, who has been a member of the Board for 58 years continuously, and Mr. J. J. Hartley, both former chairmen, were left out. Both have been useful members of the Board, and perhaps their defeat may be attributed to lack of interest on their own part in the contest. Yesterday many leading citizens expressed keen regret that Mr. James Stevenson, after serving faithfully gratis for over half a century on Peterboro's Board of Education, should not have been returned.

THE FIRE BYLAW.

The fire bylaw for $25,000 to provide a new fire hall and better fire protection for the city was carried by a majority of 93.

A great fight was made by the temperance people to carry a vote for reducing the number of Peterboro licenses. This was carried in the affirmative by 247. It is very doubtful, however if our present council, composed of men, most of whom made ante-election pledges against such action, will dutifully mark their word wins, the matter, if ever, is brought up.

A STOVE SWINDLE

Farmers Near Springville Making Serious Complaints

The festive "con-man" is working his district, if a report received from Springville is credible.

It seems that farmers near Springville are doing some vigorous kicking over contracts they have recently signed for Home Comfort ranges.

They claim that the agents for the Home Comfort Range induced them to sign what they thought was a permit to allow the range to be put in on trial, and afterwards the permit turned out to be a note, and the farmers were led to accept the range and pay this price.

Another story is that the agents agreed to take twenty days board at from $2.00 to $2.50 per day. The farmer was induced to sign an order, as he claims he thought it was to that effect, but the agent never allowed up, and the order turned out to be another note, which the signer was due to pay.

Still another scheme which it is claimed is being worked is to lure a prominent farmer at $2.00 or $2.50 per day to travel with the agent and introduce him in that district. Ex-Ald. Smith was offered $3.00 per day, but the price was not high enough. A man was secured, however, and the farmer accompanied the agent as far as Bailieboro, where they stopped over night at the hotel. The following morning the Home Comfort Range agent arose early and departed, leaving his assistant enjoying a sound sleep. The victim, when he awoke, found he had to walk back home.

The people in this district are greatly worked up over this matter and they are taking steps to have the matter investigated and to prevent others from being imposed upon in such a manner.

What a happy band their will be in His Satanic Majesty's domains, in the event subsequently, when lightning rod vendors, lay-fork and other peddlers, who have worked out the bogus note confidence game, meet.

WIFE'S AWFUL MISTAKE.

London, Jan. 3.—Benson Wingerden of 729 Waterloo street, died yesterday after drinking carbolic acid given him by his wife in mistake for olive oil. Wingerden was taken ill about six a.m., when Mrs. Wingerden secured what she supposed was oil from a bottle in the dining room. The bottle, however, proved to be acid. Whilst had been left on the sideboard by a member of the family. Wingerden died in the situation.

CONSERVATIVE RALLY

Unanimous and Enthusiastic Meeting in Young Conservative Club Rooms

New Year's Day was celebrated by local members of the grand old Conservative party, by a well attended and most enthusiastic meeting in the Young Conservative Club rooms on George street.

Over 100 of Peterboro's Conservatives, including many of the true blue consistent Conservatives of the city met over a most harmonious and politically aggressive spirit predominated.

The President, Mr. R. E. Layfield, occupied the meeting over a short address in which he stated that the membership was between seven and eight hundred. Mr. Layfield gave a short review of the opening of the session and of the plans laid on July 6th. The business was in such condition that by the end of another year all the debts would be wiped out. In closing he made the suggestion that a financial committee of three be appointed to aid the treasurer in carrying out his duties.

It was moved by Mr. T. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Jas. Kendry, that a committee of three be appointed to aid as a finance committee and also to look after the securing of new members. Carried.

On motion of Dr. Coughlin, seconded by Mr. J. J. Lynch, it was decided to add an hon.-president to the list of officers.

The report of the treasurer was then read by Mr. Jas. Edgar. There was a deficit which would be wiped off in another year.

At the conclusion of the report, Mr. James Kendry urged that the debt be cleared off as soon as possible and headed a list with a check for $100, and all the members present continued generously, with the result that a few months will see the club entirely free of debt.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., briefly addressed the meeting, wishing the members a happy New Year.

The election of officers followed. A motion that Mr. Kendry be elected honorary president, was carried by a standing vote. The meeting sang "He is a jolly, good fellow," with three rousing cheers and a tiger. Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., was unanimously elected Hon.-vice-President. There were four nominations for president, Messrs. R. E. Layfield, Wm. Hullet, H. Morgan, and J. H. Burnham. Mr. Layfield withdrew his name, and on a ballot being taken Mr. Burnham was declared elected. Following is a list of the officers;

Hon.-Pres.—James Kendry.

THE FIRE BRIGADE

Peterboro's Fire Laddies Elect Annual Officers

At the annual meeting of the Peterboro Fire Brigade, with Chief Rutherford presiding, held last night in the Fire Hall, which was attended by every member of the Brigade as usual, the regular business transactions were first attended to. The financial statement was most satisfactory, a good balance remaining to credit of the Brigade.

The following officers were elected, viz.;

Asst. Chief—J. W. Metheral.
1st Lieut.—A. Moore.
2nd Lieut.—C. Butcher.
Secretary—J. Gibbs.
Treasurer—W. Adamson.

It might be mentioned that all, from Chief Rutherford, to youngest member of the Brigade, were highly delighted with the Fire Bylaw passed New Year's Day, and were unanimous in saying, that now Peterboro will have fire protection second to none.

Later on The Times will print a list of all fire occurring during the past year.

Coroner's Inquest On Towns' Death

Two Sessions of Coroner's Jury, as Yet Find No Tangible Evidence of Foul Play---Small Bruises of no Serious Import Only Found.

As noted in our report in Monday's issue, of the sad death of young Edward Towns, at St. Joseph's Hospital on Saturday evening, it will be remembered that the Coroner, Dr. Gray, had not decided, at the time of going to press, whether, or not, an inquest was necessary.

During Sunday, rumors, not yet of substantial nature, were current, that there were suspicious circumstances attached to the death of young Towns.

We might remind our readers, as noted in extenso in Monday's issue, that young Towns, some 23 years old, had been employed in Hogan's Hotel, East ward; on Saturday afternoon, Towns got into an altercation with a young man or men in the hotel. Shortly after the dispute, Towns went to his room and took about an ounce of laudanum, and, Dr. McNulty being called in, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died about 6 o'clock the same evening.

Dr. Gray, Coroner, yesterday afternoon summoned a Coroner's Jury and held an inquest, at which, as given below, he gave his reasons for such action.

The Coroner's inquest, held in the Police Court, was presided over by Dr. Gray, with County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood present.

When the jurymen were all present, excepting one, the coroner opened proceedings by regretting that the holiday should necessarily be ended by so sad a meeting, and adding, "I often pray the Lord that there will be very few such meetings necessary." H. C. C. Geo. Graham first got his instructions from the doctor presiding, and read the names of fifteen jurymen selected, all of whom were present except one, as noted. By instructions, the jury selected a foreman in Mr. Chas. Westlake. The jury was then duly sworn as follows: Chas. Westlake, foreman; Wm. Henry, Thos. E. Fitzgerald, John McGrath, Alexander Richardson, Elgin Chard, Martin McNamara, Erasmus Green, David Wallace, John Taylor, Robert Shear, Wm. Haridale, Pennington Alexander and Andrew Hall.

Dr. Gray then noted that, as yet, there was no evidence concerning the cause of Towns' death. He said he received a telephone message, before seven o'clock Monday morning, from the deceased's brother in Douro, saying that there was cause for suspicion and that if a Coroner's jury was not called, he (Mr. T. P. Towns) would force one. "It seems there had been a scrap," the Coroner continued, "in the hotel, between deceased and another young man;" the Coroner then continued the story of the poisoning, as already told in these columns Monday.

Dr. McNulty, the Coroner added, had told him it was a clear case of suicide. Dr. Gray then gave Constable Cochrane instructions to have the body returned from Douro, and ready at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. He also explained a coroner's inquest in such a case was no use without a post mortem being held, and also an analysis of the stomach's contents being made. "The deceased is said to have taken an ounce of laudanum, one-quarter of this dose would be fatal." The doctor then said as soon as death ensued the absorption of the stomach's contents would cease.

Mr. Wood then suggested that the Collegiate Institute Science Master might be able to make the analysis. However, Dr. Gray said a "quantative analysis" would have to be made, and this would be beyond the science master; without this analysis the inquest would be of no use.

Mr. Wood asked, "If the wounds in the head are found by the doctors to be insufficient to cause death, would an analysis be necessary?"

Dr. Gray answered that one doctor could not make a post mortem properly, as the operator's hands became too dirty from the work to keep a proper account of the findings, and no one but a medical man could properly do this, through ignorance of medical terms.

Doctors Carmichael and Malcom McCollough were appointed by Mr. Wood and the jury. Mr. Wood said in such case the public demand that nothing be left undone to get a full insight and report. He added that it was necessary for the doctors to hold the post-mortem, that Father Kelly and relatives of the deceased be satisfied.

The jury were then told that Messrs. Lane and Eano, the Hunter street undertakers, would have the body at their establishment at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and that they must assemble there sharp on time: This would allow the post-mortem to be held and the body buried on Wednesday. The meeting then adjourned.

ADJOURNED INQUEST.

Exactly at 11 a.m. yesterday the jury, with foreman, Mr. Chas. Westlake, gathered at Messrs. Lane and Eano's Hunter street undertaking establishment.

Dr. Gray, Coroner, led the way to a room in the rear, where the body of the late Mr. Edward Towns lay in his coffin, supported by trestles. High County Constable Geo. Cochrane read the formula usual to such meetings, and on calling the roll found all the jurymen present. County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood was also present, as was Mr. T. P. Towns, brother of the deceased.

The jury made a careful examination of the head where the alleged injuries exist: On the head it was found that one ear, the right, was quite discolored, being a dark blue. One cheek was somewhat bruised; there was a cut over the left eyebrow. In reply to a question put by a juryman, the undertaker, Mr. Eano, had carefully examined the whole body while preparing it for interment, and found no signs of any injury excepting those above mentioned; he added that before death, he had been told, the head of the deceased had shown some swelling; as this was only hearsay, of course it could not be taken as evidence.

Dr. Gray instructed Mr. Eano to have the remains denuded of clothing so the jury could satisfy themselves as to whether any marks of violence existed or not. The jury retired whilst the undertaker prepared the body for examination. When the body was prepared for inspection, as also for the post-mortem to follow, the jury returned to the back room and made a thorough examination. No further marks were found. The jury was then dismissed until 8 p.m. Monday.

DOURO ENTERTAINMENT

At the close of the entertainment the teacher was presented with a handsome toilet set as a slight token of the esteem in which she is held. Miss Mosier, in thanking them said she had only tried to do her duty. The trustees have secured the services of Miss Mosier for the ensuing year.

A CARD OF THANKS

To My Fellow Members of Peterboro Fire Brigade

Gentlemen.—It is with deep feelings of gratitude for the kind manner in which you expressed your confidence and friendship towards me, that I take this opportunity of thanking you one and all, for the handsome presentation made me at New Year's.

While fully conscious of your generous presentation, you will forgive me if I say that I appreciate equally the loyal manner in which you have all, at all times, responded so ably, efficiently and promptly to the call of duty.

I fully recognize the disadvantages under which our Fire Brigade has been handicapped; this however has always been, as far as is in human possibilities to do so, compensated for, by your eager and intelligent work.

Now that our fellow-citizens have decided to give us the appliances which during past years have been badly wanted by every member of the Brigade, I feel that we will now have a Fire Department second to none.

I can assure you all that every effort of mine will be devoted towards promoting the best interests of our Brigade. Again thanking you and wishing you all a Happy New Year, I am,

Yours truly,
THOS. RUTHERFORD

ALL WE ASK OF YOU IS - HOLD ON TO WHAT YOU BUY OF THIS STOCK

Dores Montgomery Mining Company

OF BULL FROG, NEVADA

604 CROSSLEY BUILDING, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

We are offering a limited amount of treasury stock at 25c. per share for development work. Our property is just 1200 feet southwest of the famous Montgomery Shoshone mine and both have unquestionably the same vein. Our group shows a well defined vein cropping out through, and it is a perfect fissure. A six inch talc seam on the hanging wall gives high values. We have also several other ledges, and it is only a matter of development work to make this property equal to any producer in the section.

Clipping from "The Rhyolite Herald". A glimpse at the world beater mine. What is a block of $75 ore, 150x150x200 feet worth in cold cash? This is in sight in the Big Shoshone Mine.

Can you figure?

If you were to compute the amount of ore "in sight" in the Montgomery Shoshone Mine, Nevada's infant wonder, and had the exact measurements before you, would you believe your own eyes? Here is an opportunity to test your faith.

There are five drifts on the big ore body. The first drift is 100 feet from the portal of the crosscut tunnel, which shows 150 feet of milling ore. The other drifts follow at a space of 50 feet apart. Here are the measurements.

Drift No. 1, north 100 feet. Drift No. 3, south 80 feet. Drift No. 5, north 40 feet.
Drift No. 2, south 150 feet. Drift No. 4, north 140 feet.
The winze sunk at a point 75 feet from the portal of the tunnel is 110 feet below the level and 150 feet from the surface.

The total exposure of ores in drifts No. 2 and 4 running in opposite directions, is 290 feet in length. The ore has been proven to be 150 feet in width in the crosscut tunnel, and has been proven continuous from the surface down to a depth of 150 feet in the winze, at a point where the ore was first struck in the tunnel, and the workings are all in ore.

Here is the block: 150 x 150 x 200 feet—5,250,000 cubic feet—200,000 tons—$20,250,000.

It is the opinion of the management of the mine that all of the ore exposed will average up to $75 a ton. If that is true there is $20,250,000 worth of ore in sight in the mine today. If the ore averages only $50, there is $7,500,000 in sight. If the ore averages only $40, there is $15,000,000 in sight in the mine. If the ore averages only $16, there is $5,000,000 in sight. These calculations are made on the basis of 15 cubic feet of ore to the ton.

The management of the Montgomery Shoshone conservatively estimates that the winze has produced $300,000 worth of ore. If this is right, the ore from the winze has averaged about $975 a ton, or about $1830 for every foot of sinking, the winze being 4 x 7 in clear.

Ore from the winze running less than $250 is thrown over the dump as milling ore. No less than 150 tons of ore has been shipped from this mine, all of it coming from the winze. Another shipment of 50 tons or more will be made via Las Vegas in a few days.

The figures given above are startling in the extreme, but the measurements and ore values as quoted are official—direct from the management of the wonderful mine that is today astonishing the world.

This property is only 1200 feet from the Dores Montgomery Mine.

"GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT."—The old Mining Adage.
The Older Mining Problem Follows "HOW TO GET IT OUT."

Poor men discover mines, rich men buy them out, or get control of the stock and freeze them out. Rare is it that the discoverer of a rich property ever develops it for himself. Most of the suffering and deprivation of prospecting is only a foundation for another man's building. In the case of the DORES MONTGOMERY MINING COMPANY, we have received not to lose what we, after so many years, have wrought from the earth. Therefore, after carefully incorporating, we decided that there was safety in numbers and we are seeking the small investor in order to spread the stock as much as possible and all we ask is IF YOU BUY, HOLD ON, as you would to an endowment policy. Don't come into this solely to speculate. If the mine, some weight is attached to it. His alleged statement, however, that the woman was driven to the spot is safe, with a big future, but we don't offer many shares. This is an opportunity that you never had before. C. H. Schwab offered $1,000,000, which was refused, for the Montgomery Shoshone Mines, just 1200 feet from our property.

All Thin, Pale Women

Can Learn the Cause of Their Nervous, Used-up Condition

With women, ill-health is usually traceable to nerve exhaustion. Feeling run-down and tired most of the time is nature's warning that more nerve-force is required.

You must build up, nourish the body, vitalize the nerves, get more flesh and blood.

It's the abundant nutriment and building material in Ferrozone that enables it to cure so many sick women. It increases the appetite, adds weight and strength, restores lost color and develops a surplus of energy and nerve force that defies sickness of any kind. There is living proof in Mrs. Daniel Ferguson, Jr., of Prescott, Ont. Read her statement:

"A few years ago my health failed. I grew thin and exceedingly pale. At night it was difficult to obtain restful sleep. My appetite was variable and indigestion bothered me considerably. I became morose and suffered from heart palpitation. You could scarcely believe the benefit I derived in one week from Ferrozone. Color came back to my cheeks. My vitality and appetite increased, renewed nerve force and better spirits came also. Ferrozone did a world of good and made me well.

Remember this: No alcoholic stimulant can nourish and build up like Ferrozone. Fifty cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

OUR GREAT HERITAGE

The area of the Dominion of Canada is but little less than that of the whole continent of Europe. It is almost twice the size of India. It is as large as the United States with its dependencies of Hawaii and the Philippine Islands. Its capacity for supporting population is so great that it can hardly be surmised at present. It is a land of great plains, of splendid forest stretches, of lofty mountains, of wonderful rivers, of wide-spreading lakes, and rich mineral deposits.

JAPAN WAS GENEROUS

Japanese statesmen must marvel at their own forbearance in consenting to the terms of peace agreed upon at Portsmouth, when they consider the condition of the Russian Empire. It is clear that the Czar's Government was plunging headlong into a hopeless entanglement of foreign war and internal revolt when Witte made his master stroke as a diplomat. Russia could not have carried on effective resistance to the Japanese armies much longer. Linevitch's forces would have disintegrated in front of a victorious foe, with conditions in Russia as they have been since the war ended.

It is clearly all that the Czar's Manchurian army can do to maintain a semblance of order in the part of that great Chinese province which is still under Russian control. The Manchurian bandits that harassed the outposts of the Russian forces during the war are more daring and formidable than ever. Mutinies in the Russian army in Manchuria have been put down only at heavy cost in blood and with much destruction of property. It looks as if China might maintain better order than Russia can under existing conditions.

The sooner the ambitions of Muscovite rulers are restricted to the legitimate borders of their empire the better it will be for Russia and for all the world. Russia will have more than enough to do at home, for many years to come.

THE PLAN OF THE ZIONISTS

Dr. Max Nordau, in a letter to the London Times, says that the Zionists "have never forgotten that Palestine proper—viz., the country west of the Jordan—in not large enough, whether vacant or not, to contain all the Jews desirous to return to the land of their forefathers. We always contemplated to draw into our colonizing scheme the Sinai peninsula, with the plain of Pelusium, the Hauran, and the valley of the Euphrates, which are now practically empty and would, if properly irrigated and provided with means of communication, even with present methods of culture, offer some two hundred millions of settlers sufficient room for working and thriving." He then goes on to say that the Zionists "protest strongly against the insinuation that we had an avowed or concealed—intention to found in Palestine a Jewish State. We have always been frank with the Sultan. He knows that we never thought of infringing on his sovereign rights. All we ever wanted was—and is—local autonomy, permitting the unfettered display of all our economical and moral capacities. It is not the Sultan, it is we Zionists who have been and are adverse to any large immigration of Jews in Palestine without the previous consent of the Sultan and without his granting first the rights indispensable for our prosperity. Nothing we have said or done justifies the allegation that our hope of obtaining Palestine and the neighboring countries as a legally secured home has faded into a vision of a more distant hope than it was ever considered to be at the outset of our movement by all the serious and responsible persons within it."

FORGING ANTIQUITIES.

Even Experts Tricked in Distinguishing Real From the Spurious.

At times the forger is content to take ancient fragments of ancient vases or statuettes and complete them with clay or plaster of paris. These new "old" wares he then paints up and passes to the unsuspecting, and sometimes suspecting, purchaser as real antiques. The story is told of a forger in Athens that he protested that when he had finished "improving" an antique he himself could not always tell where the genuine part ceased and the false began. Under such circumstances it may not be wondered that at times even experts are tricked.

The following incident shows how forgeries turn up in very unexpected places: One hot day a party of us were toiling up a steep ascent in the island of Melos when we saw above us a number of Greeks seated on a parapet of ruins. We had been cruising long enough among the Ægean islands to know that these people of the place had seen our ship drop anchor in the water below and were now waiting to sell us antiquities. At the sight of these Greeks one of our number, a tireless Scotchwoman, scrambled ahead of us to the top, where we could soon see her, wind blown and outlined against the blue sky, bargaining for a vase. When we reached the top after a more leisurely climb she put her purchase in my hands and asked me what I thought of it. My hands were moist with perspiration from the exertion of the climb, and for answer to her question I held them out to her all blackened from grasping the vase. The sweat had attacked the modern paint with which it was covered, and by thus coming off on my hands the color had betrayed its falsity. The whole vase had been patched up from six or seven pieces and then painted over to conceal the repairing.

CONCERNING DREAMS.

Often Indicate a Serious Illness—The Blind See in Dreams.

Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood, is said to have recorded a dream in which a bumblebee stung him in his left thigh, on a place where a couple of days later appeared an ugly ulcer. Malesherbe, the renowned French author, found himself in a dream attacked by a rowdy, who stabbed him in his left breast with a dagger in an area where the following evening he felt the first attack of severe pneumonia. "The archives of medical reports," says Dr. Axel Emil Gibson, "are heavy with cases of a similar character, which have either received no explanation at all or else have been explained away entirely."

Dr. Gibson calls attention to the fact that dreams depend on some other media than those known as the five senses. A conclusive evidence in favor of this view is found in the circumstances that even the blind are able to see in dreams, as witness experiences recorded by Helen Keller, "Blind Tom," the poet Milton and others; hence the conclusion seems to be unavoidable that it is only as far as physical vision is concerned that the optic nerve guides and limits the field of vision.

This same author arrives at the deduction that dreaming and waking differ in degree and form of manifestation only, not in principle and essence. "Like waking consciousness," he avers, "the dream reveals, but does not create. The same world that surrounds the waking individual surrounds the dreaming, only the viewpoints and media of observation are changed."

G. E. Wright.

"I had stricture for eleven years. It finally brought on Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. I had an uncomfortable shooting pain in the groin and feeling as though something was in the urethra. My back was weak and I could scarcely stoop over. Urine was full of sediment. Had a desire to urinate frequently. Family doctors, so-called specialists, patent medicines, electric belts, all failed. I was discouraged. I had spent hundreds of dollars in vain. Finally I consulted Drs. Kennedy & Kergan as the last resort. I had heard a great deal about them and concluded from the fact that they had been established over 25 years, that they understood their business. I am delighted with the results. In one week I felt better and in a few weeks was entirely cured. Have gained sixteen pounds in weight."

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

He stood at the corner of the Square, and watched me till I had turned the corner, as cool and diabolical a figure as the Author of all Evil himself. I only looked back once, and then walked briskly on until I reached Piccadilly Circus, where I halted and [illegible] about me in a sort of dim confused wonderment at my position. What a variety of events had occurred since the previous night, when I had stood in the same place, and had heard the policeman's whistle sound from Jermyn Street, in proclamation of the second mysterious murder! How little I had then thought that within twenty-four hours I should be in the same peril as the murderer of the man I had seen lying under the light of the policeman's lantern! Perhaps even at this moment Bartrand's body had been discovered, and a hue and cry was on foot for the man who had done the deed. With this thought in my mind, a greater terror than I had yet felt came over me, and I set off as hard as I could go down a bye-street into Trafalgar Square, thence by way of Northumberland Avenue on to the Embankment. Once there I leant upon the coping and looked down at the dark water slipping along so silently on its way to the sea. Here was my chance if only I had the pluck to avail myself of it. Life had now no hope left for me. Why should I not throw myself over, and so escape the fate that must inevitably await me if I lived? One moment's courage, a little struggling in the icy water, a last choking cry, and then it would all be over and done with, and those who had the misfortune to call themselves my kinsmen would be spared the mortification of seeing me standing in a felon's dock. I craned my neck still further over the side, and looked at the blocks of ice as they went by, knocking against each other with a faint musical sound that sounded like the tinkling of tiny bells. I remembered the depth of the river, and pictured my solemn body stranded on to the mud by the ebbing tide somewhere near the sea. I could fancy the conjectures that would be made concerning it. Would anyone connect me with —but there, I could not go on. No: could I do what I had proposed. Desperate as was my case, I found I still clung to life with a tenacity that even crime itself could not lessen. No; by book or crook I must get out of England to some place where nobody would know me, and where I could begin a new life. By cunning it could surely be managed. But in that case I knew I must not go back to my hotel, and run the risk of seeing Nikola again. I distrusted his powers of saving me; and if I fell once more under his influence, goodness alone knew what I might not be made to do. No; I would make some excuse to the landlord to account for my absence, and then creep quietly out of England in such a way that no one would suspect me. But how was it to be managed? To remain in London would be to run endless risks. Anyone might recognise me, and then capture would be inevitable. I turned out my pockets and counted my money. Fortunately, I had cashed a cheque only the day before, and now had nearly forty pounds in notes and gold in my purse; not very much, it is true, but amply sufficient for my present needs. The question was: Where should I go? Australia, the United States, South America, South Africa? Which of these places would be safest? The first and second I rejected without consideration. The first I had tried, the second I had no desire to visit. Chili, the Argentine, or Bechuanaland? It all depended on the boats. To whichever place a vessel sailed first, to that place I would go.

Casting one last glance at the ice-bound water below me, and with a shudder at the thought of what I had contemplated doing when I first arrived upon the Embankment, I made my way back into the Strand. It was now close upon three o'clock, and already a few people were abroad. If I were not out of London within a few hours, I might be caught. I would go directly I had decided what it was imperative I should know. Up one street and down another I toiled until at last I came upon what I wanted, a small restaurant in a back street, devoted to the interests of the early arrivals at Covent Garden Market. It was only a tiny place, shabby in the extreme, but as it just suited my purpose, I walked boldly in, and ordered a cup of cocoa and a plate of sausages. While they were being prepared I seated myself in one of the small compartments along the opposite wall, and with my head upon my hands tried to think coherently. When the proprietor brought me the food, I asked him if he could oblige me with the loan of writing materials. He glanced at me rather queerly, I thought, but did not hesitate to do what I asked. When he had gone again I dipped the pen into the ink and wrote a note to the proprietor of my hotel, telling him that I had been suddenly taken out of town by important business, and asking him to forward my boxes, within a week, to the cloak room, Aberdeen railway station, labelled "to be called for." I chose Aberdeen for the reason that it was a long distance from London, and also because it struck me that if enquiries were made by the police it would draw attention off my real route, which would certainly not be in that direction. I then wrote a cheque for the amount of my account, enclosed it, and having done so sealed up the letter and put it in my pocket. On an adjoining table I espied a newspaper, which I made haste to secure. Turning to the column where the shipping advertisements were displayed, I searched the list for a vessel outward bound to one of the ports I had chosen. I discovered that to Chili or any of the South American Republics there would not be a boat sailing for at least a week to come. When I turned to South Africa I was more fortunate; a craft named the Fiji Princess was advertised to sail from Southampton for Cape Town at 11 a.m. on this self-same day. She was of 4,000 tons burden, but had only accommodation for ten first-class passengers and fifty in the steerage. What pleased me better still, she would only call at Tenerife on the way. The steerage fare was fifteen pounds, and it was by this class I determined to travel. My mind once made up, the next thing to decide was how to reach Southampton without incurring suspicion. To catch the boat this could only be done by rail, and to further increase my store of knowledge I had again to borrow from the proprietor of the restaurant. From the time table he lent me I found that a train left Waterloo every morning at six o'clock, which would get me to the docks before nine o'clock, thus allowing me two full hours in which to make my preparations and to get on board in comfortable time; that is, supposing she sailed at the hour stated. But I had still three hours to put in London before the train would start, and how to occupy them without running any risk I could not tell. It was quite impossible for me to remain where I was, and yet to go out and walk about the streets would be dangerous in the extreme. In that time Nikola might get hold of me again, and I believe I dreaded that more than even falling into the clutches of the law. Suddenly I was struck by what seemed a splendid idea. What if I walked out of London to some station along the line where the train would pick me up? In that case no one would be able to remember seeing me start from Waterloo, and I should be believed to be still in London. The thought was no sooner born in my brain than I picked up my hat and prepared to be off.

When I paid at the counter for my meal, and also for the note paper with which the proprietor had obliged me, I strode out of the restaurant and down the street into the Strand again. Surbiton, I reflected, was twelve miles from Waterloo, and, besides being quiet, it was also one of the places at which I had noticed that the train was advertised to call. I had almost three hours before me in which to do the distance, and if I walked at the rate of five miles an hour it was evident I should accomplish it with ease. To Surbiton, therefore, I would go.

A BRUTAL HUSBAND

He Tore Off Wife's Ear and Burned Her Feet.

Easton, Pa., December 29 — Edward Bruce, who brutally attacked his young wife, has been arrested after five days' hunt for him. It is charged that besides burning his wife's feet with hot irons, he cut pieces of flesh off her legs, tore one of her ears off and beat her with a strap, using the buckle end.

Bruce was found in New Jersey, but was willing to come here without requisition papers.

Alderman Brunner thought the alleged crime justified a high amount of bail, and fixed it at $10,000, which the defendant could not furnish. Bruce is a half breed Indian, and receives an income of $40,000. There has been talk of lynching him if found, but it has abated since he is safe behind the bars. Mrs. Bruce is in a critical condition.

Hanged Himself

Woodstock, Dec. 30.—Robert W. Keeler, nurseryman, High street, committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging. He fastened a scarf to a hook in the wall, placed it around his neck and then drew up his feet from the floor. He was 55 years of age and leaves a wife and four children. He had been a sufferer for years from stomach trouble.

Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Ore [illegible] Mine is [illegible] developed and [illegible] stage.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. The directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of stock at par. The improvements under way include the [illegible] of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and [illegible] for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of the stock it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custar, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and several other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $500,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

FIRE HALL BYLAW

The Carrying of This Measure a Source of Gratification Generally

That the Fire Hall Bylaw has been carried by substantial majority is a source of gratification, generally speaking. And Ald. Johnston, the father of the measure, is more than satisfied that the electors have by their votes endorsed the policy for improved fire protection equipment to which he has adhered with so much praiseworthy tenacity. The worthy alderman is extremely modest in his hour of triumph and ascribes the endorsation of this bylaw by the public to the energy of the Retail Merchants' Association, and members of the Joint Committee convened to discuss the merits of this Fire Hall measure. Ald. Johnston is especially pleased that suburban residents polled a big vote in favor of the bylaw which goes to show that they fully recognize that they will be benefitted by improved fire protection. Ald. Johnston will undoubtedly feel satisfied now to continue in the occupancy of the chairmanship of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. Reginald Winch, of South Saskatchewan, who has been engaged in the cattle ebusiness near Maple Creek and other points, in the employ of Dixon Bros., is once more back in the city. Mr. Winch speaks very highly of the prospects of the far west, particularly in the cattle business. He, accompanied by our popular ex-alderman, Mr. H. C. Winch, yesterday gave The Times a friendly call. Mr. Winch says that it is a common thing out there he has been to see car loads of cattle shipped, every head of which would run from 1800 to 2000 pounds each. Mr. Winch has been away for about seven months, and will spend the winter here.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Electors of the Board of Education, Peterboro

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Permit me through the columns of The Times to thank you for the very generous support accorded me in the recent elections.

The position in which you have placed me, whether taken as an evidence of personal popularity or an approval of my past record in your service, could not fail to be most gratifying, while the large vote polled shows the very creditable interest you take in the educational affairs of the City.

Believe me, ladies and gentlemen, this renewal of your confidence more than repays me for the past and will stimulate to larger efforts in the future.

Yours very faithfully,

W. H. HILL.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Electors of Peterboro

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Although I have not the honor of your confidence in a majority vote in my behalf as an Alderman of this progressive city of Peterboro, still I feel it my duty to return my sincere thanks to those of my fellow citizens who honored me with their votes on Monday last. The fact of my not being privileged to sit on the Council Board of 1906 will not deter me from taking the same deep interest in our municipal affairs in the future as I have always entertained in the past. With best wishes for a prosperous new year, municipally and individually, believe me to remain.

Yours sincerely,

THOS. J. WILSON.

CARD FROM MR. MASON

I have special reason to feel pleased with the election, seeing that your expression of confidence was a voluntary one, and that I left myself in your hands untrammelled by any pledges.

And a hard pull describes the pathway of a woman afflicted with female weakness unless she is under the care of a doctor who has had successful experience in the treatment of such cases or else has found the right remedy which can be safely used independently of the doctor.

Forty years ago, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that women were being grossly maltreated—mainly through ignorance and carelessness, and he determined to devote himself to study and research till he found the real cause of their suffering and a proper remedy for it.

He found it, and dug from Nature's Laboratory, the earth, Nature's remedies for woman's weaknesses and ailments. He found in Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root and Golden Seal root, the required ingredients.

The remedial virtues of these he extracted, combined and preserved by his own peculiar non-alcoholic, glycerin processes, and the compound is now known the world over, as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"The wearing of corsets too tight seemed to have brought on an abdominal pressure, weakening the ligaments and resulting in displacement, which troubled me until I was not fit to walk, and at times could hardly stand," writes Mrs. Beverly Hargreaves, of 124 Fulton St., San Francisco, Cal. "A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Before the first bottle was used I felt much benefited. Improvement went steadily on, and within four months I was like a new and well woman once more. I can now perform my full and natural and extremely grateful to you for your blessed remedy a boon to sick women."

Did Manufacturers Form a Pool?

Crown Attorney Insists That One Existed But Defence Denies It---The Only Maker Outside the Association Was Put Out of Business

Toronto, Jan. 4.—The Canadian Tack Association investigation was continued before Magistrate Denison today, with Samuel J. Frame, clerk in the office of Jenkins & Hardy, still in the stand.

Crown Attorney Curry read from the association minute at the point where he left off yesterday. He touched upon an item wherein the agreeing concerns made statements of booked orders upon entering into the agreement of the association. The booked orders at the lower price were not to exceed $600, after which the prices of the association were to be quoted.

Mr. Curry; "Each member of the pool was to pay into the pool 20per cent. of all in excess of this. Where would that money go?"

Mr. Frame could not say that there was a pool, and Mr. Curry was quite positive that, one had been mentioned in the minutes previously read. Mr. Tilly, for the defence, was positive that no pool had been made mention of.

Mr. Curry; "Well, I'm satisfied that it is so, so I'll just take a look."

He brought forward Association Ledger A, but was unable to make the discovery for the time being. In response to a query from his Worship, Mr. Curry promised to produce letters establishing his contention that there was a pool. "These letters read," said he, "Please take notice that you owe the pool so much, etc., etc."

HAD A SPECIAL RATE.

A letter from the Peck Benny Company was referred to, in which they stated that the Portland Rolling Mills was giving a special rate to the trade in the Maritime Provinces. Spade shoe nails, larger size, were offered at $3.75, with terms two per cent. at ten days, and a freight allowance.

"The Portland Rolling Mills had to be pleased in some way," said Mr. Curry, "and they were pleased to give a per cent. of 12 1-2 on a purchase of $100, and 12 1-2 off from a $250 purchase."

A few minutes of explanatory argument between the counsel for the defence, W. N. Tilly, and the magistrate led his Worship to put his summing up of the part of the evidence heard in the proverbial nutshell.

"If these people should agree with one another to sell at a fixed price that would be different, but when these people associate to fix a price and fine any member of the association who sells at a lower price—why that is unduly restricting trade."

Mr. Tilly; "But a dealer, when he sells at the lower price, pays the penalty. He doesn't want to be putting his hand into his pocket."

ARE THERE OTHERS?

"If the dealers don't want to buy tacks from the association, why don't they buy of other tack concerns?—there are other tack concerns."

Magistrate; "What are the other concerns?"

Mr. Tilly; "Well, I can't say. Ask Mr. Frame."

Mr. Frame; "I believe I did hear of a man, Gwynne, in Hamilton, who manufactured tacks. I have never seen his place."

Mr. Curry; "And I believe the association lowered prices so as to put him out of business."

"They managed to get affairs somewhat complicated," announced his Worship, after hearing expounded the item regarding the affairs of the Portland Rolling Mills. The association had given a special reduction for sales during January and June, 1905, but the travellers of the mills had sold goods at the reduced rates in the Maritime Provinces before the reduced rates were declared. This made it difficult to decide the quantity discounts of the Maritime customers who had so purchased.

The investigation was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

BIG WAR CLOUD IN FAR EAST

United States Sending Troops to Philippine Islands

PREPARATIONS FOR WAR

Other Powers Getting Ready for Trouble in the Celestial Empire

DanBer, January 3.—First Regiment, U. S. A., stationed in New York, ordered to the Philippines, will sail January 20.

Second Regiment, U. S A., stationed at Fort Logan, Colo., ordered to the Philippines, will sail from San Francisco, February 1.

Eighth and Thirteenth Field Batteries, U. S. A., stationed at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., ordered to the Philippines, will sail with the Second Regiment February 1.

In the Philippines: Nine regiments of infantry, four regiments of cavalry and three batteries of field artillery.

A strong naval force is on the Asiatic station which can be quickly concentrated in Chinese waters.

Private advices received by army officers at the headquarters of the Department of the Colorado show that active service in Chinese territory is being counted on by the American army. The fact that men having less than two years and six months to serve will not be allowed to go with their regiments to the Philippines until they re-enlist for the full term of three years, shows that an extended period of foreign service is counted on.

It is said that other nations are also preparing to concentrate forces where they will be available for China.

The United States cannot land troops or quarter troops on Chinese soil in times of peace. However, owning the Philippines, the government can quarter as many regiments in the islands as it pleases and without violating any of the international laws.

It is known in military circles that the situation in China is grave, and it is said the some of the officers at army headquarters here and also at Fort Logan have been secretly informed by Washington that the movement of the Second Regiment and other troops to Manila is because of threatened danger in China.

January Canadian Magazine

There is no deterioration in quality in the January Canadian Magazine. The articles on Sir John Thompson by Hon. J. J. Curran and Sir John Carling by Fred T. Yealland are worthy of special attention, as each contains information which is not generally known. The Jarvis manuscript, of which the first instalment is given, details the experiences of a loyalists youth during the early years of the war which ended in so many patriotic Britishers being driven out of the United States. It tells of the difficulty he had to avoid being impressed into the rebel army. This MS. covers a considerable period, 1773 to 1815. Among the other articles are "The Problem in the Philippines" by Bradford K. Daniels, an Englishman who has spent some time there; "The Public School and the Philanthropist" by Dr. J. M. Harper, a prominent Quebec educationist; "The Breaking of the Paper Combine" by the Editor, a timely article in view of the present legal investigation; "The Indians of Canada," by Norman Patterson, with numerous illustrations; "Mr. John Morley," as man of letters, by Professor Pelham Edgar. There are stories by Theodore Roberts, Mrs. Campbell Praed, Lottie Macniven and Marguerite Evans. This long list makes an excellent number.

THIS YEAR'S COUNCIL

Inauguration Meeting Will be Held on Monday Next

The first meeting of the new council will be held next Monday morning at eleven o'clock, when the mayor and aldermen will take the declaration of office. Afterwards a committee will be appointed to select the standing committees for 1906.

The committee to strike the standing committees will, it is rumored, be composed mostly of aldermen who were in last year's council.

A QUIET WEDDING

Miss M. E. Patton Becomes the Bride of Mr. G. A. Rutherford

An interesting, though very quietly celebrated marriage was on the tapis at George street Methodist church yesterday afternoon, when Rev. Dr. Crotlarn united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Miss Margaret Ellen Patton, daughter of the late Mr. James Patton, and Mr. George A. Rutherford.

The young couple were unattended, evidently considering that the felicity of connubial bliss was sufficient, without external show at their wedding.

The bride was neatly attired in a travelling suit. The happy couple will reside on Wescott street.

THE SPRINGVILLE CASE

The Home Comfort-Range Charges Seem Unjustified

In our issue of yesterday's date we noted that a Springville correspondent had said that several farmers in that neighborhood had been taken in by a "con." game, over affairs for Home Comfort Ranges.

It seems that our information, seemingly reliable, was absolutely foundationless. Whether such reports were sent as a stupid attempt at jocularity or through a personal spite against the company or their agent handling these Home Comfort ranges we are at a loss to know.

The main point at issue however is that their is no truth in the Cavan farmers being victimized by the Home Comfort Ranges agents or any other store agents of late.

Mr. Henley, local agent of the company making these ranges, denies in toto, that any authorized agents of his company are doing up anybody.

As far as any note presented to purchasers of Home Comfort ranges is concerned, we might say that yesterday The Times was shown a copy of the note which purchasers of these ranges sign, and the duplicate which each buyer receives. They are effectly plain and legitimate. Mr. Henley says that his firm is too large to stoop to deception of any kind. He added that their ranges were sold on their merits only.

It is rumored that the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, has placed or is about to place a large order for Home Comfort ranges.

GRAVE PROBLEM FACES LONDON

Great Army of the Unemployed Menaces Capital of Great Britain

REMEDY CLOSE AT HAND

Awakening of the Dormant Responsibility of Parentage is Near

London, January 3.—The gravest problem this city faces today is that of the unemployed. The remedy, the primary remedy, is close at hand. It lies in the awakening of a dormant because neglected, moral sense, viz.: the sense of the responsibility of parentage. I say "dormant because neglected," for do not our ministers of religion, some of them filling the highest places, make it part of their business to discourage the growth of this sense, and do not the bulk of the medical profession, occupying a colgn of even greater vantage, shunt the entire subject with what Mr. H. G. Wells appropriately terms the evasive cough?" The fact that there are in Great Britain some 10,000 certified lunatics and some 110,000 feeble minded persons, the further fact that during the last ten years the insane paupers of England and Wales have increased 28 1-2 per cent., should, without anything more, rouse the doctors from their indifference.

A Guild of British Science was lately inaugurated which will, it is to be hoped, study the close inter-relations of poverty, disease and physical (not political) economy. If this guild in a reverent and scientific spirit will grapple with the question of sex, it is not impossible that it will discover a solution of the problem of unemployment more efficacious than is likely to be reached by the official laborers of any poor law commission, however representative, however able, or by the theoretical musings of any group of collectivist doctrinaires.

We hear much talk nowadays about efficiency of administration, but what do we hear about efficiency of production? Yet this last is the second remedy for the prevailing disorder. We must, of course, deal, and deal quickly, with the distress we see around us, but we must also face the future. Now, as a set-off against our known national virtues we have, unfortunately, two serious defects (1) a difficulty in assimilating new ideas—witness the backwardness of our local boards in availing themselves of recently ascertained means of stopping the spread of typhoid fever; (2) a reluctance to subordinate individual inclination to the welfare of the race—witness the listless attitude of even highly educated persons toward the elementary canon of eugenics that only healthy parents have a right to expect healthy children.

To positive qualities, the direct opposites of the foregoing, the Japanese owe nine-tenths of their brilliant successes. When we have so cultivated these qualities that we have made them thoroughly our own, reasonable action will follow on, as surely as expression follows on the faculty of articulate speech. If, on the other hand, we persist in clinging to the fatal policy of laissez aller—a policy which has ruled us in the past—if we stolidly acquiesce in what we are pleased to style "the inevitable," the inevitable will no doubt arrive, but it will be no more an unbidden guest than is the phantom image of ourselves which, on some mountain height, confronts us from out the delusive mist.

With painful distinctiveness the return just issued by the local government board show that the wave of "legal pauperism" is steadily advancing. Immediately behind it flows the wave of "destruction," the pathetic sound of which, though it may be heard early by the philanthropic worker, only reaches the official ear when the two waves have united. The purpose of this letter is clearly to indicate the principal courses of the advance of both waves. They are (1) the multiplication of human beings without prospect of maintaining them, of their being able to maintain themselves; (2) the propagation of feeble and unfit stock.

In critical times like the present, these courses act and react upon each other, for not only do the feeble, whether feeble by nature or by their own fault, swell the redundant ranks of the community, but the strong who pursue a hopeless search for employment become, in the end, unfit for the very employment they seek.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Yesterday only one case appeared before His Worship at the police court. This was that of a young Englishman who was charged with having absorbed too frequently of the seductive "bug juice" on Tuesday night.

When the bibulous stage of his jag had arrived, it seems he made a call, a most informal call, one without the credit of previous invitation, expectation or prospects of welcome on making the call, at the residence of Mr. W. J. Green, who occupies the seat of Cæsar in this city and sees that the coin belonging to Cæsar is rendered unto Cæsar. Mr. Green had some difficulty in persuading the scion of Great Britain that a little fresh air and a resumption of his perambulations would suit the rich English blood of his caller. This call was made about 10.30 p.m. Not content with disturbing Mr. Green, the Englishman undertook to "raise Cain," in front of the convent, being, in his libationem condition, determined, about midnight to make a New Year's call on those within.

This was overstepping the limit, so Mr. Anglo-Saxon Jagless was quickly gathered in by our sturdy guardians of the peace.

It might be added that when he appeared before the bar of justice yesterday morning, the Englishman had with him a pair of skates, not the skate he had gotten previously at the other bars. He pleaded guilty of having been drunk but not disorderly, as far as he could remember. The magistrate let him down light, possibly as a New Year's gift, only imposing a fine of $2. The Englishman dug down to his jeans and paid up the two simoleons forthwith, but remarking on the injustice of "An Englishman not being allowed to do as he liked in a free country."

Last night a young man named Carney, hailing from Young's Point, was arrested. When brought to the station, he had with him a bottle of wine and a great bag jag. It was for carrying the latter, without its being concealed that led to Carney's temporary incarceration.

COUNTY COURT.

Yesterday morning Richard Watson, of Lakefield, appeared before Magistrate Edmison on a charge of assaulting, beating and ill-treating John McGrath of the city. Watson pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $10.60. The offence was committed in Lakefield on Dec. 1st.

THE BITER BIT

Attempted to Catch a Snap Bet, But Lost

Yesterday Mrs. Annie E. Kleiser, the only successful lady commercial traveller in jewellery, was registered at the Snowden House.

This lady brings with her but one large trunk, containing both her personal apparel and a small steel safe weighing perhaps 500 pounds. This trunk, containing the safe, is made of steel and weighs 200 or 300 pounds, but does not look it, yesterday stood in the Snowden House hall. A gentleman of this city, whom we will call Shornhart, because that is not his name, out of curiosity, caught hold of one of the trunk handles and tried to lift it to his surprise he could not budge it.

A few hours passed by, when a friend of Mr. Hornsharts came into the hotel. Mr. H., shortly after his friends arrival, said to him, "See that trunk over there, what do you think it weighs?" "Oh, I don't know, I suppose about 100 pounds," replied the friend. "Well, said Mr. H., "I'll bet you the cigars you can't lift one end of it." "I'll take that bet," replied his friend, who at once took the handle at one end of the trunk and, bending his back, raised it several inches. The safe had been removed upstairs to Mrs. Kleiser's room since Mr. H. had felt the trunk's weight.

Mrs. Kleiser left by the C. P. R. noon train for St. John, N. B. Her district includes all the cities between Vancouver and Halifax. She carries in her steel safe an assortment of diamonds and other rare jewels that are worth a king's ransom. This lady traveller is a fine looking woman, of youthful appearance, wears eye-glasses and a high "cowboy" hat. She is all business, minds her own business and sees that others mind theirs.

A good story—told of Mrs. Kleiser—is that, owing to her universal custom of refusing to talk with male travellers on the road, a traveller on a Pullman car, on which this lady rode, made a bet with other travellers he would engage her in conversation. As a certain depot was being neared, the lady got up and started to gather her gripe together. The fresh traveller, who made the bet, stepped up to Mrs. Kleiser, as the train drew into the depot, and said, "Allow me Madame," at once taking the grip to the platform.

Arrived on the platform, the gentleman proceeded to try and win his bet, but to his disgust Mrs. Kleiser handed him a ten cent piece, saying "Thank you, there is a dime for your trouble, I always give that to any extra train porter that assists me." The traveller bought the cigars later on.

Items of Interest Regarding Our Own Country

British Columbia is twice as big as France.

The first newspaper in Canada was published in Quebec in 1764.

Canada contains one-third of the whole area of the British Empire.

The total number of Indians in Canada is 107,978, an increase of 5,730 in thirty-one years.

Of every 100 Canadian people, 79 per cent. live in the country, and 27 per cent. in the city.

About 20,000 miles of railway are in operation in Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Manitoba complains of being too small, but it is as large as England and Scotland combined.

The total cost of building the Canadian canal at Sault Ste. Marie was over four millions of dollars.

The Canadian Pacific Railway carries passengers from Montreal to Vancouver, 2,906 miles, in 100 hours.

The Bank of Montreal is one of the great chartered banks of the world. There is nothing in the United States equal to it.

According to the official statements there were 200 million letters sent from Canadian post offices in 1904.

The Welland Canal is one of the greatest canals in the world. It has 26 locks of the standard size, 270 by 45 feet.

To provide homes for the people of Canada requires 1,628,202 houses, giving an average of 5.23 persons to a family.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has a mileage of 8,923 miles: the Grand Trunk, 4,177; the Intercolonial, 1,315; and the others of over 7,000 miles.

The first railway in Canada was built in 1836, to connect the St. Lawrence with Lake Champlain. At first horses were used, but locomotives were introduced in the following year.

The new bridge across the St. Lawrence, now being erected about six miles above Quebec, will have the longest span of any bridge in the world, as its main span exceeds that of the Forth Bridge by about 20 feet.

An English lady, interviewing the men of a Canadian cavalry detachment, camped at the Alexandra Palace, with much the pose that she would assume at a wild-west exhibition, remarked to an officer: "Do all the tribes speak as good English as you do?"

Albany to Take Action Regarding Insurance

Governor Higgins Points Out Tremendous Business of Companies and Need of Regulation---No Political Payments

Albany, N.Y., Jan 4.—The New York State Legislature convened at noon yesterday James W. Wadsworth jr of Livingston county, was elected Speaker of the Assembly, after which the annual message of Governor Higgins was read. The message is in part as follows:

"The magnitude and extent of the business of life insurance is startling, even after a year of discussion and agitation.

"At the end of December, 1904, 42 companies doing business in the State of New York had total gross receipts of $2,454,609,436.53.

"For the year ending December 31, 1904, these companies had received in premiums $489,542,922.04, and they had a total income from all sources of $580,743,959.14.

"The disbursements for commissions to agents on this business amounted to $67,088,887.97.

"The salaries, medical fees and payments to employees were $36,537,256.98.

"Other disbursements were $23,395,686.55.

"The total number of policies in force December 31, 1904, of the forty-two companies named, was 9,949,722, insuring $10,028,090,981.

AIM TO CURE, NOT KILL.

"The business may be roughly divided in natives between three great companies existing under the laws of New York on the one side and the remaining companies on the other. The problem of State regulation of insurance has become one of overshadowing importance. It calls for calm, courageous and intelligent treatment. We must aim to cure, not to kill; to preserve, not to tear down.

"It is improper for me at this time to anticipate the report of your committee, which has conducted its trying duties with ability, courage, and success, nor shall I seek to outline a new insurance law. Legislation action prior to the presentation of the report would be injudicious and premature.

"You will be called upon to make a radical revision of the law for the benefit of investors in life insurance and for the regulation and restraint of the companies. We may well consider at this time the expediency of providing for more thorough regulation by the Department of Insurance.

"Future effective action by Congress or the Federal Government is not probable, and the possibility of such action should not retard for an instant the work of the State."

TO MAKE IT CRIMINAL.

The Governor takes the same stand as President Roosevelt in the matter of election reform, and recommends that the making of political payments by corporations be made a penal offence, and that all officers and agents of said corporations knowing or approving thereof be subject to fine and imprisonment.

Referring to regulation of public utilities, the Governor says;

"Private companies control our railroads, telegraphs, telephones, gas and water supplies, and other services, which have become necessary to the daily lives of many of our citizens. Such companies are quasi-governmental agencies vested with the sovereign power to condemn private property for their uses. They are permitted to exist because the State delegates to them its own functions for convenience and economy and to promote industrial development. Such corporations should be tolerated only so long as their rates are reasonable, and their service prompt and efficient."

RIVALRY WITH CANADA.

Protection to Niagara Falls is dealt with by the Governor as follows:

"More than twenty years ago the State of New York sought to redeem the falls of Niagara from vandalism by restoring the surrounding scenery to its primeval beauty and creating a State reservation as a free pleasure ground for the people. It has spent large sums of money in the establishment and maintenance of the reservation, and many thousands of visitors enjoy its privileges yearly. This State and the Dominion of Canada have in the past been engaged in an unworthy rivalry in granting franchises of incalculable value to power development companies, permitting them to take water from the Niagara River above the Falls for commercial purposes. The privileges granted to these companies now constitutes a real menace to Niagara.

HE HAD GREAT NERVE

MAN HAD LEGS CUT OFF BY TRAIN IN ORDER TO GET DAMAGES

Sued Railway but Company Proved His Act was Deliberate

London, January 2.—A suit brought against the Taff Vale Railway in England for compensation for injuries has revealed an example of nerve for which it is difficult to find a parallel. The plaintiff claimed that the jolt of a train threw him against a door, which opened and allowed him to fall across the track. The train passed over both his legs, which had to be amputated.

The company produced evidence which left no trace of doubt that the plaintiff had not travelled by the train, but had deliberately placed his legs on the tracks and allowed the train to run over them for the sake of getting compensation from the company and also from the proprietors of a periodical which offers the sum to its readers if any of them loses both legs above the ankles in a railway accident while in possession of the paper.

When the plaintiff was found he was perfectly conscious. He produced three pocket handkerchiefs, tied them together and showed the man who found him how to make a tourniquet. The man himself properly adjusted the bandage. The fact that there was not the slightest mark on either his body of his clothes, although he weighs 210 pounds, and the train from which he claims to have fallen was travelling at the rate of 30 miles an hour, aroused suspicions and inquiries followed. A mass of evidence was produced showing that the man ran the risk of losing his life and the certainty of great suffering simply for the sake of the money he might get in the way of compensation.

A WELL SPREAD TABLE

And the Man "Fell Out" with It.

A manufacturer in Me. says he started out as a young man with almost perfect health, but that, "by the time I was 34 my digestive apparatus was so completely wrecked as to make my life a positive burden.

"I was neither a hard drinker nor an inveterate user of tobacco—my condition could not be charged up to these things.

"I had simply ruined my digestion by a course of living common among those who indulge in unwisely selected food and dainty their appetites nothing. And so years passed, during which every sort of food seemed to do just the opposite of what it should have done, with me. A well spread table was offensive to me. The sight or smell of food made me deadly sick. In brief I had dyspepsia, in its worst form, and spent many a hard earned dollar for remedies which did me no good whatever.

"This was my condition when a friend insisted that I should try Grape-Nuts food, and to please him I consented, expecting to derive no more benefit or pleasure from it that I had from other prepared foods that I had tried. But I was most happily disappointed.

"For more than a year I ate positively nothing but Grape-Nuts—it was my soup course, my meat and my dessert. I never tired of it, and grew steadily fatter and more hearty, till I put 40 pounds of good solid flesh that had never been there before, on my bones. My dyspepsia is gone — the memory of a terrible nightmare.

"I am well now—seems like I cannot be ill—and Grape-Nuts is still found on my table in one form or another, at every meal, and it is never out of supply in my home. A meal without Grape-Nuts is a mighty poor meal for me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

COUNTY RATES IN

County Now Has a Surplus of $48,000 to Its Credit

The various municipalities throughout this county have now paid in all their rates with the exception of some $4,700, which is a remarkably good financial showing.

This county can now do, what not every county in this Province is able, viz., say, that all money collected by it on land tax account for the municipalities, having nothing due on land tax account.

This debenture debt of the county has been reduced to $45,000, at the same time this county having assets to the extent of $93,000, leaving a surplus of $48,000 of assets over liabilities.

CANADA WOMEN FARMERS

A recent book, "Canadian Life in Town and Country," has the statement that, "There are somewhere in the neighborhood of 15,000 women farmers in the Dominion, some of whom raise wheat and other cereals, and others follow mixed farming, butter and cheese making, poultry, horticulture, bee-keeping, market gardening, hop-growing, etc. In these special branches of agriculture women have proved themselves to be eminently successful. One family of girls did the packing of 2,200 barrels of apples in an orchard near Montreal. In Queen's County, New Brunswick, a family of women have successfully conducted their own farm of 360 acres for the last twenty-five years."

THE GREAT DEAD OF 1905.

There will be fewer names of distinguished leaders in the world's various activities in the death list of 1905 than for many years past. The arts and sciences have suffered more heavily than the other departments. Music has lost Theodore Thomas, the pioneer of orchestral music in America, who died on January 4 after a full half century of honest, resolute, uncommercial, and successful labor in the interests of the higher music, leaving behind him an orchestra and a new hall, upon a permanent basis, and an enduring fame as the great musical educator of the time. Music has also lost Mme. Galli-Marie, a French prima donna, who was an accomplished artist and created many of the most important roles in works of the modern French school, and Tamagno, the strenuous Italian tenor.

The fine arts have suffered the most, the list including Robert Swain Gifford, the landscape painter, whose works were prime favorites in the exhibitions a few years ago and were also known abroad; George H. Boughton, the English landscape painter, who was even better appreciated here than in his own country; Adolph Wilhelm Menzel, one of the greatest of modern German painters; Jean Jacques Henner, whose Titianesque portraits and fancy heads made him famous; Adolphe William Bouguereau, who was in a school by himself, characterized by perfection of drawing and texture, without soul; and Florent Willems, whose works were not well known in this country, though he was the most eminent of Belgian painters. The stage has lost two men who were among its greatest representatives, Joseph Jefferson and Sir Henry Irving.

From the world of literature and science there have dropped out Lew Wallace, who will be remembered by one book at least, his "Ben Hur"; Jules Verne, the French novelist; Pietro Tacchini, the Italian astronomer; Jacques Elisee Reclus, the Belgian geographer; Mary Mapes Dodge, the American author, whose work for the young cannot be too highly estimated; George MacDonald and William Sharp, novelists of the second rank, but both brilliant essayists; and Henry Harland, the American novelist.

Besides these others of world wide fame have passed away, among them Louise Michel, the socialist agitator; Jay Cooke, the leading financier of the civil war period; the Grand Duke Sergius of Russia; Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, governor of the Bank of France; and Baron Nathaniel de Rothschild of Austria, another member of the famous family; Archduke Joseph of Austria; Maximo Gomez, the Cuban patriot; John Hay, the secretary of state, who passed away after a series of brilliant diplomatic successes which will make his name famous in American history; Dr. Thomas John Barnardo, the London philanthropist and friend of the street waifs; and Sir George Williams, founder of the Young Men's Christian organization.

The list of the great dead is not a long one. The roll of the obscure dead who were not great, whose names are unknown to fame but who have helped to make history by the sacrifice of their lives, is a long one. It numbers thousands slain in the contests between Japan and Russia and in the civil struggle now going on between the aristocracy of Russia and the people, blindly groping their way towards the light of liberty.

DON'T PUNISH THE SQUEALERS

But Mr. Jerome will Prosecute High Officers of Big Insurance Companies

New York, Jan. 3.—The World says: "District Attorney Jerome will today begin the serious work of preparing for the prosecution of officers of life insurance companies who have abused their trusts.

"It was stated yesterday by a man in a position to know what is going on within the various insurance companies that Mr. Jerome will undoubtedly receive aid from unexpected sources.

"He added that before the month was out Mr. Jerome would receive overtures from at least one 'squealer' in each of the companies—the Mutual Life, the Provident Savings Life, the Life Association of America, the Life Association of America, and the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association. While no promises of immunity are ever made by the District Attorney to a 'squealer,' it is the unwritten law in Mr. Jerome's office not to prosecute those who give evidence which enables the people to convict offenders who might otherwise escape punishment."

WITTE BEGINS TO FEEL STRONG

Will Pursue to Bitter End Policy of Putting Down the Reds

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—The Government's strongly-worded announcement yesterday that it proposes to pursue to the bitter end the policy of putting down the "Reds," following on the heels of the crushing of the revolt at Moscow, demonstrates the confidence of Premier Witte's government that it has the ability to complete the task it has undertaken. The main cause of this confidence is the fidelity displayed by the troops.

Colorado

At Her Best

In late summer Colorado is at her best. The green of the verdure on mountain and meadow is slowly turning to crimson and gold. Afar looms a peak whose snow-capped summit is enshrouded in autumnal haze. The air is laden with the spice of mountain pines and fir trees.

Colorado is surely the best place to go for the autumn vacation.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of the disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish."

We also treat Nervous Debility, Varicocele, Stricture, Vital Weakness, Blood and Skin diseases, Urinary, Bladder and Kidney complaints of men and women.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

Having made my way back to Charing Cross, I passed down Whitehall and over Westminster Bridge to the Lambeth Palace Road. Under the influence of my new excitement I felt easier in my mind than I had been since I made my awful discovery three hours before but still not easy enough to be able to pass a policeman without a shudder. Strangely enough, considering that I had no sleep at all, and had been moving about all night, I was not conscious of the least fatigue, but strode along the pavement at a swinging pace, probably doing more than I had intended when I had first set out. The snow had ceased, but a nasty fog was rising from the river to take its place. I pictured the state of London when day should break, and devoutly thanked Heaven that I should be well out of it by that time. I could imagine the newsboys running about the streets with cries of "Another 'orrible murder! A millionaire the victim." I seemed to see the boards stuck before shop doors with the same ghastly headline, and I could realise the consternation of the town, when it awoke to find the mysterious assassin still at work in its midst. Then would follow the inquest. The porter at the Monolith Club would be called upon to give evidence, and would affirm that he had seen the deceased gentleman step into a smart hansom, driven by a cabman dressed in an oilskin cape and a sou'wester, and would probably remember having noticed that the cabby was a gruff fellow with a bushy black beard. The next witnesses would be the finders of the body, and after that the same verdict would be returned—"Wilful murder against some person or persons unknown"—as had been given in the previous cases.

If only Nikola remained faithful to me I should probably have time to get out of England before the police could stop me, and, once among the miners of the Rand, I should be able to arrange matters in such a way that recognition would be almost an impossibility. With a sigh of relief at this comfortable thought, I pushed on a little faster along the Wandsworth Road until I reached Clapham Junction Station. As I did so I looked at my watch. It was just a quarter to four, and already the footpaths were becoming dotted with pedestrians.

Leaving Clapham Junction behind me, I passed along the Lavender Hill Road, through Wandsworth, and struck out along the road to West Hill, then across Putney Heath, through Kingston Vale, and so into Kingston. From that quaint old riverside town to Surbiton is but a step, and exactly as the church clocks in the latter place were chiming a quarter to six, I stood on the platform of the railway station prepared to board my train when it should come in sight. The last four miles had been done at a fast pace, and by the time I had taken my ticket I was completely worn out. My anxiety was so keen that I could not sit down, but waited until I should be safely on board the train. The cries of the newsboys seemed still to be ringing in ears—"Another 'orrible murder! Discovery of the body of a famous millionaire!"

To while away the time I went out of the station again and explored the deserted streets, passing houses in which the owners still lay fast asleep, little dreaming of the miserable man who was tramping along in the cold outside. A biting north wind blew over the snow, and chilled me to the marrow. The leaden hand of despair was pressing hard upon my heart, and when I looked at the rows of trim, matter-of-fact residences on either side of me, and thought of the gulf that separated their inmates from myself, I groaned aloud in abject misery.

At five minutes to the hour I returned to the station, and just as I reached it, punctual almost to the tick of the clock, the train made its appearance round the bend of the line. With the solitary exception of an old man I was the only passenger from this station; and, as soon as I had discovered an empty third-class compartment, I got in and stowed myself away in a corner. Almost before the train was out of the station I was fast asleep, dreaming of Nikola and of the horrible events of the night just past. Once more I drove the cab along the snow-covered streets; once more that strange woman's face arose before me in warning; and once more I descended from my seat to make the horrible discovery that my enemy was dead. In my agony I must have shrieked aloud, for the noise I made woke me up. An elderly man, possibly a successful country butcher from his appearance, who must have got in at some station we had stopped at while I slept, was sitting in the corner opposite, watching me.

"You have been having a pretty bad nightmare these last few minutes, I should say, mister," he observed with a smile. "I was just going to give you a shake when you woke yourself by screaming out like that."

An awful fear came over me. Was it possible that in my sleep I had revealed my secret?

"I am sorry I disturbed you," I said, faintly, "but I am subject to bad dreams. Have I been talking very much?"

"Not so far as I've heard," he answered; "but you've been moaning and groaning as if you'd got something on your mind that you wanted to tell pretty bad."

"I've just got over a severe illness," I replied, relieved beyond measure to hear that I had kept my dreadful secret to myself, "and I suppose that accounts for the uneasy way in which I sleep."

My companion looked at me rather searchingly for a few seconds, and then began to fumble in his great-coat pocket for something. Presently he produced a large spirit flask.

"Let me give you a drop of whiskey," he said, kindly. "It will cheer you up, and you look as if you want it right down bad."

He poured about half a wineglassful into the little nickel-plated cup that fitted the bottom of the flask, and handed it to me. I thanked him sincerely, and tossed it off at one gulp. It was neat spirit, and ran through my veins like so much fire. Though it burnt my throat pretty severely, it did me a world of good, and in a few moments I was sufficiently recovered to talk reasonably enough.

At nine o'clock almost to the minute we drew up at Southampton Docks, and, thanking my fellow passenger good morning, I quickly quitted the station. Before I left London I had carefully noted the address of the steamship company's agents, and, having ascertained the direction of their office, I made my way towards it. Early as was the hour I found it open, and upon being interrogated by the clerk behind the counter, stated my desire to book as steerage passenger for Cape Town by the steamer Fiji Princess, which they advertised as leaving the docks that day. The clerk looked at me with some surprise when I said "steerage," but, whatever he may have thought, he offered no comment upon it.

"What is your name?" he inquired, dipping his pen in the ink.

I had anticipated this question, and replied "George Wrexford" as promptly as if it had really been my patronymic.

Having paid the amount demanded, and received my ticket in exchange, I asked what time it would be necessary for me to be on board.

"Half-past ten without fail," he answered. "She will cast off punctually at eleven; and I give you fair warning Captain Hawkins does not wait for anything or anybody."

I thanked him for his courtesy and left the office, buttoning up my ticket in my pocket as I went down the steps. In four hours at most, all being well, I should be safely out of England, and, for a little while, a free man. By half-past nine I had purchased a small outfit, and also the few odds and ends—such as bedding and mess utensils—that I should require on the voyage. This done I hunted about till I found a small restaurant, again in a back street, which I entered and ordered

A BRUTAL HUSBAND

He Tore Off Wife's Ear and Burned Her Feet.

Easton, Pa., December 29. — Edward Bruce, who brutally attacked his young wife, has been arrested after five days' hunt for him. It is charged that besides burning his wife's feet with hot irons, he cut pieces of flesh off her legs, tore one of her ears off and beat her with a strap, using the buckle end.

Bruce was found in New Jersey, but was willing to come here without requisition papers.

Alderman Brunner thought the alleged crime justified a high amount of bail, and fixed it at $10,000, which the defendant could not furnish. Bruce is a half breed Indian, and receives an income of $40,000. There has been talk of lynching him if found, but it has abated since he is safe behind the bars. Mrs. Bruce is in a critical condition.

Hanged Himself

Woodstock, Dec. 30.—Robert W. Keeler, nurseryman, High street, committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging. He fastened a scarf to a hook in the wall, placed it around his neck and then drew up his feet from the floor. He was 55 years of age and leaves a wife and four children. He had been a sufferer for years from stomach trouble.

Custer, Idaho, November [illegible], 1906.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have erected a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for another Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two, Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our paymnat on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $150,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $75,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,200,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,200.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

A Freak Potatoe Vine

Mrs. John Bartley, 583 George St., yesterday showed The Times a curiosity in vegetables. This consisted in a potatoe, overlooked and left on the cellar floor. From the parent potatoe sprung a large number of sprouts, which bear from 15 to 25 well formed, perfect potatoes, some of which are of good size, and resemble those grown in the earth, as intended by Nature. All of these freak potatoes raised themselves without further nourishment than furnished by the original tuber.

CURES CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

One Week's Use of Hyomei Did More Than Six Months' Treatment By Specialists.

In the treatment of deafness which is often the result of catarrh, Hyomei acts almost immediately upon the inflamed membrane and the hearing begins to return at once.

Miss Meeks of Matteawan, N. Y., says: "Hyomei is truly wonderful. I have used it but a short time and see a great change in my condition. My hearing is improving rapidly and I had no idea I would improve so rapidly in so short a time. My breath which was very offensive to myself and others, has lost its bad odor entirely. I have spent a great deal of money with catarrh specialists, and can truly say that six months of their treatment is not equal to one month of Hyomei.

A complete outfit costs but $1.00, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler will last a lifetime and there is enough Hyomei for several weeks' treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50 cents. Compare this small expenditure with the fees charged by specialists.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write today for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

THE LIGHT OF OTHER DAYS.

Not very many years ago alcohol was used for lighting in combination with other fluids under the name of "Camphene," but it suffered banishment because it was too dangerous.

Alcohol is generally harmful when taken in the form of medicine, especially to a delicate system.

Dr. Pierce's tissue-rebuilding and function-strengthening plan of treatment is following after Nature's plan.

He uses natural remedies, that is native medicinal roots, prepared by processes wrought out by the expenditure of much time and money, without the use of alcohol, and by skillful combination in the most exact proportions.

Used as one of the active ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, BLACK CHERRYBARK specially exerts its influence in cases of lung and bronchial troubles, and this "DISCOVERY" is, therefore, a sovereign remedy for bronchitis, laryngitis, chronic coughs, catarrh and kindred ailments.

The names of the medicinal ingredients of this world-famous remedy are: Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root.

"I have had such a wonderful experience with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery that I do not hesitate to recommend it believing it to be a wonderful medicine to build up the tissues of the system," writes Miss Bessie Brown, Secretary Emerson Literary Association, 26 Korman Avenue, Appleton, Wis. "Worry and nervous troubles had completely run down my health and strength; had no appetite, sleep badly, and was in a state of nervous collapse. I took twelve bottles in all, and, each week, knew that I was getting better and stronger, until finally I was as well and strong as I had ever been. I have the utmost faith and confidence in your medicine, and wish to thank you for my good health, which is a blessing to anyone."

For 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing, you can get a free copy of the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," paper-covers; or cloth-bound for 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Golden Medical Discovery" whenever a laxative is required.

The following notice from the last number of the Canada Gazette will be of interest to local military men:—In order to provide a means of distinguishing those men under the rank of sergeant, and who have served continuously in their corps for three years, and have re-enlisted therein for a second period of three years of similar service, there will be issued to each a service chevron of one bar to be worn when in uniform (on the left arm below the elbow) during the period of his re-enlistment. An additional chevron will be issued, to be worn similarly, to those who re-enlist for further service, after completion of each period of three years.

Board of Education Inaugural Meeting

The New Board Met Last Night---Standing Committees Struck, Who In Turn Elected Their Respective Chairmen.

Last night, in the large board room, in the Central Canada Savings & Loan Company's Building, the new Board of Education held their inaugural meeting. There were present; Messrs. Ferguson, chairman; Dr. Morrison, Hayes, Fair, Hill, Dr. Burnham, Pringle, Crane, Ackerman and Dumble.

Before entering upon the regular business of the meeting, those present made the regular decaration of qualification and oath of office, before Mr. W. H. Hill, J.P. These were duly filed with Mr. Morrow, secretary of the Board.

The secretary named first, those who had been elected for two years, and those for one year, as before noted in The Times; he added that Mr. Hayes had been nominated as representative of the Separate schools on the Board.

A ballot was then taken for members of the various committees.

Mr. Ferguson was elected chairman for the ensuing year. On taking his place at the head of the table, Mr. Ferguson duly thanked those present for the honor conferred on him, and expressed his intention of doing his best during this year.

The next event was the election of secretary-treasurer. Mr. Hill rose to say that Mr. Morrow for 18 years had held this position very satisfactorily, and moved that he be reappointed at a salary of $500 a year. Carried unanimously.

Mr. Fair moved that the rules and regulations, passed and consolidated by the Peterboro Board of Education in 1903, be and are hereby adopted as rules of order and regulations of the present Board.

Mr. Burnham moved that Messrs. Morland, Hayes, Ackerman, Pringle, Crane and the mover, be a committee to appoint the standing committees. Carried.

The members of this committee then retired for 15 minutes to strike the committees; on their return they reported as follows:

PROPERTY.

Messrs. Crane, Ackerman, Morrison and Dumble.

SUPERVISION.

Messrs. Pringle, Burnham and Hill.

FINANCE.

Messrs. Hayes, Fair and Ackerman.

The Board then adjourned that members of the various standing committees could elect their respective chairman.

In election for chairman of Property Committee, the first ballot stood Mr. Crane 2, Dr. Morrison 2; a second ballot, after Dr. Morrison had asked his electors to withdraw his name, resulted in Mr. Crane's election.

The other chairmen appointed were Supervision, Mr. Pringle; Finance, Mr. Hayes.

The next business was appointment of the whole Board as Committee on Appointments, and resulted in Mr. Hill being elected chairman.

The meeting then adjourned until next Monday night at 7.45.

This is the first meeting in over 60 years that Mr. James Stevenson has not been a member of the Board of Education, for the village, town or City of Peterboro. Mr. Stevenson's certain defeat at last election, however is not to be taken as, in any way, reflecting upon public disregard or misappreciation of his past career. In the recent election Mr. Stevenson, made no personal canvas towards re-election, and had to encounter obstacles practically making his election impossible, although in no manner reflecting upon his half-century's record as a member of the Board.

NEW GAS PLANT

Peterboro Cereal Company's New Plant Nearly Ready

As noted in a former issue of The Times, the Peterboro Cereal Company, with their persistent and strenuous determination to have all modern improvements embodied in their fine plant, have been having a private gas plant installed at their commodious mills.

Mr. John Seymour, of Toronto, representing the Gas Supplies and Construction Co., of that city, has been superintending the installation.

In a few days the local Cereal Company expect to have their gas plant in full working order. When this is accomplished, the Peterboro Cereal Co., will be able to regulate their supply of gas to their actual requirements. This company uses over 800 feet of gas per hour in cooking their world-renowned "Canada Flakes." A full description of the process of cooking the Flakes has been given in these columns before.

The generator being installed by the Gas Supplies and Construction Co. of Toronto, is built along different lines from the ordinary gas generator. This style of generator is in use largely in Europe, but very few are in operation in Canada and the United States. The new system of procuring heat and power is known as "Producer Gas," and it is claimed that a great deal more energy is derived from the coal than by the ordinary methods. The ordinary method of procuring power and heat from coal is by the grate or direct firing, thereby transferring the energy in the coal through the energy of steam generated. Producer Gas works upon a different principle. It is made in a generator which allows no escape of the products of the coal from which the coal is generated. Steam which is made from the waste heat from the generator is automatically injected through the heated coal, which is decomposed into the form of hydrogen gas and the smoke and gases which are lost with direct firing are combined in the Producer Gas and form a part thereof.

Private Canal for Standard Oil

Sulphur, La., January 4.—The work on the canal, which the Standard Oil Company is going to build from here to the Sabine River, a distance of seventeen miles, was begun today. The canal, which will form a junction with the Sabine River at or below Orange, will be used for the transportation of the sulphur and other products of the Union Sulphur Company, which is a branch of the Standard Oil Company. The canal is to be thirty feet wide at the bottom and is to have a minimum depth of six feet.

EVERY MAN A SOLDIER

New Regulations in France With Startling Effects

Paris, January 4.—The new Army Law, which was adopted by an overwhelming majority at the last session of the Chamber of Deputies, has gone into effect and, it is believed, will give general satisfaction. The new law reduces the term of active service in the army from three to two years. On the other hand it renders every Frenchman liable, and abolishes all former exceptions concerning widows' sons and breadwinners. While such young men are serving in the army, those dependent upon them will be assisted. Men, hitherto freed from military service owing to weakness, will be enrolled in an auxiliary corps. It is maintained that this law will not derange the members of the army on a peace footing, which is 540,000, but military experts are of the opinion that there will be a slight reduction, of about 25,000, because one-half of the active army will be released annually, instead of one-third, as heretofore, and that the abolition of exemptions does not compensate for this.

The principle of the new law is all-round equality. In carrying out this principle the pupils of cadet schools must serve one year in the ranks before beginning their studies, while students in the various professions, heretofore serving only twelve months, must henceforth serve one year as ordinary soldiers, and then, on passing examinations, become reserve officers during the second year of their service.

THE BULL'S HORNS

That the Place to Take Hold

A man says:

"Some years ago, while employed as an inspector by a large woven wire Fence Co., I was compelled to give up my position because of ill health brought on by coffee poisoning.

From childhood I had used coffee freely, and for many years had no thought that there was possible harm in it.

"But as time went on I gradually became the victim of indigestion, then of heart trouble, than of habitual headaches, and finally was completely knocked out by nervous prostration, which lost me a good and profitable job that I had held for years.

"At first I scarcely knew what to do, as medicines seemed to have no lasting effect, but it was up to me to do something, and I turned my attention to my diet. Having read more or less about the injurious effects of coffee, I concluded that I would experiment to see whether that was the cause of my troubles.

"At first I cut down my coffee allowance half, using Postum for the other half of my table beverage. This helped me some, but did not do what I wanted—it did not relieve me entirely. I still suffered more or less with headache and nervousness. So I just took the bull by the horns and cut the coffee off short. From the day that I began to drink Postum exclusively my health began to improve, and I have continued its use, as I expect to do for the rest of my life.

"The result is that I have not had a headache in years, no man has better digestion, my nerves are like iron and my mental powers are clearer, more vigorous and accurate than ever before.

"Shall be glad to testify at any time that Postum Food Coffee did all this for me, and keeps me hale and hearty. I can do no less." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

OUT OF WORK

Many Retired British Officers Want to Get Jobs

London, January 4.—That there is excellent material running to waste among the ranks of the "half paid" the army and navy men on the retired list, can be well realized by a glance at "The Right Man," the headbook of the officers' employment bureau, which has just been established.

An extraordinary variety of capacities is shown in the details given of the 60 officers who are open to employment. An army man, asking from $600 to $800 a year, who states that he has shot big game in Burmah and India, is musical and understands elephants and bullocks, offers his services as a fishery overseer, a journalist or volunteer corps secretary. Another army officer, who was 17 years in the Fourteenth Hussars, is described as "very handy and never at a loss in any difficult situation, can make most things and mend anything."

Two hundred a year as harbor master or captain of a fire brigade is wanted by an ex-naval officer who commanded gunboats in the Russo-Turkish war and the Egyptian campaigns. He is also a competent scene painter and has edited an autobiography. A retired army officer who speaks Zulu, French and German offers himself as referee, motor driver or theatrical manager.

Many of the decorations are noted in the qualifications, a C. B. offering his services as political agent or drill master, while the languages range Kaffir to Latin.

INVITED TO ST. THOMAS

Local Curlers Get Cordial Invite to Rink Opening Bonspiel

While they may not be able to accept the boisterous rejoicers of the broom, and lung enlarging exponents, have received a cordial invitation from the St. Thomas Curling Club. The invitation is as follows;

St. Thomas, Dec. 20, 1905.

The St. Thomas Granite Curling Club propose celebrating the building of their immense new rink by holding a bonspiel on the 22nd of January next. The ice surface in the rink is now sufficient to provide 11 sheets of ice and will enable the bonspiel to be put through expeditiously.

It is proposed to put on three single rink competitions, two of which will be open to all comers, and the third will be a consolation match open only to rinks that have been defeated in the first round of both the other competitions. The committee is arranging a prize list, and they hope to be able to provide valuable prizes for the first four rinks in each of the open competitions and for the first two in the consolation. The prizes will be such as to make them valuable souvenirs for the winners.

No limit will be placed upon the number of rinks that may be entered by any outside club.

The rules governing the competition with a list of prizes will be forwarded you as soon as completed. In the meantime our club will be obliged if you would bring the matter to the attention of your curlers, so that as many rinks as possible may participate in the bonspiel.

Yours truly,
W. K. CAMERON, Sec.

ATHLETIC WORLD

HOCKEY.

The local O.H.A. season will be opened tonight, when the Cobourg Intermediates will be here to meet the locals. The game should be hotly contested and a big crowd will be on hand. The Cobourg team is very fast and will make the Peterboro bunch exert themselves to the utmost to tie a knot in their championship aspirations. The locals will be in good shape for the struggle. The team is a strong one.

Tickets for the game may be had at the Criterion, Sanderson's Garden and O'Brien's cigar store, George St.

THE TURF.

Arrangements have now been completed by the Peterboro Turf Club for the local winter races. As noted in a former issue of The Times the subject of winter races has been under consideration for some time. The general public, however, has no idea of the complex dealings necessary to ensure a successful meeting. Horsemen all over the province have to be consulted and questioned as to what dates are suitable; next a thorough inspection of other winter circuits must be made, so that dates will not clash. Again, the important question of finance arises.

As can easily be guessed, a winter meet, from the financial standpoint, including, as it does, far greater chances, owing to cold weather, in the matter of gate money, is far more difficult to deal with than one in the summer.

However, the local Turf Club has now definitely completed all arrangements, including that of the purses, and Peterboro will have some splendid races on January 23rd and 24th.

As noted before, the Lindsay races take place on January 16th and 17th, so that this city will get all the best horses entered at Scugogville, as well as from all over the province.

The races here will consist of a free-for-all and 2.50, 2.29 and 2.3 classes. The purses being up are $200 for the 2.29 class and $150 for each of the others.

A retrospective view at the last Peterboro races, held under auspices of the Peterboro Turf Club, and their eminent success, authorizes those in the know to predict splendid success for our winter circuit.

The races on the 23rd and 24th, will be held in the Driving Park, when the track is in perfect condition. As the local Turf Club is holding up good purses, and are taking long chances on the races, it is to be hoped the general public will back up their sportsman-like pluck and turn out in large numbers each day.

Sentenced to Death at 17

London, January 4.—At the Winchester Assizes, Frank Hansford, carpenter's apprentice, aged 17, was sentenced to death for the murder of his sister, Beatrice, at Portsmouth, on September 17. Prisoner asked his sister to play the piano, and when she refused he struck her with a poker, and then cut her throat with a razor. One doctor stated prisoner was an imbecile, but the other doctors would not go so far. The jury recommended him to mercy on the ground of his youth.

LATIMER PUTS UP A FIGHT.

Calgary, Alberta, Jan. 4.—W. H. Latimer, the Philadelphia fugitive, was turned over to the Montreal police officer yesterday, by the police magistrate endorsing the warrant, but a habeas corpus writ was secured from Chief Justice Sifton, and the prisoner was again released on $1,000 bonds given by two business men. The hearing will take place on Friday. No effort was made to force an issue in the police court.

BREWS TROUBLE OVER AUSTRALIA

Not Satisfied With Britain's Treatment OF ISLAND CONTINENT

Hon W. J. Sowden Heads an Agitation for Bitter Terms

London, January 4.—Mr. W. J. Sowden continues to head an agitation in favor of securing a more definite understanding of the Anglo-Australian situation. Mr. Sowden, who was for two years the South Australian head of the National party of Australia, is not well satisfied with the manner in which Australia is being treated by the Imperial Government. In explaining his position in an interview this week, he said that in the federation movement it had been anticipated that the alliance which welded together the six Australian states would run agreeably. There had been considerable friction, and Mr. Sowden observed philosophically that possibly friction in a governmental organization of this kind is necessary to bring out all the facts. Perhaps in the Commonwealth the Australian had been as good as in the United States or Canada. However, federation should be measured not alone by what it had done actively, but by the criterion of what it had prevented, by freeing the states from fiscal fetters, by organizing a system of national defence and by facilitating and cheapening communication by post and telegraph. Mr. Sowden said that he believed in the outward manifestation of loyalty, at any rate the average resident of the British Isles. He remarked that while he had been the subject of overwhelming personal kindness, he had no hesitation in saying that he believed that Australia was unpopular in the United Kingdom. A cloud rested upon the Old World estimation of Australia; he could not recall having heard a single unaffected, genuine expression of confidence in the future of Australia or of sympathy with its commonwealth aspirations. The toneadopted by commentators had been almost uniformly slighting or pitying, if not actually unfriendly; and some of the worst offenders had been folks who went to Australia with nothing, who speedily made their fortunes there and returned to England to spend them, leaving to others the duty of wrestling with the political and social and industrial problems which were being surely, if slowly and somewhat painfully, solved in the land of the Southern Cross.

SEVEN PER CENT DIVIDEND

Otonabee Light and Power Co. Pays a Semi-Annual Dividend

That the Otonabee Power Company is in good financial standing and supplying second land River Otonabee power, freely throughout the city, is in evidence, as this company has now paid a semi-annual dividend of 3 1-2 per cent. to its shareholders; this of course means seven per cent. per annum on all money invested in the company. They did a larger business during December than at any previous month in its history. The annual meeting will be held this month.

Ask Large Sum for Canal

Albany N.Y., January 4. — According to the second annual report of Henry A. Van Alstyne, State Engineer and Surveyor, an appropriation of $40,000,000 will be asked from the Legislature for work on the 1000-ton barge canal in this year. The report particularly deals with the barge canal project and State road improvements. According to the figures given in the report, less than $1,000,000 of the $101,000,000, made available by the Legislature for the first year's work, has actually been expended, but about $9,000,000 of contracts have been assumed. The work will require a number of years and an enormous expenditure of money, but it is believed that the canal will become one of the most valuable improvements of the state.

LARGEST IN THE WORLD

Wonderful Structure to span the St. Lawrence River

Quebec, January 4.—A party of civil engineers, including several men of national prominence, arrived here to inspect the work on the great cantilever bridge now building here across the St. Lawrence River. The bridge is of especial interest to engineers, as it forms the largest single span ever built. It reaches across the St. Lawrence River in a single span of 1,800 feet. This is nearly 100 feet longer than the spans of the Firth of Forth bridge cantilevers, which measure 1,710 feet in the clear. Although the new St. Lawrence River bridge will exceed the bridges over the East River in New York in total length of span, it will not compare with them in the magnitude of the traffic that it can carry. Its total width is only seventy-five feet, not much more than one-half the width of the Williamsburg bridge, which measures 120 feet over all, and provides two eighteen-foot roadways, four trolley tracks, two elevated tracks, two passenger footways, and two bicycle tracks.

PETERBORO GETS IT

Mr. Rupert Bradburn Gets the Fine Lindsay Opera House

Thos. Rupert H. Bradburn, manager of our fine new Grand Opera House, is a hustler, goes without saying.

Yesterday he completed arrangements whereby he secured a contract whereby he is now in practical control of the Lindsay opera house, which Scugogvillians call "The Academy of Music."

Ever since Mr. Bradburn took "The Little Duchess" to Lindsay last fall he has been negotiating for the control of the Lindsay house. He realized at that time that Lindsay would make a good show town and he is in a position to furnish just the class of entertainment the people of that town want. Besides Mr. Bradburn is thoroughly acquainted with the opera business and he will undoubtedly make a big success of his new venture. Associated with him is Mr. Wm. Shelton, city editor of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder, as local manager.

Wednesday night the Lindsay Post contained the following;

"We learn that Lindsay Academy of Music has passed into new hands for a term of three years, dating from the present. The new proprietor is Mr. Rupert Bradburn, manager of the new Grand Opera House, Peterboro, and with him will be associated one of Lindsay's popular young men as manager. A number of badly needed improvements will be carried into effect at once, including the renovating of the interior, the betterment of fire-saving devices in case of fire, maintenance of order in the gallery, etc., and suggestions made by citizens will be welcomed and carefully weighed. Mr. Bradburn will send on a number of good companies and an orchestra will be present at every performance."

POLICE COURT NEWS

At yesterday's police court, Joseph McMullen, who acknowledged forging the name of Thos. Doherty, foreman of the Kelly Lumber Co., to a cheque for $21.05, as noted in former issues of The Times, was up for trial. This young man, not content with committing forgery, tried to get, by a series of lies, several local hotelmen into trouble, by saying he had procured liquor from them. This charge of course amounted to nothing in the "come out."

McMullen, as before noted, pleaded guilty to forgery, some two weeks ago, since which time he has enjoyed the city's hospitality in Castle Nesbitt.

Yesterday morning McMullen's father appeared in court to plead for his erring boy, and explained to the court that he had repaid the money his boy obtained on his forged cheque.

The magistrate, however, was adamant and turning a deaf ear to all appeals, gave McMullen one month on the hill.

Henry Kearney, of Young's Point, who as noted, in yesterday's issue, on Wednesday night, absorbed an over dose of tangle leg, and made himself obnoxious at several hostelries, was fined $2.

COUNTY COURT.

Yesterday morning at the county court, John Winters was charged, as noted in a former issue, with having committed arson. Judge Edmonson presided. It is alleged that Winters set fire to the house on Mr. Lundy's farm on lot 16, con. 7, Harvey township, on the morning of Dec. 21.

Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. S. T. Medd for the prisoner.

William Coons, who rents a farm in Harvey, testified to having, on Dec. 19th, found a fire, started by hay and straw stored therein, in the frame house he rented. The fire had burned the first floor, and then gone out. He locked up the house and went to Emismore. Found tracks in the snow leading to the barn.

Thos. Davies, of Smith, gave evidence. Saw the house on Dec. 19th, but that it was burned down on the afternoon of Dec. 21st. Traced tracks through the snow to Mr. C. Hunt's yard, and that Winters was working for Hunt.

Mr. Alfred Hunt said Winters left his house at eight a.m. the day of the fire for the woods. Winters got back in an hour and a half. When Winters got back from the woods, where he went to get a saw, Winters told him the house was burned down.

High County Constable Cochrane said Winters told him he did not go near the house the day of the fire.

This was all the evidence and Magistrate Edmison committed Winters for trial.

Morales Beaten After A Three Days' Battle

General Rodriguez, With Whom He Joined Forces is Killed--Caceres, the New President Was the Man Who Shot Heureaux the Black Tyrant.

New York, Jan. 5.—The Herald at Monte Christi, not far from Puerto [illegible] Dominican Consul-general of Santo-Domingo in New York, last night, said he had received the following telegram;

"Three-days' battle at Puigo Plata. Demetrio Rodrigues killed. Many dead and wounded. General Caspedes hero of the victory.

TURNED ON ATTACKERS.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Jan. 5.—Following the attack made January 2 on Puerto Plata, on the northern coast of Santo Domingo, by General Demetrio Rodrigues, commanding the troops of the fugitive president, General Morani, which resulted in the repulse of the Morales forces by the Caceres garrison, after sharp fighting, the Caceres troops, commanded by General Caspedes, attacked the Morales troops yesterday in their position outside Puerto Plata. Stubborn fighting followed, during which many men were killed or wounded on both sides, resulting in the defeat of the Morales forces, who were dispersed by the Caceres troops.

Among the killed was General Demetrio Rodrigues, former Governor of Monte Christi, who, as reported in Monte Christi had announced that if his attack on Puerto Plata was successful he would proclaim himself a candidate for the Presidency of Santo Domingo. The streets of Puerto Plata are almost deserted, the stores are closed, and business is at a standstill. The Dominican exiles, who have been authorized by the Morales party to return to Santo Domingo, are landing at Monte Christi, not far from Puerto Plata.

Santo Domingo forms the greater part of the island east of Cuba, of which the republic of Haiti is part. Its President, until recently, was Carlos Morales, who sought to keep himself in power by taking members of opposing factions into his council. The majority of the council, however, revolted, and he was forced to flee from the capital, and he attempted to join hands with Demetrio Rodriguez, the petty chief of Monte Cristi, who not two years ago was one of his bitterest opponents, being the last chief to yield to his supremacy. In order to overthrow Caceres the Vice-President, who usurped the position of President, Morales was apparently ready to support Rodriguez's claim to that office. Rodriguez's death will probably result in Caceres being confirmed in his seat, though it is possible Morales may yet be able, with the help of returning exiles to cause trouble.

In the turbulent politics of Santo Domingo two parties for years have been in bitter rivalry. Since General Jimenez met the usual fate of Dominican executives, and was driven into exile, his followers have been known as the Jimenestas. Generally speaking, this is the party of the masses. In its ranks it numbers a majority of the illiterate.

Horacio Vasquez, who also ruled Santo Domingo for a brief term as President, is the titular head or chief-tain of the Horastes, the other powerful party. Enlisted in its ranks are a majority of the better educated Dominicans.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL

Board of Trade and Council Arranging for Big Ottawa Deputation

Already an outing looms up for the new council, and one that really seems justifiable.

Both the Board of Trade, and the City Council, per Ald. E. F. Mason, are sending out the following letter to the councils of the cities and towns along the entire route of the Trent Canal.

All leading newspapers in every point along the canal will also get a copy of the communication, which reads as follows;

Gentlemen.—The Council of the City of Peterboro, believes that it would be in the interest of the Trent Valley Waterway, and the districts through which it will pass, to have a large deputation wait upon the Minister of Railways and Canals and other members of the Dominion Government, and urge them to complete the waterway. A large amount of money has been expended upon the work, and until the remainder is completed, the country will receive little benefit from it, while the completed waterway would be of immense benefit to the whole district through which it would pass, and to the country as a whole. It is desired therefore, that the deputation should be one that would impress the ministers, and that it should demand that sufficient appropriations be placed in the estimates at the coming session of Parliament to complete the work, that the contracts be let promptly, and that the work be pushed. A united effort should secure this.

When the date of the interview is fixed, arrangements will be made for the excursion rate from Peterboro and points east. Will you have representatives appointed, so that when the date is fixed, they will be ready to join the deputation, which, it is hoped, will be a large one. You will be advised of the date as soon as finalized. Please send to me the names and addresses of representatives appointed.

R. F. MASON,
Chairman Finance Committee.

The First of the Graft Trials

Philadelphia, Pa., January 4. — The trial of John W. Hill, former chief of the Bureau of Filtration, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city, was called for a hearing in the Common Pleas Court yesterday. It has been arranged that the case shall have precedence over all others in which public contractors are involved. The city is represented by District Attorney Bell, Assistant District Attorney Wallerstein and City Solicitor Kinsey, while George S. Graham and several other prominent attorneys represent the defendant. It is expected that the trial will last several days, as quite a large number of witnesses will be heard. Among the witnesses called are a number of prominent engineering experts and it is expected that the case will be of unusual interest.

MUCH DISTRESS IN TRANSVAAL

Cattle and Donkeys Being Swept Away by Disease

Johannesburg, January 4.—The tales of distress in the northern districts of the Transvaal recently became so persistent that a direct investigation on the part of the government seemed imperative, and Sir Arthur and Lady Lawley undertook a long tour through this least familiar portion of the colony. The impressions formed by his excellency have an interesting bearing on to economic problems of the Transvaal. The Zoutpansberg has always been more or less inaccessible, but before the ravages of cattle disease it was able, as a good stock country, to make both ends meet with a minimum amount of debts from the government. Now cattle and donkeys are being swept off by disease, and the old inhabitants are brought face to face with a situation with which they seem powerless to cope. Actual distress, as the word is understood in England, with an implied need of pauper relief, hardly exists, but some of the inhabitants are in a very poor way, while others are living in hopeless squalor. Dominating everything is the terrible apathy which makes them prefer things as they are to an effort to improve conditions.

WHY SO WEARY ?

Always Restless and Weak Isn't Natural—But It's Dangerous

You have to work hard. This uses up lots of nerve force and tears down the body faster than it can build up.

The result is a half-dead feeling you can't shake off. Somehow you must get more vitality. The water in your blood must be turned into nutriment and building material.

This is just what happens in using Ferrozone, which renews the blood and nerves, and makes each organ do the work that nature expects of it.

Ferrozone quickly increases your weight, brings appetite and healthy color, instills a reserve of vigor into the system that defies weariness, exhaustion, debility, or sickness of any kind.

Ferrozone quickly increases your weight, brings appetite and healthy color, instills a reserve of vigor into the system that defies weariness, exhaustion, debility, or sickness of any kind.

The enormous strengthening power of Ferrozone is proved in the case of Mrs. Edward Hill, of Orr Lake, Ont., who says:

"Two years ago I had a nervous breakdown. At night I tossed restlessly in bed, unable to get any rest from sleep. In the morning I suffered from over-powering weakness. My appetite was poor. I grew pale, thin and despondent. A slight backing cough also added to my burden.

"My doctor said to try Ferrozone, and it did me good in a few days. I increased in strength, the nervous sensations disappeared, and with my appetite came back my color and good spirits. I have gained over ten pounds in weight, and as my age is 56, I consider Ferrozone is a marvel." (Signed) Mrs. Edward Hill.

REMEMBER THIS: Ferrozone is a true tonic—not an alcoholic stimulant. Fifty chocolate-coated tablets in a box for fifty cents, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

"TRADE ASSOCIATIONS" IN CANADA.

The proceedings instituted in Toronto and Hamilton during the past month against certain "combines" and "trade associations," have naturally called forth much unfavorable comment from the press, and have aroused a feeling of uneasiness in the mind of the Canadian public.

The fact that agreements exist between individual members of any branch of trade is looked upon by the public with suspicion. A closer acquaintance, however, with these organizations may prove them to be not an unmixed evil, says Industrial Canada.

Every branch of commercial and professional life today enjoys protection in some form. That it does means its own existence and the existence of society. The nation of today is a network of mutual understandings. The professions have their standards. The trades have theirs. The business world is honeycombed with associations of every description for the protection of as many interests. Our [illegible] systems and most substantial institutions are founded upon mutual protection. "Trade Associations" are the particular form in which mutual good faith is preserved between workmen, manufacturers, or wholesalers. They are not "combines" unless they have a common fund and a division of profits.

It has been stated and emphasized by political newspapers that such associations are among the "evils" following protection. This is not borne out by facts, as we find them flourishing equally well in free trade countries. The two most powerful combines in the United States are the Standard Oil Co., and the Anthracite Coal Combination, yet neither of them has any protection from the tariff—hard coal and petroleum and its products being on the free list. This phase of the question requires no further discussion.

Trade associations are one of the modern features of business life. They have emerged naturally as a characteristic of the great period of centralization and consolidation through which we are passing. They have not been called into existence without reason. In most cases they result from excessive competition, which often degrades the quality of products, disorganizes the trade, puts a premium on dishonesty, destroys the smaller business houses, and throws many out of employment. To meet such conditions the "Trade Association" is an absolute necessity, and a blessing to the community. It is also a blessing to the community in that it facilitates the work of specialization, thus making for increased economy of production.

The use of such associations is beyond question. Like other good things, however, they may be abused, and if used for extortion rather than for protection, they are undoubtedly an evil.

No manufacturer, or dealer, or workman, has any right to take advantage of organization, to "unduly enhance" the price of his products or wares. If he does, he should be made to pay the penalty. On the other hand, all credit to the employer, who, in the stress of international competition, with many employees depending upon him, joins in an honest endeavor to secure stability in the market and protect all classes from inordinate speculation.

We should demand the most complete investigation, and punishment for any wrong-doing committed by bodies who "bleed the public." Let us not condemn, however, the principle which brings business men together in an effort to meet the requirements of any trade under exceptional conditions.

We are living in an age of progress. We are competing with the world. "The old order changeth, yielding place to new," and "lest one good custom should corrupt the world," we must meet conditions as they come, encouraging always the highest ideals for Canadian business men, and stamping out injustice and dishonesty.

HE HAD GREAT NERVE

MAN HAD LEGS CUT OFF BY TRAIN IN ORDER TO GET DAMAGES

Sued Railway but Company Proved His Act was Deliberate

London, January 3.—A suit brought against the Taff Vale Railway in England for compensation for injuries has revealed an example of nerve for which it is difficult to find a parallel. The plaintiff claimed that the jolt of a train threw him against a door, which opened and allowed him to fall across the track. The train passed over both his legs, which had to be amputated.

The company produced evidence which left no trace of doubt that the plaintiff had not travelled by the train, but had deliberately placed his legs on the tracks and allowed the train to run over them for the sake of getting compensation from the company and £500 from the proprietors of a periodical which offers the sum to its readers if any of them loses both legs above the ankles in a railway accident while in possession of the paper.

When the plaintiff was found he was perfectly conscious. He produced three pocket handkerchiefs, tied them together and showed the man who found him how to make a tourniquet. The man himself properly adjusted the bandage. The fact that there was not the slightest mark on either his body of his clothes, although he weighs 210 pounds, and the train from which he claims to have fallen was travelling at the rate of 30 miles an hour, aroused suspicion and inquiries followed. A mass of evidence was produced showing that the man ran the risk of losing his life and the certainty of great suffering simply for the sake of the money he might get in the way of compensation.

January Canadian Magazine

There is no deterioration in quality in the January Canadian Magazine. The articles on Sir John Thompson by Hon. J. J. Curran and Sir John Carling by Fred T. Ycalland are worthy of special attention, as each contains information which is not generally known. The Jarvis manuscript, of which the first instalment is given, details the experiences of a loyalist youth during the early years of the war which ended in so many patriotic Britishers being driven out of the United States. It tells of the difficulty he had to avoid being impressed into the rebel army. This MS. covers a considerable period, 1775 to 1815. Among the other articles are "The Problem in the Philippines" by Bradford K. Daniels, an Englishman who has spent some time there; "The Public School and the Philanthropist" by Dr. J. M. Harper, a prominent Quebec educationist; "The Breaking of the Paper Combine" by the Editor, a timely article in view of the present legal investigation; "The Indians of Canada" by Norman Patterson, with numerous illustrations; "Mr. John Morley," as man of letters, by Professor Pelham Edgar. There are stories by Theodore Roberts, Mrs. Campbell Praed, Lottie MacNiven and Marguerite Evans. This long list makes an excellent number.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I [illegible] my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me; my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair [illegible] memory poor, [illegible]. At last my fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kergan, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the N. M. Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I felt the vigor going through my nerves. I was cured mentally, physically and [illegible]. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

breakfast. As soon as I smelt the cooking I found that I was ravenous, and twice I had to call for more before my hunger was appeased.

Towards the end of the meal a pa-per boy put in an appearance, and my heart well-nigh stopped when I heard the girl beyond the counter enquire if there was "any startling news this morning."

"'Nother terrible murder in London," answered the lad with fiendish glibness; and as he spoke my overtaxed strength gave way, and I fell back in my chair in a dead faint.

I suppose for a few moments I must have quite lost consciousness, for I can recollect nothing until I opened my eyes and found a small crowd collected round me, somebody sponging my forehead, and two people chafing my hands.

"How do you feel now?" enquired the nervous little man who had first come to my assistance.

"Better, thank you," I replied, at the same time endeavoring to sit up. "Very much better. What has been the matter with me?"

"A bit of a faint, that's all," another answered. "Are you subject to them?"

"I've been very ill lately," I said, giving them the same reply as I had done to the man in the train, "and I suppose I overtaxed my strength a little this morning. But, thanks to your kindness, I feel ever so much better now."

As soon as I had recovered sufficiently, I paid my bill, and, having sincerely thanked those who had assisted me, left the shop and hurried off to the docks as fast as I could go. It was now some few minutes after ten o'clock.

The Fiji Princess was a fair-sized vessel of an old-fashioned type, and very heavily laden; indeed, so heavy was she that she looked almost unsafe beside the great American liner near which she was berthed. Having clambered on board I enquired my way to the steerage quarters, which were forrard, then stowed away my things and endeavored to make myself as comfortable as circumstances would permit in the place which was to be my home for the next five weeks or so. For prudence sake I remained below until I heard the whistle sound and could tell by the shaking that the steamship was moving. Then, when I had satisfied myself that we were really under way, I climbed the gangway that led to the deck and looked about me. Slowly as we were moving, we were already a hundred yards from the wharf side, and in a few minutes would be well out in Southampton Water. Right aft a small crowd of passengers were grouped at the stern railings, waving their handkerchiefs and hats to a similar group ashore. Forrard we were less demonstrative, for, as I soon discovered, the steerage passengers consisted only of myself, a circumstance which you may be very sure I did not by any means regret.

By mid-day we were in the Solent, and by lunch time the Isle of Wight lay over our taffrail. Now, unless I was stopped at Teneriffe, I was certain of a month's respite from the law. And when I realized this I went to my berth and, sinner as I was, knelt down and offered up the heartiest prayer of gratitude I have ever in my life given utterance to.

CHAPTER V.

If any man is desirous of properly understanding the feelings of gratitude and relief which filled my breast as the Fiji Princess steamed down channel that first afternoon out from Southampton, he must begin by endeavoring to imagine himself placed in the same unenviable position. For all I knew to the contrary, even while I stood leaning on the bulwarks watching the coast line away to starboard, some unlucky chance might be giving the police a clue to my identity, and the hue-and-cry already have begun. When I came to consider my actions during the past twenty-four hours, I seemed to be giving my enemies innumerable opportunities of discovering my whereabouts. My letter to the manager of the hotel, which I had posted in the Strand after leaving the Covent Garden restaurant, would furnish proof that I was in town before five o'clock—the time at which the box was cleared on the morning of the murder. Then, having ascertained that much, they would in all probability call at the hotel, and in instituting enquiries there, be permitted a perusal of the letter I had written to the manager that morning. Whether they would believe that I had gone north, as I desired they should suppose, was difficult to say; but in either case they would be almost certain to have all the southern seaports watched. I fancied, however, that my quickness in getting out of England would puzzle them a little, even if it did not baffle them altogether.

Unfortunately, the Fiji Princess had been the only vessel of importance sailing from Southampton on that particular day, and owing to the paucity of steerage passengers, I felt sure the clerk who gave me my ticket would remember me sufficiently well to be able to assist in the work of identification. Other witnesses against me would be the porters at Surbiton railway station, who had seen me arrive, tired and dispirited, after my long walk; the old man who had given me whiskey on the journey down; and the people in the restaurant where I had been taken ill would probably recognise me from the description. However, it was in my favor that I was here on the deck of the steamer, if not devoid of anxiety, at least free from the clutches of the law for the present.

The afternoon was perfectly fine, though bitterly cold; overhead stretched a blue sky, with scarcely a cloud from horizon to horizon; the sea was green as grass, and almost as smooth as a millpond. Since luncheon I had seen nothing of the passengers, nor had I troubled to inquire if the vessel carried her full complement. The saloon was situated right aft in the poop, the skipper had his cabin next to the chart-room on the bridge deck, and the officers theirs on either side of the engine-room, in the alley ways below. My quarters—I had them all to myself, as I said in the last chapter—were so roomy and comfortable as a man could expect for the passage-money I paid, and when I had made friends with the cook and his mate, I knew I should get through the voyage in comparative comfort.

At this point I am brought to the narration of the most uncanny portion of my story: a coincidence so strange that it seems almost impossible it can be true, and one for which I have never been able, in any way, to account. Yet, strange as it may appear, it must be told; and that it is true, have I not the best and sweetest evidence any man could desire in the world? It came about in this way. In the middle of the first afternoon, as already described, I was sitting smoking on the fore hatch, and at the same time talking to the chief steward. He had been to sea, so he told me, since he was quite a lad; and, as I soon discovered, had seen some strange adventures in almost every part of the globe. It soon turned out, as is generally the way, that I knew several men with whom he was acquainted, and in a few minutes we were upon the most friendly terms. From the sea our conversation changed to China, and in illustration of the character of the waterside people of that peculiar country, my companion narrated a story about a

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bank houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the testment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 16, 1903.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarpa Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 23th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $500,000.00 on a capital of $1202.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Minging Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

AN AMERICAN DISEASE

Indigestion is Responsible for More Sickness in America Than Any Other Disease.

Some doctors go so far as to say that indigestion is the national disease of America. Repeated attacks inflame the lining of the stomach and cause the glands to secrete mucous instead of the juice of natural digestion. Consequently the blood is poisoned, nerve force is reduced, the vitality of the entire system is weakened.

There is but one national remedy for indigestion and that remedy is Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are being used by thousands with marvellous success.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills accelerate the action of the gastric glands and give tone to the digestive organs. They strengthen the kidneys and liver, cleanse and purify the blood, and thus add general tone to every organ of the body. Flesh and strength are fast restored and the patient can eat and digest any food he pleases.

Under the vitalizing effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills your system will soon rally; once more you'll enjoy the blessings of health. Test Dr. Hamilton's Pills yourself. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1; at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Miss Grace Kidd Becomes the Bride of Mr. W. J. Watts

A very pretty, though privately celebrated, wedding, was that of Miss Grace Kidd, daughter of Mr. Walter E. Kidd. The ceremony, performed by Rev. A. H. Brace, pastor of Park St. Baptist church, was celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents.

Invitations had only been extended to immediate friends of the high contracting parties.

Dr. Joseph H. Kidd of Toronto General Hospital, attended the groom, and Miss Ruby Maud Gander, of Toronto, acted as bridesmaid.

The bride looked very pretty in a white silk waist, tastefully trimmed, and skirt to match. Her going-away gown was of navy blue, with silk hat to match. The bridesmaid wore cream lustre.

Mr. and Mrs. Watts received many useful and beautiful presents.

The happy couple left on the five o'clock G.T.R. train for Toronto. After their honeymoon they will reside in the west.

MRS. J. A. PIERCE DEAD

A Sad Result of an Unintentional Shooting

We regret to say that Mrs. J. Audley Pierce whom it will be remembered by our readers, was struck by a stray bullet, at Stony Lake on July 15th, has finally succumbed to her accidentally inflicted injuries. Mrs. Pierce passed away at Nicholls hospital on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Pierce had been in the hospital for the greater part of the time since and although she recovered sufficiently to leave the institution for a short time, she had a relapse and had to return. The news of her death will come as a shock to a large number of people in Peterboro, who have felt a deep sympathy for her and her husband.

Mrs. Pierce was formerly Miss Crombie of Pittsburg, and was the wife of Mr. J. Audley Pierce of McKeasport, Pa., to whom she had been married about one year and six months. She was twenty-four years of age.

The body was forwarded yesterday morning to Pittsburg, accompanied by Mr. Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Crombie of Pittsburg, parents of the deceased. The funeral will take place at Pittsburg.

The affair was a particularly sad one. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce arrived at Viamede, Stony Lake, and on the Saturday afternoon following the accident occurred.

A STUDY IN SOCIALISM

When the Shoe Pinches its Wearer, the Wearer Objects

A number of local citizens, in a George street hotel, last night, were discussing socialism. One of them, a professed socialist, had given his views, saying he was a socialist pure and simple.

"I don't know what a socialist is," said another of the bunch.

"A socialist is one who believes in dividing up with the other fellow."

"Does that mean that if you had two farms you would give me one?"

"Sure I would."

"And if you had two houses?"

"I would give you one."

"And if you had two shirts what would you do with them?"

"Aw, gwan! you know I have two shirts."

THE STORK BRINGS JOY

To the household but how about the mother? Has she been joyful during the weeks and months preceding the advent?

Too many mothers find it a time of fearful anxiety because of the knowledge that they are "not in good health."

They have allowed weakness, pains and drains to accumulate till the health is completely undermined and they are "more than discouraged," and all because they have been misadvised by well-meaning friends or maltreated by an inefficient doctor.

To all such here is the news that there is a remedy that will heal and not hurt.

It was discovered forty years ago by Dr. Pierce who searched Nature's laboratory—the earth, for the remedial agents so liberally provided therein. He took Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, Golden Seal root, and by extracting, combining and preserving, without the use of alcohol, the glyceric extracts of these natural remedies he has given to the world Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which has to its credit the enviable and unparalleled record of more than a half-million of cures in the last forty years.

"Only those who have given Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a trial can appreciate what a boon it is to suffering women," writes Miss Vinna Seamore, of 18 Elm St., Toronto, Ont. "For two years I suffered intensely from female weakness until life was a burden to me. I had distressing, bearing-down pains so I could scarcely stand on. Had been in bed, was very nervous, weak, and utterly wretched. My physician gave me treatment but without relief. I grew several [illegible] and pulled myself I began to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I began [illegible] to improve, and in [illegible] was well and strong as ever."

Constipation cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

TRENTHAM HALL AND ITS ENVIRONMENTS

DUKE OF SUTHERLAND PRESENTS PALACE TO COUNTY COUNCIL FOR EDUCATION

Unable to Reside in His Magnificent Staffordshire Seat, Owing to Pollution of Lake on the Grounds by the River Trent, He Makes it a Public Gift

LONDON.

THE Duke of Sutherland has made a magnificent gift to the county of Staffordshire. At a meeting of the County Council yesterday a letter was read stating that the Duke and Duchess were desirous of presenting Trentham Hall to the County Council for the purpose of higher education in Staffordshire.

It has been known for some time that his Grace did not meditate a continued residence, and this is the one element of regret that mingles with the gift. For a long time the Sutherland family has been connected with Stafford, and it has been one of the pleasures of the people to have the Duke and his family resident for a part of the year. But the house had ceased to be as desirable a residence as it once was. There is now in the park an artificial lake some sixty acres in extent, which was constructed about sixty years ago. It is fed by the river Trent, which, at that time, was a clear and beautiful stream.

But since then the river Trent has been made the recipient of sewage and industrial refuse from the surrounding potteries, and the Duke naturally desired that some steps should be taken to avoid this pollution. But the remedies were not found, and hence his resolve to discontinue residence. On thinking the matter over, however, the most generous impulse seems to have come to him of presenting the hall to Staffordshire, a county which has hitherto been dependent upon Manchester and Birmingham for the secondary education of its young people. It will now be possible to make a college of the old hall, and as tramcars run quite close to the estate, its convenience for that purpose requires no demonstration.

Trentham is a magnificent family seat of some antiquity, but it has been so added to and restored that it is generally regarded as a modern mansion.

Part of the plunder of the monasteries at the Reformation, it came into the possession of the Levesons, who were the forerunners of the present Leveson-Gower family, but much more of the present building was erected from designs by Sir Charles Barry at a cost of £750,000.

Although the Duke has given up Trentham, he has a choice of castles left. Besides the palatial Stafford House in St. James', he has Lilleshall, in Shropshire; House of Tongue, at Lairg, and Dunrobin Castle, which competes with Glamis Castle as the oldest inhabited castle in Scotland.

"Trentham Hall is the "Italian Palace" mentioned by Lord Beaconsfield in "Lothair."

BRIDEGROOM ROBBED BY HIS YOUNG BRIDE

By Clever Ruse She Eases Him of Four Thousand Dollars and Decamps.

CANNOT PROSECUTE HER

PARIS.

A. M. Binet has just met with an experience which he is likely to remember for the remainder of his life.

He recently made the acquaintance of a young woman, aged about 22, with whom he became so infatuated that he begged her to become his wife. The marriage ceremony took place yesterday in Paris, and the wedding dinner was given in a well-known Paris restaurant. The bride looked charming in her white robe of innocence and orange blossom. After the dinner came the ball, and then M Binet took his bride home.

She removed her white veil and her orange blossom, and then suddenly became deathly pale, and leaning against a sideboard, gasped, "A doctor, a doctor."

The horrified bridegroom rushed out to fetch a doctor, and in less than a quarter on an hour came rushing back with him in a cab.

When they got up to the room there were no signs of the bride, though her wedding gown lay on the bed. She had gone, and had taken with her a sum of $400 which M Binet had put away in his secretaire.

The infuriated bridegroom immediately went with the doctor to inform the local police Magistrate of his adventure, and learned to his astonishment that as he had married the woman he could not take any proceedings against her, as, according to French law, a husband cannot charge his wife with any criminal offense.

"The only thing you can do," said the Magistrate, "is to take proceedings to force your wife to return to her conjugal duty."

And with this sorry consolation the bridegroom returned to his solitary home.

"CONFIDENCE" TRICK ABOARD OCEAN LINER

Passengers on Eastbound Steamers From Marseilles Victims of Clever Sharpers.

MARSEILLES.

There has of late been a great increase in the number of attempts made here to rob passengers on board the Peninsular and Oriental steamers. Quite recently a passenger on the India was robbed of the by means of the confidence trick. The method of operating is as follows: The "confidence" trick men make their way on board the steamers immediately after arrival. They are faultlessly dressed, and explain to their intended victims that their luggage is not yet on board, and they are unable to pay the purser. They request the immediate loan of a sum varying from $300 to $600.

Yesterday a passenger on the Egypt was thus robbed of $300, but observing the man go ashore immediately afterward, the passenger shouted, "Stop, thief!" and the man was arrested, as well as one of his accomplices. They gave their names as Gyson and Jansen.

DETECTIVES ALERT IN FANCY COSTUMES

Mix With Joyous Crowds at Annual Festival and Make Many Arrests.

GENEVA.

The Escalade fetes are taking place here, and as Geneva becomes a resort of doubtful characters during the three days' festival, several detectives have donned fancy costumes, and last night made two arrests.

A pickpocket was caught red-handed by a pierrot detective, and a burglar, who has been "wanted" for several months, was recognised on taking off his mask, and promptly arrested by a Mephistopheles. The burglar was betrayed by a woman confederate to whom the wily detectives had made love in their disguises.

An American, who had dined too well, and had produced a bundle of banknotes, was accompanied to his hotel by an innocent-looking clown and a pierrot, who were detectives. Another officer, a good dancer, led the revel with the fairest partners in a public dancing hall, with a view of obtaining useful information.

A band of students, who were inclined to be noisy, were invited to return home by one of their number, who, when he unmasked, was discovered to be a well-known police officer.

PREDICTS A WAR FOR GOLDEN THRONE

German Newspaper Says That England Casts Covetous Eyes on Ashantee Relic.

BERLIN.

One of the stories by which a section of the German press strives to discredit British Colonial policy is published in the Chemnitzer Allgemeine Zeitung.

This journal announces that Great Britain on the eve of a war with the Ashantis for the possession of the historic golden throne, which is one of the treasured relics of the Gold Coast.

The British have long desired this relic, it says, and promised any native who was successful on taking off his mask, low Born son of an executioner King of the Ashantis if he would betray its whereabouts. The man was actually made a chieftain, but the scheme for the theft failed owing to other natives vigilance.

"It is now demanded by the Ashantis that the upstart shall be removed from the chieftainship. The British authorities have refused this, but their prestige has been greatly impaired, and the Ashantis are determined to initiate a war.

"This will be long and difficult, for if the Ashantis are successful at first they will receive the support of the Fanti negroes."

The Chemnitzer Allgemeine Zeitung received its story from a German trader at Tarkwa, on the Gold Coast.

ARMY OFFICERS MUST STUDY CULINARY ART

School of Cookery Established at English Headquarters and Attendance Compulsory.

LONDON.

The British military officer is learning to cook in addition to the other new duties which are gradually convincing him that the army is a serious profession.

For the first time in its history a class of officers assembled at the Army School of Cookery at Aldershot this week for a special course of instruction in the theory and practice of military cookery.

This course is intended to give them the necessary knowledge to supervise the cooking of the soldier's food and to be a wholesome check on the shortcomings of the master cooks, who have managed hitherto, for want of practical supervision, to do pretty well as they liked.

Other classes of officers will, from time to time, be assembled at the school of cookery until there is a qualified officer chef in every battalion.

Sir John French has decreed that every officer who has to take the responsibilities of the cook houses and field kitchens on his shoulders is henceforth to be more than a figurehead.

For years it has been the custom in the army to leave all matters concerning the preparation of the soldiers' rations in barracks and in the field entirely in the hands of the master cook, a non-commissioned officer prepared for the position by a course of instruction at the Army School of Cookery.

Whatever that official chose to direct should be done, and whatever material he requisitioned was never questioned; and if things went wrong there was generally a plausible excuse to shift the blame from the shoulders of the autocrat of the regimental cook house.

DROUGHT IN INDIA PRECEDES A FAMINE

Human Beings and Animals Suffer Alike and Daily Scenes Are Most Pathetic.

CALCUTTA.

Continued drought is producing pitiable scene in the parched districts of the United Provinces, the Gwalior State of Central India, and Rajputana.

Roads are dotted with rough village carts, drawn by famished bullocks conveying all the poor household effects of emaciated peasants, who trudge despondently alongside with hungry children and tired women. They are moving slowly forward in the hope of reaching fodder and water before the cattle, their most valuable possession die of hunger and thirst. A bullock drops occasionally, but the weary procession continues on its way.

The government of India is already feeding some destitute people, and would feed more but that Rajput pride induces many to disdain help until hunger presses.

WOMAN STRANGLED FOR SIXTEEN DOLLARS

Occupant of Next Bedroom, Now Missing, Suspected of the Crime.

PARIS.

Louise Penblanc, a young woman who had come from Brittany to seek a situation as servant, has been found murdered in the bedroom of a hotel, having been strangled, apparently after a terrible struggle, by means of a handkerchief.

Victor Avron, an electrician, who occupied the next bedroom, and who has, it is stated, been discovered to be a notorious criminal, is missing.

A canvas pocket, containing all the girl's savings, had been taken away. She had said in the presence of Avron that she kept the pocket concealed in her dress.

HERMIT BURGLAR LIVED IN LUXURY

Found in Sumptuous Grotto With All the Environments of a Palace.

HAS ELECTRIC LIGHTS

GENEVA.

A cultured hermit, who gratified his refined tastes by appropriating his neighbors' goods, has been sent to the prison of Waldenberg on many charges of theft.

He lived in the greatest luxury in a grotto in the forest of Bretewil, near Basle. When the police broke into the grotto, they found it beautifully and artistically furnished. Shaded electric lamps threw a soft light on the apartment, the floor of which was covered by a rich Turkey carpet. The hermit himself lounged in a comfortable armchair, smoking a fragrant cigar.

Half a dozen etchings after Meissonier and Millet hung on the walls, and in one corner stood a well-filled bookcase. Most of the volumes were of a philosophical nature, and included nearly all the works of Kant, Nietzsche and other modern German philosophers.

At the time of his arrest he was reading a volume by the French poet, Paul Verlaine.

The larder was full of delicacies and fine wines, cigars and cigarettes. No fewer than seven different brands of champagne were found, and the discretion of the thief was apparent from the fact that only the choicest vintages were taken by him.

He had lived in the grotto, which is concealed in the middle of an enormous tangle of underwood, for two years, maintaining himself by burglaries which had deeply puzzled the police.

He had fitted up an electric light plant himself. The work showed an intimate knowledge of engineering.

His discovery was due to a defective stove pipe, which, during his absence one day, emitted clouds of smoke, attracting the attention of a woodman. The woodman informed the police, who kept watch and saw the hermit return one morning laden with the proceeds of his burglary. They lost him in the underwood, but finally stumbled on the grotto, where he was reposing after his toil.

OFFICERS ACCUSED OF GROSS BRUTALITY

Terrible Indictment of German Rule in the Empire's African Colonies

NO JUSTICE TO NATIVES

Berlin, [illegible].—Herr von Puttkamer, Governor of the German Cameroons, has been recalled to answer charges of gross brutality to natives brought against him publicly in the Reichstag by Dr. Ablass, a member of the Progressive People's party, delivered a vigorous attack on German methods of colonial administration in the Reichstag this afternoon.

He based his charges on information issued by the Colonial Office; so that, if anything, they are biased in favor of officialdom. The following are some of the counts in the indictment he made:

"Captain von Besser, commanding an expedition in the Cameroons, composed of native troops in the service of the Government, was responsible for the death from starvation of between sixty and seventy native bearers.

"A German lieutenant stated that at the time provisions were easily obtainable in the immediate vicinity, but that the captain prohibited supplies being fetched. When other officers asked the reason for the prohibition, the captain replied he desired the native pigs to die, and that in allowing them to die he would please his Government.

"The victims remained unburied, and their bodies were devoured by vultures.

"For this he was merely sentenced to six months' detention in a fortress, and resumed his former rank in the German army after his release.

"Grave charges are brought against Herr Horn, Governor of Togoland. A native who was accused of stealing money and refused to confess was flogged. After a second refusal Horn caused him to be tied to a stake under a tropical sun and forbade any one to give water or otherwise relieve his sufferings, and went away.

"Captain Doering, another officer, afterward found the native dead. No punishment was inflicted on Horn."

ON FLYING BOOTS MAN SCARES PARISIANS

Dashes Down Some of Principal Streets at Rate of 25 Miles an Hour.

PARIS.

Superstitious people thought they saw a satanic visitation when a gigantic figure in seven-league boots dashed down the Avenue des Champs Elysees to-day at about twenty-five miles an hour, shot like a thunderbolt across the Place de l'Etoile, and disappeared with a whiz and a whirl into the Bois de Boulogne.

It was however, only M Constantini taking a little gentle exercise in the motor boots which he has invented, and for which he believes there is a great future.

These new departures in footwear and locomotion look very like little motor cars fitted to Wellington boots. Each is driven by a one-and-a-quarter-horse power motor, and the speed can be accelerated from six up to thirty-six miles an hour.

They are fifteen inches long and broad in proportion. The wheels, of which there are four on each boot, are eight inches in diameter, and are fitted with solid tires.

Accumulators are carried in a belt connected by fine wires with the motors. The boots weigh about sixteen pounds each, but weight does not matter, as the feet are never lifted. The boots cost about $80.

M. Constantini has traveled several hundred miles on them, and expects to "motor boot" to St. Petersburg when the motor car show is over.

IN JEALOUS FIT LION KILLS LION AND MATE

Resents Removal of Lioness and Attacks Animals Who Succeeded Them

Belfast, [illegible].—The demon of jealousy was responsible for an exciting scene in the lions' cage at Messrs. Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie this morning.

For a long time two magnificent lions, Duke and Duchess, which were christened when cubs by the Princess Royal in Edinburgh, have occupied adjoining cages. On Tuesday evening, however, Duchess was removed, and in her cage a South African lion and lioness were placed.

This roused the ire of Duke, the largest lion in captivity, and about four o'clock in the morning he commenced to demolish the partition. He smashed it into splinters and at once attacked the lion. By this time all the animals in the menagerie were howling in concert, and Mr Bostock and the attendants hurried to the scene of battle. The two male animals were at each other's throats, while the lioness was crouching in a corner growling.

Duke made short work of his antagonist, and before anything could be done he had laid open his flank and torn out his windpipe. The attendants obtained pitchforks and tried to put a stop to the encounter, but without success.

Seeing that his opponent was dead, Duke attacked the lioness, and in a few moments she lay dead beside her mate, with a gaping wound in the throat. The victor then returned to his cage and throughout the day showed no symptom of any unusual excitement. The value of the animals slaughtered is said to be $2,000.

ACROBAT IS VICTIM OF DIRE VENDETTA

Daughter of Noble Parents Deserts Home for Him and His Murder Follows.

TUNIS.

Ducot, the well-known acrobat, who is perhaps better known in music halls as "Stewart," after a performance in a music hall at Cagliari, Sardinia, recently was introduced to a noble Italian family occupying a box in the hall.

One of the female members of the family at once fell passionately in love with him, and subsequently followed him to Tunis where he had obtained an engagement.

A few days later Stewart was admitted to the hospital, suffering from lunacy. Within a short time he was sufficiently recovered to be allowed out for a walk, and one afternoon he met two strangers, with whom he entered a cafe. After drinking in their company he returned to the hospital, and shortly after fell dead.

An inquest was held, and a verdict of death by poison was returned. Two Arabs have been arrested. Rumors are circulating that the affair is the outcome of a vendetta.

ACT OF KINDNESS BRINGS GIRL FORTUNE

Swiss Maiden Left $250,000 by Old Man Whom She Had Probably Forgotten.

GENEVA.

The Obwaldner Volksfreund states that Mlle. A. Burch, of Obwald, in the Canton of Unterwald, became one of the richest heiresses in Switzerland yesterday, owing to the generosity of an Englishman.

According to this journal, which does not give the name of the benefactor, Mlle. Burch was waiting in a large crowd before Buckingham Palace in 1886 to see the Queen, when an old gentleman, overcome by the heat, fainted near her and fell on the footpath.

The Swiss girl tended him, and accompanied him home in a cab. He thanked her for her attentions, and asked her for her card before she went away. Some months later she returned to Switzerland, and, apparently, the incident was forgotten.

It is stated by the Volksfreund that she received a letter from a London solicitor yesterday informing her that the old gentleman whom she had aided had died, leaving her a fortune of £50,000.

FRENCH DOCTOR DIES MARTYR TO SCIENCE

Voluntarily Sacrifices His Life for the Ultimate Good of Human Race.

PARIS.

Dr. M. Radiguet died here yesterday from the effects of experiments on himself with Roentgen rays in the interests of medical science.

For the last two years he devoted himself mainly to the study of the effects of the X-rays as curative agents, and he had repeatedly subjected himself to their influence.

Latterly he began to suffer intense pain in his limbs, and two of his fingers were amputated. This operation yielded no relief, and the doctor died after enduring months of agony.

His last utterance was an expression of fervent thankfulness that he had been permitted to establish reliable evidence as to the effect of Roentgen rays on the human organism. It is stated at the clinical department of the university that discoveries of an important character will be revealed from his papers and treatises.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN OPERA HOUSE ROW

Applause Given an Unpopular Artist Develops Into Fierce and Fatal Riot.

MADRID.

Two persons were killed in a free fight at the Royal Opera House at Seville last night.

During the performance of "La Gioconda," the claque, as the men are termed who are hired at Continental theatres to lead the applause persisted in applauding a somewhat unpopular artist.

The audience, resenting this, started hissing, and a turbulent scene ensued, which speedily developed into a fight with canes, chairs and wine bottles.

Eventually the theatre was cleared by armed police. Two members of the audience, whose skulls had been fractured, were taken to the hospital, and died there shortly afterward. The claque was arrested.

BULGARIANS PLOT TO KIDNAP MOTORISTS

Their Servian Guide in League With a Band of Daring Robbers.

LISBON.

Two Portuguese sportsmen who left Lisbon four months ago on a motor car trip through Europe have had a narrow escape from capture by brigands.

The travelers were accompanied by a Servian guide who engaged to conduct them to Constantinople. This guide, however, was known to be connected with the notorious brigands and the Bulgarian police made investigations, and discovered a plot whereby the travelers were to be held for a ransom of £5,000.

The motorists proceeded to Constantinople by train.

Pale and Anxious

Your Countenance Indicates the Body's Awful Struggle for Health.

Impossible to work or think clearly when there is no reserve of vigor, no nourishment in the blood, no supply of nerve energy.

The life of the half-sick man is pitiful, in fact, almost criminal, when bounding strength is so quickly derived from Ferrozone.

This nutritive tonic is guaranteed to strengthen all men, women and children. Weak organs get new force, vital energy is generated. Muscle and fat are added, healthy color is restored and the blood fairly tingles with newfound life.

Read the evidence of Jno. Carter, of 184 King St. East, Toronto, who says; "After a severe attack of Grippe my health was almost shattered. I suffered constantly from nervousness and dyspepsia. At sight I would waken with terrible palpitation and heart pains. Work became a great effort. At ten in the morning I used to feel tired and could hardly work another minute.

"Then came a bad attack of rheumatism which laid me up in bed. I could scarcely lift the weight of a pound and to stoop or bend was impossible. My druggist recommended Ferrozone, and he knew what he was talking about, for it rebuilt my strength, gave me abundant appetite, better blood, and new nerve energy. The rheumatism has disappeared. I weigh more, feel refreshed and vigorous, and am able to work ten hours a day. Ferrozone did it all."

You will be steadied, toned and strengthened for all time to come with Ferrozone. Get the genuine in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

HOTELS UNDER LOCAL OPTION

It is one thing to abolish the bar by a popular vote on a local option by-law. It is quite another thing to meet adequately the situation created by such a vote. The vote taken on January 1st will cut off at least 150 liquor licenses, and will greatly increase the number of municipalities in Ontario in which the sale of liquor is prohibited by law. In that list will be not a few important towns and villages. That fact calls for serious consideration from the leaders in this local option campaign in the various districts says The Globe. The problem of the bar-room may be settled by a popular vote, but the more important problem of the hotel remains.

One of the things that has brought prohibition into disrepute with large classes of the travelling public is the wretched, the utterly villainous, hotel accommodation to be found in too many prohibition localities. The so-called hotels are often cheap and nasty, managed without intelligence, and furnished after the model of a third-rate boarding house. If the local option movement is going to hold its own, there must be distinct ability and experience invested in the hotel business. Otherwise there will come, as there came elsewhere in the past, a revulsion of public opinion and an organized reactionary movement.

It ought to be possible to run a hotel, in a place where [illegible] accommodation is needed, without the bar attachment. Well-cooked and well-served meals will always be required, and lodging accommodation will be in demand. But all this must be done on an up-to-date business basis. Owen Sound seems to have anticipated the needs of the hour, and in that town, even before the local option vote takes effect, there are first-class hotels conducted in first-class style. Service of that kind is needed in every town and village on all lines of travel. If it is not given, the last stage of the local option movement may be worse than the first. And such hotels should hold a Government license and be under Government inspection as a security to the travelling public.

UNION AGAINST UNION

Moved by Mr. Rea, seconded by Mr. McPherson, that the thanks of this council are due and are hereby tendered to the Warden, Jas. McEwing, Esq., and G. B. Ryan, Esq., merchant of the city of Guelph, for the evidence given by them before the Tariff Commission in the interests of the consumers of this country.

The foregoing resolution was unanimously adopted by Wellington County Council, composed of about an equal number of Conservatives and Liberals, at a late session. When the Tariff Commission sat in Peterboro, it was waited upon by a deputation sent by Victoria County Council, and headed by a Warden who was described by John Campbell as "the bluest of blue Tories," to demand a reduction, rather than an increase, in the tariff.

These facts are significant, says the Farmer's Sun. They show that as the manufacturers have united, regardless of party lines, to secure additions to a tariff already too high, so have farmers and consumers united, on the other side, equally regardless of old party affiliations, to oppose that increase.

OBJECTS TO "INTIMIDATION"

Correspondent Objects to Alleged Illegal Practices

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—There has been a good deal of talk about the elections here last Monday. Can you tell me whether it was lawful for the Moral Reform League, to have their scrutineers, who I presume took the usual oath of people doing such work, standing at the doors of every polling place to ask voters to vote for their own candidates? Was this fair or just? If the hoteimen had placed their men [illegible] would not there have been a cry of intimidation? It seems to me this act of the sworn scrutineers renders the election illegal. Still one more question I would like to ask, and that is; Who composes the Moral Reform League, and what property or interest in the town do they represent.

Yours Truly,
A FAIR VOTE.

We are unable to give a list of the members composing the Peterboro Moral Reform League at present, but will endeavor to do so later. —Ed. Times.

OTTAWA MURDER

Evidence is Strongly Against Alphonse Larocque for Burke's Killing

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—The preliminary trial of Alphonse Larocque, charged with the murder of Trickey Burke on Saturday night, commenced this morning in the police court. Several of the parties who participated in the carousal at Larocque's shanty gave evidence.

L. Livingvat, one of the witnesses, said that he heard Larocque ask for the shovel, the instrument with which Burke is supposed to have been killed. Witness told how when Larocque returned to the shack after digging Burke he placed his hands on the table. Blood-stains were found on the table cloth, and also on the handle of the shovel.

Larocque will undoubtedly be committed to stand his trial at the Assizes, which open next week.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

He Was Implicated in British War Stores Scandal

Pretoria, Transvaal Colony, Jan. 6.—Captain J. Hopkins, quartermaster of the 2nd Dragoon Guards, whose name had been mentioned in connection with the war stores scandal, was found dead yesterday under circumstances pointing to suicide.

After the close of the South African war it was alleged that officers of the British army had worked in collusion with contractors so as to enable the latter to purchase superfluous stores at absurdly low prices and afterwards resell them to the military authorities at enormous profits, entailing a loss to the Government of very large sums of money.

The value of the stores involved in these transactions was stated in the report to be between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000. The War Office recently ordered the prosecution of the officers concerned in the scandal.

WAS NOT A SUICIDE.

Stratford, Jan. 5.—It was believed that Thomas Eyles, the Englishman found dead in a hotel here, and who came from Toronto, had taken carbolic acid, but the post-mortem examination showed that his death had been caused by strangulation. He had been eating a lunch in bed and some food entered the air passages while he was in the act of swallowing. The jury empanelled returned a verdict of "death by strangulation."

YESTERDAY'S RACES

Little Jap in 2.35 Class Wins Second Money, Making a 2.34 1-4 Record

The Orillia races yesterday on Lake Couchiching, attended by several local sportsmen and their ponies, were most successfully run off.

The largest crowd on record at these winter races, saw a most exciting race in the 2.35 class. In this race, it was necessary to run seven heats to decide first money. The crowds went fairly wild, hats and caps were waved and shouts of encouragement were turned at the driver of the Peterboro horse.

In the free-for-all race Cleopatra won three straight heats. Hal Patron that created favorable comment here last summer, and Gracie Pointer had a mix-up for edelson as to second and third money.

In the 2.35 class, Little Jap, owned by Mr. R. J. Munro, won the first heat in 2.34 1-4, the fastest time of the race, and also the fourth heat. Little Diamond, formerly owned by Mr. Arthur Elmhurst of Otonabee, won the 5th, 6th and 7th heats, and consequently first money. Little Jap got second money.

TO WED THEATRICAL STAR

Miss Annie Fitzhugh Engaged to Mr. J. J. Hardy

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Pretty and pleasing Anna Fitzhugh, one of the original beauties of the "Wizard of Oz" Company, is to be married. Her fiance is John J. Hardy, who is the president of the Canadian Locomotive Works at Montreal, Canada.

The mother of the actress, Mrs. M. E. Childs, who was at the Auditorium Annex, admitted with some reluctance that her daughter is to become the bride of the rich young Canadian.

Almost everybody that ever saw "The Wizard of Oz," has seen Miss Fitzhugh. She was one of the few really good Dorothys, the girl that is blown from Kansas by a cyclone into the wonderful land of Oz, that the piece has seen. Besides that, she is a rare type of Irish beauty, having deep blue eyes and jet black hair. Her real name is Anna Powell, and one of her three sisters, Ruby Powell, was a member of the original sextette in "Floradora." The [illegible] sister is Marie Powell, and the fourth Mrs. E. F. Kellogg, of 2015 Clarendon avenue.

THEY MET IN CANADA.

Miss Fitzhugh first met the man she is to marry when she was touring Canada last year with "The Baroness Fiddlesticks," a musical comedy, which was written by a California millionaire, and backed by E. R. Thomas, the turfman. The bride-to-be is only in her teens. She first went upon the stage when she was sixteen years old. That was when she was a member of the chorus in "The Sultan of Sulu" at the Studebaker Theater. She was rapidly promoted by Henry W. Savage, and when there was a chance to place her in "The Wizard of Oz" the Hamlins and Julian Mitchell secured her and placed her in the front rank.

IRISH ELECTORS NOT EXCITED

Probability That There Will be an Unprecedented Number of Elections by Acclamation

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 6.—"The only part of the Kingdom where there is no electorial excitement is Ireland. Hitherto, the experience has been otherwise."

The foregoing was William O'Brien's comment yesterday on the strange situation presented in Ireland, which has no precedent in the history of Parliamentary elections. The campaign organization is still incomplete, but the number of boroughs in which candidates have no opposition is without parallel. It is believed that in the whole Province of Munster there will not be a single contest. Throughout the Nationalist districts the contests will be exceedingly few, the selection of candidates by the Nationalist convention being everywhere accepted.

This phenomenon is variously accounted for by the Nationalists as exhibiting the unchallenged influence of the Irish League, and by the Unionists as proving that the Nationalists have the fullest confidence that the Irish party holds Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman in its grip.

Whatever the claims, it is certain that Ireland is extraordinarily placid for an election period, both sides having agreed to avoid contests between Nationalist candidates. Even in Ulster there is little excitement, and the fight is less between the Nationalist factions than between the opposing sections of the Unionists.

HANGED THE "WITCHES"

Havana, Jan. 6.—Domingo Bocourt, an old negro, and Victor Molina, a mulatto, were garrotted at the prison here this morning. Both men were regarded as "witches" by their associates. Their crime was the hideous murder of a white baby, whose body was found smoked and salted, weeks after the crime.

The executions passed off promptly. There was no special incident, and no witnesses excepting those officially designated to be present. A dozen other men and women are imprisoned in connection with the crime.

Guelph Mail Carrier Worked the Oracle to get Precedence

A Guelph mail carrier is nothing ill not well posted on the rights and emoluments appertaining to a servant of the King. On Thursday being in a hurry to get his horse sharpened, in order to hasten delivery of His Majesty's mails, Mr. John Coughlin, the carrier in question, finding the blacksmiths' shops all full of waiting customers, went before Police Magistrate Saunders, and secured an order allowing himself to be a public official and having the penalties for non-conformance with his demands, made in the King's name inserted. When he went to a shop he was turned away. Then he presented his order and it is unnecessary to add that his horse was promptly shod.

ATHLETIC WORLD

CURLING.

That all true sportsmen invariably try to help one another is exemplified by a recent kindly act done by the local Curling Club.

It seems that the Curlers of Norwood, were strictly up against it. Mr. Flemming, who owns the Norwood rink, decided this year to confine the use of his property to skaters only. This would have debarred the Norwood curlers from practising. To encourage the roarin' game the local curlers, sent the Norwood Curling Club the following letter;

Peterboro, Dec. 19, 1905.

T. E. Finlay, Esq.,
Pres. Norwood Curling Club.

Dear Sir, — Last evening our club unanimously decided to allow the members of your club free use of our curling ice from five to seven thirty p.m., each day during the season 1905—06, save bonspiel week.

We hope many of your curlers will be able to play the game here this winter.

We will also provide a place to keep your members' curling stones during the winter.

Trusting to see your Curling Club well represented every day and wishing you the compliments of the season, I am,

Yours very truly,
R. M. WADDELL,
Secretary.

A meeting of the Norwood curlers was held last night in the Public Library for organization.

For convenience of our readers, and in particular those who use grooms and lungs on the Charlotte street rink, we give a list of the games scheduled for next week. This should be kept by curlers for future guidance.

THE TURF.

Once more Mr. Martin Connors' name appears among the winners in dogs that of Mr. Geo. Lipsett. These two local sportsmen and race-horse owners, are rapidly coming to the front among Canada's prominent trainers and owners.

At the Orillia winter races, Lady Gotland and Miss Paisley, owned respectively by the above named gentlemen showed up well in their respective classes. Lady Gotland took second money in the 2.50 class, and Miss Paisley secured in the 2.25 class. Minnie Bell, well known here, took first money in the 2.25 class. An Orillia despatch says;—

The annual winter races began today on Lake Couchiching. There was a good attendance. The weather was fine and the track in good condition. The races resulted as follows;—

2.50 class—1, Miss Appleboe, B. Passmore, Orillia; 2, Lady Gotland, J. Neill, Peterboro; 3, Maybe, H. Leadlay, Cookstown. Time, 2.30 1-4, 2.29 1-4, 2.30 1-4.

2.25 class—1, Minnie Bell, G. Powell, Orillia, 2, Miss Paisley, H. Cook, Peterboro, 3, Birdie Hays, H. Leadlay, Cookstown; 4th, Commodore K., D. Dennison, Coldwater. Time, 2.24, 2.28, 2.27.

It is said the Orillia races had the best bunch of horses ever seen there for winter races.

Most of these horses will be entered for the Peterboro winter races, held this month and, for which bills are now on the press. Everything points towards a most successful meet here. The track is beyond comparison and every day prominent Ontario turfmen are sending correspondence which tends to show we will have the best winter races Peterboro has ever held.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—Francois Mercier, the Alaskan explorer, died at his home in this city in his 68th year. He also crossed Behring Straits in advance of the [illegible] of the French Geographical Society, the latter holding that the North American Indians had come over from China. Mercier also traversed the Yukon long before the gold discoveries were made.

Antoine's Marie

By Virginia Leila Wentz

Copyright, 1905, by K. M. Whitehead

One August morning, with his high leather leggings, his easy costume, his fishing basket and tackle, Paul Blake strode along through the dew wet Canadian grass. He knew of a certain deep hollow in the brook which on such a gray moist day as this would be the haunt of juicy trout, and for the sheer joy of expectation he whistled. For equal to Blake's love for the art of painting was his love for the sport of fishing. He was not only enjoying his summer gathering French Canadian landscapes; he was reveling in his favorite sport as well.

After an hour of successful fishing in the quiet spot which he had selected he spied a splendid trout tucked comfortably under a stone. But it was written in the book of fate that this fish and the frying pan should not lightly be brought together. Fly after fly was thrown in vain. Down through the crystal clear water he could see the sleek sides and the round, unspeculative eye of his intended victim, and he resolved to try the method of tickling.

So he undid his sleeve links, bared his arm and knelt upon the lichens, clinging with one hand to an overhanging birch. He was dipping cautiously toward the water when there in the pool before him, close to the reflection of his own, flashed another face.

It was a girl's face, and in its unusual loveliness it lay for a second like some magic picture. The next second Blake observed with a thrill that the vision was being changed by the current and that his own blond curls were made to trespass gently over the girl's dark ones. Then while he gazed at the reflection with Narcissus-like intentness the other face vanished as suddenly as it had come.

Springing to his feet, Blake perceived the bent trunk of an alder which projected across the stream from the top of the bank above, and he knew that the girl must have been leaning over the trunk from that higher bank, unconscious of his presence, until, like a startled deer, she fled.

"She was like one of Murillo's gypsy eyed Madonnas!" he exclaimed. And, though he went on for awhile longer with his trout fishing, the sport seemed to have lost a bit of flavor.

The next day Paul Blake drew up his horse before the kitchen door of a whitewashed farmhouse, and Antoine Martin rose to greet him.

"Bienvenue, m'sieu," said he, with old French hospitality. "And will m'sieu dismount?"

Blake did dismount, and as he stood in the wide doorway he tried to account for his presence. He was a painter, forsooth, and doing this section of Canada. He had already collected a good many views, but among them all there was not one more wonderful than that which could be obtained from the level plateau on which Antoine's farm stood. It was as if the hills had here withdrawn to leave an arena for some great spectacle, some ancient savage pageant. Might he, therefore, be permitted to fetch his easel and palette and to put upon canvas the harmony and beauty of it all?

Blake saw the lithe figure of a girl sitting opposite to him, her arms upon the table, her dimpled face with the Murillo eyes framed in both hands, her scarlet lips parted in breathless listening, hanging upon his words. Ah, luck was with him, to be sure. If he had lost the trout yesterday he had found the girl today.

"Come here, cherie," said old Antoine to the girl, and to the stranger, "My niece, Marie."

* * * * * * *

"But, you little water sprite, you little Undine, however did you get your face so mixed up with mine that day in the pool?" Blake asked one morning as Marie stood watching him at work on his canvas.

"Eh, bien, m'sieu, I had gone out for a pique-nique on the barrens, and—ramasse les granages—what you call pick berries," she answered in her quaint English speech, eked out with bits of patois here and there. Then she explained how she'd leaned over the trunk of the tree from the bank above to wash her stained fingers; how, just as she was in the act of doing so, she had seen his reflection in the water and was startled.

Between the strokes of his brush Blake took surreptitious glances at the willowy figure, half holding back the apple boughs as she talked, half swinging on them. Rebel locks had broken out of confinement and were curling dampily about her warm, white neck and that crumpled rose leaf of an ear. Ah, she was exquisitely delightful! That same day he said to Antoine:

"If you would permit Mlle. Marie to sit to me, and if Mlle. Marie will consent"—he questioned the Murillo eyes, which silently gave him his answer, then fell beneath his own—"I could do a painting that was worth while."

So the August days passed till the brief Canadian summer was over. Already they had started to burn the wood that Antoine had cut for winter use.

While the piled up logs sent red lights flickering about the plastered walls and shining floor, they would often show that Blake had joined the Martin home group and was reading to old Antoine, who listened soberly between long whiffs at his pipe. Marie would sit on the high backed bench near the clock, knitting, stealing a glance now from them at the volume which lay open on the table.

Antoine, good, sturdy old Antoine, had just been offered the position of foreman of a gang in the pineries at the headwaters of the Lievres. He had worked in the lumber camps for years, but never as foreman, forsooth. Nevertheless he hesitated about accepting it. There was poor little Marie, he pointed out to Blake. What would become of her?

"Poor little Marie!" For the next few days Blake did a good deal of thinking. Marie had never read Henry James or Meredith, it was true; she had never seen a poster lady, never heard "Chamille," and yet in her setting she was perfect. Moreover, she was the sort to adapt herself readily to new environments. "And why not?" he argued finally to himself. "She is pure, beautiful and capable of the deepest, tenderest feelings. What she has not is the superficial gloss of society. That I do not want."

One evening, pushing his book aside, Blake glanced across at Marie, whose eyes, as usual, were bent on her knitting. She was humming softly to herself an old Canadian boat song:

"Dessendes a l'ombre,
Ma jolie blonde."

Blake had often heard it above the blow of the oars in the rowlocks, but never had the words seemed so fitting as tonight. He rose suddenly and laid a hand on Antoine's shoulder.

"Let me take Mamselle Marie for a little stroll in the starlight," he said pleadingly. "It's warm in here. I will take good care of her."

"Eh, m'sieu!" The old man dropped his pipe and gauged him silently for a second with those black beaded eyes of his. What he read in the younger man's face must have satisfied him, for he said finally, with a little movement of his hand: "It must not be far. See you, m'sieu? And it cannot be for long."

Outside through the dusk there was a silvery glimmer. The woodland stir seemed like a sigh. Blake looked down closely into the little face beside him. In the mind of the girl something indefinable had arisen, something which had stolen away all her gay caprices and set her trembling.

"Ma petite blonde!" Blake used the soft provincial word for sweetheart that Marie had used in her song. His tone was one of gentle entreaty; his attitude was that of reverence.

"Ma petite blonde," he repeated, taking her hand and lifting it softly to his lips, "I want you for my little wife. Will you let me take care of you always?"

She looked at him with wide, surprised eyes and slightly parted lips.

"You, m'sieu?" she said breathlessly. "You to take care of me?" It seemed incredible.

For answer he drew her to him as a knight of old would have drawn a lady and looked into her lovely face. His blue eyes and her Murillo eyes met and pledged each other in deep drafts of gazing; then with a superb motion of surrender Marie reached up and put her arms about his head.

Thus in reality did his blond curls trespass gently over the girl's dark ones, even as once they had seemed to do in that reflection in the pool. And thus was brought about the winning of Antoine's Marie.

A King's Incognito.

Probably the most complete incognito on record was that adopted by King Charles of Roumania on his way to take possession of the Wallachian throne.

At the time the relations between Austria and Prussia were exceedingly strained—it was just before the outbreak of war between these two nations—and the Vienna government was known to be strongly opposed to a prince of the house of Hohenzollern ascending the throne of Roumania.

It was feared, therefore, that obstacles might be placed to the passage over Austrian territory of the newly elected sovereign of the Wallachs. Accordingly King Charles traveled down the Danube on board the Austrian steamboats disguised as a servant and in the second or third class cabin.

The two or three members of his suit, who of course were in the first class cabin, affected to treat him with the utmost severity and contempt and assailed him with loud reproaches for alleged negligence in his menial duties.

It was only on setting foot on Roumanian territory that the roles were reversed and that those who had remained on board the steamer were able to witness the ceremonious welcome accorded by the Wallachian authorities to the erstwhile valet and footman.

River Funerals in Germany.

The river Spree, which runs through Berlin, has a habit of almost continuously overflowing its banks. As a result the lowlands beyond the city, called Spreewald, are almost always under water in summer and covered with ice in winter. Much of the summer traffic is done on skates and with sledges. The postman delivers his mail either in a boat or on skates, the children skate to school, and the ladies go to market on the water wagon or on the ice.

Even the dead are carried along the river to their last resting place in a coffin resting on a bier in a boat covered with flowers. The hearse is paddled by two of the undertaker's assistants. In the first boat following are the clergymen and the family, and the usual long line of coaches is supplanted by a long line of boats. These are paddled sometimes by men, sometimes by women, but always by some of the friends of the deceased. These water funerals are very picturesque as they wend their way through the temporary channels caused by the overflowing Spree.

Was Just a Dream.

"Some old fellow over at Fort Sill who has been in this section of the country for a good many years once dreamed that there was an Indian massacre on the summit of Signal mountain. He afterward began to tell that dream, and at length told the story for the truth. That dream has gone down in history as an actual fact. There never was a massacre on this mountain, nor even a battle of any sort. In early days, after the establishment of Fort Sill, the soldiers had a signal station there, built the house that is now crumbling in ruins and possibly observed the maneuvers of many Comanches."

A Natural Inference.

Six-year-old Fanny, just returned from Sunday school, seemed to have something on her mind.

"Mother," she said after awhile, "they must have had very large beds in Bible times."

"Why?" asked her mother.

"Well, our teacher told us today that Abraham slept with his four fathers."

BIG WAR CLOUD IN FAR EAST

United States Sending Troops to Philippine Islands

PREPARATIONS FOR WAR

Other Powers Getting Ready for Trouble in the Celestial Empire

Denver, January 1.—First Regiment, U. S. A., stationed in New York, ordered to the Philippines, will sail January 20.

Second Regiment, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Logan, Colo., ordered to the Philippines, will sail from San Francisco, February 1.

Eighth and Thirteenth Field Batteries, U. S. A., stationed at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., ordered to the Philippines, will sail from San Francisco Regiment February 1.

In the Philippines. Nine regiments of infantry, four regiments of cavalry and three batteries of field artillery.

A strong naval force is on the Asiatic station which can be quickly concentrated in Chinese waters.

Private advices received by army officers at the headquarters of the Department of the Colorado show that active services in Chinese territory is being counted on by the American army. The fact that men having less than two years and six months to serve will not be allowed to go with their regiments to the Philippines until they re-enlist for the full term of three years, shows that an extended period of foreign service is counted on.

It is said that other nations are also preparing to concentrate forces where they will be available for China.

The United States cannot land troops or quarter troops on Chinese soil in times of peace. However, owning the Philippines, the government can quarter as many regiments in the islands as it pleases and without violating any of the international laws.

It is known in military circles that the situation in China is grave, and it is said that some of the officers at army headquarters here and also at Fort Logan have been secretly informed by Washington that the movement of the Second Regiment and other troops to Manila is because of threatened danger in China.

Ask Large Sum for Canal

Albany, N.Y., January 4. — According to the second annual report of Henry A. Van Alstyne, State Engineer and Surveyor, an appropriation of $40,000,000 will be asked from the Legislature for work on the 1000-ton barge canal in this year. The report particularly deals with the barge canal project and State road improvements. According to the figures given in the report, less than $1,000,000 of the $10,000,000, made available by the Legislature for the first year's work, has actually been expended, but about $9,000,000 of contracts have been assumed. The work will require a number of years and an enormous expenditure of money, but it is believed that the canal will become one of the most valuable improvements of the state.

Sentenced to Death at 17

London, January 6.—At the Winchester Assizes, Frank Hansford, carpenter's apprentice, aged 17, was sentenced to death for the murder of his sister, Beatrice, at Portsmouth, on September 17. Prisoner asked his sister to play the piano, and when she refused he struck her with a poker, and then cut her throat with a razor. One doctor stated prisoner was an imbecile, but the other doctors would not go so far. The jury recommended him to mercy on the ground of his youth.

LATIMER PUTS UP A FIGHT.

Calgary, Alberta, Jan. 6.—W. H. Latimer, the Philadelphia fugitive, was turned over to the Montreal police officer yesterday, by the police magistrate endorsing the warrant, but a habeas corpus writ was secured from Chief Justice Sifton, and the prisoner was again released on $1,000 bonds given by two business men. The hearing will take place on Friday. No effort was made to force an issue in the police court.

NO DANGER OF REVOLT.

Kingston, Jan. 5.—Inspector Dawson, who is at present at the penitentiary, denies the stories circulated by the Conservative press that there is danger of an uprising at the institution over food conditions. He has not had a complaint on his present visit as to the character of the food furnished. The stories set afloat are purely imaginary.

A SERVICE IN LONDON.

London, Jan. 5.—The Canadian Associated Press understands that it is proposed to hold a service in London simultaneous with the late Hon. Mr. Prefontaine's funeral services in Montreal, but nothing definite has been yet decided. The Dominion leaves Chatham on the 9th for Sheerness, and thence for Cherbourg.

"I feel as young now, at thirty, as I did at eighteen years of age."

That is part of the statement of one woman, mother of six children, who found new life by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not the ordinary cares of the family, nor the natural obligations of motherhood, which make women prematurely old. But it is the womanly diseases, draining away the vitality, and undermining the strength, which take the roundness and suppleness from the form, the bloom from the cheek and the brightness from the eye.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures those womanly diseases which rob women of youth and beauty. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It brings back to the mother the lightheartedness of her bridal day. This is the testimony of thousands of women who have renewed their youth by the use of "Favorite Prescription."

"For four years I suffered untold agony," writes Mrs. E. A. Nations, of Witts Springs, Searcy Co., Arkansas. "Sometimes I would get some better and think I would get well, only to wake up some morning not able to rise. In my hips and around lower parts of abdomen was where I suffered the most, and when the pain would give way it scattered all over me and I would be so sore and stiff I could scarcely move. My husband got the best doctor in the country to attend me, but I did not improve any. Finally I told my husband that I was going to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. By the time I had taken one bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' I could notice a little improvement. Dr Pierce advised me to take 'Golden Medical Discovery' in connection with the 'Favorite Prescription.' By the time I had taken [illegible] bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I was well. That was two years ago this summer. I felt sure then I expected to become a mother, then a threatened miscarriage greatly weakened me, and my old disease returned. My husband got another doctor for me, but I seemed to just drag along and get no better. At last I told the doctor that if his medicine did not help me I would go back to Dr. Pierce's medicines. I did so, and by the time I had taken them one month I could do my own housework, except washing, and tended my garden, too. I was busier than I had ever been while waiting baby's coming since my first baby came (this one was the sixth child). She is now eleven months old, and is a healthy child. As for me, I feel as young now, at thirty, as I did at eighteen years of age."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

First Use of Potatoes in Ireland.

In the garden adjoining his house at Youghal, Raleigh planted the first potatoes ever grown in Ireland. The vegetable was brought to him from the little colony which he endeavored to establish in Virginia. The colonists started in April, 1585, and Thomas Harriot, one of their number, wrote a description of the country in 1587. He describes a root which must have been the potato:

"Openauk are a kind of roots of round form, some of the bigneese of walnuts, some farre greater, which are found in moist & marish grounds growing many together one by another in ropes, as though they were fastened with a string. Being boiled they are very good meat."

The Spaniards first brought potatoes to Europe, but Raleigh was undoubtedly the first to introduce the plant into Ireland.

Rossini and Meyerbeer.

Rossini, walking one day on the boulevard with the musician Braga, was greeted by Meyerbeer, who anxiously inquired after the health of his dear Rossini. "Bad, very bad," answered the latter. "A headache, a side ache and a leg I can scarcely move." After a few moments' conversation Meyerbeer passed on, and Braga asked the great composer how it was he had suddenly become so unwell. Smilingly Rossini reassured his friend: "Oh, I couldn't be better. I only wanted to please Meyerbeer. He would be so glad to see me smash up."

The Mobs in Servia.

Servian peasants help each other by means of an institution known as the mobs. A man who has not hands sufficient to plow or reap his farm calls in the mobs—that is to say, invites all his neighbors to come and help him. He pays nothing for this service, providing only generous supplies of food and drink; but when any of them apply for the mobs it is understood that he will take his turn.

Not In Her Experience.

"This proverb," said Mrs. Hiram Offen over her evening paper, "always makes me tired."

"What proverb's that, dear?" asked her husband.

"Too many cooks spoil the broth.' I don't believe there ever was such a thing as too many cooks."—Philadelphia Press.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I took it seemed nothing would become serious and I was able to for a week or a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I consented to look upon all doctors as little better than robbers. One day my brother asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was more than flattering during the first month's treatment I was confined to the house. However I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could earn $12 a week in a machine shop before I took treatment, I am now doing $18 and never lose a day. I owe all to Drs. Kennedy & Kergan."

shipmate who had put off in a sampan to board his boat lying in Hong Kong harbor, and had never been seen or heard of again.

"It was a queer thing," he said impressively, as he shook the ashes out of his pipe and recharged it, "a queer thing as ever a man heard of. I spent the evening with the chay myself, and before we said 'good-bye' we arranged to go up to Happy Valley the Sunday morning following. But he never turned up, nor have I ever set eyes on him from that time to this. Whether he was murdered by the sampan's crew or whether he fell overboard and was drowned in the harbor, I don't suppose will ever be known."

"A very strange thing," I said, as bravely as I could, and instantly thought of the bond I had in common with that sampan's crew.

"Aye, strange; very strange," replied the steward, shaking his head solemnly; "but there's many strange things now-a-days. Look at these here murders that have been going on in London lately. I reckon it would be a wise man as could put an explanation on them."

All my blood seemed to rush to my head, and my heart for a second stood still. I suffered agonies of apprehension lest he should notice my state and have his suspicions aroused, but he was evidently too much engrossed with his subject to pay any attention to my appearance. I knew I must say something, but my tongue was cleaving to the roof of my mouth. It was some moments before I found my voice, and then I said as innocently as possible—

"They are certainly peculiar, are they not? Have you any theory to account for them?"

This was plainly a question to his taste, and it soon became evident that he had discussed the subject in all its bearings on several occasions before.

"Do you want to know what I think?" he began slowly, fixing me with an eye that he seemed to imagine bored through me like an augur. "Well, what I think is that the Anarchists are at the bottom of it all, and I'll tell you why. Look at the class of men who were killed. Who was the first? A Major-General in the army, wasn't he? Who was the second? A member of the House of Lords. Who was the third?"

He looked so searchingly at me that I felt myself quailing before his glance as if he had detected me in my guilt. Who could tell him better than I who the last victim was?

"And the third—well, he was one of these rich men as fatizes on Society and the workin' man, was he not?"

He pounded his open hand with his fist in the true fashion, and his eyes constantly challenged me to refute his statements if I were in a position to do so. But—heaven help me!—thankful as I would have been to do it, I was not able to gainsay him. Instead, I sat before him like a criminal in the dock, conscious of the danger I was running, yet unable for the life of me to avert it. Still, however, my tormentor did not notice my condition, but returned to the charge with renewed vigor. What he lacked in argument he made up in vehemence. And for nearly an hour I had to sit and bear the brunt of both.

"Now, I'll ask you a question," he said for the twentieth time, after he had paused to watch the effect of his last point. "Who do the Anarchists mostly go for? Why for what we may call, for the sake of argument, the leaders of Society—generals, peers, and millionaires. Those are the people, therefore, that they want to be rid of."

"You think then," I said, "that these—these crimes were the work of a party instead of an individual?"

He half closed his eyes and looked at me with an expression upon his face that seemed to implore me to contradict him.

"You know what I think," he said; then with fine conceit, "if only other folk had as much savee as we have, the fellows who did the work would have been laid by the heels by this time. As it is they'll never catch them—no, not till the moon's made of cream cheese."

With this avowal of his settled opinion he took himself off, and left me sitting on the hatch, hoping with all my heart and soul that, if in this lay my chance of safety, the world might long retain its present opinion. While I was ruminating on what he had said, and feeling that I would give five years of my life to know exactly how matters stood ashore, I chanced to look up at the little covered way on the hurricane deck below the bridge. My heart seemed to stand still. For the moment I thought I must be asleep and dreaming, for there, gazing across the sea, was the same woman's face I had seen suspended in mid-air above my cab on the previous night. Astonishing as it may seem, there could be no possible doubt about it—I recognized the expressive eyes, the sweet mouth, and the soft, wavy hair as plainly as if I had known her all my life long.

Thinking it was still only a creation of my own fancy, and that in a moment it would fade away as before, I stared hadr at it, resolved, while I had the chance, to still further impress every feature upon my memory. But it did not vanish as I expected. I rubbed my eyes in an endeavor to find out if I were awake or asleep, but that made no difference. She still remained. I was quite convinced by this time, however, that she was flesh and blood. But who could she be, and where had I really seen her face before? For something like five minutes I watched her, and then for the first time she looked down at the deck where I sat. Suddenly she caught sight of me, and almost at the same instant I saw her give a little start of astonishment. Evidently she had also seen me in some other place, but could no more recall it than myself.

As soon as she had recovered from her astonishment she glanced round the waste of water again and then moved away. But even when she had left me I could not for the life of me rid myself of my feeling of astonishment. I reviewed my past life in an attempt to remember where I had [illegible] without success.

While I was wondering, my friend the chief steward came along the deck again. I accosted him, and asked if he could tell me the name of the lady with the wavy brown hair whom I could see talking to the captain at the door of the chart house. He looked in the direction indicated, and then said:

"Her name is Maybourne—Miss Agnes Maybourne. Her father is a big mine owner at the Cape, so I'm told. Her mother died about a year ago. I heard the skipper telling a lady aft this morning, and it seems the poor young thing felt the loss terribly. She's been home for a trip with an old uncle to try and cheer her up a bit, and now they are on their way back home again."

"Thank you very much," I said. "I have been puzzling over her face for some time. She's exactly like someone I've met some time or other, but where, I can't remember."

On this introduction the steward favored me with a long account of a cousin of his—a steward on board an Atlantic liner—who, it would appear, was always being mistaken for other people; to such a length did this misfortune carry him that he was once arrested in Liverpool on suspicion of being a famous forger who was then at large. Whether he was sentenced and served a term of penal servitude, or whether the mistake was discovered and he was acquitted, I cannot now remember; but I have a faint recollection that my friend described it as a case that baffled the ingenuity of Scotland Yard, and raised more than one new point of law, which he, of course, was alone able to set right in a satisfactory manner.

Needless to say, Miss Maybourne's face continued to excite my wonder and curiosity for the remainder of the afternoon; and when I saw her the following morning promenading the hurricane deck in the company of a dignified gray-haired gentleman, with a clean-shaven, shrewd face, who I set down to be her uncle, I discovered that my interest had in no way abated. This wonderment and mystification kept me company for longer than I liked, and it was not until we were bidding "good-bye" to the Channel that I determined to give up brooding over it and think about something else.

Once Old England was properly behind us, and we were out on the open ocean, experiencing the beauties of a true Atlantic swell, and wondering what our portion was to be in the Bay of Biscay, my old nervousness returned upon me. This will be scarcely a matter for wonder when you reflect that every day we were drawing nearer our first port of call, and at Teneriffe I should know whether or not the police had discovered the route I had taken. If they had, I should certainly be arrested as soon as the vessel came to anchor, and be detained in the Portuguese prison until an officer should arrive from England to take charge of me and conduct me home for trial. Again and again I pictured that return, the mortification of my relatives, and the excitement of the Press; and several times I calmly deliberated with myself as to whether the best course for me to pursue would not be to drop quietly overboard some dark night, and thus prevent the degradation that would be my portion if I were taken home and placed upon my trial. However, had I but known it, I might have spared myself all this anxiety, for the future had something in store for me which I had never taken into consideration, and which was destined to upset all my calculations in a most unexpected fashion.

How strange a thing is Fate, and by what small circumstances are the currents of our lives diverted! If I had not had my match-box in my pocket on the occasion I am about to describe, what a very different tale I should have had to tell. You must bear with me if I dwell upon it, for it is the one little bit of that portion of my life that I love to remember. It all came about in this way: On the evening in question I was standing smoking against the port bulwarks between the fore rigging and the steps leading to the hurricane deck. What the exact time was I cannot remember. It may have been eight, and it might possibly have been half-past; one thing, at any rate, is certain: dinner was over in the saloon, for some of the passengers were promenading the hurricane deck. My pipe was very nearly done, and, having nothing better to do, I was beginning to think of turning in, when the second officer came out of the alley way and asked me for a match. He was a civil young fellow of two or three-and-twenty, and when I had furnished him with what he wanted, we fell into conversation. In the course of our yarning he mentioned the name of the ship upon which he had served his apprenticeship. Then, for the first time for many years, I remembered that I had a cousin who had also spent some years aboard her. I mentioned his name, and to my surprise he remembered him perfectly.

The Drummer Boy Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 16, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 28th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for another Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,800,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Minging Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $17.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

An Inquiry Into Corruption

Toronto, Jan. 5.—Hon. J. P. Whitney stated yesterday that the Government had been strongly pressed to institute an inquiry into corruption as practised in Kingston and other elections, and that the proposal was being considered by the Cabinet.

"It has been discussed," he said, "and it will be further considered."

It is proposed that the inquiry should be made by the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

First Death in 16 Years

Yesterday the funeral of the late Mr. John Young, was held at Chemong, and was very largely attended by both members of Court Chemong, Canadian Order of Foresters, and a large number of friends of the deceased. The late Mr. Young was only 31 years of age. This is the first death that has occurred in Chemong Lodge, C.O.F., although the lodge has been organized for over 16 years.

Mr. Towns Laid to Rest

Owing both to personal popularity, and in part to the sad circumstances connected with the death of the late Mr. Edward Towns, particulars of which have already appeared in these columns, his funeral, held Wednesday at St. Joseph's church, Douro, was very largely attended. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Kelly. After the mass the remains were laid away in St. Joseph's cemetery, amid the heartfelt regrets and audible sympathies of all present.

The new firm will take possession on the 15th of this month. Mr. King, whilst in Norwood has proved himself a popular host. Mr. Gabriel, who has been clerking for Mr. King for the past two years, is also popular with the public.

St. Paul's choir is thirty-two strong, and each member of it understands music, and the Presbyterians are indeed fortunate in securing them. The Mirror had the pleasure of hearing this choir on a similar occasion at Omemee, and we are very pleased that another opportunity to hear them again is so close at hand.

MR. GLIDDEN RESIGNS

Well Known Musician Resigns Leadership of George Street Church

Much talk was current yesterday over the reported resignation of Mr. Rupert Glidden, who for about a year, has so ably filled the onerous position of choir leader in the George street Methodist church.

The rumors proved to be only too true. The Times ascertained that Mr. Glidden yesterday sent in his resignation to the chairman of the Music Committee.

Mr. Glidden's reasons for resigning from the leadership is that, as director of Music, he finds it impossible to devote the necessary time to the choir work. It is generally known that the conservatory is fast gaining patronage and consequently Mr. Glidden's time is taken up more and more as the number of pupils increases.

Mr. Glidden was not only a most efficient choir leader, but is personally very popular with every member of the choir; hence his resignation is regarded with feelings of deep regret.

PETERBORO WINS

Locals Defeat Cobourg by a Score of Seventeen to One

Last night the first league game of this season, attracted a large attendance to Brock street rink. The locals looked fine in their brand new sweaters and stockings, the Peterboro blue and white making an attractive combination.

Mr. F. C. Walburne, the well-known Toronto hockey expert, refereed the game, and his decisions were notably impartial.

The galleries and every available standing point were fairly well filled by an enthusiastic and widely cheering audience. Last night's game was witnessed by many of Peterboro's fair ladies, who impartially shared previous time for conversation with an interested and careful scrutiny of the game.

The Cobourg bunch were a much lighter aggregation than our home players, and judging by the game they put up last night, do not seem to be in intermediate class.

The puck during the first half, rarely menaced Peterboro territory. In this half the following players were sent to the boards for minor offences. Of the locals, Whiteroft was twice laid off, Crowley, and Whiteroft a third time. One Cobourg man was given a rest, viz., Bond.

At the end of the first half the game stood 5—0 in favor of Peterboro. The following scored in the first half, Cavanagh 2, Whiteroft 1, Morgan 1, Carrier 1.

The second half was a repition of the first, the Cobourg septette being easily outclassed. For the locals, Crowley scored 4, Whiteroft 2, Cavanagh 4, Morgan 2, and for the visitors, Bentley scored 1.

Bentley and Moffatt, of the Cobourg's and Crowley, Glover and Whiteroft, of the Peterboro's decorated the fence at different periods during the second half.

The teams were as follows:

Peterboro		Cobourg
Wasson	Goal.	C. Doheny
Glover	Point	McCullough
Crowley	Cover-point.	Bond
Whiteroft	Rover.	Bentley
Morgan	Center.	Payne
Carrier	Right Wing	A. Doheny

A MT. JULIAN WEDDING

Miss Georgina Shewen Becomes the Bride of Mr. F. C. Crawford' Lakefield

The Lakefield News, referring to a lady and gentleman both well known here, says, in part.

"A pretty wedding took place at Mount Julian on Wednesday, when Miss George Shewen, second daughter of Mr. F. W. C. Shewen, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Frederick Cecil Crawford, eldest son of Mr. Richard Crawford, of Lakefield.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Archdeacon Warren at Holy Trinity Church, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The bride entered the church, leaning on the arm of her father.

The dress worn by the bride was of a blue shade silk and mohair, trimmed with white satin all over lace, and silk trimmings, with the conventional veil and orange blossoms, and was assisted by her younger sister, Miss Lily, as bridesmaid, who was tastefully gowned in dark brown cord de chene. The bridegroom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Roland Crawford. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's father, where the relatives and a few friends partook of dinner, after which they left for their future home in Lakefield.

The gift from the groom to the bride was a gold watch and chain, and the bridesmaid a handsome gold bracelet with an amethyst as a center-piece, and to the groomsman a pair of cuff buttons.

THE TEMPERANCE VOTE

Anti-Hypocrisy Writes About Temperance Vote in Toronto

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—As the local elections are just over, during which, mainly owing to strenuous efforts put forth by the Peterboro "Moral Reform League," a large majority was given for reduction of licenses, I would like to draw attention towards a possible reason for the strong temperance vote polled here.

In the city of Toronto, at their last municipal elections, a vote was taken there on a similar subject. In this city the electors were simply asked whether they wanted a reduction in hotel licenses. In Toronto the electors were asked whether they wanted a reduction of hotel and also if they wanted a reduction in the number of shops selling liquor.

The Toronto vote stood some 750 for non-reduction of hotel licenses, but about 1,500 for non-reduction of shop licenses. Why is this? The inference is obvious. The professing temperance men were bull-dozed into reducing hotel licenses, but were apparently safe in voting for that reduction, as long as they could get their little private supplies at the shops. Consistency thou art a jewel!

Yours,
ANTI-HYPOCRISY.

The Late Edward Towns

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—Yesterday, while reading a copy of your valuable paper of January 3rd, I noticed some statements concerning the death of my brother, the late Edward Towns, which I consider are entirely wrong.

My brother was not employed at Hogan's Hotel, but had been boarding there for three or four years. He had been talking of changing his boarding place, when at home at Christmas, as he said when working at night he could not sleep in the daytime, owing to the noise in the hotel.

I have asked for an inquest, not because I suspect my brother of committing suicide, as everyone, as well as myself, who has known him, know well that my brother had not intentionally taken his own life.

In writing this letter, I mean to uphold the name of my brother, whose body is cold in the grave, and as a brother, I deem it my duty to try to remove all blame from his name, which I think he does not deserve. I know my brother had laudanum to use to enable him to go to sleep at the hotel, and if he had taken an overdose of it, he had taken it to make him sleep, and for no other purpose.

I am well assured that all who knew my brother cannot say anything but, that he was an honest, industrious, straight-forward young man.

My reason for asking for an inquest was to ascertain as to what extent my brother was bodily injured by beating at Hogan's Hotel previous to his death.

I notice in your columns that Dr. McNulty stated that my brother's death was a real case of suicide. Dr. McNulty told me at Mr. Lynch's drug store, the evening of my brother's death, that his death was due to taking an over-dose of laudanum, intended to produce sleep, and there was no necessity of having an inquest and having his body butchered, and if one medical friend made statements mentioned in Wednesday's Times, I should like to know his reasons for changing his verdict.

Mr. Otto A. Fleissner's KIDNEYS WERE SOAKED WITH CATARRH.

Pe-ru-na Promptly Cured Him.

Mr. Otto A. Fleissner, American Epicurean, late Chef to Col. W. J. Coody, (Buffalo Bill), now chef at the Rainier Grand Hotel, Seattle, Wash., writes:

"I suffered with kidney and bladder trouble until life did not seem worth living. I had tried many medicines, but did not get any relief until I took Peruna. It was really wonderful how much better I was after I had used this medicine only a week. I did not expect that it would help me permanently, but as long as it was doing me good I continued to use it. At the end of six months I found to my relief that it had rid my system of all poisons, and that I was cured to stay cured. You certainly have a splendid medicine and I gladly endorse it."—Otto A. Fleissner.

Catarrh of the Kidneys a Common Disease—Kidney Trouble Often Fails to Be Regarded as Catarrh by Physicians.

Catarrh of the kidneys is very common indeed. It is a pity that this fact is not better known to the physicians as well as to the people.

People have kidney disease. They take some diuretic, hoping to get better. They never once think of catarrh. Kidney disease and catarrh are seldom associated in the minds of the people, and, alas, they are not very often associated in the minds of the physicians. Too few physicians recognize catarrh of the kidneys. They doctor for something else. They try this remedy and that remedy. The trouble may be catarrh all the time. A few bottles of Peruna would cure them.

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS.

Pe-ru-na Removes the Cause of the Kidney Trouble.

Peruna strikes at the very centre of the difficulty by eradicating the catarrh from the kidneys. Catarrh is the cause of kidney difficulty. Remove the cause and you remove the effect. With unerring accuracy Peruna goes right to the spot. The kidneys are soon doing their work with perfect regularity.

Thousands of Testimonials.

Thousands of testimonials from people who have had kidney disease which had gone beyond the control of the physician are received by Dr. Hartman every year, giving Peruna the whole praise for marvelous cures.

AN AMERICAN DISEASE

Indigestion is Responsible for More Sickness in America Than Any Other Disease.

Some doctors go so far as to say that indigestion is the national disease of America. Repeated attacks inflame the lining of the stomach and cause the glands to secrete mucous in stead of the juice of natural digestion. Consequently, the blood is poisoned, nerve force is reduced, the vitality of the entire system is weakened.

There is but one national remedy for indigestion and that remedy is Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are being used by thousands with marvellous success.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills accelerate the action of the gastric glands and give tone to the digestive organs. They strengthen the kidneys and liver, cleanse and purify the blood, and thus add renewed vigor to every organ of the body. Flesh and strength are fast restored and the patient can eat and digest any food he pleases.

Under the vitalizing effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills your system will soon rally; once more you'll enjoy the blessings of health. Test Dr. Hamilton's Pills yourself. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1; at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

A New Year's Dance.

Lakefield News: On New Year's Day Mrs. Dunn gave a large dance at "Harbourne," which had been kindly lent for that purpose by Mrs. Tate. About forty friends availed themselves of the invitation, and enjoyed themselves to the utmost throughout the evening. Nothing had been left undone to insure its success. The spacious rooms were thrown open to the dancers and the stairways, conservatory and hall were most tastefully draped, and afforded many cosy corners for those whose "twinkling feet" had grown weary in the dance. A most sumptuous repast had been provided, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Vast Russian Army Still in the Orient

More Than a Million Men in Manchuria--Work of Siberian Railway--Efficiency of Slav Sanitary Service.

Washington, January 5.—Colonel John Van R. Hoff, of the medical corps of the United States army, has just returned from Manchuria, where he was sent by order of the President to observe the work of the medical department of the Russian army, and is now preparing his report. Colonel Hoff makes some surprising statements. He says that when he left Harbin in October there were altogether 1,052,000 Russian soldiers still in Manchuria and that two full army corps of 40,000 men each were then on their way, making a total of 1,132,000 Russian soldiers in Manchuria, yet there is no evidence that any have been sent home. The popular impression has been that the Russian forces did not exceed half a million all told.

Colonel Hoff also says that the Siberian Railroad is capable of handling twenty trains—that is, ten each way per day—each carrying 1,000 men, so that it will not take so long as many have supposed to evacuate Manchuria. This, however, Colonel Hoff says, is a general statement, and does not mean that 10,000 men are shipped every day, or that they have been or ever will be.

"The Russians carry their soldiers in freight cars," said the colonel, "an average of forty men to a car and from thirty to thirty-five cars in a train." The officers have what we would call ordinary passenger coaches. It usually takes eight weeks for a train of soldiers to make the trip of 5,570 miles from Moscow to Harbin. They carry few supplies. There are many commissary stations en route and the trains make frequent stops for the soldiers to rest and feed and take exercise.

"The manner in which the Siberian Railroad has handled the troops during the war has been very remarkable," continued Colonel Hoff. "When war was precipitated the Russians were absolutely unprepared. They did not expect war. We have the best of authority for believing that there were no more than 60,000 Russian troops in Manchuria, and the only way to get re-enforcement was to bring them across the continent over a single-track road twice as far as from here to San Francisco. Nor was the road completed at Lake Baikal. Everything had to be transferred by ferry, and in winter, when the ice was several feet thick, sledges were used instead. At one time the train crossed over tracks laid on the ice and a large part of the army marched across through the snow. At the border of Manchuria a tunnel had been commenced through the Kinghau range of mountains, but it was not finished, and during the earlier part of the war everything had to be hauled over the pass on almost prohibitive grades. The trains had to be split up, because a locomotive could haul only a few cars. The maximum capacity of the road at that time was nine trains each way a day, 1,000 men to a train. The tracks had a five-foot gauge with sixty-pound rails. In addition to the troops the railway had to haul their equipment, the horses, ordnance, tools for building fortifications and all kinds of military equipment and impedimenta. Fortunately they did not have to transport much food.

"The troops that first came were from Siberia, because they were most available and could be brought in quickest; and they did most of the fighting. The railway was completed as rapidly as possible under the direction of Prince Khilkoff, minister of communication in the Czar's cabinet, who was educated on the Pennsylvania Railroad and is very much appreciative of the opportunities he enjoyed in this country. During this war he has given us the most remarkable exhibition of transportation skill in all history. The problem he had to solve was infinitely more difficult than any that ever came up during our civil war or during any other war. Very few accidents happened. Very few detentions occurred. The entire line was given up to military purposes. All trains ran ten miles an hour on fixed schedules, the only exception being one express train between Moscow and Irkutsk, which ran each way three times a week at the usual speed. Even the mail trains were kept down to the ten-miles-an-hour schedule. Prince Khilkoff adopted the 'slow but sure' policy; he sought safety rather than speed.

"The construction of the tracks around Lake Baikal was a stupendous undertaking and was carried on with the utmost vigor and skill. The lake is the crater of an immense extinct volcano, and the mountains come down sheer to the water. The only way to get around it was to cut a shelf 100 miles long on the edge of the rock, and thirty tunnels were required in that distance, very much like those on the Swiss railroads and on the Corniche Road along the Riviera. The tunnel through the Kinghau Mountains, two miles long, was completed the same time, and a large number of sidings and stations were added to those that already existed. All this time, during all this construction work, you must remember, the mobilization and the forwarding of troops and even the fighting was going on. This movement of troops has been almost continuous since the beginning of the war. The road has scarcely been a day idle. A continuous procession of trains only two or three hours apart has been passing east and west day after day and month after month without cessation, and the manner in which the movement has been conducted is an extraordinary object lesson on transportation.

"How long will it take to send back the million and more men who are now in Manchuria?" I asked.

"There will be no difficulty in sending them all home during the eighteen months allowed by the treaty of peace," replied Colonel Hoff. "That gives the Russians eighteen months from last fall; that is, they will have from until a year from next spring to evacuate, and I suppose they will send the Siberian troops home first. That would be the natural program, although, so far as I am aware, it has not been announced. Those that have seen the longest and hardest service are likely to be sent first.

"The army is in magnificent condition," said Colonel Hoff, "and it is composed of splendid fighting material—typical Russian peasants, illiterate, dull-like, stupid, stolid, enduring, but docile and good-natured. They are easily susceptible to discipline, obedient to their officers and priests, loyal to their religion and to the Czar. They are men of large stature and perfect physical development, good constitutions, accustomed to privation, hardened to fatigue and capable of handling weapons with skill.

"What effect has the war had upon them?"

"They had been transformed from unsophisticated peasants into seasoned soldiers, and are much more intelligent beings than when they were first brought out. They were all conscripts. They were forced into service. They had to go, and they went reluctantly. They had never heard of Manchuria, and did not know anything about Japan. They had no knowledge of the causes of the war, and most of them had never been outside of their native villages, but during the last year and a half they have learned a lot of things, have developed into good soldiers and are very much improved in intelligence by their experience and observation, as well as by drill and discipline."

High Prices of Furs.

The fur hunters of the northern wilds have prosperous times this year. Mink, martan and other furs command higher prices than for the past thirty years, while there has been a slump in foxes. An otter skin is worth $22 as it comes from the trapper's hands. Even weasels, worth nothing a few years ago, now bring $1 each. According to the Duluth Herald, last winter $4.50 was considered a good price for a mink pelt, and it wasn't more than a season or so back that $2.50 was the highest price paid for a single pelt of this kind. Now a choice raw mink fur will bring $11, and a martan pelt from $18 to $20, where $6 or $7 was paid last winter.

GOLDEN SEAL ROOT (Hydrastis), is a famous remedy for dyspepsia, and QUEEN'S ROOT (Stillingia), has a direct action in promoting the renewal of the blood. Both of these are used in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in such a way, by skillful extraction, combination and solution without alcohol, that their best effects are secured.

Many years of actual practice convinced Dr. Pierce of the value of many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense, both in time and in money, to perfect his own peculiar processes for rendering them both efficient and safe for continuous use as tonic and rebuilding agents.

The enormous popularity of "Golden Medical Discovery" is due both to its scientific compounding and to the actual medicinal value of the ingredients. The publication of the names of the ingredients on the wrapper of every bottle hereafter to be sold, gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an "unknown remedy."

The Original LITTLE LIVER PILLS, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. Little pill, Little dose, but give great results in a curative way in all derangements of Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

"Common Sense Medical Adviser" will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

WAS GOVERNMENT TRICKED BY FALSE EVIDENCE?

Attorney-General has Given Instructions to a Solicitor to Proceed Against a Mining Company in Cobalt District.

Toronto, Jan. 8.—Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General said this morning that Mr. Pinkerton, of Messrs. Pinkerton, Clute and Cook, had instructions to issue writs in connection with the Temiskaming and Hudson Bay Mining Company, Limited, which operates in Cobalt district. This, he said, would, in the course of events, involve several quarter sections of land in that district, and other writs might necessarily follow.

"The Government, like any individual," said Mr. Foy, is likely to go to law at any time, particularly when it finds it has been tricked into giving a lease or patent for mining lands on false evidence."

WRITS PREPARED.

Twelve writs have been prepared and according to Mr. Pinkerton, will be issued against the following directors of the company, all of New Liskeard; Jas. E. Whyte, W. Hart Carruthers, Donald Crawford, two, Thos. McKee, John Gariay, Marguerattt, Edgar Asa Hausman, C. A. McCallum M. G. Hensman, John Dunkin, A. A. McKelvie and Henry Thompson.

The writs will be to set aside and cancel certain patents and leases that have been issued by the Ontario Government on the ground that these have been obtained by fraud and misrepresentation, and to have the said patents delivered up, to be cancelled, and for an injunction and a receiver.

The Government will give those who have settled on the claims since the company took them over a chance to prove their discovery of valuable minerals, and if they do this, they will be given a title to the land.

MR. PINKERTON'S EXPLANATION

Mr. Pinkerton, of Pinkerton, Clute & Cook, when seen by a Press representative, and asked for a statement of the case, said:

"The proceedings are being taken on behalf of the Attorney-General to set aside certain leases granted by the Ross Government to the Temiskaming and Hudson Bay Mining Company, Limited, on the ground that these leases were obtained under affidavits filed with the Department before the present Government went into power, and also that these affidavits were not true in point of fact as to actual discovery of valuable ore or mineral in many of the locations on which leases have been obtained.

"When the first discoveries were made in Cobalt, these men lived in the locality and organized a company.

TOOK WHOLE TOWNSHIPS.

"It is alleged that they took whole townships, and had them surveyed into 40-acre parcels, and filed their claims without making any discovery. Then they advertised for prospectors to go in, promising them twenty per cent. of any discoveries they made.

"Besides taking out numerous leases in the name of the company, each of the shareholders took out leases in his own name, and, as appears by the evidence so far obtained, gave a declaration to the company that as shareholders they held these leases in trust for it. This was done to overrule the intention of the mining regulations which limit the claims a mining company can hold.

"By this proceeding, however, they perpetrated a fraud on the Government."

LAKEFIELD'S LOSS

Messrs. White and Company's Saw Mill a Complete Loss by Fire

On Saturday morning the village of Lakefield sustained a severe blow by fire, one of its best industries being a complete wreck.

About 4.30 the fine, and prospering saw mill operated by Messrs. White & Co., was discovered to be on fire, and before the inadequate fire-fighting appliances owned by the village could control the flames, the inflammable structure was entirely wiped out.

The origin of the fire is a mystery but it is supposed to have started from the boiler room, where there had been fire the day before. The mill, which employs about eight hands runs almost the year round, except for a short time in the summer and in mid-winter.

There were enough logs on hand to have kept the mill busy for another week or two.

The loss is estimated at $3,000 with some insurance, but not enough to nearly cover the loss.

The mill has been running about seven years, and was for some years operated by the late Zack White, and, since his death, by the executors of his estate and Captain White.

The mill, which annually turned out several million feet of lumber, will probably be rebuilt.

POPULATION STATISTICS

Peterboro's, Births, Marriages and Deaths for 1905 Lower Than in 1904.

It may interest our readers to see a few figures taken from the statistics compiled by City Clerk Armstrong, showing a comparison of the births, deaths and marriages, as between 1904 and 1905. The figures are as follows:

	1904	1905
Births	353	349
Marriages	190	180
Deaths	247	224

Although the statistics of births shows a decrease for last over the preceding year, it is not a fair estimate of Peterboro's increase in population. Fortunately the matter of population for last year was exceeded many fold by immigration from other places, as compared with former years.

Not Satisfied With the Food

Kingston, January 8.—Thirty prisoners of the penitentiary are in the dungeon as the result of disorder they made during the visit of Inspector Dawson, this week. They gave him an exhibition of their dissatisfaction with the food served them by raising a loud disturbance.

ENGLISH IMMIGRANTS

Several of These on Delayed C.P.R. Steamer Arrive in the City

Last week several English immigrants arrived in the city, who came to Canada on the C.P.R. steamer, recently arrived, which was five days over due, and for whose safety grave fears were entertained.

Those included a man named Robertson, from London, a Mrs. Johnston, and a Mrs. Smith, the latter from Bristol. Mrs. Smith has five children with her, and Saturday evening, with her children, went to Lakefield, witness who drove some twelve miles into the Township of Smith, to meet her husband, for some time employed with a farmer there.

Robertson, who has been employed in a deaf and dumb institution in London, went Saturday to work with Mr. Birdsall, of Scenic Mossgbara.

Those people who arrived here without friends, were taken care of by Mr. Wareham, acting for the local Home of England. This was not only a very charitable and kind act, but one involving considerable trouble, as Robertson had with him his wife and six children, the oldest of whom was only five years old. The large party were provided for by the Queen's Hotel, the proprietor of which took great interest in his guests, assisting them to get to their several destinations.

SWEEPER SCARES HORSE

Michael Burk, Carter Gets Head Split Open

Saturday afternoon, predestrians on George and Hunter streets, had their curiosity aroused by the Dan Spence ambulance speeding at full gallop.

Michael Burke, whose face is familiar to all having occasion to patronize the local carters' stands, that afternoon had a close call from death.

It seems that the horse drawing his cart took fright at the passing street railway sweeper, and suddenly starting forward, jerked Mr. Burke off the cart, he being thrown violently to the ground. Unfortunately a runner of the cart ran over Burke's head inflicting a long and sufficiently serious wound, the scalp being cut open for several inches, along the top of his head. Burke was picked up, bleeding profusely, and carried to Parker's Laundry.

A hurry-up call was telephoned for the Dar Spence ambulance, and Mr. Beliegham, with his usual celerity was quickly on the spot.

Burke was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, and Dr. Bradd attended to him. His wounds whilst very painful, and causing some weakness from loss of blood, will not, it is thought prove serious.

A telephone message from the hospital yesterday noted that Burke was doing as well as could be expected, but complained of a considerable pain in the head. Fortunately the skull was not fractured.

DEPLETION OF THE FORESTS

No Revenues From This Source in Ontario

Toronto, January 8.—In spite of the fact that last year a million and a half of money was added to the revenue of the province from timber sales, which cannot be duplicated this year, as there is no more timber to sell at present, it is not expected that the revenues will differ appreciably from 1905. Some $600,000 on timber sales is still due and the balance will be more than met with increased succession duties and other sources. The estimated revenue is $4,192,000.

Patrick Will Be Electrocuted

Albany, N.Y., January 8.—Gov. Higgins announced yesterday that he would deny the application for the reprieve for Albert T. Patrick, the lawyer who is confined in Sing Sing prison under sentence to die in the week beginning January 22 for the murder of the aged New York millionaire, Wm. Marsh Rice.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Only once case occupied his worship's attention at Saturday's police court. This was the outcome of a feud existing for some months between two young men employed in the livery business. Mr McWilliams appeared for the complainant.

The complainant gave evidence showing how the prisoner had, whilst he was in a certain place looking for fares, came up to him and pushed a conflict. The prisoner's evidence was short and to the point. He said there had been ill-feeling between the two for several months, and that the other fellow "had had it in for him." He went to the complainant and asked if he wanted to fight him. Then when complainant said "go and mind your business," he struck at him.

The magistrate said whilst there had evidently been ill-feeling between the two, that he could not try this part of the case. The prisoner forced a fight, when he had had the court open to get satisfaction. A fine of $10 was imposed, to be paid forthwith. The fine was paid.

After the trial was over, the young man fined intimated that he would get satisfaction from complainant, even if it landed one in jail and himself in jail.

DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION

To Be Held at Peterboro, January 10, 11, and 12, 1906.

It is the duty of every cheese maker, butter maker, manufacturer, salesman, buyer, dealer and exporter to attend their convention and consider the better methods that are proposed to enable them to retain and further develop their business. There is no work upon the farm where people vary so much in results as in dairying, therefore, every farmers should attend and go home with a better class of ideas, and thereby make larger profits. Remember, we lead all countries in this the greatest of all Canadian industries. The exports of our dairy products this past year have been thirty million dollars ($30,000,000). This enormous sum of money has been brought into this Dominion in 1905 in exchange for cheese and butter. Is every person connected with this business doing what they can to further it's interests? We need to get closer together on these matters, and no better way can be devised than to attend the dairymen's convention at Peterboro, January 10, 11 and 12, 1906.

HOCKEY.

The Peterboro Hockey Club will run an excursion to Port Hope tonight, for the intermediate game. No doubt a large crowd will take in the trip as the game will be a good one. Port Hope and Peterboro are old rivals and the locals are going to see that there is something doing, and that the white and blues will do it.

The City League held a very enthusiastic meeting in Mr. F. A. Clarke's store at which there were present; President Clarke, in the chair; Vice President J. Maher; Secretary-Treasurer Maine; Harry Morgan, of the High Lifes; P. Weatherston and C. Wilson, of the Sukeides; H. Edwards, the Bankers; Fred Whitecroft, Peterboro Colts, and A. Dorris, of the T. A.S. There still exists the same old trouble about securing rink accommodation.

As Thursday nights are the only ones available for hockey out of the week an arrangement will try to be made between the City and Guild leagues.

A committee, composed of President Clarke, Secretary-Treasurer Maine, and Messrs. Morgan and Dorris was appointed to wait on the Guild League and endeavor to come to an agreement satisfactory to both teams.

The Peterboro Colts were admitted to the league.

Referee F. C. Waghorn, at Friday night's game spoke in very complimentary terms of our Brock street rink. He referred especially to the splendid state of the ice and the unusually good lighting of this rink. He stated that the ice was the best he had seen this season. He was at a loss to understand how it was that Peterboro could have such good ice, when in Toronto and other places in Ontario it was impossible to play the game for lack of ice.

In reference to the lighting, he said that it was the best lighted rink that he had seen in Ontario.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Galt, Jan. 8.—Ernest Noid, aged 25, employed at the Galt Art Metal Works, was fatally injured by being crushed under a machine yesterday. Noid was placing a brayy die on the drill press together with two other workmen when the press toppled over. The other men got from under the machine, but Noid was caught. The machine weighed sixteen hundred pounds. Noid had the base of his skull fractured. He came to Galt three years ago from near Delhi, where his father is a farmer.

WILL DISARM THE MANCHURIAN ARMY

Russian Hosts Will be Made Harmless

BEFORE REACHING HOME

Russia Dare Not Trust Her Returning Soldiers—Trouble Expected

St. Petersburg, January 8.—Count Witte's published statement that, as the realization of the promised liberties the establishment of civil rule and the removal of the peoples disabilities would be useful to the revolutionists, they will be indefinitely postponed, is thought to indicate that the government believes the liberal movement crushed, and that forming a constitution need no longer be delayed. The policy of repression is being persevered in. The strongest Liberal organ, the Russki Viedemosti, which not even Alexander III. dared to touch, has been suspended.

Lieut.-General Meyendorff, who has been investigating affairs in Moscow, has made a report officially approving the cruelty of Governor General Doubassoffs' actions, in repressing the revolt.

The Manchurian army will be disarmed before reaching the Urals. Count Witte wants the Czar to go to Lividia, but officials sent there to investigate, report that the Crimea is unsafe. Wholesale arrests continue, and martial law is still enforced.

THE CONVENTION

Funds Coming in Well and Convention's Success Assured

As noted in former issues of The Times, a representative of this paper, when the plea asked by the E. O. Dairyman's Association, of the local fairmen, to secure the convention seemed in jeopardy, and that that consequently, Brooklville would get the 800 or 900 dairymen coming here on Wednesday, undertook to raise the money by a special canvas of the hotel keepers. This $100 was subscribed, and on Saturday, the same gentleman went his rounds collecting the funds individually subscribed. All of those hotelmen, found in, when he called, promptly paid in the amounts subscribed, and in all probability every cent of the money will be paid in prior to arrival of the dairymen. Only two hotels in Peterboro, refused to subscribe.

As these funds are collected they are turned over to Mr. J. A. Gillespie, of White & Gillespie, local representative of the dairymen.

Already the hotelmen are preparing to receive their guests.

It is hoped that the large gathering from all parts of the Province will be comfortably provided for.

The convention opens at Ten a.m. Wednesday, in the Grand Opera House, with the president's address, by Mr. D. Derbyshire, M.P.; On Wednesday morning there will also be an address on "Improvement of Dairy Herds," by Mr. Whitely, of the Ottawa Experimental Farm. Committees will also be struck. On Wednesday afternoon, addresses by Messrs. Grisdale, of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, and Glendenning, director E.O.D.A., Manilla, Ont. In the evening with President Derbyshire in the chair, addresses of welcome, will be given by Messrs. Hall, M.P., Bradburn, M.P.P., Mayor Beal, and Warden Buck. Mr. Dargavel, M.P.P., of Elgin, will reply to the addresses of welcome. Addresses will also be given by Mr. Crewsman, president Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Hon. N. Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, and Geo. Putnam, Supt. Farmers' Institute, Toronto. The evening session, to which all, and especially ladies are invited, will be enlivened by several choice musical selections.

JOKE LEADS TO MURDER.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 8.—Ollie Claywell, 14 years old, last night stabbed Carl Owens, aged 13, and is in jail charged with murder. The boys were employed in the Texas Pacific grocery office. Some one pinned a placard on young Claywell's back reading "Kick me." The Owens lad kicked, and a fight started. The boys were separated, but met in the street and the stabbing followed.

TO SEGREGATE SALOONS

Robbin Government Will Keep Them in One Spot in Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Jan. 7.—Hon. R. P. Roblin, in speaking before a Conservative meeting last night, made several important announcements, one of which was the definite declaration that there would be no dissolution of the legislature this year. He also intimated that the representation of Winnipeg, would be increased by providing a new seat in the western part of the city, in which an Conservative candidate would be placed in the field. Another radical move will be a bill to provide for the segregation of the liquor traffic in the center of the city keeping it out of the residental district.

The Premier predicted that the surplus this year would be larger than last. However, he prepared his audience for heavy expenditures in connection with the new agricultural college by assuring them that the buildings alone will cost over half a million.

A convention of Liberals will be held next month to discuss a platform and select a leader.

FLAY GOATS ALIVE

To Save Skin and Avoid Knocking Animals on Head They are Flayed Alive

Calcutta, Jan. 8.—An agitation is going on in favor of having the Government put a stop to the barbarous practice of the sale of skins from goats which have been flayed alive. It is claimed that the practice is one that can easily be stopped, as the skins can be easily identified.

The price of a goat skin in the Calcutta market depends not on its breadth, but on its length, and buyers in the bazaar where goat skins are offered for sale have a stick with notches on it which they place on every skin and classify it accordingly.

To secure the greatest possible length the natives have adopted the inhuman practice of flaying the goat alive, and they are fearful of causing an injury to the skin on the head if the goat is killed by a blow in the head as is the case with other animals. The skin is then drawn right down over the eyes.

DOCTOR EATEN BY CANNIBALS

Steamship Olenda Brings a Horrible Story From Nigeria

Liverpool, Jan. 8.—The steamship Olenda, of the Elder-Dempster Line, brought a horrible story of cannibalism in Nigeria, of which Dr. Stewart, of the Southern Nigerian Government, was the victim. The doctor became separated from an expedition which he was accompanying to the interior and rode into the village of a hostile tribe. Later his carriers made a search and found Dr. Stewart's bicycle and later parts of his body. The investigation which followed showed that the body had been horribly mutilated and there was undoubted evidence that it had been partly eaten.

IS A FREE TRADER

Lord Rothschild is a Cobdenite Yet He Favors Negotiations

London, Jan. 8.—Lord Rothschild, in a speech at Watford, in support of the protectionist candidate, Thomas Frederick Halsey, the sitting member, announced himself as a free trader in favor of the negotiation of tariff treaties with other countries.

His Lordship said he had never hidden the fact that he was a free trader. He objected strongly to the taxation of the food of the people, and could not understand how in the peculiar situation of this island protective tariffs could be built up. At the same time he must also say he was in favor of negotiation, not to use the word retaliation.

They all remembered the advantages of Cobden's treaty with France, and under the two recent treaties which Lord Lansdowne had negotiated with Roumania and Bulgaria, Lancashire goods would now be admitted to those countries at much lower tariffs than hitherto.

DID FRANK WHITE COMMIT SUICIDE?

Frozen Body of Young Englishman Found Near St. John, N. B.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 8.—Frozen stiff the body of a fashionably dressed young Englishman was found in the woods two miles from this city on Thursday. In the overcoat pocket was a ten-ounce bottle, labelled poison, but it is not known whether he drank any of the contents.

In a small memorandum book was found a letter addressed to Frank Pike, No. 66 Kate street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, introducing Frank White.

The body is that of a man about thirty years of age, five feet eight inches in height, weighing in the neighborhood of 180 pounds; complexion fair. In a small memorandum book was a card bearing the name Chas. M. Forshaw, 120 Wymering Mansions, Elgin avenue, west. There were also found a few C.P.R. railway and steamship baggage labels, "SS. Lake Erie, date 14-12-05." There was also an English post card addressed to W. Keatty, 35 Estella Road, Gospel Oak, N.W.

STARVING IN PETERBOROUGH

Men and Women who are in Need—Liberal Offer.

There are scores of people in Peterboro and vicinity who are starving in the midst of plenty. This is not because they are in need of food, but because they cannot digest the food they eat.

To help these unfortunates our leading druggists have recently received a large supply of Mi-o-na, the most recent discovery for the cure of stomach troubles.

Mi-o-na is an unusual combination of remedies for the stomach and digestive organs than heretofore have been little known in this country. It soothes and heals the irritated mucous membrane of the stomach, stimulates the solar plexus, and strengthens the nervous system.

One little tablet out of a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na before meals, and you can eat what you like and when you like. You will have no more head-aches, back-aches, heart-burn, or indigestion. Mi-o-na will give you perfect health and strength.

If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your case from a leading stomach specialist which will be sent free. The R. T. Booth Company, Ithaca, N. Y.

MOROCCAN DIFFICULTY MAY LEAD TO WAR

Situation Now Regarded as Growing Exceedingly Serious.

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE ARE PREPARING

Mobilization of the British Fleet Regarded as Significant—France Also Preparing.

London, January 8.—The fate of the Morocco conference, to be held next month, is largely discounted by the military and naval preparations on foot by the nations chiefly concerned, France and Germany, and incidentally by Great Britain. A short time ago it was announced that the British fleets in the Channel and Mediterranean were put under orders for a combined movement in waters contiguous to Gibraltar. It is known that for some time past the French military establishment has been in a course of vast and far-reaching improvement, so that it is at present on a footing of perfect readiness for action. The German army has not been idle. It is in a state of 'complete preparedness.". No, not complete. It is deficient in the means of land transportation. An order has just been given for 50,000 freight cars, at a cost of $50,000,000. These would be needed for the quick conveyance of troops and munitions in case of trouble.

As the only immediate cause of misunderstanding belongs to the Morocco question, it is supposed that all these preparations point to the probability that the coming conference will fail to settle the points at issue, and leave the case in statu quo, where it was last spring, with France asserting pre-eminence over the whole country, and bent on a policy of peaceful development of the intention and Germany contending for a share of control on behalf of its mercantile interests.

This is the avowed reason of German interference in the affairs of Morocco. The real reason which able political writers have assigned is the attempt to frighten France away from Great Britain by raising the Morocco question, on the pretext that the Government at Berlin had not been properly notified of the understanding arrived at regarding it. As a correspondent points out in a review of the foreign policy of Germany, that country "has always tried to create an effective counterpoise against Britain. Bismarck set France and England against one another over Egypt and encouraged France in her anti-British attitude, and his successors continued Bismarck's policy." The present attempt is parallel with those incidents. The writer goes on to say that Germany's Venezuela policy also aimed at creating a counterpoise, if not an enemy, against Great Britain. When the United States took umbrage at the Anglo-German expedition, Great Britain wished to withdraw, but Germany insisted that the Venezuela business should be carried through, arguing that some show of energy on the part of the strongest naval and of the strongest military power would cause the United States to collapse, and would teach them to be modest for at least thirty years. Happily, British diplomacy did not fall into the trap.

The writer also refers to the attempt of Germany to kill the movement towards imperial unification, when the preference was offered, by "declaring commercial war against Canada." As the penalizing of Canada's exports failed to have the desired effect, further measures to prevent the unification of the Empire were threatened by Germany, and on June, 1903, Lord Lansdowne made the following extraordinary statement in the House of Lords:

"The position between Germany and Canada, with which we were threatened, is not one which His Majesty's Government could regard as other than a serious position. It is not merely that we found that Canada was liable to be made to suffer in consequence of the preferential treatment which the Canadian Government had accorded to us, but it was actually adumbrated in an official document that if other colonies acted in the same manner as Canada, the result might be that we, the Mother Country, would find ourselves deprived of most-favored-nation treatment."

Having failed to alienate the colonies by commercial threats, which were answered on the part of Canada by the surtax on German goods, other causes of antagonism are looked for. And the Morocco question comes up opportunely. France and England arrived at an agreement by which France was to be allowed a policy of pacific penetration into that distracted country, to open it up to civilized commerce. Forthwith the German Emperor sailed in state to Tangier and proceeded to make independent terms with the Sultan, ensuring him a share of influence in its affairs. To settle this question, whether France shall proceed with its policy unhindered, or do so only so far as Germany wills, the conference has been called. As said above, its conclusion is anticipated by the marshalling of battalions and the mobilization of fleets.

GETS GOOD POSITION

Mr. J. B. McWilliams, Now Gen. Man of Ont. Lumber Co.

The many friends, in this city and district, of Mr. J. B. McWilliams, recently Crown Timber Inspector for Ontario, will be pleased to learn that he has secured a responsible and lucrative position.

LESS RED TAPE IN MILITIA DEPT.

Officers May Now Communicate Direct With Ottawa

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—Militia General Orders contain a paragraph making still clearer the relations between the terms "commands" and the smaller "military districts." It is laid down that "correspondence may pass direct from headquarters to officers commanding permanent units and vice versa without passing through the offices of officers commanding commands and districts, respectively, in cases where the question of policy has been already decided, and mere matters of detail which do not affect the military control of the officer commanding the command or the district are alone concerned. For example, the officer commanding a field battery receiving an issue of guns direct from headquarters stores and finding that a fitting, sling as a sight, was not included, may write direct to headquarters to ask when the missing article may be expected. Or again, the district engineer in charge of the repairs of a building may write direct to headquarters to inquire when specifications of bricks were to be used. But in every case the individual writing direct and not through the usual channel will be told responsible that the district officer commanding or the officer commanding the higher command is kept fully acquainted with everything it is desirable he should know.

In addition, certain classes of routine business are specified in which such correspondence may take place.

THE COVENANT KEEPER

Every Promise in the Bond Kept to the Letter.

About coffee the Rev. Frederick Lippe, Presbyterian minister, Hope P. O., Osage Co., Mo., says:

"I most gratefully testify that every promise made in your Postum advertisements has been completely and promptly fulfilled in my case. You can publish this if you wish, and I stand ready to vouch for it at any time.

"After three days' use of Postum I could find no difference as far as taste and flavor went, between it and the old kind of coffee. After two weeks' use I preferred it to coffee.

"After three weeks I lost my nervousness, the insomnia which had troubled me was entirely relieved, and I began to enjoy the best and finest of sleep every night—and that condition still continues.

"After two months' use I got rid of my dyspepsia and piles, and they have not returned to plague me.

"Neither I nor any of my family would today think for a moment of going back to the old kind of coffee. When we entertain we give coffee to our guests, but we drink Postum ourselves, not only for its nutritive properties, but because it has become a truly delicious beverage to us.

"I feel that common gratitude requires this testimony from me."

There's a reason. Read the little book, 'The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

N. B.—Agreeable to promise we state that the hand shown in the magazines belongs to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Post.

How Consumption Starts

Tired When You Waken--Languid All Day—Nerves Worn Out —Snap All Gone

Your limbs feel "draggy" and excessively weak. A night's sleep seldom brings satisfying rest. Continuous headaches, exhaustion and nervous sensations destroy your health. Soon every spark of vitality is used up. Then you catch tuberculosis.

Start to-day. Build up, get new nerve force, and overcome this process of decay. Use Ferrozone, which physicians consider the most vitalizing, uplifting tonic ever made.

Ferrozone cures because it can furnish the body with sufficient nutriment and building material.

Think of the instant effect—at once the appetite increases, delightful color in the cheeks proves that rich, red blood is being circulated. Tired muscles are invigorated, flesh and weight are added. Nerve force develops, and bounding, joyous health is firmly established.

This is certain—Ferrozone restores lasting strength from any cause. The experience of Mr. Thos. Dowd, of Mehreiber, Ont., proves this:

'Household worries and cares had about exhausted my strength. I was weak and miserable. My cheeks lacked the color of health, and occasionally I had spells of rheumatism. Then my appetite fell off, and nothing could tempt me to eat. Worn-out feelings, chills and despondency filled my very being. I became anaemic and dwindled down to a shadow. Consumption was very near. Ferrozone put strength in my body with a rush. It built me up, strong, virile and happy, and I have been well ever since."

Ferrozone cures sickness by curing the real cause—lack of blood and nerve tone. It keeps people at their best—fit, ready and anxious for work. In 50c. boxes only, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY

England has at last taken kindly to the sugar beet, which at Burton-on-Trent has delighted the grower by exhibiting over 16 per cent. of sugar, or 2 per cent. more than the continental beet contains, says a contemporary. For a long time the soil of England has been pronounced favorable for beet culture, but this is the first experiment to prove it.

In Nebraska one of the largest sugar factories in the United States closed lately because the farmers would not raise enough beets to keep it running.

In Michigan the sugar beet has been found the most profitable crop, and the acreage is increasing. One sugar company gives free seed and free freight, and pays a flat rate of $5 per ton.

As beet culture involves a great deal of hard labor, and farmers do not take kindly to it, experiments are now going forward for the development of a single germ seed, which will reduce the process of thinning. The labor question is a severe handicap to beet raising, and any new seed that will save time and exertion will be a welcome relief.

BURNING THE DEAD.

Wesley D. Watson writes to the press on the deplorable neglect of cemeteries in the rural sections of Ontario. The contrast with city cemeteries, he says, fills one with awe and shame, and he recommends that some scheme be devised, of general application to save the rural cemeteries from further demolition, which might be done by local association.

In Germany the case is met to a large extent by cremation, which is growing constantly as a means of disposing of the dead. There are ten cremations in the country, and in the nine months from January 1 to September 30 of 1905 there were 1,333 cremations. The indications are that this method will increase more rapidly in the future. In various cities cremation societies have been formed, and these frequently hold public meetings, with a continual increase of membership.

High Prices of Furs.

The fur hunters of the northern wilds have prosperous times this year. Mink, marten and other furs command higher prices than for the past thirty years, while there has been a slump in foxes. An otter skin is worth $22 as it comes from the trapper's hands. Even weasels, worth nothing a few years ago, now bring $1 each. According to the Duluth Herald, last winter $450 was considered a good price for a mink pelt, and it wasn't more than a season or so back that $3.50 was the highest price paid for a single pelt of this kind. Now a choice raw mink fur will bring $11, and a marten pelt from $15 to $20, where $6 or $7 was paid last winter.

CAVES IN THE SELKIRKS

They are Estimated to Be About 40,000 Years of Age.

Montreal, January 8.—Mr. W. H. Ayres, Mining and Mechanical Engineer, whom the Canadian Government, through the superintendent of the National Park at Banff, requested to make a report on the caves recently discovered by the guide, C. Deutschman, in the Selkirk Mountains, is in the city. His report to the Government was very complete, and included a complete survey and exploration which he forwarded to Ottawa, together with some thirty-four photographs.

The water channel in these caves is, he believes, the largest in the world. The Government may take over these caves for the purpose of establishing a National Park in the Selkirks, and if they do so it is the intention to build a trail to the caves and generate water from Kruger Creek to light the park. These caves were formed by water erosion. Through solid marble substance, and figuring the rate of erosion at one-thirty-second of an inch per year, the caves are figured to be about 40,000 years of age.

LARGE COPPER MINE DEAL.

One of Most Valuable Mines in Ontario Under Option.

Toronto, January 8.—One of the largest mining deals reported in Ontario for some time has just taken place by the transfer of copper property about 80 miles west of Port Arthur. The mine is known as the Tip-Top Copper Mine, and is owned by Col. Ray, of Port Arthur, and Folger Bros., of Kingston. They have sold the dump alone for $38,000, and an option has been given on the mine to an American syndicate for $150,000. The mine is close to Kashaboine, on the Canadian Northern Railway. Outside of Bruce Mines, on Lake Huron, it is the best known copper property in the province. Interest in copper mining has revived a great deal recently on account of the sharp advance in the price of the metal.

Wonderful Indian Runners.

An Indian has been known to carry a letter from Guazapares to Chihuahua and back again in five days, the distance being nearly 800 miles. In some parts where the Tarahumaris serve the Mexicans they are used to run in the wild horses, driving them into the corral. It may take them two or three days to do it, sleeping at night and living on a little pinole. They bring in the horses thoroughly exhausted, while they themselves are still fresh. They will outrun any horse if you give them time enough. They will pursue deer in the snow or with dogs, in the rain, for days and days, until at last the animal is cornered and shot with arrows or falls an easy prey from sheer exhaustion, its hoofs dropping off.

Fools and Wise Men.

If you are dealing with a fool, dictate, but never argue, for you will lose your labor and perhaps your temper; if with a bigot, say nothing or you will certainly lose both. Never dispute with the man who asserts a paradox. If he does not believe it, he is amusing himself with you; if he does, the same distortion of mind will make him incapable of appreciating his own sophistries or your arguments.—O. W. Holmes.

And Wasn't Ashamed.

Mr. Devoe—Why don't you wear that dress to the party?

Mrs. Devoe—I'd be ashamed to be seen in it.

Then she put on a sleeveless affair cut four inches lower in the neck and went.

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

"Blakeley," he cried; "Charley Blakeley, do you mean? Why, I knew him as well as I knew any man! As fine a fellow as ever stepped. We made three voyages to China and back together. I've got a photograph of him in my berth now. Come along and see it."

On this invitation I followed him from my own part of the vessel, down the alley way, past the engine-room, to his quarters, which were situated at the end, and looked over the after spar deck that separated the poop from the hurricane deck. When I had seen the picture I stood at the door talking to him for some minutes, and while thus engaged saw two ladies and a gentleman come out of the saloon and go up the ladder to the deck above our heads. From where I stood I could hear their voices distinctly, and could not help envying them their happiness. How different was it to my miserable lot!

Suddenly there rang out a woman's scream, followed by another, and then a man's voice shouting frantically, "Help, help! Miss Maybourne has fallen overboard."

The words were scarcely out of his mouth before I had left the alley way, crossed the well, and was climbing the ladder that led to the poop. A second or two later I was at the taffrail, had thrown off my coat, mounted the rail, and, catching sight of a figure struggling among the cream of the wake astern, had plunged in after her. The whole thing, from the time the first shriek was uttered until I had risen to the surface, and was blowing the water from my mouth and looking about me for the girl, could not have taken more than twenty seconds, and yet in it I seemed to live a lifetime. Ahead of me the great ship towered up to the heavens; all around me was the black bosom of the ocean, with the stars looking down at it in their winking grandeur.

For some moments after I had come to the surface I could see nothing of the girl I had jumped overboard to rescue. She seemed to have quite disappeared. Then, while on the summit of a wave, I caught a glimpse of her, and, putting forth all my strength, swam towards her. Eternities elapsed before I reached her. When I did I came carefully up alongside, and put my left arm under her shoulders to sustain her. She was quite sensible, and, strangely enough, not in the least frightened.

"Can you swim?" I asked, anxiously, as I began to tread water.

"A little, but not very well," she answered. "I'm afraid I am getting rather tired."

"Lean upon me," I answered. "Try not to be afraid; they will lower a boat in a few moments, and pick us up."

She said no more, but fought hard to keep herself afloat. The weight upon my arm was almost more than I could bear, and I began to fear that if the rescue boat did not soon pick us up they might have their row for nothing. Then my ears caught the chirp of one, and the voice of the second officer encouraging his men in their search for us.

"If you can hold on for another three or four minutes," I said in gasps to my companion, "all will be well."

"I will try," she answered, bravely; "but I fear I shall not be able to. My strength is quite gone."

Her clothes were sodden with water, and added greatly to the weight I had to support. Not once, but half a dozen times, seas, cold as ice, broke over us; and once I was compelled to let go my hold of her. When I rose to the surface again some seconds elapsed before I could find her. She had sunk, and by the time I had dived and got my arm round her again she was quite unconscious. The boat was now about thirty yards distant from us, and already the men in her had sighted us and were pulling with all their strength to our assistance. In another minute or so they would be alongside, but the question was whether I could hold out so long. A minute contained sixty seconds, and each second was an eternity of waiting.

When they were near enough to hear my voice I called to them with all my strength to make haste. I saw the bows of the boat come closer and closer, and could distinctly distinguish the hissing of the water under her bows.

"If you can hold on for a few seconds longer," shouted the officer in command, "we'll get you aboard."

I heard the men on the starboard side throw in their oars. I saw the man in the bows lean forward to catch hold of us, and I remember saying, "Lift the lady; I can hold on," and then the boat seemed to fade away, the icy cold water rose higher and higher, and I felt myself sinking down, down, down, calmly and quietly into the black sea, just fading out of life as happily as a little child falls asleep.

When I came to my senses again I found myself lying in a bunk in a cabin which was certainly not my own. The appointments were decidedly comfortable, if not luxurious; a neat white-and-gold washstand stood against the bulkhead, with a large mirror suspended above it. Under the porthole, which was shaded with a small red curtain, was a cushioned locker, and at one end of this locker a handy contrivance for hanging clothes. Two men—one a young fellow about my own age, and the other the elderly gentleman with whom I had often seen Miss Maybourne walking—were standing beside me watching me eagerly. When they saw that I had recovered consciousness they seemed to consider it a matter for congratulation.

"So you know us again, do you?" said the younger man, whom I now recognized as the ship's doctor. "How do you feel in yourself?"

"Not very bright just at present," I answered truthfully. "But I've no doubt I shall be all right in an hour or two." Then, when a recollection of what had occasioned my illness came over me, I said, "How is Miss Maybourne? I hope they got her on board safely?"

"Thanks to you, my dear sir, they did," said the old gentleman, who I discovered later was her uncle, as I had suspected. "I am glad to be able to tell you that she is now making rapid progress towards recovery. You must get well too, and hear what the entire ship has to say about your bravery."

"I hope they'll say nothing," I answered. "Anybody could have done it. And now, how long have I been lying here?"

"Since they brought you on board last night—about twelve hours. You were unconscious for such a long time that we were beginning to grow uneasy about you. But, thank goodness, our clever doctor here has brought you round at last."

The young medico resolved to stop this flow of flattery and small talk, so he bade me sit up and try to swallow some beef tea he had had prepared for me. With his assistance I raised myself, and when I had polished off as much of the food as I was able to manage, he made me lie down once more and try to get to sleep again. I did exactly as I was ordered, and, in less time than it takes to tell, was in the land of Nod. It was not until I was up and about again that I learnt the history of the rescue. Immediately

Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the teatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Ozarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 24th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our, plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,127.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $500,000.00 on a capital of $1202.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OZARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,500.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Ozarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

RHEUMATISM

Lives in the Blood

Consequently it requires an internal treatment, one that will restore the blood, and thereby relieve the cause of the pain.

After years of experiment Dr. Hamilton succeeded in producing a remedy that quickly cures rheumatism, gout and all uric acid disorders. This marvellous cure has been given to the public as Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills; in every case they cure quickly.

By toning the kidneys and liver, Dr. Hamilton's Pills ensure a clean healthy body. The blood is restored to a normal healthy condition, renewed vigor is imparted to overworked organs, and thus the general health is built up, and no room is left for rheumatism to creep in.

Discouraged sufferer, relief is at hand. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and you will soon shake hands for good with your old enemy. Here is substantial proof:

A Cripple's Story of Pain

"This is a glad day for me," writes Joseph E. Brownell, Irma Mills, Ont. "Before I took Dr. Hamilton's Pills I was a cripple from rheumatism. I have been all through the aching days and sleepless nights, have spent my money on worthless remedies, and consequently in pecuniary difficulties. Dr. Hamilton's Pills—I feel sure of their merit. No remedy gave such relief or did me so much good as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. My rheumatism they cured, and ever since my health has been perfect."

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are to be had in any drug store, it's foolish to live on in misery and ill-health. You ought to get this medicine today and cure yourself. Price 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1 at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. Learmonth Entertains

On Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Learmonth entertained a large number of friends at the Jackson Park toboggan slide and skating rink, which had been reserved for their guests. A very pleasant evening was spent, in which rare appetites were created, and later on appeased by a sumptuous supper provided by the hostess.

This is a new form of entertainment here, and will possibly become fashionable. It is a pleasing relief and change from the hackneyed and everlasting two-step and lancers.

A Prosperous Local Industry

The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company's great plant is now working 15 hours a day, and would run the whole 24 could sufficient men be provided. This company is now shipping mill machinery to every Province of the Dominion, British Columbia being the largest customer. Recently a shipment of roasters was sent to Copper Cliff for the Canadian Copper Company, and a coal mining equipment has been manufactured and shipped to a mine west of Calgary, on the foothills of the Rockies.

Inland Revenue Officers Salaries

From the annual returns made by the Inland Revenue Department, it is gathered that the salaries paid by that Department to Peterboro officers are: W. Redkins, collector, $1,164.96; T. Rork, deputy collector, $878.37; H. Howden, deputy collector, $731.28; J. W. Bickle, deputy collector, $683.16. Under the heading, Gas Inspection Expenditures, T. Rork, inspector, is given a salary of $166.40 per annum. In Peterboro Inland Revenue Division, in the year ended June 30th, 1905, 1,282,412 pounds of malt were used, for which 635,289 gallons of beer were manufactured.

The Bricklayers' and Masons' will hold a banquet and reunion in McCallum's restaurant this evening at 8.30. Owing to Mr. McCallum's proverbial success in catering to entertainments of this kind, it goes without saying that a high class menu will be provided.

A HAPPY RE-UNION

Mrs. Sutcliffe, Welcomes Her Son After 38 Years Separation

On Saturday morning a well dressed gentleman engaged a horse and rig from McCollum Bros. livery barns to drive to Mount Pleasant.

This gentleman, Mr. Herbert Sutcliffe, did not know, until by questions asked at the livery barns, where or in what direction Mount Pleasant lay.

By enquiring, he ascertained where Mrs. Sutcliffe's residence was situated. As soon as the door was opened, in response to his knock, an elderly lady, immediately recognized the caller as her son Herbert, whom she had not seen for 38 years.

It is needless to say that the reunion was a most happy one, and that emotions of keenest pleasure filled the minds of both mother and son.

Although they had been separated for so many years, the mother's love and instinct immediately caused her to know her son.

Mr. Sutcliffe left home when he was twelve years of age, about thirty-eight years ago, and this was his first visit to his home in this long period. He has travelled extensively through the west, both in Canada and the United States, and his friends at home only heard from him at rare intervals.

SATURDAY'S FIRE

Mr. Steel, Concession Street Burnt Out Without any Insurance

On Saturday evening about 6.30 the fire brigade got an alarm, and, with their usual celerity the fire laddies responded promptly, being on the way, with hose and wagon and other appliances, before the alarm bell had ceased its summons.

At full gallop, the sturdy team was annihilating space between the Simcoe street headquarters and Concession street, east side.

The fire proved to be in the upper storey of a rough frame house, occupied by a man named Steele, a laborer, on Concession street. Mr. Steel had just paid a month's rent in advance for the place, and in now that such is the bad, as well as having all his household goods badly scorched, and without, as far as could be ascertained a cent of insurance.

It is now known how the fire originated as Mrs. Steel, as well as her husband, was over in the city doing her Saturday night shopping.

When the Brigade arrived, smoke and flames were discovered pouring from the upper story of the house.

Notwithstanding the inflammable nature of the building, the fire laddies succeeded in quenching the flames quickly, thus saving the lower portion of the building. The fire was confined to the residence, no barn or sheds catching. The first thing Mr Steele knew of his loss was when on his return home Saturday night, he found that he was homeless and his furniture practically destroyed.

MR. A. O. TATE HERE

Former Resident of Peterboro Visits the Place of His Birth

Mr. A. O. Tate, an old Peterboro boy, but at present of Toronto, accompanied by his daughters, Miss Dorothy, and Miss Dora, daughter of the late Judge Dean of Lindsay, was in the city on Saturday, leaving that night for Lindsay.

Mr. Tate has had a very successful career in the electrical business. He was for many years, private secretary, to the "Wizard," Mr. T. O. Edison of Minto Park. Mr. Tate in fact, had a residence for some years in Minto Park. He is about to purchase a fine residence in Toronto, and permanently settle down. Mr. Tate is still engaged in the electrical business, and holds a very responsible position.

His many friends here will now hope to see Mr. Tate oftener in the city.

MRS. WILMOT HONORED

Retiring Leader of St. John's Church Choir Appreciated

Last night a very pleasing event occurred in the vestry of St. John's church, immediately after the evening service was over.

As is known, and with general regret, Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot, who has so successfully filled the responsible position of leader of St. John's choir, and has brought the choir to a high state of perfection, has decided to resign the leadership.

After the evening service was over last night, and the choir had removed their vestments, Mr. H. Morphet, on behalf of the choir members, presented Mrs. Wilmot with a handsome cream of pearls, accompanying the presentation with a suitable address, expressive of the regret felt by all over her retirement.

"Please Smile AND Look Pleasant."

When a woman says "I am racked with pain," the word "racked" recalls the days when they stretched the tender bodies of women on the rack with rope and pulley until the very joints cracked.

Fancy an attendant saying to the tortured woman, "Please smile and look pleasant."

And yet the woman "racked with pain," is expected to smile through her agony and to make home happy. She can't do it. It is against Nature. Generally speaking, the racking pains of ill-health such as headache, backache and "bearing-down pains" are related to derangements or disorders of the organs distinctly feminine. When this condition is removed the general health is restored, and with health comes back the smile of happiness.

Any woman may regain her health at home without offensive questionings or examinations by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Sick women may consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free of charge. Such letters are treated as sacredly confidential.

"It affords me pleasure to relate the wonderful merits of your great medicines, especially your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. J. Wesley Blaine, of Woodbury, N. Jersey. "My wife has been using it for [illegible] and many other complaints peculiar to women. She was very weak, could not do any heavy work or washing but can do all kinds of work now. She is soon to become a mother and we do not fear the result (as we formerly all did) due to your wonder-worker, 'Favorite Prescription.'

"Your 'Pleasant Pellets' are also worth every dollar they price. I have used them for biliousness and stomach trouble, and have found them to be all that you claim. They are my constant companions—once used, always kept."

Given away. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. The book contains 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations and several colored plates. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-bound book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Inaugural Meeting of City Fathers Yesterday--Morning and Evening Sessions--Standing Committees.

MORNING SESSION

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock the new Council met for the first time in the Council Chamber. City Clerk Armstrong read the names of the new Council, who were all present. Mayor Fleet, who, of course, presided, noted that six of the old Council had been re-elected. He referred also to several of the new members who had served in a similar capacity before, including Ald. Elliott, who had had experience with County Council work. The Mayor then adverted to the successful year Peterboro had experienced in 1905. He also referred to the new industries that had located here. Then he said that the acquisition of power by the city was essential to its progress. The city, he said, can acquire all the power between Auburn and the city. Mr. Kendry had spoken to him about this matter. Yesterday he had spoken to Mr. Kendry, who wants to further develop Auburn Mills, and start new branches in that industry. It seemed to him (the Mayor) that it is a good proposition to secure this water-power, i.e., on this side of the river. There is auxillary power not yet developed, which could be used by fixing up the old water-wheels, etc. If the city does not take over this power there are two companies waiting and eager to acquire the water-power. If we take this water-power and take over Dam No. 4 we could offer power at more reasonable terms than any where else in the west. The thing is to get the power. All lands we buy and give away to factories are a direct loss, except the wages paid to employees. In thirty years the money paid for this power would let the city out without a cent of expense to the city, and it would be a big revenue producer. Put in another wheel at Auburn and the present 600 horse-power developed would be increased by 700 more. The dam could be raised a foot or two and thereby increase the number of horse-power developed.

The city had, last year, pushed ahead rapidly pavements and other pubic works.

He did not agree with increasing the rates one or two mills on the dollar; Better to keep it as it is and keep down debenture liabilities. The present debenture liabilities are immense. He would be inclined to keep up the present rate and pay current expenses for bridges, etc., out of current funds.

The paving of George street was now a question to consider, but the present poles on that street were a serious obstacles. It is impossible to make a good paving job with the poles in their present position. This, however, can be taken up later.

This was all he had to say, except that a committee should be appointed to strike the standing committees.

The Clerk then read the returns, showing that the Fire Bylaw had been carried by a majority of 91. Then he read the returns of the election for reductions of licenses, showing that the same was carried by a fair majority.

He then read a communication from Mr. J. H. Burnham, regarding the fyles of Peterboro's newspapers.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey, that a grant of $25 be made to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.—Carried.

Ald. Mason moved the first reading of a bylaw regarding the appointment of Auditors for the City. Moved further, that the Council go into Committee of the Whole for the second reading of the bylaw. Mr. Kelly moved that the Auditors be Messrs. G. E. Martin and Thos. Q. Quartermaine. Mr. Hicks moved that the names of Messrs. Martin and Sheriff Hall be inserted. This was, however, withdrawn by the mover, as Sheriff Hall was disqualified, owing to his position on the Court of Revision. Messrs. Martin and Quartermaine were appointed.

Mr. McWilliams called attention to the fact that the year Ashburnham came into the union with Peterboro, the city departed from its old custom of employing local citizens as auditors by appointing expert accountants from Toronto. These experts had given several recommendations that had since been a dead letter: there were eight or ten faults found by them (the Toronto experts) with the old system of auditing.

Ald. Johnston moved that the Auditors be paid $125 each for their services. Ald. Mason moved in amendment that each Auditor be paid $150 per annum. Ald. Johnston's motion had no seconder. Ald. Mason's amendment carried. Bylaw No. 1194, appointing Auditors for the City of Peterboro was read a third time and carried.

Ald. McWilliams recommended cutting down the number of committees, this to be done by the Council in Committee of the Whole, to decide as to the advisability of cutting down the number of standing committees. And after deciding on the number of committees necessary, that the Council as a whole appoint chairmen of the various committees, and that they (the chairmen) strike the various standing committees: Ald. McWilliams then dropped the last clause of his motion, on objection by several Aldermen.

At this point, as Mayor Best and others found the Council Chamber too cold to continue business therein, the Mayor and Council moved to the Committee room down stairs.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Ald. Adams moved, that Mayor Best be chairman. Ald. McWilliams seconded the motion.—Carried.

Ald. McWilliams said that he favored the number of committees being reduced. He then reviewed the changes he would recommend in the committees as follows:

Manufacturers be given Legal committee work.

Combine the Property committee with the Fire, Water and Light, committee.

Supervision committee no longer existed, as the Police commission had taken out of its hands the most important duty, viz., the police supervision.

He would therefore move that the number of committees be four. The motion carried.

Ald. Johnston, personally, said he was in favor of the reduction of committees.

Ald. Hicks said he agreed with Ald. McWilliams.

FOUR COMMITTEES.

It was moved by Ald. McWilliams and Ald. Elliott, that the four committees be arranged as follows:

1. Board of Works.
2. Manufacturers, railways, legislation and franchises.
3. Finance, reception, licenses and printing.
4. Fire, water and light, property, buildings, market and health.

The motion was carried.

CHAIRMEN APPOINTED.

The committee then selected the chairmen of the four committes, as follows:

Board of Works—Ald. Hicks.

Fire, Water and Light, and Property—Ald. Adams.

Manufacturers and Legal—Ald. McWilliams.

Finance—Ald. Mason.

Ald. Adams thanked the Council for the honor of being made chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee.

Ald. Johnston expressed himself as being displeased with the action of the council. He said that owing to his interest in placing the bylaw before the people he thought he was entitled to the position of chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Ald. Hicks, Mason and McWilliams all thanked the council for the honor of being elected as chairmen of the different committees.

THE COMMITTEES.

Ald. Elliott and Ald Duncan moved that there be seven members on the Board of Works and Fire, Water, and Light Committees and six on the other two, in addition to the Mayor—Carried.

For more than an hour the Committee of the Whole Council endeavored to fill in the members for the standing committees, but with no success. Finally it was decided to appoint a sub-committee composed of the chairman of the four standing committees, to complete the task. The meeting was then adjourned and the sub-committee met at 2.30 in the afternoon, and reported to the Committee of the Whole Council last night at 7.30 as given below.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The City Fathers met in Committee of the Whole at 7.40. There were present: Mayor Henry Best and Aldermen: Johnston, Tovey, Thos. Kelly, McIntyre, J. G. Graham, R. F. McWilliams, Geo. Duncan, Geo. Elliott, Geo. Hall, and E. F. Mason.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Ald. R. F. McWilliams submitted a report of the sub-committee, naming the personnel of the different committees as follows.

Gentlemen.—Your Committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the number of standing committees be reduced to four, as follows:—Board of Works; Manufacturers, to include Legislation, Railway and Franchises; Finance, to include Reception, License and Printing; and Fire, Water and Light, to include Property, Building, Market and Health.

2. That the standing committees be composed as follows:

Board of Works—Ald. Hicks, chairman, Adams, McIntyre, Tovey, Kelly, Graham and Johnston.

Fire, Water and Light—Ald. Adams, chairman, Mason, Johnston, Graham, Duncan, Hall and Elliott.

Manufacturers — Ald. McWilliams, chairman; Hicks, McIntyre, Tovey, Adams and Duncan.

Finance—Ald. Mason, chairman; McWilliams, Hicks, Kelly, Elliott and Hall.

The first named on each committee to be chairman.

This report was subsequently adopted in Council as read.

THE MAYOR'S GRANT.

Ald. Hicks moved, seconded by Ald. Adams.—That the usual grant of $400 be allowed his Worship for expenses contingent with his office.

Ald. Adams suggested that the grant be paid in quarterly payments.

Ald. Hicks thought such a course would create the appearance of a salary being paid his Worship, which is not the case.

The majority of the aldermen were in favor of a salary being paid the Mayor commensurate with the labor and expenses attached to his office; but no action was taken in this direction.

The motion was then carried as first worded.

EVENING SESSION

The Council met in their first regular monthly evening session at eight o'clock, all the aldermen present.

WILL GO TO CHURCH.

The City Fathers accepted an invitation from the Ministerial Association to attend a special service in the George street Methodist church, Sunday evening. Sermon to be preached by Rev. Dr. Crothers.

RULES OF ORDER.

A bylaw to amend the standing rules of order of the City Council passed its several readings. The purport of this measure was to change and reduce the number of the standing committees as arranged at the morning session.

TAXES COLLECTED.

Tax Collector W. J. Green submitted the following statement:

Total amount of rate for 1905	$114,611.66
By total amount deposited in bank	106,146.04
Balance	$8,465.62
Taxes collected during month of December, and deposited in bank	$1,007.02

CLOSING OF STORES.

A bylaw to permit dealers in boots and shoes to keep open their stores four nights before Christmas, as well as evenings before holidays and Saturdays, passed its several readings.

A bylaw to regulate the closing of stores of dealers in boots and shoes, passed its several readings. This provides that all such stores shall close at seven each evening, except Saturdays, nights before holidays and four nights before Christmas. Any dealer violating this law will be subject to a fine not exceeding $50 and costs.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A bylaw to appoint members of the Board of Health passed its several readings.

Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. Graham,—That Robert Neill and Alfred Parker, the retiring members be reappointed—Carried.

$25,000 FOR FIRE HALL, ETC.

The bylaw to provide for borrowing $25,000 for land, new fire hall, steam and chemical engines, and other improved fire equipment, passed its final reading.

Ald. Kelly was assured that $25,000 will cover the whole cost of the provisions of the bylaw.

Ald. Kelly was anxious about this fact, as he did not believe in the Council having to raise money two or three times for a given purpose, the cost of which apparently had been definitely arrived at before submitting the question to the people.

His Worship and Ald. Hicks were both certain such would not be the Council's experience in this case.

SURPLUS OF $4,441.62.

Finance Minister Ald. Mason at this juncture submitted his financial statement, which showed a surplus of $4,441.62. This he thought should be highly gratifying to both Council and the public in general, especially when it is taken into consideration that last year the rate was reduced half a mill. It must also be borne in mind that one or two committees overdrew their appropriations owing to unexpected contingencies arising, had this not occurred the surplus would undoubtedly have been in the neighborhood of $7,000.

The Council concurred in the views of Ald. Mason and the chairmen of the committees which had overdrawn their account, congratulated themselves at having escaped the censure which assuredly would have fallen upon their devoted heads had the statement shown a deficit instead of a surplus.

The School Board asked for an advance of $3,500 on account of demand for 1906. The treasurer was authorized to pay this on the 15th inst.

EVANGELIST MEETINGS

Excursion Fare to Run to Toronto to Hear Torrey-Alexander Meetings

Perhaps the largest evangelistic meetings ever held in Toronto are those now in progress at Massey Hall. A Toronto contemporary says that although the doors were closed ten minutes before the advertised time of the meetings, hundreds were turned away, unable to be accommodated with even standing room.

Next week there will be excursions from Peterboro and Lindsay, and other towns, and there will be sections reserved for them on the day that is fixed. It is expected that before the mission is over there will be excursions run from all parts of Ontario. Already there have been hundred of visitors from outside the city at the meetings.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS LIKE WILD BEASTS

They are Mutilating the Dead to Terrify the Living Say the Refugees

ANARCHY PREVAILS

On Line of Siberian Railway—Even the Station Officials Have to Flee for Their Lives

St. Petersburg, January 9.—The state of affairs on the Siberian Railway is chaotic. Station officials are flying to the forests when military trains approach. Reservists and the younger soldiers are behaving like wild beats, even assaulting sisters of mercy. Trains are held up for days in one place, adding to the fury of the soldiers who are already half crazed from cold and hunger. Telegraphic communication has been interrupted and the Caucasus is still cut off. It is rumored that terrible events are occurring there. Absolute anarchy prevails. Revolutionists have destroyed every vestige of property in some places and neither sex or condition is respected. Wealthy people, property owners and manufacturers are principal sufferers.

MUTILATED THE DEAD.

New York, January 9.—Reports of how the dead were mutilated to terrify the living, in Russia, were brought here yesterday by Russian refugees, 700 of whom arrived on the steamer Pennsylvania.

One woman told of having seen a young woman kill her child sooner than let the Cossacks muder the infant.

Another refugee related how in the town of Nova Moscov, five drunken soldiers marched through the streets carrying arms, a dead baby, with a bayonet run through its body being displayed at the end of each gun.

Leiver Landomaski said that it was a common thing to see men strung up feet first, and lying dead along the route of the railway. He left his wife and their child in Russia, and came here toestablish a home for them.

Hirsch Luzzomiski, with his wife and two children, was another refugee. He is a lumber merchant at Lenkowski. He said

"I saw a Russian town attacked on December 18, and three hundred Jews were put to death. The women were thrown out of the windows and the men were beaten over the head by rifle butts, and bayonets were run through the bodies of children."

Wolf Sobab, from Crinsleff, near Odessa, said:

"I saw the body or a Russian boy of about eleven years of age lying dead in the road, and on his breast was a label which read: 'This is the way to killthem off young.'

"In the streets I saw two and three year old children torn limb from limb by the insane Russians, who were inspired to the deeds by the police themselves, who thus hoped to take the minds of the Russian populace from the real resolution that is spreading throughout the Empire. I saw one young women slashed open from her throat to her abdomen."

YOUNG CARR FOUND

A Local Deaf-Mute at Sacred Heart Orphanage, Toronto

It will be remembered that, some days ago, a deaf-mute named Alex. Carr, disappeared from this city.

Mr. W O'Rourke, of Peterboro, has received a letter from the Sacred Heart Orphanage, Toronto, in reference to him, which says; Carr is now at the Sacred Heart Orphanage, in Toronto, where he arrived a few days ago in a wretchedly ill-looking condition. He walked all the way from Peterboro to Toronto and information received by Mr. O'Rourke from the orphanage says; "It is a blessing the weather was so mild as he would have been frozen to death owing to insufficiency of warm clothing."

$108 FOR DEEP SEA MISSION

The At Home, Held in Oriental Hotel Nets a Good Profit

As noted in a former issue of The Times, Miss Bent Graham, of the Oriental kindly placed his hotel at the disposal of the Deep Sea Mission advocates, for their "at home."

The committee of management beg to heartily thank all who sent subscriptions, and those who contributed to the supper; also Mr. Graham, who charged nothing for the use of his hotel, and the Peterboro music store, who kindly loaned the piano for the occasion.

Wreath for Dead Minister

Ottawa, January 8.—The wreath which the Cabinet Ministers will lay upon the casket of their late colleague, Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, will be a floral fac simile of the marine badge of Canada, which represents an anchor encircled by maple leaves, and surmounted by a crown with the word "Canada." The wreat will be made in Montreal.

Want Seven Hours

New York, January 8.— Information was received at the office of the Typothetae this morning from San Francisco that the Typographical Union in that city has laid out a campaign for a flat forty hours' week beginning with January 1, 1907—five days of eight hours each week.

Boom at Local Business College

Over 40 new pupils have signed the Peterboro Business College entry books since Jan. 1st. This makes the total attendance over 100. Two of the pupils are from Idaho and a young lady from Okotoka, Alberta, will enroll shortly. Mr. Pringle recently received a letter from H. Johnson of Hull, England, asking for information about the Peterboro Business College, as his progeny having the sea, who is now in Canada, take a course in the same. A large number of the pupils who are taking the three months' course which opened the first of the year, are farmers' sons. This shows great enterprise and means that our sturdy tillers of the soil have up-to-date methods.

A SAD DEATH

Only Child of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fowler Taken off by Croup

It was with deep feelings of regret that the many friends of Mr. and Mrs E. B. Fowler, yesterday afternoon heard of the death, yesterday at noon, of their only child, Donald Bruce Fowler.

The little one who died of inflammatory croup, was under four years of age, and was only taken sick on Sunday.

The funeral will take place from the family residence at 2.30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. J. G. Potter of St. Andrew's church, will conduct the services at the house and grave.

Greatest Famine

Victoria, B.C., January 9.—Thousands are starving in North Japan on account of the famine there, according to advices received here today by the steamer Empress of Japan. A Government report says Miyaga, Fukushima and Iwate Provinces, with a population of 3,821,867, are confronted by the worst famine since the deadly one of 60 years ago. So great is the calamity in Miyaga that famine investigators report that "the sentence of death has been passed on one-third of the people of the province." Committees of foreign residents have been formed to arrange systematic relief.

Trespassers on the Toboggan Slide

On Sunday afternoon or evening some parties took advantage of no watchman being about to slide on the Jackson Park toboggan slide. Not content with trespassing on the slide these "French Leave" patrons of the slide, managed to injure the snow embankments at each side of the slide. From this time forward Mr. Larmouth, manager of the Peterboro Radial Railway Co., will have a man engaged to watch the slide and link all the time. Any one caught trespassing will at once be arrested and given the full limit of the law.

A LABORER'S MEALS

Are All Right for Him, but Bad for the Professional Man

A professional man writes from Chicago:

"The food question has been an all important one to me.

"Up to a year and a half ago I had been a victim of stomach trouble and a most constant constipation, for at least six years.

"I ate a laborer's meals and did almost no manual work at all. I was fond of fried foods, meats, fresh bread, hot biscuits, etc. Consequences—many trips to the doctor, disagreeable nauseous medicines, and no relief.

"About a year and a half ago I began to use Grape-Nuts food, living on it almost entirely. Friends wondered how I could, and wonder yet how I can, make a few spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts take the place of the heavy meat courses in which I used to indulge. But wisdom is justified of her children. I have found in Grape-Nuts a perfect food.

"I have never grown tired of it yet, and I certainly have given it a good trial. And my constipation with its attendant ills has disappeared. My stomach has toned up so that I can eat almost anything, even at night, and have no trouble whatever with my digestion.

"Before I began eating Grape-Nuts food I used to find it difficult to concentrate my thoughts on my work or ward off restlessness after meals. Now the reverse is true and I can settle down to brain work and complete my task in a workmanlike manner without becoming nervous or fagged out.

"These facts, as well as the circumstances that I never tire of Grape-Nuts food prove that 'there is something in it.' It is, to me, a breakfast food that is all of that and not a mere accessory." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

When the estimates were offered to the Board for consideration, Mr. Dumble called attention to the fact that the Board had received $600 in fire insurance which was apparently not included in the estimates, saying there would not be a fire every year.

He then took up some time in insisting that an expenditure of $500, not always according to his satisfaction in the accounts, should be shown clearly. After some discussion, Mr. Crane said if the accounts were going to be audited that evening the Board had better adjourn.

Moved by Mr. Fair, that the estimates be adopted and passed.—Carried.

The Collegiate Institute attendance for Dec was 217, making a percentage of 97, per cent.

A telegram received from Miss Marion R. Rannie was read, in which sender accepted position on the teaching staff, and would be on hand on Jan. 3rd.

A letter was received from Mr. R. M. Dennistoun saying that the Board was authorized to appoint a trust officer.

Mr. Pringle gave notice of motion that Mr. R. M. Dennistoun's services be retained, as solicitor at $100 per annum, payable half yearly.

Mr. Morrison said it was now up to the Board to take up the question of erecting a Collegiate Institute or other school accommodations. Mr. Crane, said he had intended to speak on this subject. Some steps might be taken to retain the old building. Mr. Walker had told him the school rooms were too crowded. Mr. Crane moved that the Property Committee be instructed to take such steps as to acquire the lots north of Murray street, instead of those south of Malone St. so as to save the Separate school building.

Mr. Fair said he understood the military authorities had told the committee appointed to meet them, that they the military authorities had decided to retain the northern lots.

Mr. Dumble said the local military officers here had no authority to act in such matters. When the committee went to Ottawa, they proposed to the Government to give them the south lots. Does not know whether this Government has any claims in the lots If a committee, as before, went to Hon. Mr. Borden and took a plan of the land, he thought the minister would be reasonable, and give the Board what lots they want.

Thinks if the Board approaches the Government in a business spirit they could save the building. The minister would not be bound by any deed to allow children to use the grounds.

Mr. Morrison said the subject of building the Collegiate Institute was just as important as acquiring the Separate school building. By erecting a Collegiate Institute it would relieve the congested state of the public schools. After some more desultory talk, the meeting adjourned, after carrying Mr. Crane's motion.

PETERBORO VICTORS

In the Hockey Match With Port Hope—Score 8-4

Peterboro won from Port Hope last night, in the intermediate hockey match by a score of 8—4. The game was a good exhibition of hockey and was played on Port Hope ice in the presence of a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators. About 75 Peterboronians took advantage of the special train secured by the local team for this occasion. When Port Hope play here on Friday, a crowded rink will be present to see Peterboro repeat the dose.

ENGLISH ELECTIONS

The King on His Return to London Dissolves Parliament

London, Jan. 9.—King Edward, who had been absent in the country since Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's Cabinet was formed, returned to London yesterday afternoon and held a meeting of the Privy Council at which the Proclamation dissolving Parliament was signed.

Immediately afterwards writs were sent to the returning officers for the election of the members of the new Parliament which, by law, assembles within 28 days.

ARE NOT ENGAGED!

Kingston, Jan. 8.—The New York Journal created a story of the engagement of Miss Fitzhugh, an actress, and Dr. Jack Hart, son of W. Harty, M.P., of this city, and the article has been published in Canadian papers. It is understood that Fitzhugh has denied the yarn. The parties are good friends. Mr. Harty's friends regret the unfortunate publication of the story.

The Scourge of Consumption

Thousands Are Dying—If Tired Languid or Run Down Get Protection Before Too Late

No child, man or woman is safe from consumption unless their blood is pure, rich and nourishing.

Allow the blood to become thin, and immediately the whole system grows weak. The lungs are deprived of resisting power and the ever-present tubercular bacilli develops.

The most positive protection against consumption is Ferrozone, which restores the blood to full strength. Weak organs are instantly strengthened. Worn-out tissues are rebuilt. New life is given to the lungs and all danger of consumption is destroyed.

Mrs. E. J. Richardson, Manotick, Ont., tells as follows of her enormous gain in health from Ferrozone: "For two years I was not well. I was thin and anaemic. Towards spring I fell into a condition of nervous exhaustion. A dead tiredness hung over me like a load of [illegible] ily couldn't do. A bad cough developed that worked me greatly for I thought it might be tubercular. When I first read of Ferrozone I was convinced it was good. I took it regularly for eight weeks and the change in my condition was wonderful. My cheeks filled out and became clear and rosy. I gained eight pounds and now am strong and vigorous as possible."

Ferrozone feeds, nourishes and tones up the body—it sends the thrill and vim of robust health from head to foot—makes you feel better at once. Won't you use Ferrozone? Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

WHAT IS SOCIALISM?

To begin with, it is an exceedingly dangerous idea which has taken deep root in the minds of many well-meaning persons as well as in the designs of the purposely dangerous classes intent on the destruction of human society. With these it is closely related to anarchy. A strange dream, in which the degenerates of the human race actually indulge because they know it means ruin to all humanity. It is safe to ignore this phase of the disease with a wide open eye on the fellow of brutal and criminal instincts who indulges in this wild dream.

Socialism has as many shades as a chameleon, between this anarchistic phase and the phase which prevails so much in Germany, where many call themselves Socialists who have no definite idea of what they stand for.

They merely know that they stand against the present order of things. They want a change and any change would be received by them for the possibility it might hold out to them of better conditions in life. It is not wonderful that such ideas should take deep root there. Conditions are hard. No one can point out the road to relief. It is simply a problem of circumstances. Society might and does give relief in specific instances, but to find a permanent remedy no one yet has been wise enough.

But there is a clear-cut idea of Socialism in the world. It is not grasped by the poor, half educated peasants of Europe, nor is it by many bright men in America who have taken up the profession of proclaiming themselves Socialists as a mere fad, for what purpose the All-knowing Lord may see, but which is a dark mystery to the human understanding.

It is a good way to gain an idea of a proposition by placing it along side of its antithesis. Socialism is the antithesis of the social system under which the present civilization of the human race has been wrought out and all the progress of the ages accomplished. Every achievement of science, art, and industry which we enjoy has been gained, every victory over the brute passions of man, over tyrants of the older world, and over the cruel forces of nature, has been won by the present order of things. Socialism is the direct antithesis of all this.

To get it down to two words, in which small compass all may see this antithesis, the present order of things is Individualism; Socialism is Collectivism. As most thoroughly wrought out by the real leaders of Socialism it is Collectivism, under State control. There are vague dreamers who see in their "prophetic soul," a state of things in which there will not even be a State. In the broad brotherhood of man no one member of the family will do any injury to the other. Taxes and officials will be done away with. That is the millennium of the man who looked down the ages from the rock on the island of Patmos. That also may be dismissed until it arrives.

The State-Socialists would put all industries and all their products in the hands of the State. Humanity would be a vast army, organised and set to work in any way the executive should order. There would be laws, of course, thoroughly wrought out, specific and minute, governing every act of life, including amusements. These laws would be necessarily sumptuary so as to practically dictate to each person in the State what he shall eat and how he shall dress. The sand upon the ocean beach stays the progress of the wave. How much does each grain count for in itself? So much, no more, would each unit in this vast industrial army count for. Each cog in each wheel of a watch counts in keeping the time. How much does the cog count for in itself? Just as much as Bismarck, or Gladstone, or Roosevelt would count for in the society organized under Socialism. The individual is nothing. The collective state is everything.

If men were gods it would work. If human nature were devoid of selfishness and ignorance, and weak-minded men and shortsighted men, and all cussedness, the system would work. Then the most capable in the land would rule. Then each unit would fit into its place and render its best service to the race. The master mind fits the watch together and each cog does its part. It has no volition, and can't move excepting as the mainspring gives it power. But the really well-disposed person of even average intelligence who will sit down with unbiased mind and think seriously for half an hour of the narrow limitations of the average man's foresight and wisdom, and of the almost unlimited extent of the average man's self-conceit and selfishness, will soon come to the conclusion that in the purely socialistic state, the injustice that would reign under the tyranny of the selfish majority when the minority had no rights, and the individual had practically no existence, would become unbearable.

And if it did work? It would degrade human nature. Society would be a huge machine. There would be no personal initiative. All the ambitions of life would perish. All the joys and sorrows of life would have to be enjoyed and suffered by statute law. To the man who thinks profoundly on the subject it must be evident that, working in its perfection, the system would barely preserve the present status of our progress, but never go a foot forward.

The Socialistic ideal will never be brought to pass. It is simply a rallying point around which the discontented and evil-disposed elements of society gather. It would not be particularly dangerous but for the evil-disposed, generally shallow-minded, always short-sighted people, who out of vanity or some equally small motive make a fad of it, and play at being Socialists, and the political self-seeker who mounts the hobby knowing exactly what it is, and rides into an office on this false pretence which he can get no other way.

HAD BLOOD POISON 12 YEARS

The New Method Treatment Cured Him after Drugs, Mercury, Hot Springs, &c., all failed.

Before Treatment

Wm. H. Patterson, of Saginaw, Mich., relates his experience. "I do not like notoriety and especially of this kind, but I feel I owe this much to Drs. K. & K. for the great good they have done me. I had a revolting disease when 24 years of age. The skin and blood symptoms gradually developed, pimples and ulcers formed, running sores broke out, hair became loose, pains in the bones and joints, dyspeptic stomach, foul breath, leaky skin, etc. It is needless for me to say I tried doctors. I grew to hate the looks of one. I visited Hot Springs twice for four months each time. It helped me temporarily, but in six months the old symptoms returned. I then decided to try Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. He said he had known of them for over 30 years, and as they made a specialty of these diseases and treated the worst cases by the hundred they ought to be expert in curing them. I was afraid of advertising doctors, but I took his advice. They agreed to treat me under a guarantee or no pay. I investigated their financial standing and found they were perfectly responsible, so I commenced the new Method Treatment. The eruptions disappeared in [illegible] the loose pains in four weeks and in four months I was entirely cured. Yes, sir, I can recommend the New Method Treatment for Blood and Skin Diseases."

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

Miss Maybourne's action had roused the ship, and I had sprung overboard to her assistance, the chief officer, who was on the bridge, ran to the engine-room telegraph and gave the signal to stop the vessel; the second officer by this time, with commendable activity, had accompanied the carpenter, who among others had heard the alarm, to one of the quarter boats, and had her ready for lowering by the time a crew was collected. At first they had some difficulty in discovering us, but once they did so they lost no time in picking us up. Miss Maybourne was quite unconscious when they took her from my arms, and I believe as soon as I felt myself relieved of her weight I too lost my senses and began to sink. A boat-hook, however, soon brought me to the surface. Directly we reached the ship's deck the captain gave orders that I should be conveyed to an empty cabin at the end of the saloon, and it was here that I found myself when I returned to consciousness. For what length of time I slept after the doctor and Miss Maybourne's uncle left the cabin I cannot say. I only know that when I woke the former would not hear of my getting up as I desired to do, but bade me make the best of a bad job and remain where I was until he examined me the following morning. It must have been after breakfast that he came to see me, for I heard the bell go, and half an hour later the voices of the passengers die away as they left the table and went on deck.

"Good morning, Mr. Wrexford," he said, as he shut the door behind him and came over to the bunk. "How are you feeling to-day? Pretty well, I hope?"

"I feel quite myself again," I answered. "I want to get up. This lying in bed is dreary work."

"I daresay you find it so. Anyway, I'll not stop you from getting up now if you're no minded; that is provided you eat a good breakfast first."

"I think I can meet you on that ground," I said with a laugh. "I'm as hungry as a hunter. I hope they're going to give me something pretty soon."

"I can satisfy you up on that point," he replied. "I saw the steward propelling the tray as I came through the saloon. Yes, you must hurry up and get on deck, for the ladies are dying to shake you by the hand. I suppose you're not aware you are the hero of the hour?"

"I'm sorry to hear it," I said in all sincerity. "There has been a terrible lot of fuss made over a very simple action."

"Nonsense, my dear fellow, there hasn't been anything said yet. You wait till old Manstone gets hold of you. He would have said his say yesterday but for my preventing him, and ever since then he has been betting it up for you when you're well enough to receive it."

"Who is this Mr. Manstone of whom you speak? I don't think I know him."

"Why you must remember, he's Miss Maybourne's uncle—the old [illegible] who was in here with me yesterday when you came to your senses again. You must have seen him walking with her on deck—a fine military-looking old chap, with a big grey moustache."

"Now that you describe him, I remember him perfectly," I said; "but I had never heard his name before. I wish you'd tell him from me that I don't want anything more said about the matter. If they want to reward me, let them do it by forgetting all about it. They couldn't do anything that would please me more."

"Why, what a modest chap you are, to be sure," said the doctor. "Most men would want the Royal Humane Society's medal, and some would even aspire to purses of sovereigns."

"Very probably. But down on my luck, as I am, I don't want either. The less notoriety I derive, the happier man I shall be. To change the subject, I hope Miss Maybourne is better?"

"Oh, she's almost [illegible] again now. I expect to have her up and about again to-day. Surely you will not mind receiving her thanks?"

"I should not be so churlish, I hope," I remarked; "but all the same, I would rather she said nothing about the matter. That is the worst part of doing anything a little out of the ordinary; one must always be thanked, and praised, and made a fuss of till one begins to regret ever having committed an action that could produce such disastrous results."

"Come, come, you're looking at the matter in a very dismal light, I must say," he cried. "Nine out of every ten men, I'm certain, would have given their ears for the chance you had of rescuing Agnes Maybourne. That it should have come to a man who can't appreciate his good fortune seems like the irony of Fate."

I was about to reply to his jesting speech in a similar strain when there was a tap at the door, and a steward entered bearing a tray. The smell of the food was as good as a tonic to me, and when the doctor had propped me up so that I could get at it in comfort, I set to work. He then left me to myself while he went to see his other patient—the lady of whom we had just been speaking—promising to return in a quarter of an hour to help me dress.

I had just finished my meal, and was placing the tray upon the floor in such a way that the things upon it could not be spilt if the vessel should roll, when there came another tap at the door, and in response to my cry "come in," the captain of the ship appeared, and behind him the elderly gentleman whom the doctor had described to me as Miss Maybourne's uncle, under whose care she was traveling to South Africa.

"Good morning, Mr. Wrexford," said the captain, politely, as he advanced towards me and held out his hand. "I hope you are feeling better?"

"I am perfectly well again now, thank you," I replied. "The doctor is going to let me get up in a few minutes, and then I shall be ready to return to my old quarters forward."

"And that is the very matter I have come in to see you about, said the skipper. "First, however, I must tell what the entire ship's company, both [illegible] bravery the night before last. It was as gobly done, sir, as anything I have ever seen, and I heartily congratulate you upon it."

"Thank you very much," I answered; "but I must really ask you to say no more about it. I have already been thanked [illegible] so much more than I deserve."

"That could not be," impressively broke in Mr. Manstone, who had not spoken hitherto. "On my own behalf and that of my niece I, too, thank you most heartily; and you may rest assured I shall take care that a full and proper account of it is given my brother when I reach South Africa."

"Until we do so, I hope, Mr. Wrexford," said the skipper, "that you will take up your quarters in this cabin, and consider yourself a saloon passenger. I'm sure the owners would wish it, and for my part I shall be proud to have you among us."

"And I say 'Hear, hear!' to that," added Mr. Manstone.

For a moment I hardly knew what to say, I was touched by his kindness in making the offer, but in my posi-

The Drummer Boy Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1900.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $120,000.00 net, and has one mile of development, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,127.50 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $27.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

Coroner's Jury Again Adjourned

Last night in the police court the coroner's jury investigating the death of the late Mr. Towns heard Dr. Carmichael's and Dr. [illegible]'s report on the body of the deceased. Their evidence shows that no wounds possible to induce them to exist. This does away with the absurd rumors that the deceased met with foul play at Hogan's hotel. The jury adjourned for one week when they will meet again in the same place and finally decide upon the case of the late Mr. Towns' death.

Kinmount Awakes

Minden Echo says in part: The village of Kinmount has taken a very important progressive step in organizing itself into a police village, thus giving itself complete control of its own taxes and also its streets and sidewalks. The local governing power is entrusted to a board of three commissioners, composed of Messrs. A. Y. Hopkins, Jas. R. Mark and Chas. Wellstood, all prominent citizens and capable business men. It has been frequently suggested to make a similar move in Minden.

An Enjoyable Banquet at McCallum's Dining Parlors—A Pleasing Function

Last night two long tables, filled with members of the Bricklayers and Masons' local union, and their invited guests, filled comfortably, the large back apartment of Mr. McCallum's fine George street restaurant.

A most sumptuous repast was served in tempting style by mine host, and full justice was done to the excellent menu provided.

After the recherche repast had concluded and the ice cream well concealed beneath some forty waistcoats, good live afterches, and witty remarks were in order.

Rev. Canon Davidson addressed a very large meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday afternoon. His New year's address was listened to with great interest by all present. He urged men to choose the higher instead of the lower in all things applying it to the practical side of life and to our relationship to God Himself. The Y. Y.M.C.A orchestra was present and added much to the brightness of the service. Mr. Jas. Browne, sang "Abide With Me," in his usual capable manner. Rev E. F. Mr. Thos. Kent Laid to Rest

The funeral of the late Thomas Kent, formerly a resident of Peterboro, who died in Toronto on Jan. 5th took place yesterday morning on the arrival of the 11.20 C.P.R. train to Little Lake Cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reed, of Toronto, were in the city for the funeral.

UNSEEN DANGER IS ON OUR TRACK

From the time of our birth till we lie down for the last time.

The best defense from the dangers of disease is vigor of body and activity of the natural functions.

The kind of assistance is important. It must not be stimulation for that gives but temporary effect, and the reaction is more than depressing. Take a tonic—one that will re-establish normal digestion and assimilation and prove a reconstructive rather than a promoter of waste. This will give nature a fair chance to put in motion normal work of repair and tissue building.

Such a tonic was grown in Nature's Laboratory, hidden in the ground and brought thence forty years ago by Dr. R. V. Pierce, who has made the treatment of lingering diseases his life-long study and care.

He uses glycerin extracts instead of alcoholic ones, exactly proportioned and [illegible] of [illegible] his own invention, first used in his private practice and now given out freely to the world in his "Golden Medical Discovery," which is [illegible] of Blue Flag root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root.

Mrs. A. T. Jones, of 625 Hayes Street, San Francisco, Cal., writes: "As a child I was delicate, and great care was taken of me because some of my relatives had died of consumption, although my father and mother were healthy. I grew up with only the ordinary diseases of all children, but about two years ago I contracted a severe cold, which would not yield to such home-treatment as was handy. Doctors were tried, but after three months of this treatment I was only worse. Then I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and am glad to say that three bottles not only cured me of the cold and cough, but made me feel better than I ever had before. I will always have a bottle of this medicine in the house."

Those tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Do not forget the "pill habit," but cure constipation. One or two each day for a laxative and purgative, three or four for an active cathartic. Once tried always in favor. For sale in vials; always reliable.

The Big Convention Opens This Morning

Last Night About Fifty Delegates Arrived for Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Convention Which Opens in Opera House Today.

To-day the Ontario Dairymen's Association meet. It is expected that full 800 to 900 delegates will be present. Most of whom will arrive by morning and noon trains.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, the energetic local representative of this association, is perhaps the busiest man in Peterboro today, as on him, to a very large extent, falls the labor of looking after the convention, locating delegates, etc.

Yesterday the badges arrived for the members and officers of the Peterboro convention. These badges are something new and are very handsome. The badges are circular in shape, about an inch and a quarter in diameter. Around the outside portion of the front part of the medal, is a black enamelled buckle shaped device, showing in gilt the words "Peterboro, Jan. 10, 11, 12."

In the central part of the badge, in red enamel in Canada's emblem, the Maple Leaf. On this in gilt appears, the initials of the association, E.D.A., with a golden churn, in white enamel, beneath the maple leaf, appears a scroll with 1906 inscribed in gilt. The medals are attached by a safety pin to a pale blue ribband.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, the coming of the Dairymen was largely dependent upon whether the local hotel keepers subscribed a good sum towards their entertainment and expenditure. The Peterboro hotelmen answered, with only two exceptions to this request, subscribing about $100, all of which has now been collected. Those subscribing towards getting this large crowd of intelligent and well-known exponents of the dairying profession are, The Oriental, American House, Munroe's Hotel, Alex. Elliott, wholesale liquors, Montreal House, City Hotel, Snowden House, White House, Calcutt's Brewery, Crown Hotel, Little Windsor, Commercial House, C.P.R. Hotel, Queen's Hotel, Clancy House, Hogan's Hotel, Lipsett's Hotel, Palace Hotel, Cavanagh's Hotel and Royal Hotel.

As before noted and advertised, all meetings of the association will be held in the Grand Opera house, and the official headquarters at the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. Gillespie reports that from all indications, the city will have a larger aggregation of farmers from this and surrounding counties, than ever gathered in Peterboro before.

AN AMBITION TO BE REALIZED

Great Roman Catholic Scheme of Education

PROJECT NOW UNDER WAY

Immense Seminary for the Priesthood Will be Erected—Scheme Will Cost $5,000,000

Chicago, January 9.—The Record-Herald says: "An ambition cherished for many years by the Roman Catholic church dignitaries of Chicago, in a plan by which this diocese becomes the centre of the best Roman Catholic education and religion in America, finally has assumed definite shape.

"With the opening in the suburb of Austin of an immense seminary for the priesthood, plans of which have just been completed, the first step towards the realization of the great project will have been completed. Gradually other edifices dedicated to religious purposes will be added to the seminary and it will become the strongest Roman Catholic ecclesiastical school in the country. Eventually a cathedral will join the other buildings and the spot will also become the official centre of the religious work of the diocese. The idea of the cathedral which has only been roughly sanctified on paper, outlines a structure which will be one of the most imposing edifices of the century.

"Improvements already have been started on the property. No definite idea can be given of the final amount to be expended on the church work, but it will probably not be less than $5,000,000. The seminary ground for which will be broken in April will be under the direct supervision of Archbishop Quigley."

DISCORD OVER MUSIC

Member of 43rd Regiment Band Claim Their Property

Ottawa, January 9.—Thirty-five men, formerly members of the 43rd Regimental Band, claim a hundred dollars worth of music, which is locked up in the Drill Hall, and held there by the military authorities. The dispute over the ownership of the music arises from the resignation of Mr. Jas. McGillicuddy and his men from the band last month. Mr. Hiscott, of London, is here to organize a new band, and as he wants the music, an interesting situation is developing.

The music, to the value of about $700, was purchased by the members of the band during the last fourteen years, with money out of their own funds.

CANADIAN SOO NO REFUGE

Eloping Couples Must Find Another Refuge, According to the Decision of the Provincial Secretary

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., January 9.—The Canadian Sault has ceased to be a Gretna Green for lovelorn couples from this side of the international boundary line. Official notice has been received from the Provincial Secretary's Department, announcing that the Attorney General has handed down an opinion declaring illegal the issuing of marriage licenses to aliens and warning all officials to govern their actions accordingly.

Many couples from the United States have been married there, as well as at other border towns, and there has long been complaint concerning the practice. Eloping couples have found it easy to become united on Canadian soil and in numerous cases young people whose age would be a bar to their marriage in the United States have had no difficulty in getting the nuptial knot tied in Canada, many cases miscarriage resulting in consequence.

The Attorney General bases his conclusions on sections of clause 17 of the act respecting the solemnization of marriages. These sections provide that the affidavit made personally by one of the persons to the intended marriage, before a license is granted, shall state that either one had had his or her usual place of abode in the country or the judicial district in which the marriage is to be solemnized, for fifteen days immediately preceding the issue of the license. If the country or district is not that in which either of them has resided as stated, the affidavit must show that the reason for solemnizing the marriage in such place is not in order to evade due publicity or for any other improper purpose.

In effect, the ruling of the Attorney General is that license shall not be issued to persons who are not bona fide residents of the Province.

A NEW WAREHOUSE

Messrs. Kinnear & Co. to Build on George and Dalhousie Streets

It was currently reported yesterday that Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co., the local wholesale grocers, have purchased the property on the southeast corner of George and Dalhousie streets and will erect a large warehouse on it.

It speaks volumes for Peterboro's progress that a firm such is a comparative new comer to the city by rapidly increasing demands of business, find it compulsory to erect so large a structure to accommodate their trade.

The company with as soon as spring weather permits begin the erection of a new and commodious warehouse on the property. The size of the building has not been determined upon yet, but it will probably be of brick, and will be a credit to the city as far as appearance and stability are concerned.

With the completition of this new warehouse the present premises of the company will be vacated.

PORT PERRY'S RACES

Peterboro Horses do Well at Yesterday's Races

One of the oldest and most successful racing associations in Canada, held its 37th annual race meet in Port Perry yesterday. The weather was fine, the track in good condition, and the field evenly matched. Mr Martin Connors' Lady Gothard won second money and could, if necessary have got first, but Driver Neville did not care to split heats, as Mr. Connors is saving her for the $1000 stake race in Ottawa next month.

A feature of this race was the splendid showing of Little Jap in the third heat, he finishing second and getting fourth money in the race. His driver, Mr. H. Cook deserves a great deal of credit for getting this horse in fairly good shape, as he was only on three legs all fall.

Today Helen R. Groomed, driven by Mr. Neville, will start in the free-for-all, and good things are expected of her.

The new branch of the Bank of Montreal which, as foretold in a former issue of The Times, was to be opened at Fenelon Falls, with our well known and popular fellow citizen, Mr. Miles Hamilton on the quarter-deck, will be ready for business on the 16th inst.

It was currently rumored yesterday that Mr G. Main, teller in the Peterboro branch, will accompany Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Standbolt from the head office, Montreal, will replace Mr. Hamilton temporarily in the local branch, and Mr. G. E. Easton of Brockville will succeed Mr. Main in the teller's box.

OLD BOY HERE

Mr. Meharry, a Former Peterboro Man Revisits the City

Mr. Hugh B. Meharry, a former resident of Peterboro, but who about three years ago, went west, arrived here a few days ago and is spending some time with friends here. Mr. Meharry is engaged in farming at Alameda, Sask., which is considered one of the best wheat-growing districts in the Northwest. Mr. Meharry states that there are quite a number of former Peterboro people located in the vicinity of Alameda, and they are all doing well. Mr. Tims Emmerson, a brother-in-law of Crown Attorney R. F. Wood, is a neighbor of Mr. Meharry's and is also prospering. Mr. Meharry states that the crop of wheat and oats, which are the staple cereals grown in the Alameda district this year was the best ever harvested.

PRINCE KROPOTKIN ON THE SITUATION

Express s Determination to Return to Russia With His Family Shortly

SYMPATHY WITH PEASANTS

Relieves That Their Claim for Land is Righteous, Just and Will Win.

London, January 9.—Prince Kropotkin, the famous Russian geographer and revolutionist, talked at length with your correspondent this morning on the state of Europe in general and of Russia in particular.

The white haired survivor of many exploring expeditions, exile, imprisonments and tumults, is in his sixty-fourth year, and is not over robust in health, yet he remains the foremost intellect and the greatest individual force connected with the Russian struggle for liberty. He has been absent from his fatherland for thirty years, which have been spent for the most part in England. During this time he has never ceased to urge his countrymen to overthrow the autocracy. He intends to return to St. Petersburg in a few weeks with his wife and daughter to identify himself with the constitutional movement.

Prince Kropotkin was highly indignant at a letter alleged to have been written by George Brandes, the Danish author, announcing that it was Kropotkin's intention to go back to Russia. He said he had written to Brandes and mentioned his purpose of returning to his native land, but had not indulged the harrowing references to the fortress of St. Peter and Paul, or in other personal heroics.

Discussing Russia's international relations the Prince declared that the Empire would fulfill all its financial obligations. The issue of the international crisis depended upon two powerful elements in Russian life — the peasants and the Zemstvos, and municipalities, constituting the advanced liberal party.

If the peasant movement continued to spread the revolution would assume a really serious character and change the existing order. Up to the present, however, while the peasants showed dissatisfaction and engaged in isolated acts of desperate violence, they had not given proof of any general cohesion.

Next in importance were the Zemstvos and municipalities, the advanced Liberals. If Count Witte's ministry could gain their confidence, and the thing would be quite practicable, provided the government displayed an honest determination to execute the reform program, it would be enabled to appease eighty million peasants and industrial workers. Once peace were restored among the different classes of Russia, unrest among the various nationalities could not destroy the Empire. No single nationality, not even Poland and Georgia, had a political party wanting independence.

The claims of Poles and Georgians, as expressed by the majority of the people, would be for autonomy, such as Finland enjoys. If the republicans of these countries imitated the Baltic provinces they would utterly fail.

The suppression of the revolutionary outbreak in Moscow and any similar measures the government might take in the future, would be wholly impotent to check the advance of the reform movement. Personally Prince Kropotkin declared himself in sympathy with the peasants' claim for land, in communal possession, and communal local autonomy.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

HOCKEY.

It seems as though the splendid trophy presented by gentlemen of Messrs. Chris. Graham and F. A. Clarke, for competition by the Guild League, will be left without aspirants for its possession. Present indications point towards disorganization of the Guild League. The trouble, it is said, rest with inability of the league to make satisfactory terms with the rink. Charlotte street Guild will likely join the City League and the players of the different Guild teams will probably be found in the ranks of that organization.

It is indeed unfortunate that the Guild League will not be in operation this year.

• • • •

It is likely that six teams will be in the city league this winter, and their playing will be much superior to that of last year as the teams are very much stronger. The T.A.S. team is the only one of last year's clubs entered. The other teams will be the Bankers, Suicides, Peterboro Colts, High Lifes and probably the Charlotte street Guild, as the latter is contemplating seeking admission to the league and will be gladly welcomed. A committee is at work drawing up a constitution along the lines of that adopted by the C.H.A. which will be introduced at the meeting tonight.

THE TURF.

The ice racing secon opened in Port Perry yesterday and is in progress today. Many of the leading harness horses of Canada are there to participate, and there are also several good ones from Uncle Sam's territory. It is a most successful meeting, as the ice is in grand shape and the entries more numerous than usual.

• • • •

A bunch of Peterboro's well known sports, including Messrs. Martin Conners, P. J. Cluman, Geo. Brown, Percy Pearson, Wm. Gould and others, left yesterday morning for Port Perry to attend the ice races.

• • • •

Still enquiries pour into Secretary Rountree of the Peterboro Turf Club, respecting the races here this month. Every letter points to a most successful meeting on Jan. 23 and 24th. Some of the best horses in Canada are already promised for the local meet. Our citizens who love good clean sport should show tangible evidence of their appreciation of good honest horse racing, by turning out, en masse at the Driving Park At the races managed by the Peterboro Turf Club, there is no fear that any race is decided otherwise than on its merits. The best horse takes the purse.

THE RING.

It is announced that A reconciliation has been effected between Bob Fitzsimmons and his wife, and that Mrs. Fitzsimmons has abandoned her action for divorce.

While making souvenir horseshoes in a blacksmith shop during the day Fitzsimmons was slightly injured by the collapse of the shop floor, throwing a large crowd of spectators and Fitz into the basement. Several persons suffered arms or legs broken, but none were killed. Fitzsimmons was slightly cut about the head.

SUCCESSFUL MEETINGS

Union Prayer Meetings are Drawing the Young People of Peterboro

The union prayer meetings, began at Charlotte street Methodist church are attracting large audiences, especially among the young people. On Monday night Rev. Dr. Crothers gave a very interesting address on the subject, "Young People." He pointed out the importance of the young people to the church, the temptations to which young people are exposed, and urged on all the necessity of leading the young from temptation. Dr. Crothers also referred to the rapid advance in Bible study and church union.

During Monday evening Rev. Canon Davidson led in prayer, and Rev. Dr. Torrance also gave a short address.

This evening the second meeting of the series will be held in George street Methodist church, when Rev. Canon Davidson will give an address on "The Church."

Local Citizen Recalls Incident of the Midland Railway

A local citizen, who many years ago used to travel a good deal on the old Midland Railroad between this city and Lindsay, per Millbrook, yesterday told a good story, whilst imbibing some of Mine Host Snowden's nectar, illustrating the slowness of the old system. He said to his friends: "I remember once, many years ago, starting to go to Lindsay, where I had an important engagement with a man who expected to leave that night for Toronto. The trains, at all times slow in those days, were particulary dilatory that day. About an hour after leaving Millbrook, the snail-like train stopped dead.

"'Is this Lindsay?' I said to the conductor.

"'No; it's a cow,' he answered. 'There's a cow on the track.'

"Well, after a while the cow was driven off and we got under way again. Some few miles were traversed in a leisurely way, and then—we stopped again.

"'Another cow?' I said to the conductor bitterly.

"'No,' he replied. 'The same one.'"

LOCAL MAN PROMOTED

Mr. Fred. H. Dixon, of Sun Life Assurance Co. Goes to China

The many friends in the city of Mr. Fred H. Dixon, who for some seventeen years, has been associated with Mr. W. H. Hill in the Sun Life Assurance Co., will be pleased to learn that he has been promoted to the position of cashier in the company's office in the city of Hong Kong, China, and will leave for that far distant point at the beginning of next week.

Although deeply regretting Mr. Dixon's removal to so far distant an appointment his friends are heer congratulating him on the responsible and lucrative position to which he has been appointed.

Mrs. Dixon, with accompany him when he sails on Jan. 22nd, from Vancouver per steamer "Empress of Japan" and they expect to arrive in Hong Kong about the middle of February. Mr. Dixon has filled the position of accountant here with ability. He has been a prominent member of the Peterboro Curling Club, Peterboro Bowling Club and other organizations, and carries with him the best wishes of many citizens for his future success and prosperity. The appointment is a good one and means that the Sun Life Company fully and substantially recognize Mr. Dixon's marked abilities and universal integrity.

Bride of Six Months

St. Louis, Mo., January 9.—Because, she alleges, her husband was averse to osculation, pretty Mrs. Antoinette Kelly, a bride of six months, thought she was entitled to a divorce. The judge, however, was not of the same turn of mind, and he refused today to grant her request. She said that in the six months of what she had hoped would be a blissful married life her husband had persistently refused to kiss her.

Detectives Raid Brokers' Offices

D. R. McNaught & Co. and S. A. Anderson & Co. the Firms Visited.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—This proved a frosty morning for some of the American money brokers who have been operating in Toronto. Sharp at the noon hour two brace of detectives, each accompanied by a police van, paid a visit to the offices of D. R. McNaught & Co., in the Lawler Building, and S. A. Anderson & Company, in the Confederation Life Building. The detectives were armed with search warrants sworn out by George Kennedy, and took possession of the books, papers, memoranda and documents which were found on the premises.

ALLEGED EXTORTION.

This vigorous action on the part of the Crown authorities has resulted from the long series of acts of alleged extortion and deception which have resulted from the practices of money brokers in deceiving the poor and needy.

Crown Attorney Curry has been known to possess strong opinions upon this variety of business, and the present action comes as a necessary climax to the disclosures which have been made to the authorities by numerous persons who have complained of unfair and cruel treatment.

CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

Summonses have also been served upon Herman C. Kebr, the manager of the D. R. McNaught Company, and upon Robert McHarrie, of the S. A. Anderson Company, charging them that they did conspire with their principals who reside in the United States, by deceit, fraud and other fraudulent means to defraud the public contrary to the provisions of section 304 of the Criminal Code.

In a room back of the police court in the city hall, there reposes a heap of chattel mortgages, promissory notes and filing cabinets, each entry in which has given a family in Toronto food for some serious and prolonged reflection. Whatever may be proven respecting the business of the firms which have been raided, there can be no doubt about the care and accuracy of the business system they adopted. Everything is in good order, and the standing of each debtor may be discovered at a glance.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

When Detectives Kennedy and Anderson arrived at McNaught's office to execute their search warrant they found the manager in the act of negotiating with a man and woman who desired a small loan. The papers were all ready to be filled out and signed. They provided for interest at eighty-four per cent. per annum. The officers took charge of the documents and ascertained the names of the would-be borrowers, who will be summoned to the police court as witnesses when the case is investigated.

SORROW TURNED TO JOY.

Detectives Tipton and Guthrie have an amusing story to tell respecting their hurried visit to the office of S. A. Anderson & Company. In pursuance of the well-known motto of the loan brokers, their business was speedily transacted. While the search was being made, however, several ladies called with mournful faces to make their regular payments. It took them some time to realize that the police were in possession. Once that happy fact was brought home to them, however, they went out with smiling faces.

"A START," SAYS MR. CURRY.

"Do you intend to make a general round up of these exorbitant money lenders?" was asked Mr. Curry.

"Well, you see, we have made a start," replied the Crown Attorney, pointing to the piles of books and papers seized at the McNaught and Anderson's offices.

"Are there any more to be raided?"

"This is enough for the present," was the reply. The Crown Attorney permitted it to be understood, however, that the prosecution of other money lenders might follow.

"Was your action this morning the result of any specific complaint?" was the next question.

"No, it was off my own bat, so to speak."

THE POPE MAY END CAPTIVITY

Will Leave Vatican for Sake of Health

HE SUFFERS FROM HEAT

May Go to Alban Hills for Summer Months

Rome, January 9.—Interest is being revived in the old dispute between the Vatican and the Italian government by the conjectures that are now being made whether the pope will openly break through the legend of his so-called captivity and leave the Vatican for the sake of his health.

During the past summer the pope suffered very much from the exceptional heat which was experienced in Rome, and personally wished to go to the papal palace at Castel Gandolfo, among the Alban hills, the usual summer residence of the pope before 1870; but there are many currents in the Vatican, which appear to be even more powerful in matters like this than the will of the pope himself.

Still it has been noticed that relations between the holy see and Italy are much better than they have been in a third of a century, and while the pope in the last resort did not elect to leave Rome, it was finally felt that there was no reason why he should not have done so if he has really been determined in his own mind concerning the matter.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK PEACEFUL.

In fact, very seldom in the history of United Italy has the political outlook of the country presented an aspect so peaceful and so free from immediate, or even future, concern, as it does today.

If there is a cloud on the horizon at all it relates undoubtedly to a possible conflict between the government and the Socialists, and it is interesting to note in this connection that the real gist of the encyclical which the pope recently addressed to the Italian bishops is that it is the duty of the Italian Catholics to make ready to fight Socialism by active participation in the political life of their country.

The kernel is embedded in a good deal of more or less extraneous matter. But it is unmistakably there.

The encyclical lays down the principle that the church is the guardian and protectress of Christian civilization. The ideal of that civilization is unattainable, the pope admits. He holds, however, that the function of the church is to restore it so far as possible. There are in Italy, as in other Catholic countries, numerous guilds which labor for that end. They are largely composed of laymen, and the pope describes the aggregate of these bodies by using the term "Catholic tion."

AGAINST TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Britain, France and Italy Will Act in Concert at Conference

Rome Jan. 10.—The substitution of the Marquis Visconut Venosta, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, for Ambassador Silvestrelli, as Italy chief representative at the Moroccan conference is explained by Italy's intention to arrive at a satisfactory solution as to her position in Tripoli, and that the powers recognize the preponderance of Italian interests there. Britain, France and Italy have agreed to act in concert at the conference as the three chief Mediterranean powers. While Britain and Italy will back France's demands for special concessions in Morocco, France and Britain will afford Italy all possible help in the direction of her eventual occupation of Tripoli.

DROPPED DEAD.

Brampton, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Russel, who is a returned missionary from India, addressed the St. Paul's League last night, and when she returned to her home, at about ten o'clock, she missed her father, Mr. Hodgins. Thinking Mr. Hodgins had gone to a neighbor's she busied herself preparing for the night. Finally she went to the cellar to fix the furnace and was horrified to find him at the foot of the stairs, quite dead.

32 BELOW IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

Plattsburg, N.Y., Jan. 9.—Last night was the coldest of the year in this section of the Adirondacks. The thermometer registered from 25 to 32 below zero at different points in the mountains.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the bow of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; thus the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to wind or waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James S. Whitney of Boston, when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that he heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances have been introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

TIREDNESS MEANS DANGER

Indicates Faulty Blood and Worn Out Nerves—Build Up or Total Collapse Will Surely Follow

When you're tired all day, bothered by trifles, exhausted with nervousness, be sure there is something wrong.

You need bracing up, need more nourishment in the blood, need a powerful medicine to vitalize the nerves and distribute force and staying power to all over-worked organs.

This most marvelous success is Ferrosone, a nourishing tonic so scientific as to be the admirmation of every physcin. Ferrosone performs wonders for people in poor health; acts directly on the blood, enriching it with strength and new life that is at once dispatched to all parts of the body. Ferrosone feeds the nerves and vital energies, supplies force, determination and joyous, buoyant spirits.

A case where there was lassitude and lack of strength is told by Mr. [illegible] 30, Benton, Ont.: "About a year ago my health commenced to fail. My hands and feet seemed always cold. I felt worn-out and exhausted, weak as a little child. My face twitched. My limbs and arms commenced to lose their sense of feeling and finally my left side was perfectly numb. All my color left. My appetite ran down. Ferrosone was the first to give me any help. I improved with it very quickly. It toned up the blood and started circulation, so that the numbness gradually disappeared. My condition was perfectly cured by Ferrosone, and I have been well ever since. (Signed) "David Brown."

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To get satisfactory results be sure you get Ferrosone only. Fifty cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

UNION LABELED

PETERBORO, JANUARY 10 1906

AGAINST THE CHINESE MENACE

The question of the exclusion of Orientals is becoming an acute one in the United States. Events are rapidly forcing a situation that will be painful and delicate in the extreme.

We learn from reliable sources from time to time that the state of feeling in China is becoming more explosive as the days go by. The massacre of the American missionaries recently is regarded as simply an indication of something that may become general.

There is a keen hatred in China to everything American—in fact, everyone English-speaking. The ordinary Mogolian does not stop to make distinctions between American and British. They both look alike and speak alike and to all intents and purposes act alike. Therefore, the problem which is developing for the government at Washington, D.C., is developing for Ottawa, Canada, and for Downing street, London, England.

It is said in despatches that President Roosevelt and the leading eastern politicians in the United States are becoming alarmed at the prospects of losing the trade of the Orient. In the United States as in Canada, the dominating influences, in politics and trade, reside east of the Mississippi river. They have strength enough to repeal the exclusion act if they make up their mind that it is standing in the way of eastern interests. Similar influences in Canada would force this country to follow the example of the United States.

It is also said that the Japanese government is secretly encouraging the Chinese in the course they are pursuing. The statesmen of Japan know that logically all Oriental labor—Chinese, Japanese and Korean—stands on the same footing. That is to say, it is all cheap labor and offers the same degree of competition to white labor. Sooner or later the question as affects all the three nations must be solved in the same way.

Naturally the idea of exclusion is repellant to the proud Japanese mind. If the issue is forced on commercial grounds the white races must either submit to reciprocity in labor or to loss of the Oriental trade. Japan has demonstrated that she can abundantly look after herself in all the multifarious affairs of Empire, and she will stimulate and train the Chinese to do the same. The time will have gone by when European or American nations can force upon the Mongolian pact the right to trade on their own terms.

The immediate cause of the situation as created and being created is explained by The Argonaut, which says: The causes which have led to this grave juncture are various. The first and most deep seated is one of the results of our unfortunate purchase of the Philippines from Spain for $20,000,000. By that purchase the immigration contract labor, and exclusion laws of the United States at once went into effect in the archipelago. For several centuries the Chinese had gone freely to the Philippines. Many Chinese had grown rich and influential there. Our war with Spain came to an end, and the Treaty of Paris was signed. By this treaty the island Chinese were suddenly relegated to a degraded position, while the mainland Chinese were excluded from the islands. Thus to humiliate Chinese dwellers in the Philippines, thus to slam the door in the faces of the intending emigrants, deeply offended the Chinese people. As a result—under the leadership of Wu Ting-fang and the friendly advice of Japan—the Chinese boycott on American industry has been concocted.

WIRELESS POWER

Wireless power transmission is prophesied by one of the progenitors of the wireless telegraph system. The history of wireless electricity is to be but a repetition of the wire system. [illegible] conveyed over the wires, next speech, and lastly power. As soon as the wireless telegraphy is a little more improved he expects to bring out a system of telephoning without wires which will come into general use. After that the transmission of power through the air without wires will follow. It will come just as surely as it did in wire electricity. He is working in that general direction now and can in a sort of way see the end of the development.

Greatest Famine

Victoria, B.C., January 9.—Thousands are starving in North Japan on account of the famine there, according to advices received here today by the steamer Empress of Japan. A Government report says Miyaga, Fukushima and Iwate Provinces, with a population of 2,331,557, are confronted by the worst famine since the deadly one of 80 years ago. So great is the calamity in Miyaga that famine investigators report that "the sentence of death has been passed on one-third of the people of the province." Committees of foreign residents have been formed to arrange systematic relief.

The Houston & Texas Central Ry. Co. has decided to sell its land grant in Northwest Texas, adjoining Oklahoma. To effect a quick sale and avoid the expense of maintaining sales agencies, the lands have been listed at very low prices.

They are adjacent to the Rock Island main line running diagonally across Oklahoma and Texas. Portions of the tract are well watered and nearly all is susceptible of cultivation. Transportation facilities excellent—big markets within easy reach.

Sale will be made in parcels of 160 acres up to four sections or 2,560 acres to each purchaser. The prices are on a fixed scale—no fluctuation. Taxes are low, terms liberal and warranty deeds given in all cases.

If interested, send quick for descriptive leaflet with full information.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

This notoriety was likely to do me quite enough harm as it was.

"I thank you," I said at last, "and I hope you will fully understand how grateful I am to you for the kindness which prompts the offer. But I think I will remain in my old quarters forward, if you have no objection. I am quite comfortable there; and as I made my choice on principle at the beginning, I think, with your permission, I would rather not change it now."

"But my dear sir," began the captain, "you must let us show our appreciation in some practical form. We could never let you off quietly, as you seem to wish."

"You have already done more than enough," I answered. "You have told me what you thought of my action, and you have also made me this offer, the value of which, you may be quite sure, I fully appreciate. I have felt compelled to decline it, and under those circumstances I think it would be best to let the subject drop.

"You are too modest by half, Mr. Wrexford," said Miss Maybourne's uncle. "Far too modest."

For some time the two gentlemen did their best to persuade me to forego my decision, but, hard as they tried, they did not succeed. There were so many reasons why I should not take up my residence among the first saloon passengers aft, and as I reviewed them in my mind, I became more than ever convinced that it would be madness for me to forego my resolution.

When they discovered that I was not to be moved they shook hands again, and then left me. Five minutes later the doctor came in to help me dress. He carried a bundle of clothes in his arms, and when he had shut the door behind him he threw them on the locker under the porthole.

"Your own clothes, I'm sorry to say, Wrexford," he began, "are completely spoiled; so if you'll allow me, I'm going to lend you those till you can see about some more. We are men of pretty much the same build, so what fits me should fit you, and vice versa. Now, if you're ready, let me give you a hand to dress, for I want to get you on deck into the fresh air as soon as possible."

Half an hour later I was ready to leave my cabin. The doctor's clothes fitted me admirably, and after I had given a look round to see that I had not left anything behind me, I followed the medico out into the saloon. Fortunately, there were very few people about, but, to my horror, those who were there would insist upon shaking hands with me, and telling me what they thought of my action before they would let me escape. To add to my discomfort, when I left the saloon and passed along the spar deck towards my own quarters I had to run the gauntlet of the rest of the passengers, who clustered round me, and overwhelmed me with a chorus of congratulations on my recovery. I doubt very much if ever there was more fuss made over an act of common humanity than that made by the passengers of the Fiji Princess over mine. If I had saved the lives of the whole ship's company, captain and stokers included, there could not have been more said about it.

Reaching my own quarters forrard I went down to my berth, in search of a pipe and a pouch of tobacco, and when I had found them, sat myself down on the fore-hatch and began to smoke. It was a lovely morning, a merry breeze hummed in the shrouds, and the great steamer was ploughing her way along with an exhilarating motion that brought my strength back quicker than any doctor's physic. On the bridge my old friend the second officer was pacing up and down, and when he saw me he came to the rail, and waved his hand in welcome.

The chief steward also found me out, and embraced the opportunity for telling me that my conduct reminded him of a cousin's exploits in the Hooghly, which said narrative I felt constrained to swallow with a few grains of salt. When he left me I sat where I was and thought how pleasant it was, after all, to find that there were still people in the world with sufficiently generous natures to appreciate a fellow creature's actions. One question, however, haunted me continually: What would the folk aboard this ship say when they knew my secret? And, above all, what would Miss Agnes Maybourne think when she should come to hear it?

CHAPTER VI.

That afternoon I was sitting in my usual place on the fore-hatch, smoking and thinking about our next port of call, and what a miserable figure I should cut before the ship's company if by any chance I should be arrested there, when I became conscious that someone had come along the hurricane deck and was leaning on the rails gazing down at me. I looked up, to discover that it was none other than Miss Maybourne. Directly she saw that I was aware of her presence she moved towards the ladder on the port side and came down it towards where I sat. Her dress was of some dark-blue material, probably serge, and was cut in such a fashion that it showed her beautiful figure to the very best advantage. A sweeter picture of an English maiden of gentle birth than she presented as she came down the steps it would have been difficult to find. Kindness and sincerity were the chief characteristics of her face, and I felt a thrill of pride run through me as I reflected that she owed her life to me.

When she came up to where I stood, for I had risen on seeing her approaching me, she held out her hand with a frank gesture, and said, as she looked me in the eyes:

"Mr. Wrexford, you saved my life the night before last, and this is the first opportunity I have had of expressing my gratitude to you. I cannot tell you how grateful I am, but I ask you to believe that so long as I live I shall never cease to bless you for your heroism."

To return an answer to such a speech would not seem a difficult matter at first thought, and yet I found it harder than I would at any other time have imagined. To say how glad that I did not want to be thanked, and at the same time not to appear churlish, was a very difficult matter. However, I stumbled out some sort of a reply, and then asked her how she had managed to fall overboard in that extraordinary fashion.

"I really cannot tell you," she answered, without hesitation. "I was leaning against the rails of the hurricane deck talking to Miss Durley and Mr. Spicer, when something behind me gave way, and then over I went backwards into the water. Oh, you can't imagine the feeling of utter helplessness that came over me as I rose to the surface and saw the great ship steaming away. Then you nobly sprang in to my assistance, and once more hope came into my heart. But for you I might now be dead, floating about in the depths of that great sea. Oh! it is an awful thought."

She trembled like a leaf at the notion, and swept her pretty hands across her face as if to brush away the thought of such a thing.

"It was a very narrow escape," I said. "I must confess myself that I thought the boat would never reach us. And yet how cool and collected you were!"

The Drummer Boy Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the teatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for another Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,171.20 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $500,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORTELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Minging Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

—Capt. George Bennett, who as noted in a former issue of The Times-recently suffered a severe loss by fire at the family residence, on Monday brought to the city one of the most splendid specimens of a snow owl ever seen in this part of the county. This owl, which the captain shot, measured fully three feet from tip to tip of its outstretched wings. It is being stuffed.

St. Luke's Guild Extending

At its last regular meeting of St. Luke's church Young Men's Guild, it was decided to increase the accommodation at the Guild room by taking in another room at the rear of those unused at present. The president of the Guild, Mr. G. F. Ward, presided. There was a good attendance, and all present agreed that more roomy accommodation was necessary. The next meeting of the Guild will be held on the second Monday in February.

HAND SAWED OFF

Wm. Thurston Has Serious Accident at a Country "Bee"

Referring to an Emily farmer, known to many of our local citizens, Lindsay Post says:

On Saturday afternoon, at a woodworking bee on the 14th con. line of Emily township, Mr. Wm. Thurston, a young farmer, who was assisting, was the victim of a regrettable and serious accident. While standing close to the sawing machine in a moment of forgetfulness he allowed his right arm to fall on the swiftly revolving circular saw, the result being that the hand was severed at the wrist in the twinkling of an eye.

But for the assistance rendered by Mr. Elliott, school teacher, who got a handkerchief tourniquet in place on the arm as soon as possible, the poor fellow would have bled to death before medical aid could be summoned from town. Drs. Clarke and Blanchard made the trip out with all speed and made a second amputation a short distance further up the arm. The patient is at his own home and is doing nicely.

W. McCrae, Brakesman, Gets Hurt

On Monday as No. 22, the 11 o'clock eastbound train, had just pulled into Lindsay station, and Brakeman William McCrae was engaged between two cars which were uncoupled, the unfortunate man was seriously injured. This train, was in charge of Conductor Chas. Mitchell. It seems that a yard shunting engine, unseen by McCrae, came along the same track, and running into the cars between which McCrae was working, caused the cars to suddenly close together, inching McCrae's face between the two draw-bars. The enormous weight although only coming slowly, was sufficient to crack McCrae's jaw bone. The injured man was at once removed to the Ross Memorial Hospital, where his jaw was set and bound up. It will be some time before he will be able to attend to his duties again.

Damage Done at Toboggan Slide

It was rumored yesterday that an engagement between a well known local young man and an equally popular society belle will shortly be announced. This climax was attained Monday evening, at the Jackson Park rink. Dangerous places for possible benedicts that toboggan slide and rink when pale faced Lupa smiles at the young people, enjoying themselves, at a 1.79 gait, down the glassy slide, something is going to happen, even if a thermometer does sent $2 and a ring $10 more.

A Lindsay Council Controversy

The new Town Council of Lindsay met on Monday to appoint standing committees. Quite a controversy took place on the proper manner of voting. Some contended for a show of hands, whilst others advocated the rising from his seat by each member when voting on any subject. The matter, dependant upon Sec. 347a of Chap. 19 of the Municipal Code, was left to be considered by the Lindsay Town Solicitor. Truly Lindsay Council must be a busy aggregation of men who strain over gnats.

Mr. Crossman Makes Alterations

Mr. A. W. Crossman, the George St. dry goods man is having extensive alterations made in his establishment. The alterations include an archway to the wall running through the center of the fourth floor. This will connect the whole of the flat, and the space will all be devoted to the bargain annex department. Mr. Crossman says that the fourth story bargain annex has proved most successful. Every Wednesday this department is open to the public.

Chemong Park Cottages Meet

The Chemong Cottagers' Association which met, on Monday night in the Ontario Bank Chambers, to consider application for a charter, was postponed indefinitely. The association will probably not meet again until next June or July. Mr. Alex. Elliott occupied the chair, and there was a fair attendance.

A Real Estate Deal

The year perhaps more Peterboro real estate has changed hands than ever before, in a similar time. In Peterboro's history. A deal has now been consummated whereby the dwelling house and property of Mr. John Harper on Walton street, has passed into the hands of Mr. Fred Weir, of Emily. The deal was put through by J. T. O'Connell & Co. real estate agents.

The Indian never liked work but he wanted his squaw to get well as soon as possible so that she could do the work and let him hunt, therefore he dug porpoose root for her, for that was their great remedy for female weakness.

Dr. Pierce uses the same root—called Blue Cohosh—in his "Favorite Prescription" skillfully combined with other agents that make it more effective and protect the stomach from functional disturbance.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not nor ever was a "patent medicine," but it is the carefully wrought out and thoroughly tested real prescription of a real physician in a real practice.

Dr. Pierce's unparalleled success with this remedy was such that more wanted to use it than any one doctor could attend to in a private practice. This induced him to manufacture it on a sufficiently liberal scale to meet the demand.

By his own special processes, he extracts, combines and preserves the medicinal qualities of the several ingredients without the use of alcohol (using chemically pure glycerine instead), thus rendering it absolutely safe for any woman of any age and in any condition to use freely. The names of the ingredients are: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root and Golden Seal root.

Miss May Rohrback, No. 73 Amsterdam Avenue, New York City, Treasurer of the Woman's Progressive Union, writes: "I had headache, backache, and was very nervous; scarcely able to sleep more than two hours at a time. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and was delighted with the result. Within a week I was sleeping splendidly. Continued using the 'Favorite Prescription' for eight weeks, and then stopped, for I was perfectly well. Ever since then your medicine has been my 'Favorite Prescription,' too. I recommend it to every one."

Constipation although a little ill, begets big ones if neglected. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

Large Attendance Greets Convention

Their Meeting Yesterday Well Attended---Hon. Mr. Monteith, Minister of Agriculture Gave Good Address Last Night.

Yesterday morning, shortly after ten o'clock, the visiting delegates, already arrived, to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Convention, to the number of about 250 to 300, began to gather in the Grand Opera House.

Mr. Murphy, Secretary of the Association, sat at a table just within the entrance, attending to general business, such as getting names of delegates, giving certificates to entitle delegates free transportation on their return trip home, etc.

Just in the entrance lobby of the theatre, Mr. Harry M. Smith, representing the Wyandotte (Mich.) Dairymen's Cleaner, showed samples of his goods, and attracted much interest from the delegates.

On the stage were Messrs. Derbyshire, president of the Association, Mayor Best, W. Buntin, official stenographer of the Association, R. J. Graham, and others, including a table occupied by the reporters of local, Toronto, Montreal and other papers.

One striking point of the convention was the evident interest taken by the audience, as many questions were hurled at each speaker, and as quickly and effectively answered.

Mayor Best, at the morning session, very ably filled the chair, and extended a hearty welcome to the dairymen and hoped that their stay in Peterboro would be a most enjoyable one. The city, he said, felt honored in having such a distinguished body in convention here, and he wanted every visitor to feel at home. He then introduced Mr. D. Derbyshire, M.P.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

It is a great pleasure to meet the enterprising citizens of Peterboro, and especially the dairymen of this important section, and I desire, on behalf of our directors, to thank you for the very cordial reception extended to us, and further, I want to thank your local committee for the assistance our secretary received in making final arrangements for this 29th annual convention. Your city council and county council, as well as your banks and leading business firms, have given generous aid, which assisted us in preparing our program and advertising this meeting.

We all regret that our Governor-General, Lord Grey, who had promised to open this convention in your fair city, will be unable to do so, on account of the Forestry convention now meeting at Ottawa, but I can assure all that we have his hearty sympathy in the great work we have in hand of bettering the condition of our dairymen in Eastern Ontario.

With reference to the dairy industry, I might point out that, both in the aggregate production and returns realized, 1905 has been the banner year. It is certainly very gratifying that we made about the same quantity of cheese as formerly, and out butter production has beaten all previous records.

Our cheese exports from Montreal for the season just closed were 3,121,181 boxes. I estimate the cheese on hand in Canada at the close of navigation at 400,000 boxes, which would make 3,-600,000 boxes, valued at $23,000,000.

Our butter exports from Montreal were 579,419 packages, and the estimated stock in Canada is 125,000 packages, so we made in the season 700,000 packages, valued at $9,000,000.

The bacon trade, so closely allied with the dairy industry, amounted to about $15,000,000.

In the above estimates, no account has been taken of our home market, and this must be looked into, especially for butter, for our Canadian people are consuming larger quantities of fine creamery butter each year. Our home consumption in 1901 was about 5,000,000 packages.

You will be glad to know that we received about $10,000,000 more in 1905 than in 1904 for cheese, butter and bacon. It will be noticed that our dairymen produced (excluding condensed milk, milk for other cities, towns, etc.) cheese valued at $22,000,000; butter, $8,-000,000; bacon, $15,000,000, and the home consumption was $50,000,000, or a grand total of $95,000,000. We are sending our goods not only to the Mother Country, but to the Orient and Japan as well, and in increasing quantities each year.

We are also making advancement. Our factories are being improved, and some really first class ones are being erected, and our makers are becoming better educated. A larger number and better qualified instructors have been employed, and doing very satisfactory work. This has been made possible by the liberality of our Provincial Department of Agriculture. We had twenty-six instructors, besides our chief Instructor, and they have done good work—visiting, giving instructions and attending meetings—so we have given better service to our factories than in any previous year.

Our goods have been finer and more uniform than ever before. Our Dominion Department of Agriculture has rendered splendid assistance by giving us regular refrigerator service, not only on cars to Montreal, but on the steamships from Montreal to the British market, and employed inspectors at Montreal and the different English ports to examine our goods, and report weekly to our dairy commissioner at Ottawa the temperature of our goods on arrival at destination. This has been of great importance to dairymen, for the goods were never before delivered to their ultimate market in as fine condition. We want this refrigerator service enlarged and improved, as well as our transportation facilities, so our goods the coming season may be landed in perfect condition.

The watching of our goods arriving at Montreal, as well as the different ports on the other side, is working well, for they do not now lay around on the docks, but are quickly taken care of. The erection of two large warehouses at the Surrey Commercial dock, fitted up with cold storage at London, is of great importance. Our goods are taken from the ships and immediately placed in these warehouses. Bristol is coming to the front with new docks, and other ports will have to do the same or lose the trade. So you see the result is we have made finer goods and had them delivered in better condition, thus receiving better prices and increased demand. With the improvement of trade in every line, and high prices assured, we should do very much better in 1906, and I ask for your hearty co-operation in building up the dairy industry.

While we have had such a splendid season, I think this would be a good time to urge all makers to attend our dairy school at Kingston, which has been greatly enlarged and improved, with a competent staff in charge, where the latest and best instruction is given. I would like to urge all factories to join our syndicate system and assist us to make a uniform high quality of goods everywhere in Eastern Ontario. While a large number of factories are good and well equipped, we still have a large number not fit to make cheese in, and where finest goods cannot be made. We must improve our factories for no business in Canada rests on a more solid foundation, and why our factories should not be first class buildings, well painted, clean and tidy, with proper drainage, no one can explain. Why should shade trees not be planted and the grounds around the factory made beautiful. Possibly I can explain why, because the makers of our cheese are the only ones that are not properly paid. A large number of our best men are quitting the business. While the milk producers are prosperous this last year, our manufacturers are poorer, having more to pay for labor, fuel and furnishings. Why not give them one and a quarter cents for making and demand better boxes and a better service. We appointed a committee to report on licensing factories, and I hope their report will be favorable, so we can demand a good factory or close it up.

The Canadian Dairyman has been doing good work showing up some of our poor factories, and I trust they will continue. This is the official organ and every chairman should take it. With our past experience, with the full knowledge that the production of cheese and butter and the bacon pig is the one industry exactly suited to Eastern Ontario, all our energies should be directed to improve the quality and increase the quantity of our goods.

And now, gentlemen, with our present opportunities for education and instruction, there will be no excuse for having an ordinary maker, for they are dear at any price; or having an old open factory resting in the mud, with no drainage, or not having modern machinery, or not delivering your cheese to the station in clean wagons, with proper covers to keep the cheese or butter clean, or not doing everything in your power to make the watchword for 1906 cleanliness, and improvement all along the line.

I have looked forward to this 29th annual convention to be held in your enterprising city with great pleasure. Your schools, your churches and public buildings are very handsome; your press, bankers, merchants and manufacturers are up to date, and I predict a great future for you. Our business here is to bring prominently before your minds our great national industry, and I trust we will have a profitable time.

Once more let me urge hearty co-operation in Eastern Ontario among all our dairymen, and make one supreme effort the coming season and take hold earnestly and make the needed improvements, so we can step right out of the way of any of our competitors, by making and placing on the market regularly, the finest goods in the world. We can do this by all working together.

We have a fine program and excellent staff of speakers, and I trust this will be the most important dairy meeting ever held in the Province.

The President appointed the following

Committees:

Business—Mayor Best, Warden Buck, R. R. Hall, M.P., T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., and R. G. Murphy.

Nominations—J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., Wm. Eager, and James Whitton.

Legislation—Edward Kidd, R. G. Murphy, R. R. Hall, M.P., T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., and Wm. Eager.

Mr. Derbyshire's speech was enthusiastically received, he being a fluent, persuasive and witty speaker. His reference to the Canadian dairymen's great success at the Chicago World's Fair, where Canada took 96 per cent. of the prizes, was received with great applause. Mr. Derbyshire's clinching argument, "And don't you forget it," usually was received with laughter or applause.

Mr. C. W. Whitley, the next speaker, who is connected with the Ottawa Experimental Farm, with a nice English accent, spoke first on the importance of Canada's dairy herds. In 1904 some testing was done with dairy cows in the Province of Quebec, when some 1,100 cows were tested. Mr. Whitley had a large illustrated diagram, showing the cows tested at various points in Prince Edward County. This showed the number of cows belonging to various men in the county, the relative merits and increase of production in each man's herd during tests made. A cow should not be condemned simply because her supply of milk seems short; the amount of fat substance should be considered.

Mr. Whitley next exhibited a diagram showing the same cows, grouped according to breeds.

Mr. Whitley continued by saying that there was a difference between the highest grade and lowest grade Jerseys of 73 pounds in returns per year.

The whole question for the dairyman, as he looks over his herd, is this. "Does each individual cow make money for me?" He cited two poor examples at a Pennsylvania experimental farm, where several hundred cows showed, on test, an actual loss; in Vermont there were also many losers as such tests. Every farmer in Canada should be interested in the individual profit or loss of each of his cows. The average supply of every cow in Canada can, by proper methods, be doubled by one year by application of proper system.

The speaker then produced a spring balance scale, and advised dairymen to get one for any $1.50 and weigh his milk at various times. When 20 farmers will gather together for three days in each month, take samples of their milk and send it to the department they, the department officials, would make a free test and send the returns.

The thing to do with a poor cow, to take her out and have some target practice, get rid of her some way or any way.

In Denmark, a bleak country, with a sandy, lumpy soil, washed by the cold waters of the Baltic and German oceans, they have, owing to intelligent co-operation of some 1,000 dairying stations, about 9,000 farmers, have the milk of over 500,000 cows tested, which gives milk and butter returns far exceeding those of this country.

One farmer in Cowansville, who is now doing his own testing, has in a few years more than doubled the average receipts from his cows.

Mr. Whitley concluded with some very practical, and in many instances, new hints in the dairying business.

Among those present at the morning session were: D. Derbyshire, M.P., Brockville; J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., Elgin; L. L. Gallagher, Wilton; J. H. Singleton, Newburg; Wm. Eager, Marysburg; Levi Patton, Brockville; Jas Whitton, Belmont's Corners; Henry Glendenning, Manilla; R. G. Murphy, Brockville; Morden Bird, Stirling; Wm C. Coo, London, Ont.; H. G. Somerville, Brockville, J. H. Grisdale, Ottawa, and others.

After a few remarks by President Derbyshire, the meeting then adjourned for dinner.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. Grisdale, of the Ottawa Agricultural Farm, who is a very able and convincing speaker, gave an address that was earnestly listened to. During his remarks on that important subject, important of course, to all dairymen the cow, Mr. Grisdale said;

The true test of a cow is her full 12 months record; he has known a cow giv 2,000 pounds of milk in two months, but fall off badly the rest of the year.

It does not count alone to have a good breed of a cow, we must know the full history of a cow, so as not to go possible "scrubs."

He continued that Mr. Whitley spoke in the morning on the same subject, so he would only say a few words more. One point which Mr. Whitley did not touch on is keeping a record of each time a cow is milked so as to get the daily record. If the supply of milk daily is reduced, there is a reason which must be discovered.

One man named Gray, had been mentioned, by Mr. Whitley, whose cow returned $33 per year, and afterwards $77.

Hired men are apt, if a half pound or a pound of milk is in doubt to give the benefit to the cow, which is likely to give false returns.

MR. GLENDENNING SPEAKS.

Mr. Glendenning, a director of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association was then introduced by Mr. Derbshire.

Mr. Glendenning, already described as one of Canada's most successful farmers, a large framed man, who spoke right to the point, said the test in selecting a dairy cow was the annual amount of milk she gives. Unfortunately farmers do not keep a record of the best cows; the ones they want to get rid of they don't keep records of. If you select twelve cows for milk and twelve cows for beef, those selected for the first purpose would be found to give the most milk. In purchasing a dairy cow, do not get too close, get about 25 feet away when inspecting her. Get right in front of the cow and examine her head and breast, which ought to be large. You do not want them so wide between the legs. A good big strong mouth that can take in a good supply of grass, and large nostrils to take in good amounts of air as she feels is wanted. She should be wide between the eyes. A large brain development is requisite, as the milk is dependent upon the nerve force on the blood. A heavy dew-lap is not wanted. The back bone should be strong and the cow should be long along that part of the system. The udder should run well up behind and well forward along the abdomen. The skin should hang in loose folds. In the dairy cow the arch above the udder should be high. The udder should be covered with soft skin, showing the veins. The speaker then explained the milk veins. A very large cow is not necessarily desirable for dairy purposes. The cow's skin should not be too thick, and should be soft and covered with a soft silky hair.

The most important feature altogether is a large mouth and nostrils. A member in the audience then asked "How about the tail." (Laughter). The speaker, Mr. Glendenning, said the tail should not be too thick, and should be long.

REGARDING FEED.

Grass is the best and cheapest food for dairy cows; bran, pea, meal, clover, hay, fresh water and salt are all good. These latter however, are taken away when cow goes to grass, and she is still better off. We should try the winter time to get as near summer conditions as possible, viz., as to fresh air, and cleanliness. One of the first things to consider is the stable. Have heat, curry comb and brush, and give the cow succulent food as near the summer food as possible. To do this, we can give them corn silage, perhaps the cheapest. Feed does not affect the quality so much as the quality of the butter fat in the milk. Several questions from the audience were asked as to the effect of feed upon richness of milk. As before noted the speaker explained that feed affected quantity not quality of milk, thus the quality was dependent upon the individuality of the cow.

The speaker then by a diagram showed the various kinds of food given cows and their relative values upon the various elements of the cow; this showed how each food would say make bone, protein, milk etc. Foods containing that which goes to make fat are perhaps the best for milk.

It is a mistake that all Jerseys give rich milk, and Holsteins poor. This is not always true.

A delegates then asked how farmers, having turnips, can feed them with the least amount of damage to the milk. Mr. Glendenning replied he does not know how to feed turnips without putting turnips butter, unless the turnips are boiled, and this very few farmers would do. It is better to raise mangles which do not taint the milk.

This speaker was evidently in thorough sympathy with his subject and knows what can be learned about cows and the dairy business.

EVENING SESSION.

Last night the main floor of the opera house was comfortably filled and the first gallery about half. Many ladies graced the assemblage with their presence.

President Derbyshire again filled the chair. On the stage were Messrs. Derbyshire, president; R. R. Hall, M. P.; T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., Mayor Best, and other prominent local citizens.

Messrs. Bradburn and Hall both gave short addresses of welcome, to each came alothed in appropriate words to the delegates.

Mayor Best's address of welcome referred to the great and important interests involved in the Dairymen's Association. Peterboro feels honored by their presence. We all recognize the importance of the dairying interests. The past year has been the most successful in Canada's history of dairying. He referred to the educational and moral impulse to progress from the Eastern Dairymen's Association. Our dairies, and especially cheese is now taking a prominent place in the markets of Europe. He hoped the present convention would result in a great boon in the dairying interests of Canada.

Mr. Dargavel, M.P.P., replied to the Mayor's welcome, and expressed the pleasure all felt at being in this young city.

Mr. Creelman, President O. A. C., briefly referred to the difference between the Canadian and the American young man, his comparison being strongly in favor of his native land. Canadian girls who go to the States as trained nurses are far superior to the American nurses.

Also, agricultural times, Ontario has done more in recent years, than any other portion of the globe.

The farmers of this Province in the past ten years have doubled their output by using modern methods.

In 1905, 1040 students attended the Guelph Agricultural College. The great majority of the students have largely been the means of the farmers' great success.

At the Agricultural College, a department has been added to teach girls and women how to carry on the home work of a farmer's home.

A handful of Minnetamia barley was brought to the college for experimental purposes. Now the product of this barley, which produces from four to five times as much crops as the ordinary barley, is now sowed in half a million acres. The same thing is now being done with mangels and other roots, not turnips. (Laughter).

The Ontario experimental farms have greatly assisted the farmers. Is this the end? Should we sit down and rest? No! (Much laughter).

Nothing in the old or the new world is too good for Ontario. There has been much agitation over the betterment of our butter and cheese, made in Ontario factories. In the speaker's opinion, the inspection of factories should be along sanitary lines. If sanitary instructors be appointed, they should not act as informers.

Our Public school system is good but obsolete. In country school's boys should be taught matters of practical uses, viz., the difference between fruits, soils, the principles of cultivation. Why must we wait for this sort of things, why not go home and start it now "Why you say, perhaps, you are now paying your teachers $250 a year, and this would raise your taxes." (Much laughter).

Every time he sees fruit delivered at a platform, he thinks "O Lord how long, how long will it be before we have co-operation.

The speaker explained the co-operation theory by saying that more iron is now produced than ever before, still iron is as dear as ever; why is this? Because there is co-operation.

Thanking those present for their hearing, the speaker gracefully withdrew.

Mr. Derbyshire then made one of his customary humorous speeches, saying among other things, that many of our dear little girls are ready enough to marry the men but not to learn how to cook a loaf of bread for them. (Laughter).

The orchestra then played an excellent selection. After which Mr. Derbyshire introduced Hon. Mr. Monteith, saying in his dry witty way, "Mr. Monteith has given us money and helped us, and we love him, yes we love him. (Much laughter).

The Hon. Minister of Agriculture, in a measured and thoughtful speech referred to his connection with, and beginning of his knowledge of the dairying business.

He remembered well when the hot iron test was in daily use, when he used to be connect to the factories. Years afterwards, when he went to the Agricultural College, under the eye of Prof. Robertson, he got more practical knowledge of the business.

The dairying business has done more than anything else to put the farmers on their feet. In this splendid portion of this Province we have one great essential to successful dairying, pure water.

That fluid has much to do with the good dairy products of Ontario. The hon gentleman referred to Peterboro as the Electrical City. It is for the farmers today to look well into the future, so more properly be able to supply the urban population of the Province.

We here as agriculturists must try to maintain our sturdy artisans by producing a superior quality of farm products.

He feels that a vast responsibility, owing to his connection with the agricultural department, rest on him and his assistants. He then spoke of the constant and progressive efforts to advance agriculture. Today we are not dependent upon our American cousins for instruction in the dairying industry. Canada has no good exponents of this industry as any country in the world.

Mr. Derbyshire and others like him came to him (the minister) and asked for more assistance towards the dairying industry. The speaker then referred kindly to the splendid services given by those the department has helped.

When the graduating class of Guelph College, were going out to give their valuable assistance to the producers, he advised them to go to the homes of the farmers and assist them.

Any increase in price, even though but two cents a pound in butter means in the aggregate an enormous sum to the country, and is so much money saved.

These meetings, such as the present convention, are of the most importance, and should be attended by all within possible reach.

He then went on to speak of the riches of the Cobalt districts, saying that all the wealth of that gold portion of the country was insignificent as compared with the recent rise in value of dairy products. The products of the mines, the forests, and the fisheries together do not amount to as much as Canada's agricultural products.

It is the desire of the Toronto Government to assist communities that are willing to help themselves.

Mr. Monteith then paid a good tribute to Peterboro's success as a manufacturing center. He could see no reason why, in the years to come, Peterboro should not advance rapidly in the councils of Canada.

Amid loud applause Hon. Mr. Monteith took his seat.

Mr. T. R. Grimshe in splendid voice gave first a methetic story in song and then one that brought tears of laughter to all faces. Further proceedings will be given in to-morrow's issue.

NEW TELEPHONE MANAGER

Mr. Geo. F. Jackson Now in Charge of Bell Tel. Co. Port Hope

The many friends in this city of Mr. George F. Jackson, lately on Mr. Doo's staff in the local Bell Telephone office, will be pleased to learn that he has now succeeded Mr. W. J. Costello as manager of the Port Hope branch.

Mr. Costello has been promoted to the management of the Sarnia branch.

The Port Hope Guide referring to Mr. Costello's promotion said to his successor says in part.

He has many friends in Port Hope during six years' residence and though he has worked hard in the interests of the Bell Telephone Company and has been the means of largely extending the service, still the subscribers will be sorry to lose him and sporting circles will also certainly miss his enthusiasm.

Mr. George F. Jackson, of Peterboro, has been appointed manager here and Mr. James A. Brown, who was for a couple of years at this exchange, has been appointed manger at Cobourg. Both Mr. Jackson and Cobourg were under Mr. Costello's charge so it would appear that the company's business has been growing when it necessitates the appointment of two managers to take Mr. Costello's work or else Mr. Costello was unusually busy. We wish Mr. Costello success in his new issue at Sarnia, to which place he goes on Wednesday.

George Street Church Recital

Mr. Arthur Ingham's organ recital in the George street Methodist church Monday night was not only a success as regards the excellent music furnished by this talented musician, but proved that the new organ is one of rare tone and volume.

The selections rendered by Mr. Ingham were of a high class, including W. Faulkes' "Concert Overture" in E flat, Guilmants' "Cantilene" in E flat, Sebastian Bach's G Minor Fugue, Lemare's beautiful madrigal in D flat, a new composition, and a splendid allegretto, Scherzando in B flat, composed by Mr. Ingham himself. Rossi's "Caprice," in B flat, was perhaps the most popular number of the evening. His concluding number was the bracketed Gavotte, in E flat, by Ingham, and Grison's "Grand Chocur Triomphale."

Star of the East Mining Co. Stockholders Met in S. O. E. Hall

Yesterday morning an important and well attended meeting of shareholders in the Star of the East Mining Co. in the Sons of England Hall, with President J. K. Dale, of Franklin, Pa. in the chair.

Mr. Dale explained that the meeting had been called to raise a mortgage of $25,000, to be used in development work at the mines. It was proposed, in order to keep all the profits from the mine for the benefit of the stockholders, that each stock holder pay two per cent. of his present holdings of shares in cash. As a bonus the company are offering four shares free for every dollar thus invested. This mortgage must be paid off before any profits or dividends are declared by the company, and by the stock holders putting up the $25,000 they will receive all the benefits instead of an outside firm.

The stock holders present passed a by-law accepting the proposition, and it is believed that the directors will have no trouble whatever in raising the necessary money.

A meeting of the directors was held during the afternoon to deal more fully into ways and means.

Among the officers and directors present were, President J. K. Dale, Franklin, Pa.; George F. Smith, Vice-President, Pittsburg; John R. Steele, Secretary-Treasurer, Oil City, Pa; F. J. Cowein, mine superintendent; F. E. Copeland, assistant secretary, at the mines; and Directors Thos. Hewlett, Pittsburg; Henry Lahrey, Pittsburg; C. M. Conad, Oil City.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the bow of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; thus the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to wind or waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James R. Whitney of Boston, when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that no heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances can be introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

HOCKEY.

The Port Hope Guide thus explains the victory gained by the blue and white bunch of hustlers from this city;

The Lacrosse season opened here last evening with a game between the Peterboro seven and the locals and as was expected, the visitors won, the score being 8—4. The home team were without practice and it was the first time on skates this year for a number of them. Considering this they made a most favorable showing and when in condition they should give Peterboro or any other intermediate team quite a lively game.

For the first five or ten minutes they put up a fast article of hockey, but after that the pace grew too lively and they fell away. Then the forwards were all over the ice and they lacked that system of play which generally results in goals. Their shooting too was very reckless and time after time they missed easy chances.

However, all this was due to lack of practice and with a week or two of solid practice they should be able to hold their own with the best of them.

Last night the City Hockey League met in the Oriental Hotel, with a large attendance present. Important business was transacted, the main feature of which was the formation of a new constitution and bylaws. A full report will appear in tomorrow's issue, being unfortunately crowded out of today's paper.

INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION

How Food Headed off the Insidious Disease.

The happy wife of a good old-fashioned Mich. farmer says:

"In the spring of 1903, I was taken sick—a general breaking down, as it were. I was excessively nervous, could not sleep well at night, my food seemed to do me no good, and I was so weak I could scarcely walk across the room.

"The doctor said my condition was due to overwork and close confinement and that he very much feared that consumption would set in. For several months I took one kind of medicine after another, but with no good effect—in fact, I seemed to grow worse.

"Then I determined to quit all medicines, give up coffee and use what Grape-Nuts food would do for me. I began to eat Grape-Nuts with sugar and cream and bread and butter three times a day.

"The effect was surprising! I began to gain flesh and strength forthwith, my nerves quieted down and grew normally steady and sound, sweet sleep came back to me. In six weeks' time I discharged the hired girl and commenced to do my own housework for a family of six. This was two years ago, and I am doing it still, and enjoy it." NON-COMS. AT HOME

Brilliant Gathering in Foresters Hall, a Great Success

Last night Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street was the scene of one of the largest and most successful military gatherings, I verily has ever been. Some two hundred friends and relatives of the gallant noncommissioned officers of our local crack regiment, gathered to tip it fully on the well founded floor of the vast hall room, adjoining the cosy C.O.F. lodge rooms.

The boys in their full dress uniforms, scarlet and sashes, many wearing the coveted North-West, and South African medals, on breasts that must have swelled with pride over the success of their regimental function, were excellent hosts, and many a fair maid will remember with unconscious blushes over her triumphs of last night, the non-com's "at home."

The large hall room, beautifully decorated by Mr. Kingsoote, was a blaze of colors, the National flag, as was consistent with a military evening, being everywhere in evidence, and displayed to great advantage.

The guests began to gather about 8.30, and were received by Sergts-Major Brittain, Col.-Sergt. Sturgeon, and others in the large and handsomely furnished lodge room.

Never did the Canadian Beaver and the stuffed deer, in the lodge-room look down upon a more happy and brilliant event.

Among the guests were noted, D. O.C. Col Young, D. Kingston; Col. Miller of 57th Regt., and staff; Lt.-Col. Edwards, and other officers of the Regiment.

The dancing, which included a program of some 19 dances, with five extras, was most enjoyable, the floor being in splendid condition, the room good and spacious, and the music, supplied by the Misses Hurley, was good in every respect.

Those who did not care to dance, helped the fleeting hours to disappear by friendly games of cards in an adjoining room.

The supper, served by Mr. T. Hooper, was in the usual class supplied by this well known caterer, of the finest. The dancing was kept up until about 12.45, the hosts deciding that a successful "at home" lay rather in quality than in tiring their guests out. All present expressed great pleasure over their evening and unanimously voted the 57th Regt. non-coms. as model hosts.

MID WINTER REUNION

Large Attendance Met Dr. Fisher of New York at Y. M. C. A.

The Y.M.C.A. gymnasium athletes and others of the association held a most successful mid-winter's social reunion in their parlors on Tuesday evening. It might be mentioned that the gymnasium class opens tomorrow night.

The guest of the evening was Dr. Geo. Fisher, of New York city, who has charge of the physical department of the International committee of the Y.M.C.A. Those who attended the gathering were introduced to Dr. Fisher by Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards, president of the association.

Before the gathering dispersed, refreshments were served and a pleasant half-hour spent in social converse.

HEALTH FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Emma Daigle of Moncton N B., Sends an open Letter to All Sufferers.

Most women are tired when they wake up. Housework drags along with great difficulty. Nervousness is always present, headaches seldom depart, tears are ever ready to flow.

But there is a cure, a true specific for women's ills that restored a prominent lady in Moncton, Mrs. Daigle, who tells the following experience:

"About a year ago I had a serious sickness, sort of a general breakdown. My digestion failed entirely and I was able to eat but very little. I took violent stomach pains and suffered terribly from headaches. My doctor said it was "nerve exhaustion" and I might never be well. My troubles increased, for as I grew weaker I became subject to neuralgia and rheumatism. Sleep finally forsook me and I almost lost heart. Different medicines didn't help. Doctors couldn't do me any good. I was desperate when I heard of Ferrozone. The first box convinced me it was just what I needed. It toned up my stomach, gave me a splendid appetite and then my recovery seemed easier. Ferrozone increased my weight several pounds, has restored my nerves, given me a good color and strength such as I never had before. For the weak and sickly I can truthfully recommend Ferrozone." (Signed) Emma Daigle.

REMEMBER: No mere stimulant or alcoholic concoction can take the loss of the nerve and blood nourishment contained in Ferrozone. This true tonic always does what is claimed for it. Sold everywhere in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

FAMINE AND WAR.

One of the conditions which favored Japan in the war with Russia was the bountiful harvest of 1904. Had the crops in Japan been poor the burden of taxation would have been much heavier, and foreign loans would have been more difficult to secure, while domestic loans would have been greatly curtailed.

This year Japan is suffering from the efects of a crop failure so serious that famine is reported in the northern islands, while even in the richer southern islands the soldiers returning from the field find their families often enduring the greatest privations. This year's famine would have been such a handicap to warlike operations that while Japan might still have gone forward to victory after victory it would only have been at a cost which would have weakened the nation for decades, perhaps, to come.

In view of these facts we can easily see how wise the Mikado and his advisers were in concluding peace at Portsmouth, even though on terms which were less satisfactory than what the world thought was Japan's due. It is impossible to say that Russia won even a diplomatic victory over Japan. Japan won the victory at Portsmouth, not merely in a moral [illegible], but by wisely recognizing her own limitations and refusing to imperil her future welfare to secure something more than what her present strength, the coming famine being recognized, would entitle her to.

It is true that with a revolution at home to face Russia would have been more seriously handicapped than Japan with the famine. But it is now apparent that a great mistake was made by those who feared that peace meant the end of the revolutionary movement. More probable is it that while war showed the revolutionists the weakness of the government over them, without peace the full forces of the uprising would have been postponed. The penalty might have been heavier on Russia in the end, but the great storm at home would probably not have broken while the war lasted.

HAVE SNAKE DIVINITIES

Fantastic Forms of Worship on Southwest Coast of India.

Serpent worship and the propitiation of snake divinities, which once spread all over Asia, still maintain a tenacious hold on the little native states of Cochin and Travancore, on the southwest coast of India. Here Hindoos high and low revere the cobra as they did a thousand years ago, and it is considered a heinous crime to injure the reptile or neglect its interests.

In the district of Travancore alone there are between 15,000 and 20,000 shrines dedicated exclusively to the worship of snakes which possess extensive and valuable properties for their maintenance and for the cost of the ceremonies which the keepers have to perform from time to time.

In these shrines the Hindoos set down fantastic idols of serpents on a stone base, and the shrine is protected by a mud wall. Householders to assure their welfare should make offerings of dough, milk and cooked rice to the serpentine habitues of the shrine and place lights and chant hymns in order to be assured of their favor.

Every morning the king and queen of the serpents are bathed, and fruit and milk are offered to them, to be followed at noon by cooked rice and fried grain. On certain days the idols in grove and household temple are carried in procession to the house, where propitiatory offerings are made. The presiding functionary must be the eldest female member of the family, who has to practice celibacy from the day she attains the position.

At famous snake festivals at Travancore pious folk gather from all parts to join in the worship, bringing offerings of gold, silver, grain, pepper, spices, oil, sandalwood, silk and other things. The cost of the festivals is defrayed by the revenues of the paddy fields and gardens attached to the shrines. It is believed that unless the ceremonies are conducted with reverence the largest cobras of the grove will come out and show themselves to the members of the house. The natives also believe that snake bites in the neighborhood of these shrines never prove fatal. Be that as it may, deaths from snake bites are very rare, though many groves contain as many as thirty cobras and the shrines in Travancore number between fifteen and twenty thousand.

The snakes of India are rarely aggressive, but generally keep to themselves, and, being so kindly treated and benevolently attended, it is not astonishing that they become docile and harmless. All over Travancore the people when they see a snake approaching say, "The god is coming," and make way for the divinity. Children play fearlessly about the groves while their serpentine friends are gliding about or basking in the sun and have never been known to be harmed. When the groves become overrun with serpents the surplus population is removed and sent to other shrines, certain pious Brahmans being especially applied to for this purpose.

Soluble Glass.

Soluble glass, or water glass, as it is sometimes called, is an artificial silicate of sodium or potassium or a double silicate of both of these alkalis, and thus in its essential ingredients the same as ordinary glass. But ordinary glass is to a slight extent soluble in water, owing to the alkali which it contains, and by varying the proportion of the alkaline constituents the compound becomes readily soluble to any desired degree. Attention was first directed to it by Fuchs, a German chemist, about 1824. It has been used to some extent, and quite successfully, in preventing the decay of stone walls and edifices under the action of the weather. The surface is covered with a coating of a suitable solution, and, the water soon evaporating, a thin, transparent glaze is left over the stone, effectually protecting it from the disintegrating action of the atmosphere. Several public buildings in various parts of the world have been successfully treated in this way.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

"It would have meant certain death to have been anything else," she answered. My father will be indeed grateful to you when he hears of your bravery. I am his only child, and if anything were to happen to me I don't think he would survive the shock."

"I am very grateful to Providence for having given me such an opportunity of averting so terrible a sorrow," I said. "But I fear, like everyone else, you attach too much importance to what I did. I simply acted as any other decent man would have done had he been placed in a similar position."

"You do not do yourself justice," she said. "But, at any rate, you have the satisfaction of knowing, if it is any satisfaction to you, that Agnes Maybourne owes her life to you, and that she will never forget the service you have rendered her."

The conversation was growing embarrassing, so I turned it into another channel as soon as possible. At the same time I wanted to find out something which had been puzzling me ever since I had first seen her face, and that was where I had met her before. When I put the question she looked at me in surprise.

"Do you know, Mr. Wrexford," she said, "that I was going to ask you that self-same question? And for rather a strange reason. On the night before we sailed, you must understand, I was sleeping at the house of an aunt who lives a few miles outside Southampton. I went to bed at ten o'clock, after a rather exciting day, feeling tired. Almost as soon as my head was upon the pillow I fell asleep, and did not wake again until about half-past twelve o'clock, when I suddenly found myself wide awake sitting up in bed, with a man's pale and agonized face staring at me from the opposite wall. For a few moments I thought I must be still asleep and dreaming, or else seeing a phantom. Almost before I could have counted five it faded away, and I saw no more of it. From that time forward, like yourself, I was haunted with the desire to remember if I had ever seen the man's face before, and, if so, where. You may imagine my surprise, therefore, when I found the owner of it sitting before me on the hatch of the very steamer that was to take me to South Africa. Can you account for it?"

"Not in the least," I answered. "Mine was very much the same sort of experience, only that I was wide awake and driving down a prosaic London street when it happened. I, too, was endeavoring to puzzle it out the other day when I looked up and found you standing on the deck above me. It seems most uncanny."

"It may have been a warning from Providence to us which we have not the wit to understand."

"A warning it certainly was," I said truthfully, but hardly in the fashion she meant. "And one of the most extraordinary ever vouchsafed to mortal man."

"A fortunate one for me," she answered with a smile, and then offering me her dainty little hand, she bade me "good-bye," and went up the steps again to the hurricane deck.

From that time forward I saw a good deal of Miss Maybourne; so much so that we soon found ourselves upon comparatively intimate terms. Though I believe to others she was inclined to be a little haughty, to me she was invariably kindness and courtesy itself. Nothing could have been more pleasant than her manner when we were together; and you may be very sure, after all that I had lately passed through, I could properly appreciate her treatment of me. To be taken out of my miserable state of depression, and, after so many years of ill-fortune, to be treated with consideration and respect, made me feel towards her as I had never done towards a woman in my life before. I could have fallen at her feet and kissed her shoes in gratitude for the luxury of my conversation with her. It was the luckiest chance for both of us when I went aft that night to see that photograph in the second officer's cabin. Had I not been there I should in all probability never have heard Miss Maybourne's shriek as she went over the side, and in that case she would most certainly have been drowned; for I knew that, unaided and weighed down by her wet clothes as she was, she could never have kept afloat till the boat reached her. Strange as it may seem, I could not help deriving a sort of satisfaction from this thought.

It was evident that my refusal to accept the captain's kind offer to take possession, for the rest of the voyage, of the vacant berth aft, had created a little surprise among the passengers. Still, I believe it prejudiced the majority in my favor. At any rate, I soon discovered that my humble position forrard was to make no sort of difference in their treatment of me; and many an enjoyable pipe I smoked, and twice as many talks I had with one and another, sitting on the cable range, or leaning over the bows watching the vessel's nose cutting its way through the clear green water.

One morning, after breakfast, I was forrard watching the effect just mentioned, and, as usual, thinking what my sensations would be if I should be arrested at Teneriffe, when I heard footsteps behind me. On looking round I discovered Miss Maybourne and the skipper coming towards me.

"Good morning, Mr. Wrexford," said the former, holding out her hand. "What a constant student of nature you are, to be sure. Every morning lately I have seen you standing where you are now, looking across the sea. My curiosity could hold out no longer, so this morning I asked Captain Hawkins to escort me up here in order that I might ask you what you see.

"I'm afraid you will hardly be repaid for your trouble, Miss Maybourne," I answered with a smile, as the captain after shaking hands with me and wishing me good morning, left us to speak to one of the officers who had come forrard in search of him.

"But surely you must see something—King Neptune, or at least a mermaid," she persisted. "You are always watching the water."

"Perhaps I do see something," I answered bitterly. "Yes; I think you are right. When I look over the sea like that I am watching a man's wasted life. I see him starting on his race with everything in his favor that the world can give. I see a school career of mediocrity, and a university life devoid of any sort of success; I can see a continuity of profitless wanderings about the world in the past, and I am beginning to believe that I can make out another just commencing. Disgrace behind and disgrace ahead; I think that is the picture I have before me when I look across the sea, Miss Maybourne. It is an engrossing, but hardly a pretty one, is it?"

"You are referring to your own life, I suppose?" she said, quietly. "Well, all I can say is that, from what I have seen of you, I should consider that you are hardly the man to do yourself justice."

"God forbid," I answered. "If I were to do that it would be impossible for me to live. No; I endeavor, as far as I am able, to forget what my past has been."

She approached a step closer to me, and placed her little white hand on my arm as it lay on the bulwark before her.

Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $18,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $97.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

W. B. FLODING, Vice-President Oxarna Mining Company.

CURES CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

One Week's Use of Hyomei Did More Than Six Months' Treatment By Specialists.

In the treatment of deafness which is often the result of catarrh, Hyomei acts almost immediately upon the inflamed membrane and the hearing begins to return at once.

Miss Meeks of Mattawan, N. Y., says: "Hyomei is truly wonderful, I have used it but a short time and see a great change in my condition. My hearing is improving rapidly and I had no idea I would improve so rapidly in so short a time. My breath which was very offensive to myself and others, has lost its bad odor entirely. I have spent a great deal of money with catarrh specialists, and can truly say that six months of their treatment is not equal to one month of Hyomei.

A complete outfit costs but $1.00, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler will last a lifetime and there is enough Hyomei for several weeks' treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50 cents. Compare this small expenditure with the fees charged by specialists.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write today for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

POLICE COURT NEWS

A young man, whose clothing bore evidence of his trade, that of handling flour, pleaded guilty to having, on January 8th, committed a common nuisance, to wit, by spitting on the floor of the Grand Opera House.

The magistrate delivered a long address, saying that the opera house, a fine new building, a legal resort of ladies and gentlemen, must not be rendered filthy by tobacco spit.

He intimated that such an offence is punishable with imprisonment, but as this is the first case of its kind in the city, he would only fine him $5; should anyone else be proven guilty of a similar offence, he would impose a very heavy penalty.

The young man asked to say a few words. He said he had only spit three or four times, and in the same place, when his attention was called to it: he then quit. He had tried to fix things up with Mr. Bradburn and Officer Miller, and do what was right, but they would not listen to him.

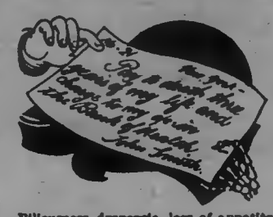
The magistrate said a fine like this was not so much in the nature of a punishment as to warn others. He would not reduce the fine, and would make it hot for anyone else committing a similar offence. The court then adjourned.

Fred Grevelle, the Bridgenorth man who was arrested on a charge of stealing $6 from Robert Middlemiss was discharged by P.M. Dumble. Grevelle said that he had no intention of stealing the money which was refunded to Middlemiss. Each paid half of the costs.

Opera House Rain Fall

Did you hear some of the remarks passed yesterday by the Toronto reporters. As they sat at the reportorial table on the stage, about every 17 seconds a drop of cold water would fall from the roof on to that little bald spot, which sprung from too literary a career. When the drops did not find the bald spot they would nicely blot out what one had written. Actresses in full dress or the exact reverse must find this limited shower bath hard on the nervous system.

—Those wild to skate go at All Saints' rink every afternoon and evening, weather permitting.



Biliousness, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, disturbed sleep, nervousness, headache, giddiness and drowsiness, wind and pain or fullness of the stomach after meals, cold chills and flushings of heat, shortness of breath—these are the blank cheques of physical bankruptcy.

The man who suffers from these disorders and neglects them will soon be in the relentless grasp of some fatal disease. If he is naturally narrow chested and shallow lunged, it will probably be consumption; if his father or mother died of paralysis or some nervous trouble, it will probably be nervous exhaustion or prostration; or worse—paralysis. If there is a taint in the family blood, it will be blood or skin disease; if he lives in a new or a low, swampy country, it will be malaria; if he lives a life of exposure, it may be rheumatism. There is one safe course for a man to follow who finds himself "out of sorts" and suffering from the symptoms described. It is to resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine makes the appetite keen, corrects all disorders of the digestion, renders assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and builds firm, healthy flesh and nerve tissue. It cures almost all diseases that result from insufficient or improper nourishment of the brain and nerves. Bronchial, throat, and even lung affections, when not too far advanced, readily yield to it.

A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Don't let a selfish seller over-persuade you to accept a substitute for these Original Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce over 40 years ago. Flesh imitated but never equaled.

CITIZENS GENERALLY TAKING GREAT INTEREST IN DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION

Extensive Information Given About Every Branch of the Dairy Business

Eloquent Addresses By Some of Canada's Most Able Exponents of the Industry.

Yesterday was really the piece de resistance in the great mental banquet served by the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association to the many hundreds of delegates hungry for information along the lines of instruction during the present convention.

Yesterday morning the grand opera house was crowded to the doors on the ground floor with a goodly number of leading officials, speakers and reporters on the stage.

Mr. Derbyshire, president of the association, of course occupied the chair, both in his official capacity, mentally, wittily and physically. He congratulated the audience upon the good attendance of those present, and then introduced Mr. Barr, chief instructor W.D. association.

Mr. Barr a fluent and pleasing speaker, in opening his address, said it gave him great pleasure to meet the dairymen of Eastern Ontario and expressed regret that he was unable to attend the convention last year. He extended a hearty invitation to the dairymen of Eastern Ontario to attend the convention of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association at Ingersoll next week.

When Mr. Barr had finished his boquet handing, and got down to real business, he said the greatest question confronting the dairy industry today was getting the milk and cream to the cheese factories and creameries in good condition. There was too much foolish competition among makers. Tainted milk was taken in by makers because they were afraid they would lose a patron. Until this condition of affairs was remedied the work of the dairy instructors would be largely in vain. The maker should discriminate at the weigh-stand and reject any milk that was not of first-class quality.

Another important point which a cheesemaker should know, was the proper use of a "culture" or "starter." Unless a maker used the right kind of a starter it was almost impossible to have a uniform quality of cheese during the entire season.

The cooking of the curd was another important point in making cheese. The cooking of the curd said Mr. Barr, was three-quarters of the process of making cheese. If the part of the operations required in the making of cheese was attended to there was little danger of the cheese being bad, if the milk used in the manufacture of same was of good quality. Mr. Barr made a strong plea for more co-operation among dairymen. The success of the business depended upon this.

President Derbyshire then introduced Mr. G G. Publow, chief of the Ontario Dairy Instructors, whose headquarters are at Kingston.

Mr. Derbyshire, in a few well chosen words, referred to the splendid work being done by the instructors, and the practical benefit gained from their extended knowledge, so ably conveyed to dairymen.

Mr. Publow, who is a young man for so important a position, well condones for his seeming lack of years by an evident limitless knowledge of his subject.

REPORT OF DAIRY INSTRUCTION IN EASTERN ONTARIO.

Mr. Publow said: I take pleasure in presenting my third annual report, as Chief of the Dairy Instructors for Eastern Ontario. The work of instruction was conducted along the same lines as that of last year. A circular letter was issued setting forth the object of instruction and this, together with an application form, was sent to all the factory managers, from whom in response some 650 applications were received. This was an increase in number over that of last year, and made it necessary to arrange the factories into 36 groups. All of the staff of instructors employed in 1904 were re-engaged except Messrs. Morton, Hall, Coad and Ireland, who had accepted other positions. Mr. Thos. Thompson, a former instructor, was engaged to fill the vacancy made by Mr. Morton; Mr. Warren Dool took the place of Mr. Ireland, and on the recommendation of the people of Lancaster, Mr. E. Wilkinson was engaged to take the place of Mr. Coad; while the new group formed at Chesterville was placed under the charge of Mr. L. A. Zufelt, who was also a former instructor, and Mr. D. J. Cameron to take the place of Mr. Hall.

The men were engaged at a salary of $300 for six months' work and pay their own expenses, a stipulation being made that they were to attend ten annual factory meetings in their group if required.

Before entering upon their duties they took a ten days' course of instruction at the Kingston Dairy School, where special lectures were given by the staff of the school bearing directly on their work. Besides, a great deal of time was devoted to practical work in the testing of milk, the making and propagation of starters from pure cultures, and the making and judging of cheese, so that uniform methods would be adopted throughout the different groups.

In order to simplify the manner of reporting on the work done by each instructor, I have prepared a tabulated form which shows in a concise way what has been accomplished in each syndicate.

He then gave a list of the various syndicates, of which we note that appertaining to Peterboro, viz.:

PETERBORO SYNDICATE.
R. W. Ward, Instructor.

Benefort, Daisy D., Monaghan Abbey, Shearer, Maple Leaf, Brucedale, North Smith, Stoney Lake, Otonabee, Millers, Indian River, Warren, South Hastings, Apsley, Lakefield, Ormond, Westwood, Young's Point, Trewern, Killarney, Central Smith, Keene, Missing Link, Oak Leaf, Shamrock, Oakdale, Pine Grove, Peterboro, North Dummer.

Number of factories in syndicate, 29.
Number of full days spent in factories, 117.
Number of call visits given to factories, 202.
Number of patrons sending milk to factories, 1,572.
Number of patrons visited regarding milk supply, 65.
Number of factory meetings held, 9.
Number of tests made for adulteration, 417.
Samples containing added water, 6.
Number of samples deficient in butter fat, 0.
Number of patrons warned, 6.
Number of patrons fined, 6.
Amount of money received from fines, 6.
Number of fermentation tests made, 269.
Per cent. of samples tainted, 50.
Number of factories that have made improvements, 20.
Number of new factories built, 0.
Estimate-expenditure on factory improvements, including new buildings, $3,786.00.

The number of factories that received instruction was 632 and to these 3,091 full day visits were given by the instructors, together with 1,348 calls made at the factories. These call visits are considerably in excess over those of last year and although inclined to be thought lightly of by some, they result in a great deal of good. A call visit simply to look over the cheese is often the means of preventing the maker from getting into difficulties, which he otherwise might if left until the time of a regular visit.

The total number of patrons supplying milk to these factories was 28,241 and of these 1,356 were personally visited at their farms for the purpose of improving the milk supply. Ninety-four factory meetings were held during the summer, with an average attendance of 30, making 2,738 patrons reached in this way. In some sections many more patrons would have been visited had it not been for the conditions found at the factory, which in some cases were such that the instructors had not moral courage to ask for a better milk supply, until the conditions were improved at the place of manufacture. The total number of fermentation tests for locating tainted milk was 10,496, and while 50 per cent. of these were not in fit condition, still the per centage is smaller than that of previous years and shows that improvement is being steadily made in the care taken of the milk by the patrons.

The common sources of trouble were over-ripe and grassy milk. Very few complaints were made regarding food flavors, and of these the great majority were due to turnips and only occurred in one or two sections. During the hot weather of July a great deal of trouble was experienced in some districts with the sweet curdling of the milk and with bad rancid flavors.

When an investigation was made regarding the cause of the deterioration, it was usually found that the trouble was due to lack of cleanliness at the time of milking or in allowing the milk to remain over night at too high a temperature, together with the improper washing and scalding of the cans and utensils, especially where whey was being returned in the cans. The number of tests for adulteration was 65,691. Of this number, 254 showed to have fat abstracted, and 125 to contain added water. Fifty-four of these offenders paid fines to the extent of $983 into the treasurer of the factories concerned; two were turned out of the factory, and the rest at the request of the factory managers were given a warning.

This however, is not so regarding the care of milk at the farms, and I am pleased to report that there is a growing disposition on the part of the patrons to improve their methods of caring for their milk, and a great improvement has been noticed along this line. They receive the instructors in a more friendly manner and as a rule are ready and willing to comply with his requests, with the result that a vast number of milk stands have been moved into a purer atmosphere, cleaner milking places have been provided, and much more attention is being given to the cleaning of all utensils with which the milk comes in contact. Perhaps one of the brightest features of the improvements that have been made, and one that is particularly true of some sections, is the rapidly increasing number of patrons who are building up-to-date milk-stands, with convenient attachments for cooling the milk rapidly immediately after milking. The improvement in the quality of the cheese made in these sections is just as noticeable, and if the cheesemakers would only be more united and refuse to accept milk in an unfit condition, the improvement would be much more marked in this respect. The patrons are beginning to realize what a difference can be made in both the quantity and quality of the cheese manufactured from milk that has been thus treated.

Although the past season did not furnish the most favorable climatic conditions, the quality of the cheese on the whole was much superior to those made in previous years, the early make and the October's being of an unusually high standard.

Most of the rejected cheese were faulted on account of being acidy, weak and open, or not clean in flavor; and the majority of these came from sections where the factories were small and ill-equipped, where competition was keenest, and where the people were indifferent about improving the sanitary conditions surrounding the manufacture.

While there is no doubt that in many instances the work of the maker showed carelessness or inability, still the origin of the cause of the bad flavored and acidy cheese could invariably be traced to the milk supply.

There is no doubt also, that in the localities where the factories are the most unsanitary, both in equipment and surroundings, these conditions prevail to the greatest extent, and while education has done a great deal it is quite evident that some good, healthy legislation is required to bring about what is beyond the power of persuasion.

Twenty-four new factories were built last year, and 43 were repaired both in building and equipment. There improvements consisted of the building of better curing rooms; providing better drainage and sanitary conditions, in procuring new utensils, in constructing new cement floors, and the painting and beautifying of the places in general, giving in all a total estimated expenditure of $100,240.00.

It was my intention before starting the work in the spring, to have held meetings of the cheesemakers in each syndicate, and if possible, during the summer to try and make a personal visit to all the Syndicated factories myself. (Applause.)

Meetings were held at Madoc, Peterboro, Picton, Belleville, Kemptville, Smith's Falls and St. Isidore, and were well attended not only by the makers but by the farmers as well.

Some of the instructors have had Acidimetres placed in all their factories and regularly supply their makers with pure culture starters, and perhaps nothing has been so instrumental in bringing about uniformity as these two things. In skillful hands these starters are invaluable and where properly used are of great help to the makers, especially in overcoming undesirable taints in the milk and in producing a uniform flavor in his cheese from day to day. In some sections, however, they could not be generally adopted, owing either to lack of skill on the part of the maker or to unfavorable conditions surrounding the propagation.

In my personal visits to the factories I found that most of the makers were keeping their factories in a cleaner condition and more attention was being given to the finish of the cheese, and everything went to show that the visits of the instructors were having a healthy influence.

A green shipping system is in vogue in many of our poorest factories, and it is due to this that so few complaints are made regarding the quality of their cheese. But it is certain sooner or later to bring injury to the trade and should be discouraged by everyone in the business.

The instructors have all done good work and put forth an honest effort to give the people good service and bring about improvements in their respective Syndicates. While a few complaints were made against them by some of the factorymen, when an investigation was made it was seldom that any blame could be attached to the instructors, and it is difficult to conduct this work in such a manner that some fault will not be found.

In conclusion, I would say that the past season has given me every reason to feel satisfied with the work, and I would like to express my appreciation to the instructors for the promptness and willingness with which they have responded to any calls made upon them. I would also like to thank the Export Merchants for the kindness and co-operation shown at all times, and during each of my visits to Montreal, and also to the Directors of the Association for the hearty manner in which they responded to everything pertaining to the welfare of the work.

Then followed an open discussion in which many delegates asked questions appertaining to the subject so clear to the delegates which were promptly and satisfactorily answered by Mr. J W Mitchell, Supt. Kingston Dairy school, and Mr. Derbyshire.

The chairman then introduced Dr. W. T. Connell, bacteriologist, of the Kingston Dairy School.

This expert in the unseen but important bacteria that so quickly and effectively affect every element used in human food or the human frame began his address with a pointed reference to the positive necessity of cleanliness, in its many aspects.

In the ordinary course of affairs, cleanliness was regarded as a condition in which dirt was not visible, but in dairying as in surgery, the invisible dirt had to be taken into consideration. The speaker pointed out the large number of bacteria in milk. He emphasized the point that if milk was kept at a low temperature the number of bacteria would decrease, while if it was kept at a high temperature the bacteria would increase. He quoted figures to show the truth of this statement.

At the conclusion of Dr. Connell's interesting address, and after a few remarks by the chairman, adjournment took place.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. Hodgson, at the beginning of the afternoon session, gave a pointed and well received address which was greeted with much applause.

His remarks being of a decidedly practical nature were frequently interrupted by questions from various delegates all of which he replied to in courteous and convincing manner.

The next address was given by Prof. Dean of Guelph. This gentleman, whose knowledge of dairying matters is fully complete, gave a short but most comprehensive speech on the subject in hand.

Prof. Dean was asked also by several members in the audience to answer questions as to cooling cream. These he answered to satisfaction. All of them being covered by yesterday's report.

Mr. Barr, the instructor for Western Ontario was called on to answer a question as to cream storage. He knew of no factory in the west that used this system and found it very satisfactory. A delegate asked as to the reason why that in his factory they drew off the water from the whey, through pipes to a cesspool. Mr. Barr advocated having a pipe in the tank so that the water towards the center could be drawn off. None of the photographs of the poor factories published, have been from Western Ontario. We have better factories in Western Ontario than in Eastern Ontario, but some of their poor ones are as bad as the worst in Eastern Ontario.

Mr. Derbyshire gave the last speaker a sly dig for his advocacy of Western Ontario, to which Mr. Barr replied, "Well we will treat you a beat for supremacy next year. He then introduced Mr. McGillicuddy.

Mr. McGillicuddy then gave an address on co-operation, illustrated by appropriate Scotch, thoroughly Scotch anecdotes. Co-operation was given by Divin inspiration. "It is not good for man to be alone." We have so many millions of acres planted in wheat, mainly fall wheat, that brings in as many millions of dollars per year. The cow, "God bless her," brings in twice as many dollars. Treat the cow right, give her as President Roosevelt says "Give her a square deal," and she will do more. He then gave several humorous stories about the cow that brought down the crowded house.

The man who would succeed, must co-operate with the cow, his fellow man, with the very elements of heaven itself.

He then explained the matter of rotation of crops, showing how by plant ing clover, it had been found that clover roots produced nitrogen, a most essential element of the land, thus enriching the farm. He must co-operate with the patrons of the factories, you dairymen should co-operate and stand shoulder to shoulder together. "Let there be a grand co-operative march and there will be the swing of victory soon. Every branch of the dairying industry, every one connected with this grand business, should stand together for mutual protection.

The market man is the fourth side of the square. It used to be that the buyers and the dairymen used not to know one another; we used to think that the buyers wore horns and hoofs.

He then said the Montreal buyers were good square men. The Government gives a good grant, but still not enough to encourage the dairying interests. The Government would like to send in reports.

Every point in Mr. Gillicuddy's argument was rendered plain and made interesting, by an apt and well told, mostly dialect, story.

Mr. Derbyshire, as soon as Mr. McGillicuddy bowed his acknowledgment of the applause meeting his speech said "This is our dear McGillicuddy," and gave a ludicrous story of Mr. McGillicuddy's experience as a Sunday school teacher. "Read a good one," on a Sabbath day in Muskoka.

The meeting then adjourned until the evening.

EVENING SESSION.

Last night the ground floor and first gallery of the Grand Opera house was comfortably, but still generously filled; more ladies graced the meeting than on Wednesday night. Before the meeting opened, President Derbyshire showed the large photograph taken yesterday morning by Mr. R. M. Roy, saying, "Now there is a fine looking bunch of fellows, you can get a copy by leaving your order at the door." The picture is a large one, a clear one, and was taken in front of the opera house.

Mr. Derbyshire, after the splendid orchestra present, had rendered a selection, in good manner, introduced Prof. Dean of Guelph. "In this country he said, "the dairymen are a live organization." He had just returned from a dairying convention in the State of Vermont. There he had mentioned the subject of reciprocity. He told them that reciprocity must come from the United States, and not from Canada. The farmers there were quite content that a fair exchange of farm products be instituted. It would be beneficial to our dairymen if they could meet on friendly terms the sharp, shrewd Yankee farmers.

The Americans are taking great interest, particularly in the State of Vermont, in Canadian farmers' doings.

He would make his address short, and concise. Co-operation is the secret of success. Instead of My farm, My Dairy, My Country, it should be "Ours."

In the dairying countries in the old world there is a marked spirit of co-operation. They are, for instance, very willing and even anxious to tell about their doings.

They send their milk to co-operative factories, and co-operate with one another in every branch of the dairying business.

In the American pork business they use every part of the hog except the squeal; now they are going to export the squeal to Scotland to make bagpipes. (Laughter).

Near Mobile, in Ireland, he met and rode with a farmer, who told him he got six pence per pound for his butter. He told the farmer, in Liverpool he could get a shilling there. This man however, was content with his present way of conducting his business.

If the farmers' wives in that country would send the milk to factories, they would be saved trouble and make more money.

Co-operation is absolutely essential to success. He referred to this present great convention which was directly due to co-operation. In co-operation "Force" is needed. That means that force and life must be put into every line of business. It is the desire for gold that makes people "get a hustle on."

It is pleasant to lie in bed late these winter mornings, but we must force ourselves to get out and do our work.

"Are you content to be an ordinary, everyday man or do you want to rise? If you are not, you have it in you to get out and foster the desire to succeed and get on.

We must, in co-operation, have life energy and force. Competition is the soul of trade. Every country is yearly striving now to make better and more butter and cheese.

He hoped a year ago, in the college to decrease expenditure by co-operation. He thus saved $2000 in a year by co-operation. The waste had been among the students.

There is great waste going on among the cheese factories. He believed the people of Canada by co-operation would have a good deal more money at the end of the year by co-operation.

It does not pay to make money one year and then take a rest.

The worst thing that can happen the boys and girls is to have a father on whom all do them; if their parents have lots of money, still the boys and girls should cut their crusts and earn their spurs whilst young.

In the matter of raw material, the farmers could buy cheaper by co-operation.

Regarding milking cows by machinery, the college had tried it by electric power. It succeeded in most instances, although some cows refused to give down their milk.

By co-operation, the women could save time and trouble by having the cows driven to a central location and milked by experts. (Applause).

This is not a visionary idea but could be put into practice by co-operation.

By co-operation we would have increased intelligence and increased gain among our farmers. (Applause).

From what he has seen in public life, the man who does his duty is bound to make enemies.

Mr. Derbyshire then asked "Mr Gamsby for a song.

This was rendered in Mr. Gamsby's imimitable style, and was entitled "Only a Soldier Boy." This song was received with most emphatic demands for an encore; this was given in a most comic rendition, prefaced by a humorous introduction, and entitled "Come along little girls, come along."

Mr. Derbyshire then introduced Mr. Ruddick, who, he said had extensively travelled in European countries. Mr Ruddick said it would perhaps be more satisfactory, if all present could make the trip he had taken. He hoped his trip would result in good to Canada's dairying business.

He studied every branch of the dairying business, as well as the shipping of Canadian products. He received a very mixed reception in England; in Manchester, Liverpool, Bristol and other places, also in Scotland. Canada's position in England, as regards butter and cheese, has much improved This is especially so in the handling facilities of Canadian products.

During the past season, the facilities of London for handling Canadian products has become nearly perfect. The Thompson and Allan Lines, at the Surrey docks, have completed arrangements for cold storage handling. Cheese there, is now put, at once, when unloaded at London, into a temperature of 40 degrees. At Bristol great improvements have been made. There they have as good docks and cold storage facilities as any port in the world.

A great many shop-keepers in England, who have handled Canadian butter, now are anxious to get it.

We are now supplying 75 per cent. of the butter imported to England. We must however stop "fake" products.

Ireland is not a cheese but a butter producing country. Ireland is Canada's greatest competitor. 800 creameries are now in business in Ireland. Two-thirds of the butter of Ireland is made in co-operative creameries.

Limerick is a great butter center, where the chief man in the butter trade is a Canadian from Montreal. In Cork where the idea of grading butter originated under the old "Charleon Wells." he found a place for teaching girls household and dairying methods. He kissed the stone at Blarney Castle. After visiting the North of Ireland, near Belfast, he saw his grandfather's old home.

When he got to Scotland he had, in the two hours taken in crossing, to change his accent to Scotch. He then gave a number of personal reminiscences of his Scotch trip. At Cheddar he was anxious to get a good idea of the cheese of that locality.

The system there was this; a dairyman comes along and rents the cows by the year; to also feeds and cares for them. When these cows are milked, he was surprised at the total lack of any animal odor. This was attributable to their bringing water to ensure cleanliness. Their methods otherwise are behind those of this country. Labor is cheaper there than here. He also called upon the cheese men of Glasgow, and also in Dundee and Edinburgh.

He spent some time in France where Canada's exhibit was away ahead of all others When he got to Cologne his troubles began, as he could not speak the language. Met a number of butter and cheese dealers at Hambourg. We do not come under the favored nation clause with Germany; our butter will soon have to pay 50 per cent. more than that of other countries; this however, does not matter as the English market is better.

Denmark's great success in butter is due to thoroughness. They have no more skill than Canadians, but they are more thorough and more clean. Cows there are tethered in the fields, as are sheep. The dairy buildings there, being of stone and cement, are superior to those of Canada. They even have baths for the employes.

They have brands for products of their associations, which are registered. This brand is put on every package of butter exported.

In Sweden, a great butter country, they have national comm

they have a national committee which visits export stores. If their butter is up to a standard they are allowed to use the national table. The Danes helped him to get full information. Any milk there, over 50 degrees in heat was rejected. They use a pail with a receptable for salt and ice for milking.

The Danish cow used to be of a degenerate type, but they have ne degenerate type, but they have, in a few years, caused the "Red Danish" cow to be a good breed. They run up to as high as ten pounds of milk per cow. He wound up his speech by hoping the audience would sometime have the pleasure of visiting the countries he had seen.

Mr. Gamsby was then asked to give another song, and gave one particularly adapted to the convention, being entitled "The man in the overalls."

Bank Managers Join Forestry Association

Byron E. Walker Wires That All the Branch Managers Have Become Members---15.6 of Ontario Land is Wooded.

The Ontario Provincial Forestry Convention was favored yesterday with the presence of his Excellency Earl Grey, together with the Countess Grey. Sir Wilfrid Laurier again presided. A telegram was read from Lieut.-Governor Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, of British Columbia, expressing sympathy with the object of the meeting. A message was also read from Byron Walker, stating that the 33 managers of the Canadian Bank of Commerce had been made members of the Canadian Forestry Association.

The first paper read was by Dr. W. Saunders, on "Forestry at the Experimental Farm," in which he dwelt on the attention the Dominion Government has given to experimental forestry. At the Ottawa farm twenty thousand trees were planted between 1898 and 1903. The white pines now stand from 28 to 30 feet in height, and the trunks from 11-2 to 6 5-8 inches in diameter at a distance of four and a half feet from the ground. Since 1893 the Government has encouraged tree-planting on the plains by the free distribution of young trees and seed.

PRAIRIES ONCE FORESTED.

Norman N. Ross, Assistant Superintendent of Forestry, gave a paper on tree planting on the prairies of Canada, which told of what has already been accomplished in that direction and of the profit that farmers would reap in the long run if they devoted a small portion of their land to tree culture. Mr. Ross advanced the contention that very large portions, if not the entire area of our treeless plains, were at one time timbered. Fires, he added, have doubtless played a large part in keeping down tree growth. Moreover, the very richness of the soil has prevented the sprin; up of a second growth, because the rapid formation of a thick sod affords small chance for a struggling tree seedling when the next fire runs over the ground. The varying rainfall, the elevation, the extraordinary high winds, and extremes of temperature are other conditions affecting tree growth in anything but a favorable way.

A DOURO BRIDE

Miss Mary A. Davis Becomes the Bride of Mr. S. B. A. Trethewey

An interesting Douro function was that celebrated at the residence of Mrs. Sager, who lives about two miles from the city in that township, when her daughter Miss Mary A. Davis, became on Wednesday, the charming bride of Mr. S. B. A. Trethewey.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr Crothers, pastor of George street Methodist church, in the presence of a large number of friends. Mr. Alex Millage of Douro, supported the groom, while the bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Alberta Davis.

The groom is a son of the late Richard Trethewey of Muripum township, and is a popular carriage maker employed by Mr. Ben. Yelland, while the bride is a daughter of the late Johnston Davis of Smith Township.

After the wedding ceremony a choice repast was enjoyed. A large number of pretty presents were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Trethewey have taken up their residence at 26 Division street.

An Innovation on Grand Trunk Railway

In order to facilitate the prompt delivery of baggage at Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton, and to avoid delay and annoyance often occasioned at these points, the General Baggage Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are arranging for the checking of baggage from all stations in Canada direct to residences, hotels, railway stations and steamboat wharves in the above cities.

Under this arrangement a passenger from any station on the Grand Trunk Railway System, upon payment of 25c. for each piece, will be able to check their baggage direct to any residence, hotel, etc., thus avoiding the necessity of making arrangements for delivery on arrival and insuring the prompt receipt of baggage at destination.

Under this system baggage when received from trains at destination will be immediately delivered direct to the Transfer Co. for PROMPT DELIVERY, thus avoiding delays previously occasioned by placing same in baggage-room, recording, re-assorting, etc., thus saving time and unnecessary handling.

Further announcement will be made of date of this service will be put into effect.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

HOCKEY.

As noted in yesterday's issue, the City League on Wednesday night, held a meeting in the Oriental, and changed their constitution. For lack of space, complete particulars were crowded out.

It was decided that if the intermediate team requires a City League player to assist in any games the league will cheerfully give that player permission to assist the intermediate team.

The loss of Mr. G. L. Maine, theefficient secretary, who leaves for Fenelon Falls tomorrow will make a great loss Mr. Main, who during the past two years has won a host of friends in athletic circles, will be sorely missed by the league, as well as other athletic associations with which he has been identified. In Mr. Ira Moore, however, the league has secured a man capable of looking most satisfactorily after its affairs as far as his office runs upon him to do so.

It was decided to give each team fifty tickets for which they must agree to pay to the league fifteen dollars or on before Jan. 18, 1906. The entrance fee for each team was fixed at $2. A representative from each team in the league was privileged to examine the books of the secretary after each game or at any other time when the occasion calls for such examination.

The president, Mr. F. A. Clarke, and Vice Pres. Jas. Maher will wait upon the rink company to make arrangements for the rink. Admission to the games will be 10 cents and ten men will be admitted with each team, the players of which must be bonafide residents of this city since the first of January, 1906.

Following is the constitution adopted;—

1. Each player must hold a certificate from the City League to entitle him to play in league games.
2. O.H.A. rules to govern all games.
3. No player eligible who has played one game intermediate O.H.A. hockey during the present season.
4. Any player guilty of violating the rules of the league forfeits his certificate and team playing such player is subject to suspension.
5. All games must commence sharp on time Any team delaying game is subject to fine of $2.

In the event of a drawn game it will be left to the executive to deal with.

THE TURF.

Miss Paisley, owned by H. Cook, Peterboro, took second money in the 2.28 trot or pace Wednesday at Port Perry, after a great race with Hal Galvin. A Port Perry despatch says;

Port Perry, Jan. 10.—An immense gathering witnessed the second day's racing on Lake Scugog. In the free-for-all Flora Hunter lowered the ice record to 2.18 and Looking Glass paced the fastest fifth and sixth heats on record for an ice track.

On the previous day Martin Connor's Lady Gothard took second in the 2.40 class, won by Zap Medium. Zlittle Jap, owned by C. J. Munro, was fourth.

"WOULD DO NO HARM"

To Quit Coffee, the Doctor Said.

An Oak Park lady writes of her coffee experiment:

"I am of middle age and had been a coffee drinker all my life up to 5 years ago when my physical condition became so serious and medicines did so little good that I began to suspect that coffee was doing me harm.

"I had gradually become very nervous, my heart grew subject to distressing palpitations and my mental faculties had got into dull, torpid condition. With it all came bodily weakness that made it almost impossible to get round.

"My physician examined me and said my heart was affected. I asked him if coffee was injurious to me and he replied that it would do no harm to stop drinking it for awhile. And so I quit it.

"But I felt very much the need of a hot beverage, and in that way came to try Postum Food Coffee, which I had seen advertised. I had it prepared strictly according to directions, and the result was a delicious, clear, drink which I found most refreshing and satisfying, with a flavor similar to that of the finest coffee.

"I have used it as my sole table drink ever since. Soon after I began to drink it my nerves steadied down to normal, the heart trouble ceased to annoy me, and my head has been clearer, my mentality more active and efficient during these 5 years than ever before in my life.

"My son-in-law was a victim of dyspepsia, until I induced him to stop drinking the old kind and begin the use of Postum Food Coffee. His digestion rapidly improved until it became perfect and, as he still uses Postum, it has remained so." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All Thin, Pale Women

Can Learn the Cause of Their Nervous, Used-up Condition

With women, ill-health is usually traceable to nerve exhaustion. Feeling run-down and tired most of the time is nature's warning that more nerve-force is required.

You must build up, nourish the body, vitalise the nerves, get more flesh and blood.

It's the abundant nutriment and building material in Ferrosone that enables it to cure so many sick women. It increases the appetite, adds weight and strength, restores lost color and develops a surplus of energy and nerve force that defies sickness of any kind. There is living proof in Mrs. Daniel Ferguson, Jr., of Prescott, Ont. Read her statement:

"A year ago my health failed. I grew thin and exceedingly pale. At night it was difficult to obtain restful sleep. My appetite was variable and indigestion bothered me considerably. I became morose and suffered from heart palpitation. You could scarcely believe the benefit I derived in one week from Ferrosone. Color came back to my cheeks. My vitality and appetite increased, renewed nerve force and better spirits came also. Ferrosone did a world of good and made me well.

Remember this: No alcoholic stimulant can nourish and build up like Ferrosone. Fifty cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or N. C. Polmor & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

DEATH FOR AGED AND JUVENILE SUFFERERS.

In one of his spirited essays on the social problem Huxley made a remark which has become historic. If, he said in effect, he thought that our industrial system, with its features of unemployment, poverty, inequality and injustice, could not be improved he would beg that some friendly planet might collide with our globe and put an end to its existence.

But Huxley believed in the possibility, the certainty, of great social improvements, and was willing to dispense with the services of friendly planets. Not so apparently, Miss Crozier, a Philadelphia "sociologist," who, having worked herself thin and shouted herself hoarse trying to abolish misery and equalor, now demands in sheer despair "proper authority" to administer chloroform to poor, starving, neglected children that she cannot save. While waiting for the friendly planet to solve the problem of adult poverty and destitution, Miss Crozier would mercifully administer relief on her own account to juvenile sufferers and victims.

It is not likely that society will make use of Miss Crozier's heroism and self-sacrifice. It will probably refuse to see in the slaying of children a grand or welcome remedy for poverty. It will proceed on the old-fashioned doctrine that the object of all humanitarian endeavor is to promote life, liberty and happiness, not to diminish unhappiness by destroying life. Whatever the "higher hysteria" may say, the sociol... healthy common sense will stick to life and to the processes and remedies that slowly tend to increase and enrich life.

As to the revived discussion of that old subject, the propriety of gently ending the lives of the incurably diseased—at least, "after a certain period of excruciating pain and agony"—and the hopelessly insane, no amount of plausible theoretical argument in favor of the proposition will dispose of the simple, practical difficulty repeatedly pointed out—that no right-thinking person will assume the responsibility of deciding when disease is incurable or insanity hopeless, and of putting a human being to death at the command of a very imperfect "science." The revolt of instinct and conscience against the proposal, a revolt which would be manifested in every concrete case, is the obstacle in the way. It is insurmountable.

BLUFFED BY BEN BUTLER

Made General Bingham Believe He Had Booth's Diary.

General John A. Bingham was a member of the military tribunal that tried Mrs. Surratt and the Lincoln assassination conspirators.

After the trial in the subsequent debates in the house General B. F. Butler frequently charged that the commission had arrived at an unjust verdict and had convicted an innocent woman. In a memorable debate he boldly proclaimed that if the contents of a diary which had been found on the dead body of J. Wilkes Booth were ever made public it would disclose the fact that it contained the proof of Mrs. Surratt's innocence, which proof had been infamously suppressed by the commission. When General Bingham made a movement as though he would repel such an accusation, Butler dramatically drew a memorandum book from his breast pocket and held it aloft, but did not utter a word. Bingham naturally supposed that Butler had a copy of a diary such as he had spoken of. As a matter of fact the book contained nothing but blank leaves. General Butler was just bluffing.

The diary was in possession of Secretary Stanton, but President Johnson finally demanded it. It was an interesting book, but it threw no light upon the great conspiracy. Johnson's private secretary was W. W. Warden, who was the correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, and besides was in the employ of the New York Tribune bureau to supply it with all the information he consistently could. To him Andrew Johnson intimated that he would not be averse to the publication of Booth's diary and permitted him to make a copy of it.

Warden took it after midnight to James Rankin Young, the Washington correspondent of the Tribune, and the next morning the Tribune and the Baltimore Sun had a big beat. Sam Bowles of the Springfield Republican reproached his correspondent for failing to get a copy.

"Well," said the correspondent, "I am not like Jim Young. I have a home to go to, and don't have to prowl around till daylight." Nobody enjoyed this retort as much as James Rankin Young.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

No one likes a man who is everlastingly saying "Beg pardon."

The man who talks too much, as a rule, does not talk enough at the right time.

Two heads are better than one, but one of them nearly always does the business.

Most men have the same experiences. The only difference is that some men talk and some don't.

When you are working very hard take some comfort in this: Those who are idle don't seem to be having a very good time.

We suppose newspapers do annoy their readers a good deal. Still newspaper men, as a rule, do the best they can. It is an annoying business.

The word "homemaker" is working overtime when applied to any rich woman who keeps several servants. The real "homemakers" work overtime by not keeping any.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the bow of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; this the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to wind or waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James S. Whitney of Boston, when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that he heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances can be introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

VARICOCELE & STRICTURE

No other disease is so prevalent among men as Varicocele. As it interferes with the nutrition of the sexual organs it produces weakness, loss of semen through the urine, decay of the organs, pains in the loins, aching in the back, nervousness, despondency, bashfulness, palpitation of the heart, constipation, and a combination of these results in complete LOSS OF MANHOOD. Thousands of young and middle-aged men are troubled with STRICTURE. If you have reason to believe you are afflicted with it, don't neglect it. It will ruin you. Don't let doctors experiment on you by cutting, stretching or tearing it. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT dissolves the stricture tissue, hence it disappears and can never return. We cure Varicocele and Stricture without operation or loss of time. The treatment may be taken at home privately. Send for our Free Illustrated Book on VARICOCELE and STRICTURE. WE GUARANTEE TO CURE OR NO PAY.

Kidneys & Bladder

All sexual complaints affect these organs, hence the kidneys are a great source of disease. Have you aching or weakness over the small of the back, tendency to urinate frequently, deposit in urine, coldness of hands or feet, a drowsy feeling in the morning. Don't neglect your kidneys. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure any disease of these organs or no pay.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

"Mr. Wrexford," she said, with an earnestness I had not hitherto noticed in her, "I hope you will not consider me impertinent if I say that I should like to know your history. Believe me, I do not say this out of any idle curiosity, but because I hope and believe that it may be in my power to help you. Remember what a debt of gratitude I owe you for your bravery the other night. I cannot believe that a man who would risk his life, as you did then, can be the sort of man you have just depicted. Do you feel that you can trust me sufficiently to tell about yourself?"

"What there is to tell, with certain reservations, of course, you shall hear. There is no one to whom I would confess so readily as to yourself. I will not insult you by asking you to let what I tell you remain a secret between us, but I will ask you to try not to judge me too harshly."

"You may be sure I shall not do that," she replied; and then realising what her words implied, she hung her head with a pretty show of confusion. I saw what was passing in her mind, and to help her out of her difficulty plunged into the story of my miserable career. I told her of my old home in Cornwall, of my mother's death, and my father's antipathy to me on that account. On my Eton and Oxford life I dwelt but lightly, winding up with the reason of my being "sent down," and the troubles at home that followed close upon it. I described my bush life in Australia, and told her of the great disappointment to which I had been subjected over the gold mine, suppressing Bertrand's name, and saying nothing of the hatred I had entertained for him.

"After that," I said in conclusion, "I decided that I was tired of Australia, and, having inherited a little money from my father, came home, intending to get something to do and settle down in London. But I very soon tired of England, as I tired of every other place; and hence my reason for going out to seek my fortune in South Africa. Now I think I have given you a pretty good idea of my past. It's not an edifying history, is it? It seems to me a parson might moralize very satisfactorily upon it."

"It is very, very sad," she answered. "Oh, Mr. Wrexford, how bitterly you must regret your wasted opportunities."

"Regret!" I said. "The saddest word in the English language. Yes, I think I do regret."

"You only think?" Are you not sure? From your tale one would suppose you were very sorry."

"Yes, I think I regret. But how can I be certain? The probabilities are that if I had my chance over again I should do exactly the same.

"It's not a pretty thought, perhaps, to think that one's bad actions are the outcome of a bad nature, but one is compelled to own that it is true."

"You mustn't talk like that, Mr. Wrexford," she cried; "indeed, you mustn't. In all probability you have a long life before you; and who knows what the future may have in store for you? All this trouble that you have suffered may be to fit you for some great success in after life."

"There can never be any success for me Miss Maybourne," I said, more bitterly than I believe I had spoken yet. "There is no chance at all of that. Success and I parted company long since, and can never be reconciled to each other again. To the end of my days I shall be a lonely, homeless man, without ambition, without hope, and without faith in any single thing. God knows I am paying dearly for all I have done and all that I have failed to do."

"But there is still time for you to retrieve everything. Surely that must be the happiest thought in this frail world of ours. God, in His mercy, gives us a chance to atone for whatever we have done amiss. Believe me, I can quite realise what you feel about yourself. But at the same time, from what I have seen of you, I expect you make more of it than it really deserves."

"No, no; I can never paint what I have done in black enough colors. I am a man eternally disgraced. You can try to comfort me in your infinite compassion, but you can never take away from me, try how you will, the awful skeleton that keeps me company night and day—I mean the recollection of the past."

She looked at me with tears of compassion in her lovely eyes. I glanced at her face and then turned away and stared across the sea. Never in my life before had hope seemed so dead in my heart. Now, for the first time, I realized in all its naked horror the effect of the dastardly deed I had committed. Henceforward I was a social leper, condemned to walk the world, crying, "Unclean! unclean!"

"I am so sorry—so very sorry for you," Miss Maybourne said, after the little pause that followed my last speech. "You cannot guess how much your story has affected me. It is so very terrible to see a man so richly endowed as yourself cast down with such despair. You must fight against it, Mr. Wrexford. It cannot be as bad as you think."

"I am afraid I am past all fighting now, Miss Maybourne," I answered. "But I will try, if you bid me do so."

As I spoke I looked at her again. This time her eyes met mine fearlessly, but as they did so a faint blush suffused her face.

"I bid you try," she said very softly. "God give you grace, and grant you may succeed."

"If anything can make me succeed," I replied, "it will be your good wishes. I will do my best, and man cannot do more. You have cheered me up wonderfully, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

"You must not do that. I hope now I shall not see you looking any more across the sea in the same way that you were this morning. You are to cheer up and I shall insist that you report progress to me every day. If I discover any relapse, remember, I shall not spare you, and my anger will be terrible. Now good-bye; I see my uncle signalling to me from the hurricane deck. It is time for me to read for him."

"Good-bye," I said, "and may God bless you in your kindness to one who really stood in want of it."

After that conversation I set myself to take a more hopeful view of my situation. I told myself that, provided I managed to reach my destination undetected, I would work as never man ever worked before to make an honorable place for myself among those with whom my lot should be cast. The whole of the remainder of my life I vowed, God helping me, should be devoted to the service of my fellow creatures, and then on the strength of their respect and esteem I would be able to face whatever punishment Providence should decree as the result of my sin. In the strength of this firm resolve I found myself becoming a happier man than I had been for years past.

By this time we had left Maderia behind us, and were fast approaching Teneriffe. In another day and a half, at the longest calculation, I should know my fate.

That night I had been smoking for some time on the fo'c'sle, but after supper, feeling tired, had gone to my bunk at an earlier hour than usual. For some reason my dreams were the reverse of good, and more than once I woke in a fright, imagining myself in

The Drummer Boy
Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the testment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1906.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for another Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $700,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $97.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $20,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10c cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

W. E. FLODING, Vice-President Oxarna Mining Company.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

The press is well represented, there being ten scribes in attendance.

—Yesterday morning a number of the delegates went out and inspected the lift lock.

—The Strangers' Fellowship Club will meet in the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow evening, at six o'clock.

—R. B Faith, editor of the Ottawa Valley Journal, is attending the convention in the interest of his paper.

—President Derbyshire could keep a row of fence posts in good humor, and bring a smile to the face of a watch.

—What Peterboro won't know about a cow from the finis of its narrative to its feeding machinery, after this will be heard to learn.

—The dairymen must be well acquainted with the use of the pump. Their behavior has been most exemplary during this convention.

—The Jackson Park toboggan slide is drawing immense crowds every evening. Last night their capacity was crowded to the utmost, still all were served.

—R. A Rothwell and A. McDonnell, of Glengarry county, dairy instructors, are attending the convention. Glengarry is the most eastern county in the province.

—Slightly damaged boxes of stationery containing 25 envelopes and 25 sheets of paper in good condition, will be sold at 9, 10, 14, 20 and 25 cents. All reduced. Times Bookstore.

—At yesterday morning's police court session, Inspector Cochrane voluntarily withdrew the charge against a local hotelkeeper, of selling more liquor than allowed by law.

—Fifty-seven children, grand and great-grand children of Mrs. Jas. Munn, who has passed her 87th birthday, gathered together in family reunion at the home of Mr. Geo. Mann, Smith, New Year's Day.

—Visitors in the city will find a large assortment of souveniers at the Times Bookstore. Handsome pieces of china, with views of Lift Lock, St. John's church and Jackson Park. Also books of views. Prices 25 cents each.

—Yesterday morning Mr. R. M. Roy, Peterboro's leading photographic artist, made a splendid picture of the visiting dairymen, as they stood just outside the Grand Opera house. The picture had been developed and mounted in time for the evening session.

—Mr. Publow, who though perhaps not discrete is honest. Yesterday he said that the cheese from the Peterboro and Campbellford districts was the worst in Eastern Ontario for turnipy flavor. This is the iron hand without the velvet glove, and should impress some weight on our local dairymen.

—Yesterday afternoon the dairymen visited the works of the American Cereal Company, the Cordage Company, the Shovel & Tool Company, and several other points of interest. The above companies had extended a hearty invitation to the visitors to visit their respective plants. The dairymen expressed themselves as amazed at the industrial activity of Peterboro.

ILLEGAL FISHING

Inspector Johnston Finds a Hoop Net Near Jubilee Point With 30 Bass

Mr. D. Johnston, Fishery Inspector, received word on Wednesday that a hoop net was set in Rice Lake, just below Jubilee Point, at the mouth of the river. The inspector at once went to the scene of this murderous attempt to interfere with legitimate sport. He drove to Jubilee Point and walked out on the ice. Sure enough, through eight inches of ice was lowered a hoop net, such as are often used to catch cat-fish. He drew it to the surface and found therein thirty-one bass, still alive. Mr. Johnston at once emptied the fish into their native element and, placing the net in his cutter, drove back to the city. The inspector has definitely ascertained the names of the men setting this net, and if they do not at once come and pay their fine he will take immediate steps towards their arrest.

THE LATE WM. R. THOMPSON

Passed Away at Nicholls Hospital Yesterday Morning

It is with great sorrow we are obliged to chronicle the demise of Mr. William R. Thompson, who passed away at Nicholls hospital about four o'clock yesterday morning. The deceased had only been ill a few days, having been stricken with appendicitis. An operation was found to be necessary, and was performed on Wednesday afternoon by Drs. Carmichael, Halliday and Hladd. It was found that little or no hope of his recovery was entertained. Although everything was done that skill could suggest to stay the hand of death, he passed peacefully away at the hour above named, surrounded by his loved ones.

Mr. Thompson was born in Broughshane, County Antrim, Ireland, 53 years ago, coming to this country when about 18 years of age. He entered the service of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, about nineteen years ago, under Mr. W. H. Hill, manager for Central Ontario. At his death he occupied the position of local superintendent of agents.

Mr. Thompson was for many years connected with the Board of Managers of St. Andrew's church, in which work he was very active. He was chairman of the property and pew committee and also took a great interest in all branches of the church work. He was a faithful attendant at all the services. His presence in the church will be greatly missed and his death will be a great loss to the congregation. He was also a member of Peterboro Lodge No. 135, A.O.U.W. In politics he was a life-long Conservative and an earnest consistent worker for the party. He did any work assigned to him in a most capable manner and was beloved by all for his pleasant associations and genial disposition.

The deceased was one of the oldest members of Peterboro Lodge No. 135, A.F. & A.M., having been connected with it for over 25 years. He was a Past Master and one of the most popular members of the lodge. Years ago he took a very active interest in the work of the Masonic Order, but of late years he has not had the necessary time to spare.

The funeral will leave the family residence, 378 Stewart street, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and proceed to Little Lake cemetery, where interment will take place. Rev. J. G. Potter will conduct the solemnities at the house. The funeral will be under Masonic auspices.

It is needless to say that the bereaved wife and family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their irreparable loss.

MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG AND SICK WOMEN WELL.

Forty years ago, Dr. Pierce searched Nature's laboratory for a remedy with which to supplant the ignorant and vicious methods of treatment, with alcoholic stimulants, then in vogue, and still too commonly prescribed and advised for woman's peculiar ailments.

Nature abounds with most efficient remedies, and in Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root and Golden Seal root, Dr. Pierce found medicinal properties, which when extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure glycerine, have proven most potent in making weak women strong and sick women well. It contains no alcohol; is not a "patent medicine," nor a secret one either.

"I was suffering with nervous headache, pains in the back and dizziness, so that at times I had to lie down for hours before I could raise my head," writes Mrs. Mary M. Thomas, of 237 Winston Street, Los Angeles, Cal. "After taking the first bottle of 'Favorite Prescription,' however, I was so pleased with the results that I kept on taking it until I was restored to health and strength. I shall never be without this great medicine, and shall take a few doses when I do not feel strong."

One of the principal uses of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the preparation of prospective mothers for the time of trial and danger that comes when a child is born. The "Prescription" is strengthening and invigorating and lessens pain and danger. It insures the perfect well-being and the perfect health of both mother and child. Every woman should know these things before she really needs to know them. There are many things in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, that every woman ought to know. This celebrated work reached a sale of 680,000 copies at $1.50 each. The expense of production having thus been covered, it is now being given away. A copy will be sent to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, or, in cloth binding for 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Don't Be Hoodwinked, hoodooed, or over-persuaded into accepting a substitute for the Original Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce, over 40 years ago, and called Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They've been much imitated but never equaled. One or two are laxative, three or four cathartic.

WHO OWNS IT?

Local Hotelman Pays for Burial of Horse Which Comes to Life

Yesterday round the Peterboro hotels a vexed question among visiting dairymen, was threshed out which involves a question of ownership of a valuable horse.

It seems that recently a well-known and popular local boniface purchased a valuable horse, one of those "knee action high steppers," we understand and the price paid was over $200.

On Wednesday the owner of this animal instructed an employe of his hotel to exercise the horse. As the horse was circling round the yard, at the end of a rope, it suddenly dropped down, apparently dead.

The usual custom in such cases is to get a carter to draw the animal to the dump, giving him the hide, worth from $1 to $1.50 for his trouble.

The hotelman, with his proverbial generosity handed a local carter, $1 to draw the horse off to the dumpand bury it.

The carter loaded the horse on his rig and took it to the dump. Here he heaved it over the incline preparatory to burial. When the horse rolled down into the trench, its evidently suspended animation once more awoke and the animal slowly rose to its feet and is today alive and seemingly well.

The question now arises, "Who owns the horse?" The hotelman paid the carter $1 to take the horse away and bury it. It might be mentioned that this is not merely an illustrated conundrum, but it is a true story; not a "pipe dream," or clipping as sometimes given by the press of this great country of ours.

FOUNTAINS OF WINE WILL FLOW IN MADRID

Wedding of Young King to Princess Ena to be Magnificent Pageant.

CITY A FLOWER GARDEN

Elaborate Ceremony to Mark Conversion of Future Queen of Spain.

MADRID.

The most scrupulous reserve is maintained in court circles concerning the arrangements for the marriage of King Alfonso and Princess Ena of Battenberg, but the following facts are from an authentic source.

As at present arranged, the formal announcement of the betrothal will be made either just before or when King Edward visits Madrid, and the wedding will probably take place during the traditional fetes of San Isidoro.

Princess to Become Catholic.

The conversion of the Princess to the Roman Catholic faith will be a ceremony of great solemnity. It will be held in the San Francisco Cathedral here, and will be presided over by the Primate of Spain, the Cardinal Archbishop of Toledo. The nine archbishops and forty-six bishops of the kingdom will be summoned to attend.

A rumor which was circulated that the Pope did not view the alliance with favor is groundless.

During the wedding festivities Madrid will be transformed into a gigantic garden of flowers. Roses and pinks will be brought by hundreds of wagonloads from Seville, Malaga, Valencia, Alicante and Murcia.

Grand processions in character will be organized by the students and women cigarmakers, and the charming national dances will be performed by peasants from the provinces.

Streams of white and red wine will flow from the fountains of Madrid in lieu of water on the day of the wedding.

One of the most popular celebrations will be a monster bull fight, conducted with all the magnificence and panoply of ancient use.

Changes in the Palace.

Many changes are being made at the palace to prepare the apartments for the King and his bride. At present the Queen-mother occupies the rooms she had during the regency and the King those he had during his minority, and considerable rearrangements will, of course, be made.

The Princess Ena will have her private apartments on the first floor of the palace, where an army of workmen are engaged in making the necessary transformation.

Don Carlos, the widower of the late Princess of the Asturias, the elder sister of the King, lives, with his baby Prince, the heir-presumptive, in the palace, and will continue to do so until the King has a descendant of his own.

A Madrid jeweler is manufacturing a magnificent dinner service of solid silver to be used at the wedding banquet.

TRAVELED IN TRANCE SIX THOUSAND MILES

American Wakes Up to Find Himself in Wilds of New South Wales.

SYDNEY,

A curious case of lapse of memory has just been revealed here on the arrival from the northern districts of New South Wales yesterday of an American, whose remembrance was of Los Angeles, Cal. The American's story is vouched for by two Sydney doctors, who have investigated the circumstances.

The mysterious traveler left Parahoe, in California, a few days before last Easter, intending to join his wife and family at Los Angeles. He remembers arriving there, but has no recollection of what happened afterward.

He awoke to find himself lying under a tree in the Australian bush, and was immensely astonished at seeing around him many unknown forms of vegetation. He noticed that his hands were hard and rough, though he had never consciously done a day's hard work.

A bullock-driver passed him shortly after his awakening, and he at once inquired the way to Los Angeles. The man stared in astonishment, and answered that Mill End was the name of the nearest township.

The man without a memory thereupon asked the date, and was told that it was late in October and that he was in New South Wales. He worked his way to Sydney, a distance of some hundreds of miles, and is now trying to obtain employment here to get the money to return to his family.

He is in total ignorance as to their whereabouts and as to his own doings during the six months between April and October.

ENGLISH JEWS CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR READMISSION INTO ENGLAND

Expelled From the Country in the Thirteenth Century, the Law of Expulsion Was Repealed 250 Years Ago by the Great Protector, Oliver Cromwell

LONDON,

THE Jews of London and the province have just celebrated the 250th anniversary of their readmission to England, whence they had been expelled in the thirteenth century.

The prime mover in the great resettlement was one Manasseh ben Israel, a French-born Jew, domiciled in Amsterdam.

Manasseh had married a relative of David Abravanel, the great Spanish Hebrew scholar and Bible commentator, who traced his descent (though with what justification it is difficult to say) to King David. The hope for the coming of the Messiah was very strong in all Jews, and in the case of Manasseh ben Israel, his connection with the family of one who was supposed to have descended from David dominated his thoughts, so that he could not rest until all had been done that he could accomplish to speed the Messianic advent. He was possessed by the idea the Messiah could not come until such time as the Jews were living in all countries. Possibly the prophetic promise that Israel would be gathered from all nations gave him the idea that it was necessary, as a first step, that they should be scattered among all the nations.

Manasseh conferred with Oliver Cromwell at White Hall, London, and the result of their negotiations was the repeal of the law which forbade Jews to settle in England.

Certainly, in the result, neither England nor the Jews have had reason to regret the intervention of Manasseh, and the compliance of England under the guidance of Cromwell. The Jews have repaid England a hundred-fold by their commercial strength, by their love and loyalty to the country and its people, by the completeness with which they have identified themselves with all its interests, and by the strong feeling of truest patriotism which attunes every fibre of the heart of the English Jew to the best traditions of this country.

In every walk of English public life the Jews have risen to the highest positions accessible to them, and have covered themselves with distinction. Without being unduly invidious, it is justifiable to mention especially the Rothschilds, whose present head, Lord Rothschild, was fittingly chosen as the first Jew to be created a Peer of the Realm. Among philanthropists there have been men like Sir Moses Montefiore and Frederic Mocatta, whose death, recently, was mourned by every charitable association in the country. In law we have seen Sir George Jessel, first as Solicitor General, and then as Master of the Rolls. Baron Henry de Worms, afterward Lord Pirbright, became a Minister of the Crown, while, at the present moment, the successors of English Jews in all walks of life have become too much a matter of fact to excite any comment.

YOUNG WOMAN FINDS THAT LOVER IS THIEF

Their Wedding is Prevented by His Arrest in Her Home for Burglaries

THE END A TRAGEDY

Unable to Bear Humiliation and Disgrace, Fiancee Stabs Herself with Dagger

Paris, January 3.—A pitiful tragedy occurred in the St. Jacques quarter yesterday. An old naval quartermaster, M. Durban, rented rooms there, and lived with his daughter, who, in order not to be entirely dependent on her father, fitted up one of the rooms with the requisite materials for millinery work.

A few months ago a handsome young man named Marcel Ganot rented a room which overlooked that occupied by Mlle. Durban. He paid great attention to her, and ultimately the father, seeing how things were going, called him in and demanded an explanation. The young man replied that his most ardent wish was to marry the daughter.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

The banns were to have been published almost immediately. But on Thursday evening some detectives presented themselves at the quartermaster's residence and asked to be allowed to speak to the lover, who was in M. Durban's rooms.

They then informed him, in the presence of his fiancee and her father, that they had come to arrest him, on a charge of committing burlaries and decamping with several hundred pounds' worth of valuables.

The young man was thunderstruck by this sudden blow. He could not find a word to say in his own defence. The police at once took him to the station.

The girl said not a word after he had gone, but retired to her bedroom. Her father thought that she was naturally grief-stricken and preferred to face her trouble alone.

A DAGGER IN HER BREAST.

But in the morning about 9 o'clock it struck him as being remarkable that he had not yet seen or heard his daughter. He rose, went upstairs and knocked at the door. It was locked, and as he could get no answer he flung himself against it and broke it open.

Mlle. Durban lay stretched on her bed with a dagger planted in her left breast. She was unconscious but still living. She now lies at the hospital in a desperate condition.

Before attempting suicide the girl left a letter addressed to her father, begging him to forgive her for having killed herself, as she was unable to bear the shame of finding that her lover was a criminal.

CHARACTERS IN NOVEL RESENTED IN ROME

Prominent Society People Recognize Themselves in Bagot's Work "The Passport."

LONDON.

It is reported from Rome that many prominent Romans among the "Whites" and "Blacks," as the adherents of the Palace and the Vatican are called respectively, have recognized themselves among the characters in Richard Bagot's last novel, "The Passport."

Mr. Bagot, who knows the Eternal City familiarly, is supposed to have drawn also on his personal knowledge of Roman society. In this he follows a practice which has always existed among novelists.

Dickens gave great offense by his friendly caricature of Leigh Hunt as Harold Skimpole, and on other occasions he drew "from life." Thackeray caught his originals frequently in contemporary life, as the portrait of Lord Steyne bears witness, who was no other than the Marquis of Hertford.

Perhaps the worst offender in this way was Disraeli, who could not keep his hands off his acquaintance. He made constant use of his political associates, and "Endymion," his last novel, is a regular gallery of portraits. In it will be found a gross picture of Thackeray, under the style of Mr. St. Barbe.

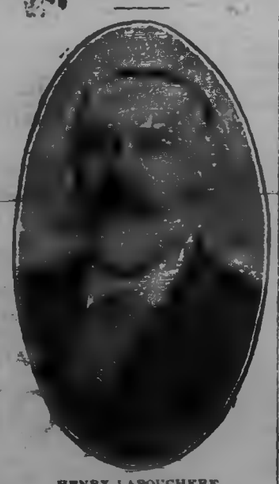
Mr. Meredith drew the heroine of "Diana of the Crossways" from the Hon. Mrs. Norton, who was falsely reputed to have betrayed a great political secret, as Diana is represented as betraying one.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is consistently and persistently "biographical." Her first novel, "Miss Bretherton," had its inspiration in Miss Mary Anderson, the actress. Her second, "Robert Elsmere," was founded on T. H. Greene, the well-known philosopher, of Oxford; and in later novels she has gone to the past for her portraits, as in "The Marriage of William Ashe" the lively heroine, Rose, is a faithful rendering of Lady Caroline Lamb, the admirer of Lord Byron.

Mr. Mallock's "New Republic" included a whole batch of familiar faces, from Matthew Arnold and Mr. Pater to Professor Clifford.

LABOUCHERE RETIRES FROM PUBLIC LIFE

London's Well-Known Editor Will Not Seek Re-election to Parliament.



HENRY LABOUCHERE

LONDON.

The gaiety of Parliament is about to suffer a partial eclipse, and the electors of Northampton must seek, and probably in vain, for a representative as witty, outspoken and sensible as their retiring member, Mr. Labouchere. Many of his friends believed that a place would be found for the sturdy Radical in the new Liberal Cabinet, but that was not to be, and after a long public life and a record of excellent work, the editor of Truth retires into private life with the advent of his 75th year.

He has earned a period of rest. And yet it is safe to say that "Labby" will not cease from commenting upon the deeds good and ill of his colleagues, and that time will not diminish the strength of his attacks upon those of his Parliamentary colleagues from whom he is pleased to differ. Perhaps it is well that he did not take office. His charm lay in his independence; without that he would cease to compel attention. The House of Commons can ill spare Northampton's chosen, and with his retirement a certain measure of cleverness must pass from its debates.

Slanderous Tombstone

BERLIN, —Wilhelm Schmied, of Unternaib, who instructed a stone mason to inscribe on his wife's tombstone the words "Here rest the remains of Marie Schmied, who died, after much suffering, from the effects of unscrupulous treatment," was sentenced to a month's imprisonment for slandering the doctor who attended her.

BRETON PEASANT MIRACLE WORKER

Many Said to Have Been Cured of Ills by Imposition of Hands.

BREST,

Making the blind to see, the deaf to hear and many other marvelous cures effected by the laying on of hands are attributed to a man named Saltzmann, who has acquired an extraordinary reputation throughout Brittany as a worker of miracles.

How much of his reputation is due to Breton credulity and how much to his own powers is difficult to say, but hundreds of persons are flocking to him to be cured.

He has been staying for the last fortnight at Huelgoat, where he is credited with over 200 cures. The only condition necessary to success is faith in his powers. He even claims that he can cure from a distance and that a letter written to him with faith will bring restoration of health.

A case is recorded of a miner whose sight was destroyed by an explosion. Two days after he placed himself under Saltzmann's care he is alleged to have recovered his sight sufficiently to find his way about without assistance and to distinguish colors.

A wrinkled wrist, the result of a bicycle fall, touched by him became strong and the pain and stiffness vanished.

The people of the neighborhood swear that they know him to be genuine.

BENGAL STILL BITTER AGAINST THE ENGLISH

Natives of Disturbed Province Being Incited to Sedition by Their Leading Men.

CALCUTTA,

The Bengali newspapers in Calcutta continue to fill their columns with mischievously exaggerated stories of oppression exercised by the British authorities in putting down the anti-partition agitation in eastern Bengal. The Bengalis are being told by their leading men that an attempt is being made to break them up as a nation.

Signs of the state of race feeling which prevails are to be seen in the sullen faces of the fat Bengali baboos who parade the streets of Calcutta. Day after day educated Bengalis are being arrested and punished with only trifling fines for interfering with the police and for exciting disturbances.

An English professor (Mr. Russell) has been attacked by his own students in the Calcutta University. A barrister (Mr. Gregory) from the Calcutta bar, who went to Madaripore, in eastern Bengal, to defend a European against whom a false charge had been brought, had to be escorted by the police through a howling mob from the court house to the railway station.

MILLIONAIRE WANTS TO "BUY" A PRODIGY

Offers $150,000 for Control of Mischa Elman's Services Until He Becomes of Age.

LONDON

Frank Gardner, dashing viveur, successful financial operator and erstwhile star on the French and English turf, is once more coming before the public, and is said to have snatched another fortune from the rich mines of Australia.

Always original in his enterprises, his first bold venture with his new riches has been to offer $150,000 for the control of Mischa Elman's services during the next seven years, i. e., until the wonderful young Russian violinist attains his majority. Mr. Gardner has deputed a musical friend at Monte Carlo, where he and the late Barney Barnato once broke the bank on "13 Red," to proceed to Berlin and open up negotiations with Mischa Elman's father. It may be recalled that it was as manager of a musical and dramatic enterprise that Mr Gardner made the first coup of his varied and picturesque career.

Throughout the term that he juggled with millions in London and Paris Mr. Gardner always showed a very strong interest in musical affairs, and at his princely home in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne the great Marchesi and other leading figures of the Parisian musical world were frequent guests.

Mischa Elman, whom Mr. Gardner wishes to control, continues to create a tremendous sensation in musical circles, and played on Saturday night at the Gewandhaus Concert, at Leipsic, with enormous success. He has been engaged as soloist for the Birmingham Musical Festival October, 1906.

QUEEN VICTORIA MEMORIAL

Englishman Offers to Build a Large Hall at Mentone.

MENTONE, —Sir Thomas Hanbury has offered between $40,000 and $50,000 to build a handsome hall suitable for meetings, bazaars and dances, in memory of Queen Victoria's stay at Mentone in the spring of 1895, on condition that the municipality gives the necessary land.

The Mayor has accepted the offer, subject to the ratification of the Council. The generous gift has aroused great enthusiasm in the town, whose people were deeply devoted to the late Queen.

PROFESSOR TAMES FISH

They Permit Him to Handle Them and Exhibit No Fear.

GENEVA, —Dr. R. Fastenrath, a Swiss professor, of Zurich, has just terminated some interesting experiments for the purpose of taming fish in the Lake of Lugano.

For five months he has been repeatedly standing immersed up to his neck in the waters of the lake, with a piece of bread in each hand, to tempt the fish.

In time his patience was rewarded, and he found himself on friendly terms with some 200 members of the finny tribe. The fish even permitted the Swiss savant to caress them and lift them out of the water without showing any signs of fear.

Toward the end of the experiments Dr. Fastenrath let down a white screen into the water, and with the aid of a special camera took some striking photographs of his finny friends.

KAISER SENDS GIFTS TO MIKADO'S SOLDIERS

Former Prisoners of War Honored on Their Way Home Through Berlin.

BERLIN,

Over 1700 Japanese soldiers, with sixty officers, released prisoners of war, who have been detained in Russia for the last year and a half, passed through Berlin yesterday on their way back to the East by way of Hamburg.

When the Kaiser heard of their arrival he sent boxes of chocolate and cigarettes for the men and bunches of chrysanthemums for the officers. These were greatly appreciated, as many of the recipients had not seen their national flower since the war broke out.

Oranges, cakes and sweets were also given to the men by the members of the German Red Cross Society, who, with the officials from the Japanese Legation and two officers representing the Kaiser, met them at the station.

The Japanese were dressed in the fur coats which they wore in Manchuria. Sixty of them are still suffering from their wounds, and five died on the route from Medviet, the town in Russia where they were kept as prisoners.

Some of the wounded who were relieved by the Red Cross nurses are in a pitiable condition. Many have had their limbs amputated and others are totally blind. The Kaiser's gifts were distributed by his Majesty's servants.

FRANCE'S NAVAL PROGRAMME

Three Big Battleships to be Laid on Stocks This Year.

PARIS, —A most interesting exposition of French policy authorised by M. Thomson, the Minister of Marine, is published in the Echo de Paris to-day.

Naval experts declare that at the present moment the French fleet is superior to the German and that France will keep in front without increasing her present expenditure on new construction.

M. Thomson has, however, decided to lay down three new battleships of 18,000 tons each. They will be equipped with long-range heavy artillery, and their armament will include four 12-inch and twelve 9.5-inch guns. Their speed will be nineteen knots.

PHONOGRAPH TELLS ITS TALE OF LOVE

Mars a Social Gathering and Will be Evidence in Suit for Divorce.

PARIS,

A phonograph marred a soiree held in honor of his friends last night by an insurance agent named Partant, living in the Rue Juliette Lambert. Among the guests was a certain M. Paul Carmin.

Mme. Partant, who has a magnificent voice, sang for the guests, and her husband then brought out a box of phonograph cylinders. He took one labeled "Comic Song," and started the instrument, but instead of a comic song the machine began to grind out the fameus duet from "Romeo and Juliet," sung by Mme. Partant and M. Paul Carmin.

The duet was interlarded by such remarks as: "Oh, you little darling!" "Yes, dear!" "Yes, Paul, my precious!" And the voice of Paul was heard replying "Dearest Amelie—the wife's name—you are a love-bird!"

A painful scene ensued, and, as the guests left hurriedly, M. Partant sent for the police, and went with his wife, Carmin, and the phonograph to the office of the nearest magistrate, where he registered a prosecution against the "singers," and left the phonograph as proof.

It is said that Mme. Partant and M. Paul Carmin had been in the habit of singing duets and of taking records on phonograph cylinders, which Carmin took away with him. He had left one by mistake, and the husband had used it by the merest accident.

FAMILY PREFERS DEATH TO DISGRACE

Father Kills His Wife and Two Children and Then Ends Own Life.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN,

The police received a postcard yesterday stating that George Wendland and family had shot themselves in the town wood.

When the place indicated was visited four bodies were found lying side by side near a tree, to which was pinned a note on which was written, "George Wendland and family. Forgive us our sins."

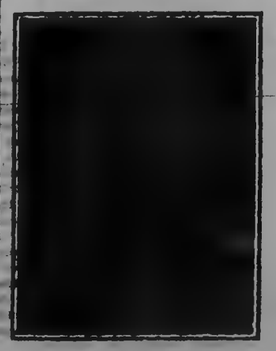
Wendland, who was employed in the post office and was about to be prosecuted for embezzlement, was 45 years of age. His wife was 42, his daughter 13 and his son 17.

The mother, son and daughter were covered with an overcoat and a mantle, and it appears were shot in a lying position by the father, who then lay down beside them and shot himself.

In each case the dress of the victim had been opened over the heart to allow a certain passage of the bullet to the vital part.

NICHOLSON PRAISED BY WAR SECRETARY

One of England's Leading Army Officers Made Quartermaster General of Forces.



GENERAL SIR W. NICHOLSON.

The appointment of General Sir William Nicholson as Quartermaster-General to the Forces is the first important act of the new Secretary of War. It is to be hoped that all his future policy may be equally bold and equally well advised.

General Sir William Nicholson is one of the hardest workers the army can boast of at present, and also one of its keenest critics. He knows, only too well the ins and outs of army administration, how ludicrously fumbling it has become and what is needed to make it effective and direct.

He may consider himself bitterly experienced in War Office eccentricities, for the last administration wanted to send him to Gibraltar, that unpromising rock, a kind of military St. Helena, where you may be decently buried alive.

He has an unusually brilliant record of active service. He fought in the Afghan war, marched to Kandahar, served in Egypt, Burmah, and more recently to South Africa, where he acted as director of transports.

Later still he became Director-General of Mobilization and Military Intelligence at the War Office. He found, if one may be permitted the quibble, that there was no "intelligence" there to direct. And the lack of intelligence tried to get him officially interred in Gibraltar.

WASTEFUL PAUPERS.

London, January 6.—At the meeting of the St. George's-in-the-East Board of Guardians attention was drawn to the waste of provisions, under the new order of the board, allowing the inmates to take food out of the dining hall. It was stated that the drain had been found on several occasions to be blocked up with broken food.

A WIRELESS WONDER

Wonderful as the magic of Aladdin's lamp is the sending of messages thousands of miles through sheer space. And so far as the understanding is concerned it is magic. Wireless telegraphy surely is the greatest wonder of the age.

The possibilities of this new electrical discovery may be indicated perhaps by an event last month which was so striking that knowledge of it was suppressed at the time to await verification.

On December 19 a message was sent from the wireless telegraph station of the United States Navy Department at Manhattan Beach to the one at Pensacola. The operator in charge of the naval station at Colon, Panama, received it clearly and accurately. The distance from Manhattan Beach to Colon is 2,150 miles. The first trans-Atlantic cable, considered, when it was laid, one of the greatest achievements of man, was only 1,600 miles long. The navy authorities decided not to make the Colon report known until a copy of the message was received from Colon and compared with the one sent from Manhattan Beach. They were found to be exactly the same.

Wireless telegraphy is in its infancy and the efforts of the electricians developing it are now confined to making it reliable under all conditions in limited areas. But the mere fact that messages have been transmitted through more than 2,000 miles of space suggests boundless achievements in the future.

COMING BACK

The Dora Thorne Co. Will Appear Here on Tuesday January 16th

Rowland and Clifford's grand production of the life of Dora Thorne, with a strong company returns to Peterboro, under special engagement next Tuesday, January 16, owing mainly to the many hundreds of local citizens turned away, owing to overcrowded houses last week.

As this excellent company could be secured for one night only, patrons of the drama should ensure their seats early this time, and avoid disappointment. Prices remain the same as last week, viz., 25, 35, 50, and gallery 15 cents.

G. T. R. to Pay $200,500

Toronto, Jan. 13.—$200,500 is the sum the Grand Trunk Railway is prepared to pay for the land it requires for the new Union station on Front street, and the Esplanade. Of this, a number of holders of properties have been settled with for about $24,000, and the Grand Trunk Railway management yesterday took the necessary steps towards securing possession of other lands required. Notices of expropriation, with the prices the company is prepared to give, were served on the legal representatives of these property owners.

Peterboro's Visitors Have Returned Home

The Dairymen's Convention, After Their Most Successful Meeting is Now Over---Government Inspection of Factories Almost Assured

And now the long anticipated, most instructive and well attended meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association has been held in this city and over.

This convention, said by President Derbyshire, to be the best on record of all held by that association, during the past 25 years, was, as far as the city is concerned, perhaps somewhat below expectation as regards attendance, both by members and the surrounding farmers.

As far as the meetings were concerned, no cavil can be used. The speakers were eloquent, able and beyond measure good natured. Many hundreds of good pointed practical questions were asked and satisfactorily answered by the well-posted instructors and speakers.

What there is to be known in regard to any and every detail of the butter and cheese making industries, and was not thoroughly explained in detail, would be difficult to ascertain.

Perhaps the most important feature of the whole meeting was the resolution adopted to ask for Government inspection of cheese factories.

As the subjects touched upon by the various speakers have been so thoroughly described in detail by our issues of yesterday and Wednesday, it would only be a tiresome repetition, and dull reading to quote yesterday's speakers in full.

It is doubtful if any instructor or educational meeting ever held in Peterboro, was attended by an audience more in accord with the speakers, or more evidently bound to learn what they could. As every speaker finished his address, he would ask his audience to ask what questions they wanted. This request was, in every case complied with; questions right to the point poured in and although many of them had been answered in full by previous speakers, still with commendable good humor, and tireless patience, the speakers would reply to the satisfaction of the most exacting (and we were almost saying exasperating) enquirers.

As regards our visitors, it must be said that a more sober, gentlemanly, intelligent, well dressed and thoroughly satisfied body of men, never came to Peterboro. They were satisfied with our hotel accommodations, with our city, our lights and with their convention.

It must be whispered that one or two of the hotels, which subscribed liberally to the convention were disappointed in not getting any results. At least three or four hotels, which subscribed from $3 to $5 each did not reap one dollar's worth of benefit from the convention. This, however, may result in a lesson being given and taken advantage of. In such cases, where hotels subscribe towards getting any body of men for Peterboro, a committee should be appointed to wait at the trains and see that visitors are properly distributed among those subscribing.

At yesterday's morning session, perhaps the most important business transacted, was the report given as to advisability of having the Government license cheese and butter factories. The report was as follows;

"We, the committee appointed by your association to gather information, and report upon the advisability of licensing cheese factories and creameries in the province of Ontario beg leave to report that in our opinion, while the dairymen of Ontario may not yet be prepared for such a measure, we believe that a thorough measure of sanitary inspection of cheese and butter factories and dairies, is in the interests of the dairymen of Ontario absolutely necessary, and this association would most respectfully petition, the Government of Ontario, to provide such legislation as may be required to ensure our cheese factories, creameries, and dairies, being kept in a clean and sanitary condition, with a pure water supply.

"J. R. Dargavel,
"H. Glendenning,
"R. G. Murphy,
"Committee."

Mr. Dargavel spoke along the line of licensing factories after bringing forward the resolution, Mr. Dargavel said that whilst we pat ourselves on the back, and say our Canadian cheese was well received in England, prices would be uniformly raised by uniform cleanliness. By having had uniformly high grade cheese we would have made $2,000,000 more in the past 2 year, or one-tenth of the whole amount made altogether. No local effort at inspection would ever accomplish much. Inspection must be done by a Government official free for local prejudice. Wisconsin, the largest dairying State in the U.S. has Govt. inspection of factories and creameries, appointing an inspector and licensing cheese and butter factories.

Mr. Derbyshire introduced Mr. J. W. Mitchell, B.A.,

Mr. J. W. Mitchell, B.A., superintendent of the Dairy School, Kingston, the first speaker at this session. Mr. Mitchell, gave a most interesting talk upon "Creamery Butter Making."

While we fell off slightly in our exports of cheese last year, this was more than compensated for in the butter industry. He gave some statistics which, when analysed are of most gratifying character. Speaking with regard to the butter industry, he said that our total exports of butter last year had aggregated almost 8,000,000 lbs., the total production being 48,000,000 lbs. The exports of 1905 had exceeded by 80,000 packages, that of 1904, and by 225,000 packages that of 1903. The price conditions had been equally satisfactory. 3-4 cents per lb. being the average increase over 1904. The prices in the two respective years had been 21 1-2 cents and 18 cents per pound.

As an illustration of the progress made, the speaker instanced the case of 12 creameries in Eastern Ontario, of which the output had been in 1905, 1,280,000 pounds, which represented an increase of 300,000 pounds over that of the previous year.

Mr. Mitchell next turned his attention to a discussion of the best methods to employ in order to secure an improvement in the quality of the butter. He urged the necessity of cleanliness.

He advocated the use of the acidometer test. Its simplicity and general excellence made its use desirable. The quality of the cream in recent years has shown a decided improvement over that which formerly prevailed.

The butter results now being obtained in the butter industry the speaker attributed to the present prompt shipment from Montreal. He advised the pasteurization of cream in the winter months.

After Mr. Mitchell had finished his speech, Mr. Murphy, secretary of the association, brought forward resolutions, viz., that the thanks of the association be tendered to the Mayor, Council, President and members of the Board of Trade, manufacturers, merchants and citizens generally, for the hospitality and kindness manifested during the convention.

The press and railway officials were similarly remembered.

The following resolution passed at a meeting of the East Peterboro Farmers' Institute at Keene, was read;

Moved by Samuel Armstrong, seconded by Peter Drummond, that this Institute recommend that the E.D.A. meeting in Peterboro next Jan. discuss and take some action regarding the appointment of a Dairy Inspector by the Government, or the establishment of Grading Stations in each district.

C. O'REILLY,
Secretary, E. P. F. I.

Then Mr. Woodard, official referee of Montreal, was introduced by Mr. Derbyshire. Owing to his business, he has had good opportunities to see many kinds and qualities of cheese and butter. There are many kinds of cheese, addy cheese, rancid cheese, turnipy cheese, and good cheese. During the hot weather the cheese is poorer than in cold weather. When a cheese, or butter maker, has a poor churning, he should mark it as second quality, and thus save his whole output getting a bad name.

He next referred to the poor boxes supplied east of Brockville. The cheeses often are too large for the boxes and thus project above the tops of the boxes. When hundreds of cheeses are piled one on top of another, they get squashed, and thus are hard to sell on the English market. Prices of last year were high, and in his opinion will go higher this coming year.

During the past year, in the hot weather, in Montreal, the dealer got many addy and sour cheeses.

There is a wonderful uniformity among the cheeses from the syndicate factories and advised all factories to enter a syndicate. If a cheese maker is hired by the month, he has to take conditions as he finds them. A good man will not turn out poor cheese, and thus many a good man going to a poorly equipped factory will quit and thus the services of a good man are lost. 154,000 boxes of cheese in Montreal, were found to be below grade. The loss, owing to the cut in price for low grade cheese is an enormous sum out of the pockets of the factories supplying this low grade cheese. If the maker is responsible for poor cheese, he should be shown up, but where it is the fault of poorly equipped factories, he should not be blamed. It is this latter condition that is driving good cheese makers out of the country.

There are, however, makers who are a curse to the country and this trade. The farmer should do some thinking about the environments of his farm. He should see that his milk stand and other accessories are scrupulously clean. He should see which of his cows is paying for itself. He may have thought that Brindle was making him money, whilst the spotted cow was a loser; he may by intelligent watching, see that just the reverse is the case. If any gentleman in the audience would like to ask questions, he would answer him. However the audience seemed to have run out of questions.

Mr. G. G. Publow, chief instructor of Kingston, then gave a most comprehensive address relative to the care of milk.

It seems very foolish, said Mr. Publow, to maintain good cows from which satisfactory results are obtained, and still suffer the losses entailed by improper care. Cheese and butter making are largely a matter of fermentation. Milk should be cared for as soon as possible after milking. He said it down that it must be clean, pure and sweet. It is the duty of farmers to get milk to the factories in as good condition as possible.

The officers for the coming year were then elected as follows;

President—D. Derbyshire, M. P., Brockville.
1st Vice-President — John R. Dargavel, M.P.P., Elgin.
2nd Vice-President — G. G. Publow, Kingston.
3rd Vice-President — I. B. Carlow, Warkworth.
4th Vice-President—J. H. Singleton, Newburg.
Secretary—R. G. Murphy, Brockville.

A FACTORY STORY

Gananoque Delegate Tells a Good Story About a Cat in the Milk

On Friday afternoon, one of the Gananoque delegates to the recent convention, told a story that was vouched for by several of his fellow delegates from that district.

It seems that a few months ago, a farmer, in the dairying business near a cheese factory a few miles from Gananoque, one night poured his milk into his vat to let it cool, so that next morning he could put in the rest of his supply for the local cheese factory.

When the hired man, next morning, went with his boss, to put the milk into the vat, they discovered that the family cat had fallen into the evening's milk and was then lying in it drowned. The farmer caught the dead cat by its tail and flung it out on the heap back of his barn. The milk was then duly delivered to the cheese factory.

A few days after this the boss and the hired man had a row, resulting in the man being fired. The discharged man, in revenge, went to the cheese factory, and told about the milk in which poor puss lost her life, being sold and made into cheese. The factory owners then went to the farmer and asked if the man's statement was true. The farmer, being a great church member, admitted the truth of the charge. The factory insisted on the farmer buying all the cheese made the day after he sent his "catstery" milk, or forego selling that factory any more milk.

The farmer took the cheese, some 2,400 pounds and paid for it. Next day cheese went up 1-2 a cent per pound, and the farmer sold his cheese at the next board meeting, making a nice little profit of $12. There is money in oats.

WINNING DENISE

By Leonard Frank Adams

Copyright, 1905, by E. S. McClure

Big Pierre Laloup sent his canoe down stream with such mighty strokes of the paddle that the tough ash bent in his hands and bade fair to snap. Twilight was falling the soft, mysterious twilight of the forest that made black shadows beneath the tamaracks while the sky blazed red and gold above the treetops. The pipe of birds came musically through the stillness, and far away a white owl was hooting dismally.

Ordinarily Pierre would have loitered along, drifting idly with the current and watching the night descend upon the forest, for, familiar with it all as he was, these early summer twilights cast their spell upon him. They made him content with the world and with himself. But tonight the spell was rudely shattered. He wanted to paddle hard enough to blot out his bitter thoughts.

For a long time he had known it was coming. He had endeavored to prepare himself for the shock. Yet now that it was here, despite all his foresight and his determination to take the blow stolidly, his heart was full of ranking bitterness. Yes, he had known it that day in early spring, when Denise Beauchamp had come back from the convent a thousand times prettier and a thousand times more intangible. He had known then that she had gone quite beyond the pale of his dreams.

The Denise who came back from the convent was not the Denise of old. This new Denise, with the big, starry eyes that looked one through and through, was a bewildering creature. In her presence big Pierre felt like an awkward, bungling schoolboy. Her cool, quiet voice, with its subtle inflections, made him hot and cold by turns and set him stammering absurdly when he essayed conversation with her. Therefore in time he came to worship her in silence whenever he paid one of his frequent visits to Pere Beauchamp's clearing on the headwaters of Little Otter.

"YES, I MUST GO AWAY," SHE REPEATED.

Over and over again Pierre had told himself that a girl like Denise was as far away from him as the sun is from the groveling mole. Yet tonight as he paddled toward his own clearing he found but little consolation in reiterating this to himself.

He had gone up to the Beauchamp clearing bubbling over with good humor. Had not the six men who were coming from New York to fish for salmon engaged his camp for quarters and himself for guide at a fabulous sum? He had intended to tell them of this and to drop mysterious hints about the gifts Denise would receive when the summer's fishing should be over. But when he reached the clearing there was something about Pere Beauchamp's exuberant spirits and the fat Mere Beauchamp's undisguised satisfaction that filled him with vague fears.

Between them artlessly they told Pierre of their daughter's good fortune. The wedding would take place in the late fall. Oh, yes, he was rich, very rich, this lumber buyer from Montreal. He had come to the lumber camp up stream to contract for logs. He had seen much of Denise, and—well, what would you? Denise was a fine girl. She was worthy of such a man. She would make him a good wife, as well she should. Mere Beauchamp called on heaven to witness the struggle they had been through to raise money to give her an education at the convent.

Pierre listened to all their chatter in stunned silence. When he could bear it no longer he declared he must be going down stream, and despite their hospitable protestations he pushed his canoe into the stream.

And as big Pierre Laloup went paddling madly back to his own clearing, his heart crying obstinately for Denise, even as a poor blind mole might cry for the sun.

* * * * * * *

It was autumn, and there was a touch of frost in the air before Pierre found heart to go to Beauchamp clearing again. He wanted to buy a wedding present for Denise, and with a view to seeking Pere Beauchamp's advice on this point he paddled up the Little Otter.

When he reached the clearing it was ominously silent. He shouted lustily as he headed the canoe for the bank. In answer to his shout he saw Denise come running toward the stream.

"Keep back!" she called. "You mustn't land!"

"Eh? Why not?" he asked, amazed.

"It is smallpox," she exclaimed.

Big Pierre drove the nose of his canoe to the bank and stepped out. "I am not afraid," said he. "Is he here with you?"

A trip around the world in 60 minutes at a mere trifle.

Laughable, interesting and exciting scenes from every land--A trip around the world at almost no cost.

Scores upon scores of people are daily taking advantage of our very liberal and decidedly interesting offer.

Magnificently finished and exquisitely photo-color views in place of the oldtime and antiquated views of the past. A most pleasant and interesting hour to spend journeying around the globe viewing the places of greatest interest, most beautiful scenery, etc., at a mere trifle of cost through our liberal plan. These views illustrate some of the most noted places in the world—mountain scenery both in America and Europe—waterfalls and other famous natural phenomena, some of the world's most famous buildings, places of historical interest and places famous for beautiful architecture or beautiful natural scenery. This set is of the greatest educational value, presenting, as it does, such realistic likenesses of scenes and places that we all should know about. We want every household in this city to have one of these sets. Imagine yourself taken through the Orient, on a trip to California, through the world's Fair to see the splendid scenes as though you were right there on the spot. By a special process, a combination of lithographing and half-tone work, we are able to offer a collection of colored views from every part of the world in the most beautiful, natural and startling life-like color effects, which must be seen to be appreciated. It is impossible to describe the grandeur and beauty of these views. Come and see them. We want each and every household in this city to have a set of these.

The most beautiful scenes from every land, among which are the following:

Yellow Stone Park, U. S. A.; The Swiss Alps; On board a Russian Man-of-War; Scene from a Klondyke Camp; The Famous Ferry Depot, San Francisco; Cathedral from the Grand Canal, Rotterdam; Moulin Rouge, Paris; Street Scene, Mexico City; Emperor Wm. II Inspecting a Regiment; Chickamauga Park; Cotton Plantation Scene; On the Pike at the World's Fair, St. Louis; Holiday Street Scene Parade in Havana, Cuba; Scene Showing a Public Well, Pekin, China; Lookout Mountain; Steamboat Scene on the Mississippi; Garden of Gethsemane, Palestine; Scene Showing the Famous Southern Trestle; Hauling Trains Through Mountains in the South; The National Capitol at Washington, D. C.; The Pantheon at Rome; Victory Monument; Leipsic; Luna Island at Niagara Falls; David's Judgment Seat, Jerusalem; Interior View of President Diaz' Palace, Mexico; Ostrich Farm, Egypt; Royal Gardens, Dresden, Germany; (very beautiful), Palm Garden, Frankfort, Germany; Morro Castle, Havana; Plaza, World's Fair, St. Louis; Bird's Eye View Garden at Berlin, Germany; Ice Cave at Niagara Falls, N. Y., etc., etc., besides dozens of comic, sentimental and interesting views of every nature. These pictures are the genuine Oleo Stereoscopic Views, made especially for this purpose and are executed in a most artistic manner, being a combination process of lithographing and half-tone work enabling a magnificent depth of detail and splendid color reproduction true to life. You cannot enjoy an hour more delightfully than by viewing a set of these beautiful and decidedly interesting pictures.

It wasn't so very long ago that hundreds of thousands of people spent many pleasant hours with the stereoscope, but heretofore they were compelled to pay enormous prices for views, think of it, as high as 50c each for colored pictures. We sold thousands upon thousands of stereoscopic views, in colors, at 50c each in those days, but imagine each and every view had to be colored by hand. In the past few months we have had repeated demands for them, and being able to secure the latest and most beautiful colored views to furnish to the public at a ridiculously low price, we entered into the stereoscope plan on quite a large scale, and have taken immediate advantage of the International Art Association, who have spent an enormous amount of money to get out special color plates and have finally completed their end, namely: To place on the market thousands of magnificent stereoscopic views, the most beautiful, interesting and exciting scenes from every land, in the grandest and most exquisite natural colors.

Now we come to our great special offer. Read our plan carefully as it describes the stereoscope and tells how to secure the scope and views at almost no cost to you.

First the stereoscope. The Stereoscope is our world-famous "Aluminum Crystal Lens" Stereoscope. Genuine aluminum hood, bound with dark rich red velvet. Frame is of fine finished cherry wood with patent folding handle, folding underneath frame, and sliding bar. The lenses are extra fine quality, colorless for clearness and brilliancy, 1¼ inches in diameter, ground from best quality glass and carefully adjusted. This Crystal Lens Aluminum "Scope" has won universal praise from lovers of the beautiful, and as a means of entertainment stands second to nothing.

MARKET BLOCK — PETERBOROUGH

"He—he was here at the beginning, when we first knew what it was, but he went back to Montreal. I think he was afraid," she confessed.

Pierre scowled. "I will stay with you," he said simply.

Those following two weeks were like some hideous nightmare. The Monday after his arrival Mere Beauchamp died. Pierre built a coffin and dug the grave. It was he who read the prayers, and it was he who comforted the weeping Denise. And ten days later, when Pere Beauchamp breathed his last, Pierre went through it all again.

It was red dusk when Pierre and Denise came back from the second grave beneath the tamaracks. Cold, gray clouds hung—the sky; the wind whistled sharply. There was a biting chill in the air that seemed to herald the approach of gray, bleak winter.

"It is over now," said Pierre gently. "You must go away."

"Yes, I must go away," she repeated listlessly.

"I will take you to Montreal—to him," said he.

"No, no, Pierre!" she cried, with a sudden vehemence. "Not that!"

He looked at her in puzzled helplessness.

"Where then?" he asked.

She caught his arm. He saw a new and wonderful light in her eyes.

"Let me stay with you—always with you," she said.

Big Pierre began to tremble. He stood staring at her stupidly. He could not seem to realise the import of her words.

"There is a chapel at the fort," she said. "Take me there. We will be married there tonight, dear, you and I."

Might Spoil the Effect.

Wife Marshal MacMahon was president of the French republic an incident occurred which illustrates the Frenchman's love of what is dramatic.

A French soldier sat on the summit of a hill overlooking a garrison town. His horse was picketed close by. The man was smoking leisurely, and from time to time he glanced from the cigarette to an official envelope he held in his hand.

A comrade passed by and said:

"What are you doing here?"

"I am hearing the president's pardon for our friend Flichmann, who is to be shot this morning," replied the another calmly without changing his comfortable attitude.

"Well, then, you should hurry along with your pardon," admonished his comrade.

"Oh, no!" exclaimed the other in some indignation. "See, there is hardly a soul yet on the esplanade, and the firing platoon has not even been formed. You surely would not have me rob my appearance of all dramatic effect, my friend?"

Electro Magnets.

The familiar horseshoe magnet is made of highly tempered steel and magnetized so that one end is a north pole, the other a south or perhaps more commonly known as a negative and a positive. Once magnetised it is always magnetic unless the power is drawn from it by exposure to intense heat. An electro-magnet, however, can be made from any scrap of soft iron, from a piece of ordinary telegraph wire to a gigantic iron shaft. When a current of electricity passes through an insulated wire coiled about a soft iron object such as a nail, a bolt or a rod, that object becomes a magnet as long as a current of electricity is passing through the coils of wire or bolts. A coil of wire in the form of a spiral spring has a stronger field than a straight wire carrying the same current, for each turn or convolution adds its magnetic field to that of the other turns, and by having the center of the coil of iron, which is a magnetic body, the strength of the magnetism is greatly increased. —Joseph H. Adams in St. Nicholas.

The Best Painting at the Exhibition.

Lover—This landscape is undoubtedly the best picture in the exhibition. It strongly resembles that beautiful scene where Leonora gave me to understand that she reciprocated my affection.

Lady—This portrait of a lady deserves the first prize. The dress is quite inimitable and was, no doubt, made by a first class Paris costumer.

Gormand—A still life! Oysters, lobsters, champagne and even a goose liver pate! This is the most perfect picture I have seen yet.

Average Visitor—At the back yonder is the finest picture in the exhibition. I haven't seen it yet, but it draws the biggest crowd.

Professor—In this historical painting the costumes are most faithfully delineated. I have not seen a picture that I like better.

Gamekeeper—This portrait of a dog is wonderfully like my dead Jumbo. It's the best picture in the lot.

Painter—I have seen all the other fellows' pictures, but my own is the finest after all.—From the German.

Friendly Comment.

"I can't see why it is that some men will go in raptures over a silly woman," said the fair girl to her chum.

"Who's been making love to you now, dear?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

UNION AGAINST UNION

Moved by Mr. Rea, seconded by Mr. McPherson, that the thanks of this council are due and are hereby tendered to the Warden, Jas. McEwing, Esq., and G. B. Ryan, Esq., merchant of the city of Guelph, for the evidence given by them before the Tariff Commission in the interests of the consumers of this country.

The foregoing resolution was unanimously adopted by Wellington County Council, composed of about an equal number of Conservatives and Liberals, at a late session. When the Tariff Commission sat in Peterboro, it was waited upon by a deputation sent by Victoria County Council, and headed by a Warden who was described by John Campbell as "the bluest of blue Tories," to demand a reduction, rather than an increase, in the tariff.

These facts are significant, says the Farmer's Sun. They show that as the manufacturers have united, regardless of party lines, to secure additions to a tariff already too high, so have farmers and consumers united, on the other side, equally regardless of old party affiliations, to oppose that increase.

THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY

England has at last taken kindly to the sugar beet, which at Burton-on-Trent has delighted the grower by exhibiting over 16 per cent. of sugar, or 2 per cent. more than the continental beet contains, says a contemporary. For a long time the soil of England has been pronounced favorable for beet culture, but this is the first experiment to prove it.

In Nebraska one of the largest sugar factories in the United States closed lately because the farmers would not raise enough beets to keep it running.

In Michigan the sugar beet has been found the most profitable crop, and the acreage is increasing. One sugar company gives free seed and free freight, and pays a flat rate of $4 per ton.

As beet culture involves a great deal of hard labor, and farmers do not take kindly to it, experiments are now going forward for the development of a single germ seed, which will reduce the process of thinning. The labor question is a severe handicap to beet raising, and any new seed that will save time and exertion will be a welcome relief.

danger. To such a state of nervousness did this fright at last bring me that, unable to sleep any longer, I got out of bed and dressed myself. When I was fully attired I sought the deck, to discover a fine starlight night with a nice breeze blowing. I made my way to my usual spot forrard, and, leaning on the bulwark, looked down at the sea. We were now in the region of phosphorescent water, and the liquid round the boat's cutwater sparkled and glimmered as if decked with a million diamonds. In the apex of the bows the look-out stood, white black and silent behind him the great ship showed twice its real size in the darkness. The lamps shone brilliantly from the port and starboard lighthouses, and I could just manage to distinguish the officer of the watch pacing up and down the bridge with the regularity of an automaton. There was something about the silence, and that swift rushing through the water—for we must have been doing a good sixteen knots—that was most exhilarating. For something like an hour I stood and enjoyed it. My nervousness soon left me, and to my delight I found that I was beginning to feel sleepy again. At the end of the time stated I made my way towards the ladder leading from the topgallant fo'c'sle to the spar deck, intending to go below, but just as I reached it a man appeared from the shadow of the alley way, approached the bell, and struck three strokes—half-past one—upon it. At the same instant the look-out called "All's well!" The words were scarcely out of his mouth before there was a shuddering and grinding crash forrard, then a sudden stoppage and heeling over of the great craft, and after that a dead, ghastly silence, in which the beating of one's heart could be distinctly heard.

The confusion of the next few minutes can be better imagined than described. The vessel had slipped off and cleared herself from the obstruction whatever it was that had caught her, and was going on her way again, but at reduced speed. I heard the skipper open his cabin door and run up the ladder to the bridge shouting. "What has happened?" The officer of the watch replied, but at the same instant the sailors and firemen off duty came pouring out of the fo'c'sle shouting. "She's sinking! She's sinking!" The engine-room telegraph had meanwhile been rung, and the ship was perceptibly stopping. I stood where I was wondering all the time what I had better do.

"Every man to his station," bellowed the skipper, coming to the rails of the bridge, and funneling his mouth with his hands so that his voice might be heard above the din. "Be steady, men, and remember that the first man who gives any trouble I shall shoot without warning." Then, turning to the chief officer, he signed to him to take the carpenter and hasten forrard in an endeavor to ascertain the nature of the injuries the vessel had received.

By this time all the passengers were on deck, the women pale and trembling, and the men endeavoring to calm and reassure them as well as they were able. I made my way up the ladder to the hurricane deck, and as I did so felt the vessel give a heavy lurch, and then sink a little deeper in the water. A moment later the chief officer and carpenter crossed the wall and hurried up the ladder to the bridge. We all waited in silence for the verdict that meant life or death to everybody.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the skipper, coming down from the bridge, after a short conversation with them, and approaching the anxious group by the chart room door, "I am sorry to have to tell you that the ship has struck a rock, and in a short time will be no longer habitable for us. I want, however, to reassure you. There is ample boat accommodation for twice the number of our ship's company, so that you need have no possible fear about leaving her. How long it will be before we must go I cannot say. There is a strong bulkhead between us and the water which may stand long enough for us to reach Teneriffe, which is only about a hundred miles distant I think, however, it would be better for us to be prepared for any emergency. The ladies will therefore remain on deck, while the gentlemen go down to their cabins and bring them such warm clothing as they can find. The night is cold, and in case we may have to take to the boats before morning it will be well for everybody to make themselves as warm as possible."

Without more ado the male portion of the passengers ran down the stairway to the saloon like so many rabbits, I following at their heels to see if I could be of assistance. Into the cabins we rushed at random, collecting such articles of apparel as we could find, and carrying them on deck with all possible haste. The necessity for speed was so great that we did not pause to make selection or to inquire as to ownership, but took what we could lay our hands on and were thankful for the find. In the cabin I entered I noticed a pair of cork jackets pushed under a bunk. I dragged them out, and heaped them on top of the other things I had collected. Then a sudden inspiration seized me. On the rack in the saloon I had noticed a large flask. I took possession of it, and then, collecting the other things I had found, ran on deck again. I could not have been gone half a minute, but even in that short space of time a change had come over the ship. Her bows were lower in the water, and I trembled when I thought of the result of the strain on the bulkhead. I found Miss Maybourne standing just where I had first seen her, at a little distance from the others, aft of the chart-room and beside the engine-room skylight. She was fully dressed, and had a little girl of eight with her, the only daughter of a widow named Bailey, of whom she was very fond.

"Miss Maybourne," I cried, throwing down the things I had brought on the deck as I spoke, and selecting a thick jacket from the heap, "I found these clothes in a cabin, I don't know who they belong to, but you must put on as much as you can wear."

She obeyed me willingly enough, and when I had buttoned the last garment up I insisted on her putting on one of the cork jackets. All this as she was clothed I put another garment on the child, and then attached the second lifebelt to her body. It was too big for her to wear, but fastened round her shoulders I knew it would answer the same purpose.

"But yourself, Mr. Wrexford?" cried Miss Maybourne, who saw my condition. "You must find a cork jacket for yourself, or you will be drowned."

At the very instant that I was going to answer her the vessel gave a sudden pitch, and before the boats could be lowered or anything be done for the preservation of the passengers, she began to sink rapidly. Seeing that it was hopeless to wait for the boats, I dragged my two companions to the ladder leading to the after spar deck. When I reached it, I tore down the rail just at the spot where Miss Maybourne had fallen overboard on the Spanish coast a few nights before, and, this done, bade them jump into the sea without losing time. Miss Maybourne did so without a second thought; the child, however, hung back, and cried piteously for mercy. But, with the ship sinking so rapidly under us, to hesitate I knew was to be lost, so I caught her by the waist, and, regardless of her screams, threw her over the side. Then, without waiting to see her rise again, I dived in myself. The whole business, from the moment of the first crash to the time of our springing overboard, had not lasted five minutes. One thing was self-evident—the bulkhead could not have possessed the strength with which it had been credited.

On coming to the surface again I shook myself and looked about me. Behind me was the great vessel, with her decks by this time almost on a level with the water. In another instant she would be gone. True enough, before I had time to take half a dozen strokes there was a terrific explosion, and next instant I was being sucked down and down by the sinking ship. How far I went, or how long I was beneath the waves, I have no possible idea. I only know that if it had lasted much longer I should never have lived to reach the surface again or to tell this tale. But after a little while I found myself rising to the surface, surrounded by wreckage of all sorts and descriptions.

On reaching the top, I looked about me for the boats, which I felt sure I should discover; but, to my surprise, I could not distinguish one. Was it possible that the entire company of the ship could have gone down with her? The thought was a terrible one, and almost paralyzed me. I raised myself in the water as well as I was able, and as I did so I caught sight of two people within a few yards of me. I swam towards them, and to my joy discovered that they were Miss Maybourne and the child upon whom I had fastened the cork life-preservers a few minutes before.

"Oh, Mr. Wrexford, cried Miss Maybourne, in an agonized voice. "What are we to do? This poor child is either dead, or nearly so, and I can see no signs of any boat at all."

"We must continue swimming for a little while," I answered, "and then we may perhaps be picked up. Surely we cannot be the only survivors?"

"My poor, poor uncle!" she cried. "Can he have perished! Oh, it is too awful!"

The cork lifebelts were keeping them up famously, and on that score I felt no anxiety at all. But still the situation was about as desperate as it well could be. I had not the least notion of where we were, and I knew that unless we were picked up we should be better drowned at once than continue to float until we died of starvation. However, I was not going to frighten my only conscious companion by such gloomy anticipations, so I passed my arm round the child's waist and bade Miss Maybourne strike out for the spot where the ill-fated Fiji Princess had gone down. At the same time I asked her to keep her eyes open for a boat, or at least a spar of some

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to discriminating investors.

The management is assured that $25,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 16, 1899.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 24th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $25,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for one other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 700 to 1400 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay. Hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of development, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $16,127.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,200,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid dividends on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $7,500.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $50,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the amount paid in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

Dora Thorne Returns

Much favorable comment has been made on Manager Bradburn's enterprise in bringing back the Dora Thorne Co., next Tuesday night. As noted in former issues of The Times, several hundred people had to be turned away for lack of room in the opera house during their last visit. It is to accommodate those disappointed that Mr. Bradburn has engaged the company for Tuesday night. As they had to cancel an engagement in another town to come here, they will only play one night.

A Cow Story

A good story bearing on the recent dairymen's convention, is told of a young lady living on Gilmour street. She had been twice to the opera house, and was an interested listener to the speeches and reports on "The Cow."

A friend of hers, on Friday evening, whilst talking to still another friend, told the following story. The Gilmour street young lady last summer, was spending a few days at the farm of a friend in Otonabee.

Her host, at supper time one evening came in, and remarked that one of his Jersey calves was very sick. The conversation then ran along the line of the calf's food. "Food," said the host, "why she is just soaking the cow." "Walk," insisted the Gilmour street young lady, perhaps the cow's milk had gone sour and this may have sickened the poor little calf."

It is needless to say the farmer and his wife audibly smiled.

An Innovation on Grand Trunk Railway

In order to facilitate the prompt delivery of baggage at Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton, and to avoid delay and annoyance often occasioned at these points, the General Baggage Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are arranging for the checking of baggage from all stations in Canada direct to residences, hotels, railway stations and steamboat wharves in the above cities.

Under this arrangement a passenger from any station on the Grand Trunk Railway System, upon payment of 25c. for each piece, will be able to check their baggage direct to any residence, hotel, etc., thus avoiding the necessity of making arrangements for delivery on arrival and insuring the prompt receipt of baggage at destination.

Under this system baggage when received from trains at destination will be immediately delivered direct to the Transfer Co. for PROMPT DELIVERY, thus avoiding delays previously occasioned by placing same in baggage-room, recording, re-assorting, etc., thus saving time and unnecessary handling.

Further announcement will be made of date of this service will be put in-to effect.

NO MORE SMALLPOX

Disease Completely Wiped Out in North Country

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Dr. Bell, Apsley, Medical Health officer of Burleigh and Anstruther, stating that smallpox is now completely stamped out. No case is known in Burleigh, Anstruther or Chandos. This is certainly gratifying not only to the people of the North country, but also to the whole district. To Dr. Bell is credit largely due for the splendid way the outbreak was handled from the start. We believe the people of the Province, and particularly this section of it, should show their appreciation of Dr. Bell's services in some tangible way. Had he been less efficient the chances are the disease would have spread, and possibly enveloped this city.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

Mr. R. H. Leary Offered Agency of Canadian Pacific Colonization Co.

The many friends in this city, of our popular ex-Alderman and genial citizen, Mr. R. H. Leary, will be pleased to learn that he has been offered the agency for Eastern Ontario of the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Colonization Company, Limited. This company is controlled by the C.P.R. railway, and is the outcome of their irrigation scheme in Alberta. The head office of the company is in Calgary, and Mr. J. M. Patterson, is the general agent.

The company will have some 500,000 acres of land to offer to settlers and it is of the very best in that rich prairie province. The first track to be opened to land seekers will be the Gleicben district, which extends about 65 miles east of Calgary. The C.P.R. runs through the whole 500,000 acres and as fast as the land is taken up the railway will provide the necessary transportation.

This company has made every preparation for taking good care of possible settlers. For instance the company will not only give free transportation, but will house free settlers on their lands.

We understand that Mr. Leary will accept the position. The company has made a wise choice in selecting ex-Ald. Leary, who is a wide awake and strenuous hustler. Mr. Leary has considerable experience, gained partly by extensive travel in irrigated land, and will undoubtedly ably fill his new position, as his duties will be to sell land and to give applicants any information desired in reference to the company's property.

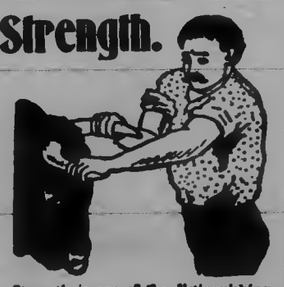
A Good Program

The good burgers of Millbrook, next Tuesday evening will have a rare musical treat as St. Paul's church choir of this city, will visit the village that night to assist in the Millbrook Presbyterian church entertainment.

Strength.



Strength is one of the distinguishing attributes of a healthy man. In one of the most beautiful poetic flights known to literature, the inspired singer finds no finer figure to express the sun's majestic rising than "rejoicing like a strong man to run a race."

Who has not known such a man, the picture of health, lusty and athletic, suddenly begin to fail? At first he has a slight cough, which he laughs at. Presently the cough becomes deep seated. The scales tell him he is losing flesh. A little later and the lungs bleed. He grows weaker and more and more emaciated. Each day sees some circumscribing of his activities, until at last he does not leave the house, and friends shake their heads and say, "Poor fellow! Who would ever have believed it possible?"

But what are the doctors doing all this time? Doing their best probably, but usually doing no lasting good. The emaciation grows more marked, the weakness more apparent, until at last the sick man hears the sentence, "There's no hope."

It is just at this very point of hopelessness that the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proven the first step to health to many a sufferer. It cures the cough, stops the hemorrhage, heals the lungs, puts sound flesh upon the body, and sends the man back to the activities of life as strong as ever. It's a wonderful statement, but it is literally true, that "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured time and time again when all other means had absolutely failed to benefit.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery," and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

Persons suffering from disease in chronic form are invited to consult Dr. R. V. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is private and the confidences of the sick are guarded with professional privacy. The success of the methods and medicines of Dr. R. V. Pierce, may be inferred from the fact that of the thousands treated by him and his assistant staff of nearly a score of physicians ninety-eight per cent. have been perfectly and permanently cured.

"A SURE CURE."

"I beg to state that I have used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery since my correspondence with you, and find great improvement in my case," writes Mr. A. F. Mowery, of New York, N.Y., Box 1437. "I feel that I am the proud of no finer medical endorsement. When I started to take your medicine I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and every one around me feared would be consumption. I was losing weight rapidly, was very pale and had no appetite whatever. Now my cough is entirely gone, I do not weigh 10 lbs. more, I gained 20 lbs. and look to weigh many pounds more. My health is now fully restored to me, and I can say that I am in the best of health. I can fully recommend your medicine, as I am sure it has done me more good than all the doctors' medicines I have taken, and is far superior to all doctor medicines."

THE DOCTOR WAS WRONG.

"When I commenced taking your medicines eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sears, of Clarenceville, Calvert Co., Md. "At times I could not even walk across the room without going to my chair. The doctor who attended me said I had heart trouble and that I would never be well again. At last I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I bought a bottle of Golden Medical Discovery,' both R. and sent approximately to find a little better, then you directed me to take both the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Favorite Prescription,' which I did. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' twelve of the 'Favorite Prescription' and five vials of 'Pellets.' I am now almost entirely well, and do all my work without any pain whatever, and can run with more ease than I could formerly walk."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages and 700 illustrations, is sent free on receipt of stamps to defray expense of customs and mailing only. Send 50 one-cent stamps for the book in cloth binding, or only 21 stamps if paper covers are desired. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SOUTH DUMMER.

On Saturday evening, 6th instant, a number of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott, who are removing to Smith Township, met at their home, about two miles west of Norwood, and during the course of the evening presented them with two handsome easy chairs, accompanied by the following address:

South Dummer, January 6th, 1906.

Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott;

Dear Neighbors,—We, a few of your many friends in this locality, having heard of your departure from our immediate midst have assembled tonight that we may convey to you our sincere regret that we are to be deprived of your presence in this community, and to wish you all prosperity in your new home. We feel incapable of expressing our appreciation of your worth. While you have lived amongst us we have learned to prize you as a true and tried friend. You have unconsciously won a warm place in our hearts. That you may remember your many friends, please accept these chairs, believing it to be but a slight token of the kindly feeling existing between you and us. May the community where you have cast your lot be able to appreciate your worth in a fuller sense than we have, and may you prove a blessing wherever you go.

Be assured you carry with you our best wishes and the prayers that the Good Father of all may so direct your steps that from your life may ever flow and influence for truth and righteousness. Signed in behalf of your many friends:

E. Jenkins,
F. Bongard,
G. Humphries.

THE LATE WM. R. THOMPSON

Touching Letter from Mr. W. H. Hill Regarding the Deceased.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—Permit me to add something to what has already appeared in your columns with reference to the late Mr. Wm. R. Thompson.

Of the estimation in which he was held by his fellow-citizens I need not speak, except to say that few men in the community were more widely known, and none more respected and beloved; but of his business and private life I may justly claim to know more than others who have not been so long or so intimately associated with him.

Mr. Thompson was in my employ, continuously, for the last eighteen years, and I very soon learned to look upon him, not, simply, as a faithful employee, but as a very dear friend and confidential adviser. So much did I value his wise counsel and sterling honesty of purpose, that, for years, I have taken no important step in my business without first consulting him.

He was often employed in arranging differences between the company and its patrons, a work for which he was peculiarly fitted, and I cannot recall an instance in which he failed. Possessing much of the firmness and caution of his remote Scottish ancestors combined with the genial wit of his fellow-countrymen, he always managed to conciliate without sacrificing any important principle.

In the family circle, Mr. Thompson's character was unique. He was not simply the head of the household, but just one of themselves; and, while his children never failed in respect for the father, they looked upon him much as a playfellow.

Only those who knew Mr. Thompson in his family relations can imagine the frantic grief of the bereaved widow and children.

For myself, I may say that my loss is irreparable. I had learned to love the man so much, and to depend on his advice and assistance, that, for the time, I seem stunned, and can scarcely realise that he is gone.

That the God of the fatherless and the widow will comfort and guide Mrs. Thompson and her children, is my earnest prayer.

Respectfully,
W. H. HILL.

Peterboro, January 12.

DATE NOT YET FIXED

For Big Deputation to Ottawa to Urge Early Completion of Trent Valley Canal.

While the City Fathers have decided to consort with the County and various Township Councils along the T. V. C. route, together with our City Board of Trade, in sending a mammoth deputation down to Ottawa, to urge placing under contract as soon as practicable the remaining unfinished sections of this important waterway, the date of this event has not yet been arrived at. Some, who are actively supporting the scheme, favor a deputation being sent as early as possible, in order that appropriations for this work may be embodied in the government's first estimates for 1906, while others again advocate postponing the event till the House of Commons is in session early in March, when all necessary appropriations can be provided for in the supplementary estimates. It is generally understood that an effort is to be made to run a big excursion on this auspicious occasion, and from that standpoint perhaps the latter proposition would be most acceptable, as excursionists will certainly favor visiting the Capital when Commons is in session. But some of our energetic citizens evidently entertain the belief that the old axiom of "early birds catching the most worms" is equally applicable where government estimates are concerned, hence their desire for an early interview with the Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa. It would be in order now for the City's Council and Board of Trade to hold a joint meeting, and earnestly consider which course is most advisable to adopt.

AN AMPHIBIOUS HORSE

Mr. Stabler's Horse Breaks Through Ice to Chemong Lake.

On Friday a gentleman from Lakefield brought word to the city of an unpleasant adventure that happened to Mr. Jas. Stabler, of Bridgenorth, on Wednesday.

It seems that Mr. Stabler was returning to Bridgenorth from Ennismore, across Chemong Lake, and when about five rods from this shore of the lake, the horse suddenly broke through the ice, being to the breeching in water.

The horse plunged and struggled towards shore, desiring to escape from its icy bath. Before it reached terra firma, the horse was covered by the cold water to its neck. Luckily the cutter runners, on each side of the canal thus made, held it up, and thus saved the driver from a mid-winter swim.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the bow of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; thus the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to wind or waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James S. Whitney of Boston, when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that he heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances can be introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

The Uncomfortable Howdah.

The elephant's howdah is that bed of Procrustes in which one can neither sit nor stand with any approach to reasonable ease, and in which a recumbent attitude is impossible. Its advantages are, first, that, standing in it, a man can shoot on every side of him; second, that it is convenient for the carriage of the occupant's paraphernalia, his guns on racks on either side, his ammunition in a trough in front, his other requisites in leather pockets here and there on the sides of the machine or, as to that, boo blanket on his seat, and, third, that in the hinder compartment an attendant can sit or stand to hold that monstrous umbrella over his head or, when quick loading is required, take from his hand the gun just fired and recharge it. These are advantages; otherwise the howdah is an abomination.

Edwin Booth as a Smoker.

Without a cigar Edwin Booth, the tragedian, was scarcely ever seen. Even while engaged on his professional duties his beloved weed was present in the wings, ready to be snatched from his dresser's hand for enjoyment during the sometimes exceedingly brief intervals between the exits and entrances. Twenty-five cigars a day were at one time his usual allowance, an allowance, however, not infrequently exceeded.

The Nation's Timekeeper.

Americans get their correct time from a little room in the naval observatory located on Georgetown heights, in the suburbs of Washington. The observatory was originally intended to detect errors in ship chronometers and to regulate them properly. This work constitutes one department of the institution, but perhaps its most important function is that of being the nation's timekeeper.

FROM BIRTH TO OLD AGE

Life is a constant fight against the dangers of disease, and he holds his own the best who keeps his body and its functions in the best working trim.

There are times in every life when Nature gratefully accepts a little aid. She does not want a whipping up for that is inevitably followed by depressing reaction.

In most cases a tonic and alterative properly compounded will afford the required help by promoting digestion, assimilation and reconstruction of tissue and reducing waste of vital nerve forces.

It must not be an alcoholic stimulant—just a vegetable tonic. Meeting these needs and conditions Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been in successful use these forty years and has accumulated a record of cures unequaled in the history of medicine. It is composed of non-alcoholic, glyceric extracts of Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root, and by special processes perfected by Dr. Pierce, in his own laboratory, so combined in the most exact proportions, and their medicinal properties preserved without the use of alcohol as to render it a safe and effective remedy for use in the family without consulting a doctor. Young or old can take it freely as needed, and now that its composition is published, there is no ground for prejudice against it as a patent medicine or secret medicine. It is neither.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps.

George St. Church Anniversary

At both morning and evening services in the George street church next Sunday, Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., pastor of Bridge street church, Belleville, will preach. As next Sunday is the anniversary of the church, he will doubtless be welcomed by large congregations. The members of the choir will wear their vestments for the first time. On the Monday evening following the annual congregational social will be held.

Peterboro Worked by Safe Blowers

Hicks & Company's Safe Door Shattered by Nitroglycerine and $50 in Cash Stolen Early Sunday Morning.

When Ald. Robert Hicks went to bed late Saturday night he made a jocular remark to his wife that now proves to have contained no joke, but stern reality.

As the worthy alderman prepared to take his "forty nods" and more, and was about to tumble into bed, at his residence corner of Murray and Aylmer streets, his ears were assailed by a muffled sound between that of an explosion and a distant gun shot. Between midnight and one a.m. yesterday morning, he and Mrs. Hicks each instinctly heard the report. More in fun than with any belief in what he said being substantial, Mr. Hicks remarked, "Hello! There is some one blowing open our safe." Mrs. Hicks, entering into the spirit of her husband's joke, said, "Nonsense, that is a gun shot, I guess some one up street is committing suicide."

The prophecy made by Ald. Hicks, however turned out to have been only too true. When Mr. Hicks, as is his custom even on Sundays, went to his office, at the coal sheds on the corner of Bethune and McDonell streets, he was startled to see the front door partly open, and several panes of glass shattered.

Of course his remarks of the preceding night or early that morning came vividly to mind, so he, at once entered the office.

Here a scene of devastation revealed itself, that, at once, disclosed the whole story. The back door of the office was opened, the window panes blown out, the front door forced open by the explosion, the counter marked-ly forced to one side from its usual position, also by force of the burglar's successful charge of nitro glycerine. The burglar or burglars had effected entrance by forcing the back door.

A careful scrutiny of the premises made by a Times representative, at once revealed the whole story of robbery. On the floor lay a large sharp hatchet and a cold chisel about eight inches long. The burglar had, as shown by the combination knob or handle, as well as by well defined and new nicks on marks on the flat back of the hatchet, as well as by a few nicks on the end of the cold chisel, on going access to the place, proceeded to knock off the handle, to enable him to insert his expensive charge of nitroglycerine.

The nitro had then been poured up, a fuse, sufficiently timed to allow the robber to calculate the time of his necessary withdrawal till after the explosion, inserted where the knob had been removed, and the hole, about the fuse plugged up with either soap or wax. Some of the wax is to be seen on the safe door, near where the combination had been located.

As Ald. Hicks had heard the noise of the explosion a full block away in a house with doors and windows closed, and as the safe door was literally smashed to pieces, it is easily conceivable that a considerable quantity of nitroglycerine had been used. The inside door of the safe was also blown out, showing conclusively the power of the shock. Both the outer plate of the main safe door, had its central portion entirely shattered, as were even the bolts and hinges.

The safe was relieved of its cash contents amounting to $50. Of this sum $15 was in silver coin, including $5 in five cent pieces; the balance $35 was in $5 bills.

Ald. Hicks, late Saturday night took in $10, in two $5 bills, both of which were new, but he had failed to note what bank they were on.

The effects of the explosion being central, as regards when the main force was expended, tends towards the conclusion that Nitro-glycerine was employed; dynamite having a downward force when exploded.

The local police were at once notified and promptly on hand. Chief Rossel, although naturally somewhat reticent as to chances of detection, and clues discovered as to perpetrators of the burglary, seems to have "something up his sleeve," so that interesting particulars may appear in these columns soon.

The hatchet, which is a good one and comparatively new, as well as the cold chisel found in Mr. Hicks' office, are now in the police station. They will likely prove to have been "borrowed" by French leave, from some local citizen, for use Saturday night.

LAST SAD RITES

IN MEMORY OF THE LATE WILLIAM R. THOMPSON

Remains of The Late Superintendent of Agencies of the Sun Life Assurance Co. Interred With Masonic Honors—Funeral Very Largely Attended by Members of Two Fraternal Orders and Citizens in General—Floral Offerings Beautiful and Many.

The obsequies of the late William R. Thompson took place Saturday afternoon, under Masonic auspices, and the funeral was one of the largest seen in this city for years. The number of friends and citizens who attended these last sad rites in memory of a highly esteemed citizen was exceedingly large, and members of the Masonic and A.O.U.W. Orders were present in a body. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, and included a star from the staff of the Sun Life Assurance Company's Peterboro office; wreath from the president, secretary, superintendent and head office staff of the Sun Life Assurance Company, Montreal; square and compass from Peterboro Lodge A. F. & A.M.; anchor from Peterboro Lodge A.O.U.W.; crown from the Board of Managers of St. Andrew's church sickle from the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's church; basket from St. Andrew's church choir; pillow from members of the family; heart from H. P. Kennedy's office staff; basket from Master Sherlock Thompson's class in Central school; basket from Miss Marianne Thompson's Sunday school class; anchor from Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Co's office staff; all of which, together with many from a large circle of family friends and acquaintances, touchingly typified deepest sympathy with the family in their bereavement, and eloquently testified to the fact that although deceased is gone he is and will not be readily forgotten.

At the family residence on Stewart street, at two o'clock, Rev. J. C. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church, of which deceased was a consistent member, delivered a touching and sympathetic address in the course of which he referred in beautiful terms to the late Mr. Thompson's active and unselfish interest in the church's work, and his integrity and fidelity as a man and citizen. The Masons then took charge of the funeral, their solemn rites being conducted by Rev. W. Major, chaplain of Peterboro Lodge A.F. & A.M., of which their departed brother was a past master. The pall-bearers were R. O. Wilson and T. E. Bradburn, M. P.P., both past masters of Corinthian Lodge, A.F. & A.M.; Dr. Carmichael, John Crane, W. H. Walkey, and T. Symons, all past masters of Peterboro Lodge.

The funeral cortege, included not only members of both Masonic lodges and those of the A.O.U.W., but also of the staff of the Sun Life Assurance Company's local office. Mr. J. C. Coye, of Montreal, superintendent of agencies, representing the company's head office; Mr. Gilpin, agent at Port Hope; together with a very large following of citizens. Among the relatives from a distance were Mr. Thos. Thompson, uncle of deceased; Mr. R. Sherlock, Bancroft, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Tapson, Bowmanville.

At the Little Lake Cemetery, where the remains were interred, the Presbyterian funeral service was read by Revs. J. C. Potter and J. J Wright. The beautiful and impressive Masonic last sad rites were conducted by Rev. W. Major, assisted by W. Bros. Tovey and R. F. Morrow, and Rt. Wor. Bro. W. H. Walkey. And so was laid at rest all that remained of a faithful and consistent Mason, whose memory will remain as green in the hearts of his brother Masons as the sprigs of evergreen lovingly deposited on his casket, emblematic of the hope of immortality.

Mr. W. H. Hill received from headquarters, the following telegram in evidence of the esteem and worth in which deceased was held by the company;

San Life,
Peterboro, Ont.

Profoundly shocked and grieved to hear of Mr. Thompson's death. Assure his wife and family of our deep heartfelt sympathy. Please have wreath sent, with sympathy of president, secretary, superintendent and head office staff.

T. B. MACAULAY,
Secretary.
Sun Life Assurance Co., Canada.

ENTERPRISING GROCER

Mr. Rountree Secures From E. O. D. Association, Their Sample Scotch Cheeses

Mr. A. Rountree, the George street grocer, with his usual enterprise, and strenuous endeavor to have the best for his customers, completed arrangements last week, with representatives of the Eastern Ontario Dairyman's convention, whereby he secured all the huge Scotch cheeses, brought direct from Scotland, by the association for explanatory, comparitive and demonstration purposes.

Mr. Walker, his manager, who by an English training, knows everything about the care of cheese that is worth learning, now has one of the huge cheeses on a counter in the store awaiting its being ready to cut. Mr. Walker explains that cheeses, particularly those of high grade, as these, it is needless to add, are, after being standing for some time in one position should, before being cut, turned upside down and left that way for some time. This allows the fine and delicate creamy particles that, in great numbers, work through the cheese to this top as cream through milk, to return through the mass to their proper place, and thus equalize the richness of the whole cheese. Many orders are now pouring in for these cheeses, which will probably be cut towards the end of this week.

These cheeses were imported direct from the most noted factory in Ayrshire, Scotland.

IMMIGRANTS FOR CANADA

Salvation Army to Charter a Ship Specially

Whilst in Toronto last week, Adjutant Jennings, of the local Salvation Army corps, interviewed Brigadier Howell, in reference to locating immigrants brought from England by the Salvation Army.

It might be explained that Adjt. Jennings is in charge of the immigration scheme of the Army, for Eastern Ontario.

On his returned, Adjt. Jennings said that the immigration scheme has now assumed both tangible and large proportions.

The Salvation Army has chartered the steamer Kensington of the Dominion Line, which will make three trips to Canada with immigrants to be sent here under their auspices. The first trip will be made on March 1, and 1,500 persons will be brought over on this trip. Miss Morris, assistant secretary of the department, has gone to England to arrange for the reception of the boat, and will return with the emigrants. Captain Trudgeon will leave about February 4, and will arrive in Montreal in time to meet the boat. The boat will return to England and will leave again in April and on May 1 with 2,000 aboard.

As great interest in the movement is being taken in England, there will be a vast contingent of agricultural labor brought out. Those wishing help for farm or otherwise should at once make application to Brigadier Howell, at Toronto, or to Adjt. Jennings, at the Army's immigration office, Co's store, Grand Opera House block.

A BIT IN ROYAL

Mr. Gustavus Dundas Black Man Brings $45 on Saturday

Last Friday a well known local eccentric, known generally as "Gusty" Dundas, a poor, old, broken-down aged man, with a vigorous thirst, was, for his own sake, committed to the County jail for three months. Gusty had a little, sawed-off, shaggy-coated mare that he had wanted to sell, and which, by kind compliance of the magistrate, was offered and sold by public auction on the market square Saturday morning.

Owing, mainly, to the interest taken in the poor old owner of the mare, a larger crowd gathered round the sale, at 11 a.m., by Mr. C. Stapleton, than a real horse would have attracted to its sale.

The bidding started at $10 and, dollar by dollar, went up to $18. Here a considerable hiatus occurred. Mr. Stapleton's persuasive eloquence being brought prominently to bear.

About this juncture Mr. Walter Stocker, the city bill poster, appeared on the scene and quickly raised the bid to $17. From this bid on until the horse was sold, it was a battle royal between Mr. Stocker and Mr. Dawson, the venerable farmer from Brooklyn.

The bids soon got down to raises of 50c. each time. As either Mr. Stocker or Mr. Dawson would raise the price 50c., he would say, "Well, that's my limit, if you go any higher you can have the horse." Then each would seemingly melt into the crowd, as though going away from the contest, but each would return when the bid of 50c. more was placed. At last, amid much laughter and good natured chaffing, Mr. Dawson captured the prize for $45, and proudly led the ancient steed away by the rope halter attached to its halter.

A PERSONAL INTERVIEW

The Times Has a Talk With Mr. Derbyshire, President of E. O. Dairymen

President Derbyshire, when interviewed by a Times representative Saturday, said that the convention just concluded was the most successful on record. Fully 1,000 people attended the meetings, i.e., this was the average attendance.

As regards the next place of meeting, this will be decided next September by the executive elected Friday. Whilst not guaranteeing this ideas as even probable, it is altogether likely that Ottawa will get the next meeting. The Capital is very anxious to get the meeting, and will probably grant very important inducements to secure the next convention. The meetings during the next few years will probably be in rotation, possibly being at Ottawa, Belleville, Brockville and Peterboro. Owing to the great interest aroused in Peterboro by the recently past convention, Mr Derbyshire thinks, and his opinions are based on a quarter of a century's experience, that at the next Peterboro convention the meetings will be attended by twice the number of both outside and local delegates. Mr Derbyshire has been connected with the Dairymen's Association since its inception twenty-nine years ago: he has been president for twenty-four consecutive years. Some thirty years ago Mr. Derbyshire attended a meeting of Ontario's dairymen at Ingersoll. Here he found that the Western dairymen were unwilling to come East. At that time the Government grant was only $800 a year. He then got the Eastern Ontario Dairymen to form an association and persuaded the Government to divide the grant, the Eastern association getting $700, the same amount going to the Western association.

In referring to his twenty-four years as president, Mr. Derbyshire said: "Well, you know, I think it an infernal shame to hang on to it so long; they ought to give someone else a chance!" The Times man, however, whilst not wanting to throw bouquets at the genial president, could not agree in this particular. On Friday Mr. Derbyshire told the audience that after this year he would insist on Mr. Darrel or some other prominent dairyman being made president.

PROF. HARPER OBSEQUIES

Body Lies in State in the University Precincts

Chicago, Jan. 14.—The body of William R. Harper, late president of Chicago University, was yesterday removed from the Harper residence to Haskell Hall, within the grounds of the university where it will lay in state until tomorrow at two p.m. when the formal funeral exercises will be held in Mandell Hall.

The casket when borne from the residence today was preceded by 22 of the members of the university council.

Two thousand students, with bared heads, stood in a drizzling rain while the cortege passed through the college campus. John D. Rockefeller, jr., arrived in Chicago this morning to attend the funeral.

BRITISH GUNS WERE WAITING

Why Germany Backed Down in Madeira Incident

THE LION GIVES A GROWL

When Kaiser Found Out That the English Squadron From Gibraltar Had Secretly Taken Up Position in the Tagus He No Longer Demanded Expropriation of British Subject.

London, January 14.—The inner history of the Anglo-German dispute in connection with the concessions made to Germany in Madeira can now be disclosed. It shows plainly that Britain and Germany recently were almost on the verge of war. The truth of the following facts is vouched for, despite officials that may be made.

The German concessionaire in Madeira desired to expropriate a British subject, but Portugal declined to insist on the expropriation. Germany threatened to send warships to the Tagus, and Portugal therefore informed the British Minister at Lisbon. A British squadron immediately left Gibraltar, and took up a position fifty miles from the mouth of the Tagus. This move was carried out so secretly that news of it did not get into any of the newspapers.

Then followed a monotonous discussion in London. The British Admiralty was in favor of giving no information to Germany and allowing the German warships to proceed unsuspectingly to the Tagus. Eventually, however, it was decided to officially inform Portugal of the fleet's position and readiness to support her. The information was quickly handed to the German Minister at Lisbon and no more threats were heard.

Portugal begged Germany and Great Britain to settle the Madeira affair between themselves. Germany now is willing to give up her concession if Great Britain will persuade Portugal to indemnify the concessionaire.

Thus an incident which at one time was more serious than the public ever imagined gives promise of an early settlement.

COMING BACK

The Dora Thorne Co. Will Appear Here on Tuesday January 16th

Rowland and Clifford's grand production of the life of Dora Thorne with a strong company returns to Peterboro, under special engagement next Tuesday, January 16, owing mainly to the many hundreds of local citizens turned away, owing to overcrowded houses last week.

As this excellent company could be secured for one night only, patrons of the drama should secure their seats early this time, and avoid disappointment. Prices remain the same as last week viz., 15, 25, 50, and gallery 15 cents.

POLICE COURT NEWS

At Saturday morning's police court two young men, not altogether strangers in this court, were the principals in a trio. It seems that bad blood had existed for some time between the two Mr. McWilliams pleaded "not guilty" for his part, who was charged with disorderly conduct. Several witnesses were called, whose evidence concurred in saying that the complainant and defendant, had recently got into "a chewing match" over some money that the defendant was said to have owed the complainant. The complainant had boasted of having fifty dollars, and was told by the defendant that if he had he had better pay some of his debts, and mentioned some persons to whom he owed money. This started a row and though the combatants were separated they again mixed it up outside. The evidence of a large number of witnesses was heard, as a result of which, the court imposed a fine of five dollars, to be paid forthwith. The almsdeeds were forthcoming.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

HOCKEY.

The Lindsay Post's sporting editor certainly is a stranger to Mr. Chris Graham, and ignorant of his square and sportsmanlike manner of dealing with and acting in all kinds of clean athletics. It has the nerve to say:

"Telegram surely must have been penned by none other than "Christopher" Graham, of Peterboro. An old trick with "Chris" is to have a skate come off. It happened once or twice last winter, as Lindsay will remember, and it is said that he is repeating the same dodge this season, as in the game with Queen's, of Kingston, his skate came loose or wriggled loose, and a man was dropped to even up. Here it is: "Hockey Player" writes The Telegram asking if, when a player's skate comes off his boot, the game should be stopped till he put it on again. Certainly not. The man with the disabled foot goes off and one of the other side accompanies him till repairs are made."

And now Knox church has put a team in the field. Their club was formed at a well attended meeting held in the Sunday school. The meeting was very enthusiastic, a large number being in attendance. Twenty-six members of the club have been enrolled. The Knox street team has a splendid sheet of ice to practice on and with such a large number of players to choose from, a good team should be formed. The first practice will be held to-morrow evening between 7 and 8 o'clock.

And now the Bankers team is objecting to present regulations, whereby the residential requirements seem to them too arbitrary. The immediate cause of this kick is over the short notice upon which their members are generally removed from one locality to another. This prevents the successors of those removed to other branches taking part in their team owing to insufficient residence in the city. Owing to the exigencies of their profession, it seems that their objections are fair, valid, and worthy of serious consideration, and that an exception should be made in the case of players belonging to the Bankers.

The skips who will play rinks in the Peterboro vs. Orillia contest, tomorrow, for the Shepherd-Neill trophy have been chosen. The skips who will go to Orillia are;—

W. G Morrow.
T. F Matthews.
T. Rutherford.
W. G Ferguson.

Those who will play in Peterboro with the rinks from Orillia are;

R. Neill.
J. H Coonal.
C H Giroux.
C. N. Brown.

This competition is for the handsome cup donated by Messrs. Shepherd, of Orillia, and Neill, of this city, and played for by the curlers of the two places for the last two seasons.

The games for this trophy have always created great interest among the curlers, and there is every reason to believe that those of this year will be equally interesting.

GIRLS ARE SOLD IN SLAVERY

Halfbreed Young Women Knocked Down to Highest Bidders by British Columbia Indians

Vancouver, B. C., January 13.—The following is an extract from a report made to the Government regarding the slave trade among British Columbia Indians;

"Girls with white skins, thick brown hair braided down their backs, big, innocent, childish eyes, are being sold today, and have been sold for years, in British Columbia to the highest bidders. The slave masters are the Capo Mudge Indians. The slaves are white because their grandmothers were sold before to white men, and when they wandered back to the tribe, deserted and abandoned, they brought baby girls with them. In course of time the male relatives of these abandoned creatures sold these baby girls, too, when they grew up to young girlhood.

"Dealers have created a market, which constantly is growing, and the demand has become so great that other markets have been caught, and it is reported that Rock Bay Indians are embarking in this awful industry."

UNCONSCIOUS POISONING

How it Often Happens From Coffee.

"I had no idea," writes a Duluth man, "that it was the coffee I had been drinking all my life that was responsible for the headaches which were growing upon me, for the dyspepsia that no medicines would relieve, and for the acute nervousness which unfitted me not only for work but also for the most ordinary social functions.

"But at last the truth dawned upon me and forthwith under the torment beerage a prompt farewell, ordered in some Postum and began to use it. The good effect of the new food drink were apparent within a very few days. My headaches grew less frequent, and decreased in violence, my stomach grew strong and able to digest my food without distress of any kind, my nervousness has gone and I am able to enjoy life with my neighbors and sleep soundly o'nights. My physical strength and nerve power have increased so much that I can do double the work I used to do, and feel no undue fatigue afterwards.

"This improvement set in just as soon as the old coffee poison had so worked out of my system as to allow the food elements in the Postum to get a hold to build me up again. I cheerfully testify that it was Postum and Postum alone that did all this, for when I began to drink it I 'threw physic to the dogs.'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Conservative Leader Beaten in England

Polling for Forty Seats Seventeen by Acclamation---Balfour Goes Down Before Herridge, by Big Majority of 1980.

London, Jan. 14.—A. J. Balfour, the former prime minister, running in the Conservative interest, was defeated yesterday in the elections for member of Parliament for the east division of Manchester, by T. C. Horridge, Liberal and free trader. The Liberal majority was 1980.

Up to ten o'clock last night out of eighteen constituencies ten showed Liberal gains.

London, Jan 14.—The following are the candidates who were returned for the new British House of Commons by acclamations at yesterday's nominations:

Sir J. Kitson, Yorkshire.
S. M. Evans, Mid-Glamorganshire.
Geo. Lambert, Devon.
Thomas Richards, Monmouthshire.
John Wilson, Durham.

Unionists—
Rt. Hon. J. Gilbert Talbot, Oxford University.
Sir W. Reynell Anson, Bt., Oxford University.
Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Henry Carson, Dublin University.
James Henry M. Campbell, K.C. Dublin University.
Gustavus Wilhelm Wolfee, East Belfast.

Free Trade Unionist—
Hon. Frederick W. Lambton, Durham.

Nationalists—
Augustine Roche, Cork.
William O'Brien, Cork.
Joseph P. Nannetti, Dublin, College Green.
Patrick O'Brien, Kilkenny.
John Edward Redmond, Waterford.
Ald. Michael Joyce, Limerick.

BALFOUR AND CHURCHILL SAFE.

London, Jan. 13.—Polling is continuing today in thirty-seven constituencies representing 43 seats. The most important contests are at Manchester, where the late A. J. Balfour and Winston Churchill, who are contesting different divisions of the city with no result. The latter undoubtedly will be elected, while the former premier's seat is now regarded as safe, despite the fact that the bolt of the Liberals against him have increased.

If the majorities of these leaders of opposing factions are depleted it is expected that the fact will largely influence the results in the rest of the country and consequently interest in the outcome is very tense.

In Manchester there is great enthusiasm on both sides. In spite of the rain, Mrs. Cornwallis West, Mr. Churchill's mother, and Miss Balfour, the former premier's sister, are proving themselves splendid supporters of their respective candidates in the political fight.

RETURNED BY ACCLAMATION.

About a score of members were returned unopposed in the course of the day, among them being John K. Redmond, Wm. O'Brien, James Wm. Lowther, Speaker of the House of Commons, and Sir Edward Carson, the former solicitor-general. The results up to the present are;

Liberals, 10.
Unionists, 9.
Irish Nationalists, 7.

A FREE FIGHT.

The elections thus far have not been marked by any serious collisions, though free traders at Birmingham, who attempted to engage in an anti-Chamberlain demonstration this afternoon, were roughly handled. A mob of tariff reformers effectually prevented the delivery of speeches, tried to duck the leaders of free traders in a fountain and ultimately routed them. A strong body of police intervened and prevented serious fighting, which at one time threatened to be the outcome of the political warfare.

PETERBORO'S POWER

Mayor Best Speaks About Mr. Moore's Proposal re Abern Dam

Mr. W. H. Moore now criticizes Mayor Best's proposition, as noted in a former issue, given in his inaugural speech, to secure the water powers of Auburn, and along the river in order that the city can, in future supply cheap power instead of free sites to prospective locating factories. This talented lawyer, a member of the Board of Water Commissioners, advocates, what he considers, a better proposal, viz., that of the construction of a new dam at the water works, and the development of the power to the limit of the capacity, which, in his opinion, would give ample for the operation of the waterworks, and a surplus of several hundred horse power to dispose of for industrial purposes.

In reply to Mr. Moore's suggestion, Mayor Best, on Saturday afternoon, when interviewed by a Times' representative, said that the "few hundred horse power, spoken of by Mr. Moore, might suffice, if Peterboro's industries were to be confined to one or two small affairs. The Mayor's ideas however, are of a larger and more ambitious nature.

He thinks that for the factories that the city might and probably will acquire, the horse power requisite will be counted by thousands and not by a few hundred. He is still of the opinion that the plan he advocates is the best for Peterboro.

WIND AT 50 MILES AN HOUR

Big Storm Down South—Schooner Turns Turtle

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 15.—Another terrible storm this time coming from the north, swept the Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina coasts last night and the wind at the Virginian coast reached a maximum velocity early today of 50 miles an hour. The storm center seemed to be directly at Cape Henry. The storm continued today almost as severe as during the night with a wind velocity at Cape Henry of 46 miles an hour. No reports of new disasters along the coast have reached here as yet.

Nothing has been heard from the missing crew of six from the schooner Samuel L. Russell, which turned turtle in lower Chesapeake Bay during the heavy snow storm of several nights ago and which is now a floating derelict.

BANWELL FELT HIMSELF SAFE

Six Detectives Found at One Southern Hotel—Search at Brandale

Toronto, Jan. 14.—It developed yesterday that a warrant was sworn out a couple of weeks ago for the arrest of Nora Hector, the wife of Edwin St. George Banwell, the defaulting bank cashier now under arrest at Kingston, Jamaica, under the belief that the young woman had returned to her home. Information was given the police to this effect and the Brisdale house was searched for the young woman.

It has also been learned through Noble's Dominion Detective Agency that Banwell registered at a hotel in Florida in his own name. This might indicate that he considered he was outside the danger zone.

In police and detective circles there is much comment on Banwell's supreme carelessness in leaving a trail of stolen bank bills for the police to pick up. He could not have chosen a route where the chances of detection would have been better. In the eight month he had a limited choice of ports of embarkation if he intended to leave the States for one of the islands of the Gulf of Mexico. From Houston, Texas, to Tampico, Fla., the Pinkertons have men posted on every wharf and west of Houston along the Mexican frontier the Noble Detective Agency of this city has correspondents in every city. It is asserted that the Pinkerton sleuths crossed the agents of the Houston people between Houston and New Orleans and the pursuit was abandoned to the New York agency. The winter resorts of Florida were covered and a systematic search was in progress when it was learned that Banwell and his bride had crossed to Havana. From that point the pursuit became comparatively easy.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Hamilton, Jan. 15.—William Strong, estate broker and spiritualist, has begun action against his wife to have a deed of property valued at about $100,000, which he gave to his wife about a year ago, declared void. Strong was in the insane asylum for some months, and he claims the only some months, and he claims the only condition he could get his liberty on, was deeding his property over. The deed, he claims, was executed in a law office, and that duress and fraud were used.

Committed for Trial

Morris, Man., January 11. — Rev. Father Derosier, priest of Aubigny, has been committed for trial on the charge of procuring three electors to commit perjury in an effort to obtain control of the School Board in Provencher district.

Gen. Buller to Retire

London, Jan. 15.—It is learned that Gen. Sir Redvers Buller, who long has expected to be made field marshal, will be retired as a general on a pension of $5000 a year. Gen. Sir John French will succeed him. Gen. Buller may enter parliament. He has an income of $100,000 a year.

SIR WILFRID'S SUCCESSOR.

Montreal, Jan. 15.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's successor is known, and he is an Ontario man, not in politics today.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the bow of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; thus the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to wind or waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James S. Whitney of Boston, when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that he heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances can be introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

Pale and Anxious

Your Countenance Indicates the Body's Awful Struggle for Health.

Impossible to work or think clearly when there is no reserve of vigor, no nourishment in the blood, no supply of nerve energy.

The life of the half-sick man is pitiful, in fact, almost criminal, when bounding strength is so quickly derived from Ferrozone.

This nutritive tonic is guaranteed to strengthen all men, women and children. Weak organs get new force, vital energy is generated. Muscle and fat are added, healthy color is restored and the blood fairly tingles with new-found life.

Read the evidence of Jno. Carter, of 316 King St. East, Toronto, who says: "After a severe attack of Grippe my health was almost shattered. I suffered constantly from nervousness and dyspepsia. At night I would awaken with terrible palpitation and heart pains. Work became a great effort. At ten in the morning I was so tired and weak I could hardly work another minute.

"Then came a bad attack of rheumatism which laid me up in bed. I could scarcely lift the weight of a pound and to stoop or bend was impossible. My druggist recommended Ferrozone, and he knew what he was talking about, for it rebuilt my strength, gave me abundant appetite, better blood, and new nerve energy. The rheumatism has disappeared. I weigh more, feel refreshed and vigorous, and am able to work ten hours a day. Ferrozone did it all."

You will be steadied, toned and strengthened for all time to come with Ferrozone. Get the genuine in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

NIAGARA'S SURPLUS POWER

Always room for one more power plant at Niagara. The latest looks to the lower Niagara river, which falls eighty feet in a length of two and a half miles, with the whirlpool nearly at the center of this length. This is about half the descent of the great cataract above and is made by the entire volume of water that passes over both the American and Horseshoe falls. Alton D. Adams calculates that the unused power of these rapids just above and below the whirlpool could develop half as much power as could be developed by diverting the entire flow of Niagara river at the falls. If the American falls are to be saved further concessions must be limited to the gorge and the lower rapids. His idea is to build pipe lines between the upper and lower points on the rapids. Niagara river has a normal discharge of 223,000 cubic feet of water a second, and this water falling eighty feet develops 2,000,000 gross horse power. Making due allowance for losses in the pipe line, water wheels, tail race, and generators, it may fairly be said that 60 per cent. of the gross energy could be delivered as electric current if the entire discharge of the river were utilized. This net power is twice as great as that of all the electric plants now completed and under construction at Niagara falls.

BY AIRSHIP TO THE POLE.

All the world will be interested in the proposal of a well known newspaper man to go pole hunting in the far North. In this day and age of advanced journalism, when a newspaper writer is commissioned to do anything, from interviewing a senator to flying to the moon, it is quite in the nature of things that Mr. Wellman should receive this assignment from his paper: "Build an airship, go find the North pole, and report by wireless telegraphy and submarine cables the progress of your efforts." It was quite as a matter of fact for the reporter to send word to his paper: 'All right, I'll find the pole as instructed.'

Science has made such rapid advancement during the past few years that Mr. Wellman's scheme does not appear nearly so visionary as it would have seemed at any time in the past. For more than a hundred years intrepid explorers have followed each other to the dreary wastes of the frozen North in the hope of winning the goal. In the wind-swept fastnesses of eternal desolation the bones of hundreds of men lie among the melancholy monuments of ice. The fascination of the North has called adventurers of all nationalities, and the prize is still held out to the fearless. That the pole has never been reached is no sign that it may remain forever a secret. In fact, the very difficulties of entering the zone of meridian convergence beckon man always to the storehouse of Nature's great secret.

In the eternal onslaught of human knowledge upon things that are hidden it is appropriate that the three greatest developments of our modern life should be united in this cause. The airship as an instrument of utility is in its infancy, but there is no good reason why it may not be depended upon to perform in the Arctic region the feats it has performed in Paris. From the chosen base at Northern Spitzbergen it is only 650 geographical miles to the pole, with an allowance of 1,240 miles for the round trip. At the rate of twelve miles an hour, it would take but 100 hours to make the trip, leaving out of consideration the terrible contingencies of accidents and unlooked for obstacles. But these contingencies are just what make the project enticing. If there were no uncertainties or dangers, the trip would be too commonplace to tempt any traveler.

The plans appear to have been carefully thought out. Wireless telegraph is to be part of the general equipment, and these three things—airship, wireless telegraphy and an energetic newspaper reporter—make a combination that should bring results. It is to be hoped that Mr. Wellman will not "fall down" on his latest and greatest assignment.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

Mr. R. H. Leary Offered Agency of Canadian Pacific Colonization Co.

The many friends in this city, of our popular ex-alderman and genial citizen, Mr. R. H. Leary, will be pleased to learn that he has been offered the agency for Eastern Ontario of the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Colonization Company, Limited. This company is controlled by the C.P.R. railway, and is the outcome of their irrigation scheme in Alberta. The head office of the company is in Calgary, and Mr. J. M. Patterson, is the general agent.

The company will have some 500,000 acres of land to offer to settlers and it is of the very best in that rich prairie province. The first track to be opened to land seekers will be the Gleichen district, which extends about 55 miles east of Calgary. The C.P.R. runs through the whole 500,000 acres and as fast as the land is taken up the railway will provide the necessary transportation.

This company has made every preparation for taking good care of possible settlers. For instance the company will not only give free transportation, but will house free settlers on their lands.

We understand that Mr. Leary will accept the position. The company has made a wise choice in selecting ex-Ald. Leary, who is a wide awake and strenuous hustler. Mr. Leary has considerable experience, gained partly by extensive travel in irrigated land, and will undoubtedly ably fill his new position, as his duties will be to sell land and to give applicants any information desired in reference to the company's property.

GOW RELEASED

The Slayer of the Hill Boy of Dummer Now at Large

Friday morning, as his sentence of three months, for shooting the Hill boy, in Dummer last August, was fully served, Charles Gow, was turned loose from Castle Nesbitt.

Gow's enforced patronage of Peterboro hospitality in the county jail, seems to have agreed with him; he shows no signs of mental worry or sleepless nights passed as a result of taking a human life.

It is perhaps but fair to say however, that during his term of imprisonment, Gow has been a most exemplary prisoner and has given the officials absolutely no trouble. He has been engaged in the ordinary prison work which he performed faithfully and well.

He called at the office of his solicitor after being liberated, and also on a number of his friends here, who congratulated him upon his liberty.

He left for his home in Dummer during the morning. His father, who has been ill for some time is considerably improved in health, and will doubtless be glad to see his son after so long a separation. It is reported that the reception, spoken of some time ago, to be given to Gow 'pon his return home, was most properly cut out.

Local Lawyers Elect Officers

Last week the Peterboro Law Association, in Messrs. Roger & Bennett's offices, met and transacted their annual business. The improvements made in the local law library were favorably commented upon. The treasurer's report was very satisfactory. It showed a balance to the good, and also that $150 worth of new books had been added to the library.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

President—E. A. Peck.
Vice Pres.—L. M. Hays.
Secretary—J. W. Bennett.
Treasurer—F. D. Kerr.

Trustees—E. B. Edwards, K.C., and W. H. Moore.

Under this arrangement a passenger from any station on the Grand Trunk Railway System, upon payment of 25c. for each piece, will be able to check their baggage direct to any residence, hotel, etc., thus avoiding the necessity of making arrangements for delivery on arrival and insuring the prompt receipt of baggage at destination.

VARICOCELE & STRICTURE

No other disease is so prevalent among men as Varicocele. As it interferes with the nutrition of the sexual organs it produces weakness, loss of semen through the urine, decay of the organs, pains in the loins, aching in the back, nervousness, despondency, bashfulness, palpitation of the heart, constipation, and a combination of these results in complete LOSS OF MANHOOD. Thousands of young and middle-aged men are troubled with STRICTURE. If you have reason to believe you are afflicted with it, don't neglect it. It will ruin you. Don't let doctors experiment on you by cutting, stretching or tearing it. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT dissolves the stricture tissue, hence it disappears and can never return. We cure Varicocele and Stricture without operation or loss of time. The treatment may be taken at home privately. Send for our Free Illustrated Book on VARICOCELE and STRICTURE. WE GUARANTEE TO CURE OR NO PAY.

Kidneys & Bladder

All sexual complaints affect these organs, hence the kidneys are a great source of disease. Have you aching or weakness over the small of the back, tendency to urinate frequently, deposit in urine, coldness of hands or feet, a drowsy feeling in the morning. Don't neglect your kidneys. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure any disease of these organs or no pay.

O. W. Rowe, of Jackson, Mich., says: I had varicocele in the secondary state and two strictures of 5 years' standing. I was operated on twice, undergoing great suffering, but only got temporary relief. I was finally advised to try the NEW METHOD TREATMENT of Drs. K. & K. The enlarged veins disappeared in six weeks, the stricture tissue was removed in eight weeks and my sexual energy and vitality returned so I was a man in every respect. I recommend you doctors with my whole heart."

sort, upon which we could support ourselves until we could find some safer refuge.

On the horrors of that ghastly swim it will not be necessary for me to dilate. I must leave my readers to imagine them for themselves. Suffice it that for nearly a quarter of an hour we paddled aimlessly about here and there. But look as we might, not a sign of any other living soul from aboard that ship could we discover, nor anything large enough upon which three people could rest. At last, just as I was beginning to despair of saving the lives of those whom Providence had so plainly entrusted to my care, I saw ahead of us a large white object, which, upon nearer approach, proved to be one of the overturned lifeboats. I conveyed the good news to Miss Maybourne, and then, with a new burst of energy, swam towards it and caught hold of the keel. She was a big craft, and, to my delight, rode high enough out of the water to afford us a resting-place. To pull myself and the child I carried on to her, and to drag Miss Maybourne up after me, was the work of a very few moments. Once there, we knew we were safe for the present.

CHAPTER VII.

For some minutes we lay upon the bottom of the up-turned boat too exhausted to speak. I still held the unconscious form of little Esther Bailey in my arms, and protected her, as well as I was able, from the marauding seas. Though the waves about us upheld many evidences of the terrible catastrophe, such as gratings, broken spars, portions of boat gear, still, to my astonishment, I could discover no signs of any bodies. Once, however, I was successful in obtaining possession of something which I knew would be worth its weight in gold to us: it was an oar, part of the equipment of one of the quarter boats I imagined; half the blade was missing, but with what remained it would still be possible for us to propel the boat on which we had taken refuge.

What a terrible position was ours, lodged on the bottom of that overturned lifeboat, icy seas breaking upon us every few seconds, the knowledge of our gallant ship, with all our friends aboard, lying fathoms deep below the surface of the waves, and the remembrance that the same fate might be ours at any moment; no possible notion of where we were, no provisions or means of sustaining life, and but small chance of being picked up by any passing boat!

It was Miss Maybourne who spoke first, and, as usual, her conversation was not about herself.

"Mr. Wrexford," she said, and her teeth chattered as she spoke, "at any risk something must be done for that poor child you hold in your arms, she will die else. Do you think we could manage to get her up further on to the boat and then try to chafe her back to consciousness?"

"By all means let us try," I answered, "though I fear it will prove a difficult matter. She seems very far gone, poor little mite."

With the utmost care I clambered further up the boat till I sat with my burden astride the keel. In the darkness we could scarcely see each other, but once the child was placed between us we set to work rubbing her face and hands and trying by every means in our power to restore consciousness. Suddenly a great thought occurred to me. I remembered the flask I had taken from the cabin where I had found the clothes. In an instant I had dived my hand into my pocket in search of it, almost trembling with fear lest by any chance it should have slipped out when I had dived overboard, but to my delight it was till there. I had pulled it out and unscrewed the stopper before anyone could have counted a dozen, taking the precaution to taste it in order to see that it was all right before I handed it to Miss Maybourne. It was filled with the finest French brandy, and, having discovered this, I bade her take a good drink at it. When she had done so I put it to the child's mouth and forced a small quantity between her lips.

"Surely you are going to drink some yourself," said my companion, as she saw me screw on the top and replace it in my pocket.

But I was not going to do anything of the sort. I did not need it so vitally as my charges, and I knew that there was not enough in the bottle to justify me in wasting even a drop. I explained this and then asked her if she felt any warmer.

"Much warmer," she answered, "and I think Esther here feels better too. Let us chafe her hands again."

We did so, and in a few minutes had the satisfaction of hearing the poor mite utter a little moan. In less than an hour she was conscious once more, but so weak that it seemed as if the first breath of wind that came our way would blow the life out of her tiny body. Poor little soul, if it was such a terrible experience for us, what must it have been for her?

What length of time elapsed from the time of our heading the boat before daylight came to cheer us I cannot say, but, cramped up as we were, the darkness seemed to last for centuries. For periods of something like half an hour at a time we sat without speaking, thinking of all that had happened since darkness had fallen the night before, and remembering the rush and agony of those last few dreadful minutes on board, and the awful fact that all those whom we had seen so well and strong only a few hours before were now cold and lifeless for ever. Twice I took out my flask and insisted on Miss Maybourne and the child swallowing a portion of the spirit. Had I not brought that with me, I really believe neither of them would have seen another sunrise.

Suddenly Miss Maybourne turned to me.

"Listen, Mr. Wrexford," she cried. "What is that booming noise? Is it thunder?"

I did as she commanded, but for some moments could hear nothing save the splashing of the waves upon the keels. Then I felt quite sure noise reached my ears that might very well have been mistaken for the booming of thunder at a great distance. Thunder it certainly was, but not of the kind my companion imagined. It was the thunder of surf, and that being so, I knew there must be land at no great distance from us. I told her my conjecture, and then we set ourselves to wait with what patience we could command, for daylight.

What a strange and, I might almost say, weird dawn that was! It was the beginning of a new life under strangely altered conditions. The first shafts of light found us still clinging to the keel of the overturned boat, gazing hopelessly about us. When it was light enough to discern our features, we two elder ones looked at each other, and were horrified to observe the change with the terrible sufferings of the night had wrought in our countenances. Miss Maybourne's face was white and drawn, and she looked years older than her real age. I could see by the way she glanced at me that I also was changed. The poor little girl Esther hardly noticed either of us, but lay curled up as close as possible to her sister in misfortune.

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the testment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 5th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts, and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $75,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,127.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $500,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance, with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.50 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $25,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

WHY SO WEARY?

Always Restless and Weak Isn't Natural—But It's Dangerous

You have to work hard. This uses up lots of nerve force and tears down the body faster than it can build up.

The result is a half-dead feeling you can't shake off. Somehow you must get more vitality. The water in your blood must be turned into nutriment and building material.

This is just what happens in using Ferrozone, which renews the blood and nerves, and makes each organ do the work that nature expects of it.

Ferrozone quickly increases your weight, brings appetite and healthy color, instills a reserve of vigor into the system that defies weariness, exhaustion, debility, or sickness of any kind.

The enormous strengthening power of Ferrozone is proved in the case of Mrs. Edward Hill, of Orr Lake, Ont., who says:

"Two years ago I had a nervous breakdown. At night I tossed restlessly in bed, unable to get any rest from sleep. In the morning I suffered from over-powering weakness. My appetite was poor. I grew pale, thin and despondent. A slight backing cough also added to my burden.

"My doctor said to try Ferrozone, and it did me good in a few days. I increased in strength, the nervous sensations disappeared, and with my appetite came back my color and good spirits. I have gained over ten pounds in weight, and as my age is 56, I consider Ferrozone is a marvel." (Signed) Mrs. Edward Hill.

REMEMBER THIS: Ferrozone is a true tonic—not an alcoholic stimulant. Fifty chocolate-coated tablets in a box for fifty cents, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

Last night as the worshippers of various churches in that locality, were gaining Gospel Hall, corner of George and Brock streets, on the way to evening service, their attention was arrested by a man singing through a megaphone. The singing through a large megaphone was distinctly audible for several blocks. Mr. Mulligan gave a cordial welcome to all who cared to attend the evangelistic services in progress within.

MISS CONNOR'S ESSAY

Clever Treatise on John Keats Given by Talented Local Lady in T. A. S.

Miss Mary B. Connor's clever essay on John Keats, given last Friday, at the T.A.S. Ladies' Literary Association's entertainment, was remarkably complete, well delivered and showed every evidence of broad and intelligent acquaintance with her subject. Many favorable comments were heard on Saturday concerning this lecture.

The rest of the program included a rare bouquet of choice vocal and instrumental selections, all of which were most enjoyable.

The next literary evening under auspices of the association, will be held on January 26th, when Miss Josephine Condon will read a paper on the "Deportation of the Acadians from Nova Scotia."

DETECTIVE McQUAY HERE

A G. T. R. Detective Here Looking for Robbers

On Saturday afternoon, a Grand Trunk "Broken Car" Detective McQuay, was in the city on business, leaving that night.

This experienced detective, whose speciality is discovering those who break into the G.T.R. cars and steal the contents.

It seems that lately several cars on the G.T.R. between Toronto, Lindsay and Peterboro have been broken into, whilst lying at various sidings and boxes and bales broken open and their contents stolen. Detective McQuay was here accompanied by his son, Dr. McQuay of Toronto. Mr. McQuay was on a hot scent, and discovered clues here that will probably lead to arrests in a day or two.

A Lady Loses a Cheque

On Saturday night there was lost at the Brock street rink a lady's hand satchel, containing, among other things, a cheque drawn by the Canadian General Electric Company for the sum of $8.62. The number of the cheque is 883, and it is payable to bearer. The cheque, when lost, was endorsed with the signature, Lilly Menzies. This cheque is payable at the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The lady who lost the cheque was in the police station last night making enquiries as to what to do in the matter. P. C. Stewart very kindly telephoned to Mr. Hughes-Charles, manager of the bank, asking him to have payment of the cheque stopped. As the lady who lost the cheque is not in financial circumstances to be well able to lose this sum, it is to be hoped the satchel will be found by an honest person. In any event, the payment of the cheque will have been stopped by this morning.

STARVING IN PETERBOROUGH

Men and Women who are in Need—Liberal Offer.

There are scores of people in Peterboro and vicinity who are starving in the midst of plenty. This is not because they are in need of food, but because they cannot digest the food they eat.

If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your case from a leading stomach specialist which will be sent free. The E. T. Booth Company, Ithaca, N. Y.

IT DRAWS HARD

On a woman's vitality to do work for which she is unfitted, and we wonder how some of the women of our land live through a single season of pleasure or dissipation.

They will say with tears in their eyes, when they mention the subject at all, "it is a hard pull," that with pain, weakness and weariness they are "almost dragged out." Many, in this condition, resort to alcoholic stimulants and "invigorants," the after effects of which are very injurious.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, forty years ago found that women were being mistreated through ignorance or carelessness and determined to devote his life and energies to their relief.

Having found the cause of their suffering, he next sought for the means of relief, and found in Nature's laboratory—the earth, certain roots which had remarkable and valuable medicinal virtues for the cure of these ailments.

Using chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength instead of alcohol, he prepared extracts of these, and the result was so satisfactory that the combination became his "Favorite Prescription." The roots used are: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root and Golden Seal root. The world knows it as DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION, which has the wonderful and unparalleled record of a half-million of cures in the last forty years.

Write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for advice, given without charge.

"I am glad to be able to testify as to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the many ills that women suffer with," writes Miss Gertrude Mitchell (President Young Ladies' Christian Endeavor Society), 49 Columbia Street, E., Detroit, Mich. "After many years of suffering and pain, I took your medicine, and in a short time began to feel stronger, became more regular and didn't have the bearing-down pains which had been my lot for so long. Shall never cease to be very grateful that it was brought to my notice. I have no pains, and feel much stronger generally."

MR. CHOATE GONE

Clever and Popular Local Journalist Leaves for Montreal

Yesterday Mr. R. F. Choate, for some time past connected with the Peterboro Examiner, left, as foretold in these columns for the scene of his new and more extended services.

Mr. Choate was offered and accepted a responsible position with the Montreal Herald and we venture to predict that he will soon be heard of in the wider world of newspaperdom.

Mr. Choate, who was universally popular, not only among his friends and associates of the local press, but with the general public of Peterboro will be greatly missed in the city.

He is not only a clever journalist, a reporter with that inherent extra sense so useful to men of his profession, a keen sense and instinct leading him to news, but a clever draughtsman and cartoonist.

Mr. Choate possessed the ability to write in graceful style and give all the news without hurting the feelings of those written about.

We trust his future in Montreal will be as successful, on a larger scale, as was his past in Peterboro.

Murray Street Week of Prayer

The prayer meetings held in Murray street church last week were eminently successful and attended by large audiences. The meeting held on Friday evening at which Rev. Dr. Torrance and Canon Davidson gave addresses on "The Home," was perhaps as interesting as any of the series. The talented Presbyterian divine referred to the relations existing and that should exist between parents and their children, whilst Canon Davidson gave particular attention to the privileges and duties of home life.

The Cemetery Board Were All Re-elected

Little Lake Cemetery Shareholders, and Subsequently Their Directors hold Annual Meetings---A Good Financial Statement Presented.

Yesterday afternoon, at three o'clock, shareholders of the Little Cemetery Company, held their annual meeting in the Council chamber.

Those present were Messrs. James Stevenson, who joined the Board half a century ago, Mr. Chas. Stapleton, who has been 23 years consecutively the Board; Mr. T. A. Hay, B. Shortley, K. H. D. Hall, Thos. Gladman, R. M. Denniston, Frank Adams, H. T. Strickland, W. H. Moore, Secretary, E. Peck, who has been in office since 1889, and Superintendent Wise.

Mr. W. H. Moore, president, took the chair, and asked the secretary to read the minutes of the last regular annual meeting of the shareholders. This was done by Mr. Peck. The minutes were duly read and confirmed.

The next order of proceedings was the reading, by Mr. Moore, president, of the directors' report. The report ran as follows:

DIRECTORS REPORT

The directors of your company beg to report that the past year has been a quiet one, in which no large or expensive work was undertaken, because there was no great demand for extra improvement, and also that the income might as far as possible be conserved and applied to the discharge of the loan that was necessarily made to complete the company's new office and superintendent's residence. Never the less your Board has, they believe, fully maintained the general good condition of the cemetery, so that its attractiveness has seldom, if ever, in any former year been equalled. This desireable condition has been rendered the more easy, by the advantage derived from the large conservatory erected two years ago.

Your directors, however, have had block R. re-surveyed and subdivided into plots, graded and seeded down, and the same are now open for sale to the public. This is one of the best locations in the cemetery, and your Board expect the property will soon be in demand.

Your Board have also completed the plumbing of the residence, which finally closed the expenditure on that account and on the office and conservatory.

There is one circumstance in relation to the year's affairs which it is believed will be noted with satisfaction, namely, that the receipts from the care of plots shows a marked increase, indicating that lot owners (who are the shareholders) generally, are taking a deep interest in the grounds, and the hopefulness that in time, not distant, the income from this source may equal the outlay for maintenance, without trenching on the produce of the sale of lots.

Your directors would recommend that not less than $1250, shall be paid on the principal of the borrowed money, thus leaving $750, to be discharged during the current year.

It is also expected that the company this year will be able to add to the surplus funds invested in city debentures, to provide for the future preservation of the grounds, and which investment now amounts to the sum of $10,917.31.

All of which is most respectfully submitted,

W. H. MOORE,
President.

Peterboro, Jan. 15, 1906.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Stevenson, that the report be adopted.

As the financial statement of the secretary, was printed, and in the hands of all present, it was adopted as read, on suggestion of Mr. Hall, as follows:

The securities held by the company, and consisting of nine debentures of the City of Peterboro, amounting to $10,917.31, have also been examined by us.

We further testify that we have examined the books of the superintendent for the year 1905, and find them carefully and correctly kept. All moneys received by him appear to have been promptly paid over to the treasurer.

JAS. A. HALL.
T. Q. QUARTERMAINE.
Auditors.

Mr. Moore noted that a greater interest, a marked interest, was taken by owners in the care of their lots during the past year. There was great economy practised last year. He would be glad to hear from any shareholder regarding the financial statement. In answer to a question by Mr. Hall, Mr. Moore said that last year the estimations made by Supt. Wise were promptly and well made. The receipts for sales of flowers in 1904 were $656, as at in 1905, $1,154.

Mr. Wise explains that when a party comes to the cemetery and asks a price for care of his lot, flowers, etc., it is difficult to answer him. The cares of the book-keeping now are very great; but he figured that last year, from $180 to $200 was gained from the new green house.

Mr. Stapleton thought that in a short time the secretary would be able to give an accurate idea of the profits for the new green house and other sources of revenue. Mr. Peck explained that the great increase is in care of lots and watering.

The superintendent, Mr. Wise, then read his report as follows:

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

Peterboro, Ont., January 10th, 1906

To the President, Directors, and Shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company:

Gentlemen,—I beg to submit the following report of work performed in your cemetery during the year 1905, but, before doing so, I wish to state that, owing to the difficulty of securing the proper class of labor, and the high rate of wages paid, it was decided at a meeting of the directors in the spring, not to proceed with any extensive improvements at this time.

The large stones have been removed from the hill between Section L and K at the south side of the cemetery, and a water table prepared for small stones, but not having a supply of the proper class of stone for the work, it had to be abandoned for the present. I hope to finish this work early next season.

The break in the bank in Section L has been filled and will be graded and sodded in the spring.

Block R has been surveyed and laid out in lots, and is now in condition to be used for interment. This block, on account of its position, is one of the most desirable in the cemetery, and should be in great demand.

Owing to Blocks V and S becoming overrun with a variety of blue grass of a very unsightly and stubborn nature, it was found necessary to have them ploughed and worked up, so as to get rid of it. They can now be laid down with good seed and placed in condition for future use as lots.

I beg to call your attention to the large increase of visitors to the cemetery on Sunday afternoon during the summer season, and while they are very welcome, I would remind them that they are within the sacred precincts of a cemetery and not a park. I regret that I have frequently had occasion to call the attention of young men and boys, and also mothers with children, to this fact. I also regret the fact that a certain class of people when approaching a flowerbed or vase, will stoop and pluck a flower or break off a slip. They do not seem to realize that they are committing an offence of a serious nature, and subjecting themselves to prosecution. I would also ask drivers of vehicles to walk their horses when within the grounds. If the lot owners would observe the rules laid down in their copies of the rules and regulations, and kindly correct those whom they see breaking them, they would earn my sincere gratitude, and also greatly assist me in keeping order in the cemetery. I append my Financial Report.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

FRANK WISE,
Superintendent.

Mr. Shortly said the statement was so concise and clear no comments were necessary. He referred to the satisfactory report, and manner of carrying on the business by Mr. Wise. He moved; seconded by Mr. Hay that the report be adopted.

The next business was appointment of auditors. Mr. Shortly moved, seconded by Mr. Adams that the old auditors, Messrs. J. H. Hall and T. Q. Quartermaine, be re-elected.—Carried.

The next order of business was election of directors for 1906. Mr. Denniston nominated the old Board, this was seconded by Mr. Stapleton. Mr. Moore, however, objected to this, saying it was customary to make persons' nominations. Secretary Peck read the bylaw which gave each individual shareholders' meeting the privilege of electing the directors by ballot or otherwise. Mr. Denniston moved, seconded by Mr. Strickland, that the old Board of 1905 be re-elected, without the formality of a ballot.—Carried.

This ended the shareholders' meeting, as a meeting of the directors was then held.

DIRECTORS MEETING

Mr. Stevenson moved that Mr. Moore, president for 1905, be re-elected.—Carried.

The old directors re-elected without ballot are as follows:

Messrs—

W. H. MOORE, President.
E. H. D. HALL.
CHAS. STAPLETON.
JAS. STEVENSON.
J. J. LUNDY.
DR. G. BURNHAM.
T. A. HAY.
B. SHORTLY.
R. M. DENNISTOUN.

Mr. Moore then gave a short address saying that some one else should take the responsibility of the presidency, and thanked those present.

It was moved by Mr. Shortly, seconded by Mr. Stapleton, that Mr. Peck be re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

The next business was nomination of the Advisory Committee.

Mr. Hall moved that Messrs. Shortly, Hay and Stapleton, be members of this committee. Mr. Hall, after some discussion, withdrew his motion by consent of all present, making the committee of the whole Board the advisory committee.

Mr. Shortly moved that Superintendent Wise was doing very well; he is in fact worth more than he is paid. He would like to see Mr. Wise get a little rise in salary, even if only $50 a year. He moved, seconded by Mr. Hay, that Mr. Wise's salary be raised $50, beginning from 1st of Jan.

Mr. Dennistoun remarked that the company does not want to be merely training superintendents to have them leave when well fitted for other places.

Mr. Moore said Mr. Wise's books were kept in a good, clean, faithful way.

Mr. Stapleton moved in amendment that this matter be not taken up as yet, but later on. Mr. Hall asked whether his (Mr. Wise's) contract does not run out on 1st of May. It was answered that it does not, terminate without three months' notice from either side. Mr. Moore explained that Mr. Wise's house had been heated at an expense of $40 a year.

Mr. Shortly explained that Mr. Ford, Wise's predecessor used to make money out of his greenhouses, which Mr. Wise does not. Mr. Stapleton explained that Mr. Ford used to live in a shanty and make perhaps $100 a year, and got more money than Mr. Wise, but that Mr. Wise lives in a splendid house. Mr. Shortly's motion then carried.

After a short desultory discussion the meeting then adjourned.

St. John's S. S. Entertainment

This evening in St. John's church Sunday school, a most interesting entertainment will be held for the children. At six o'clock tea will be served to the children. This will be followed by a very pleasing selection of vocal and instrumental music, at eight o'clock for both children and their parents.

LAND OF CENTENARIANS

In Ireland 182 Persons Died Last Year Over 100 Years Old

London, January 15.—Notwithstanding all her comparative poverty, hardships and grievances, Ireland remains the land of centenarians. As many as 182 persons aged 100 years and upwards died during 1904. The women centenarians were the most numerous—there were ninety-six females to eighty-six males. Persons aged ninety-five years and upwards who died last year numbered 711. These figures are given by the Registrar-General in his annual report. Another curious fact illustrating the stamina and longevity of the Irish is that sheer "old age" instead of any specific disease was the cause of death in 9,480 instances. Old age, indeed, ranks as high as second place in the classified causes of death.

THE BLACK ACE

Turned Up and the Young Girl Obeyed and Ended Life

Kalamazoo, Mich., January 15. — A pack of cards with the ace of spades upturned, a paper filled with characters explaining the power of the different cards to foretell the future, were found on the stand in a room containing the body of Miss Marion Hoag, aged 21. She had been dead for 2 hours.

Feeling that she was unable to longer keep up the struggle at the meager wage she earned she left it to the cards to decide whether it would be life or death. She followed what she believed was the ruling of fate. Her aged mother resides at Battle Creek.

Three Transports From United States Expected at Manila

Manila, January 16.—The arrival of the transports Meade, Kilpatrick and McClellan at Manila with troops from the United States is expected. It is understood that the vessels will remain here in case an emergency requires the transportation of troops.

Washington, January 16. — Reports, whose source is not divulged, continue to come to the State Department to the effect that conditions in China are still unsettled and unsatisfactory. No details are obtainable as to the nature of the trouble expected, and the situation is puzzling in view of the statement made by the Chinese Minister here that he had not the least apprehension of an outbreak.

Good Music at Local Conservatory

A very successful and pleasing recital was held last Saturday in the local Conservatory of Music. Mr. H. M. Field the well-known Toronto piano virtuoso and Mr. Pigott, vocal instructor of the Toronto Conservatory were the performers. Such masters of the art as these two gentlemen cannot but arouse a spirit of emulation and enthusiasm among the students of our local Conservatory.

A splendid program was rendered as follows:—

Piano—Consolation, Value Impromtu, Liszt.

Songs — Wanderersarschtlied, by Liszt. O Immigard, Mondnacht, von Fielix Frage, Well auf mir, H. M. Field.

Piano — Meine Freuden Chopin, Liszt: Polonaise, E Major, Liszt.

Songs—When I am Dead, Nightingale and Rose, Mother o' Mine. Mr. Pigott.

Piano—Venezia E Napoli, Liszt: Barcarolle and Tarantella.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

THE TURF.

In the Lindsay races today there are good horses in good numbers entered. Quite a bunch of our local sports, including most of the Peterboro Turf Club, will leave for Scugog ville to watch the ponies run. In the Lindsay races today there are nine entries in the 2.28 class, and in the 2.50 class, eight.

It is likely that the Picton races, which clash with our local races, will be called off. The Times, late last night had a dispatch from Picton saying that the ice there is very soft. We will thus likely get the ponies that would have run at Picton.

Mr. A. Elmhurst, of Otonabee, will have his fast horse Little Will here tomorrow to get into shape, under care of Mr. W. Moffatt, for the winter races. Mr. Jas. Elmhurst will also bring up his little grey horse to enter our winter circuit.

RUGBY.

Frank D. Woodworth, who has been since 1902, secretary-treasurer of the O.R.F.U., and is vice-president of the O.H.A., will leave Toronto next Thursday for New York where he expects to reside permanently, and look after the American business of the Merrals Engineering Co., of which firm he is at present secretary-treasurer.

CURLING.

The annual match for the Shepherd-Ash trophy will be played today—our rinks playing with Orillia here, and four in Orillia. The skips who will go to Orillia today are; Messrs. W. G. Morrow, T. F. Matthews, Thos. Rutherford, and W. G. Ferguson. Those who will do battle here against the Orillia quartettes are Messrs. R. Nesbit, J. H. Connal, G. H. Giroux and C. N. Brown.

HOCKEY.

The Peterboro hockey team will go to Cobourg tonight to meet the puck chasers of that place in a scheduled intermediate match. This match was to have taken place on Friday night, but a change has been made for several reasons. No excursion will be run. The boys are in good shape and expect to add another victory to their record.

POLICE COURT NEWS

At yesterday's police court, a peculiar case, involving the animosity of sworn testimony on the part of three young women, named respectively Westfall, McCracken and Chatam, well dressed employes, two of Auburn Mills and one from the silk factory, as witnesses for the complainant-ania, and three young men, two of them defendants in the case, all of whom work in Auburn mills, as positively and unanimously to the contrary, on the other side.

It might be explained that the complainant in the case is a young gentleman whose name, partly, at his own request, and partly owing to our delicacy as a newspaper, like the world, loves a lover, we suppose. The complainant is a personal friend of one of the fair witnesses in the case, and with proper gallantry determined to stop the alleged assignations of his friend and her friends.

Two young men, by name McCurry and Weatherstone, working at Auburn Mills, were charged with having whilst passing Mr. Bell's boarding house, at 857 Water street, a week ago Saturday at 10 minutes to six p.m., called out the names of three young ladies boarding at this place, and also with having used some obscene language.

The first witness called, a young man working at Auburn Mills swore that he did not see anything going on in front of 857 Water street. Heard no shouting there. He did not tell Miss Westfall that he had heard the two men using obscene language. Did not mention any names to her. She asked him, at his own door, Saturday night if he had been with the two young men. He replied, "yes," but she herself mentioned no names or of their making use of bad language. He said, "and truthfully," that the two men did not use badlanguage. The three girls board about Victoria avenue, three doors south of it.

To Mr. McWilliams, it was dark at six a.m., and he could not distinguish a man one 30 yards away.

Miss Westfall, the next witness, boards at William Bells, 857 Water street. Was there a week ago last Saturday, with Mary McCracken and Bertha Chatam.

The boys came by their place and also knew their names, being those of the defendants in court. She was dressing at ten minutes to six. She knew the boys as they had shouted for five mornings either before or after that Saturday. Thought it was time it was stopped. The men said, mentioning one of the girls' names, "It is time you were out of bed." She raised her blind up about four inches to fool out. They also said "——— ou old silk worm it's time to get up and go to work," and on one occasion used a dirty slang word.

To save the witness using it open court the "slang" word alleged to be used by the defendant, she was allowed to write it. Could not swear which one used the word. The shouting came from the two men behind the third. To Mr. McWilliams, she heard the bad words a week ago Saturday night. One of the girls in another room heard the words. Is sure she knows the two young men by sight. She identified each of the defendants in court. Does not know why the young men should annoy them. The young men could not see them dressing.

The next witness was another of the young women, alleged to be annoyed, who boards at 857 Water St. She works in the silk mills. She knows the defendants. Does not know from actual sight, who the men were, but recognized their voices. This witness like the last wrote down the objectionable words used.

The third young woman, who works at Auburn, swore she did not see, but heard the three young men a week ago Saturday morning. The defendants, whose voices she knew, called the girls by name.

Dan McCauley, one of the defendants, was then put into the box. He works at Auburn, where he quits work at 5.30 a.m. Does not know any of the girls but one, Miss Westfall, whom he has seen at Auburn. Does not know them, nor had he ever spoken to any of them (the girls). Denied in toto that he knew anything of the shouting at the girls. Does not think any of the girls know his voice. Did not know the names of the girls, but one that works at Auburn, until he was summoned.

The two defendants having absolutely denied the truth of the evidence given by the three fair complaintants, Mr. McWilliams said to his Worship, "This is simply a case of mistaken identification, and asked to have the case dismissed. His Worship, however, did not consider that three girls, like the complainants would voluntarily come into court to swear falsely, adding, "I am going to see this thing through and get at the truth of it." He insisted that the night foreman at Auburn, whom the defendants at recess had accompanied them on the mornings in dispute, should appear as well as Mr. Bell, proprietor of the girls' boarding house, and whom the girls all swore had one morning gone out and told the young men to stop annoying the place, should come to court and give their evidence. The case was enlarged until this morning at ten o'clock.

About four p.m., yesterday, the young man complainant in this case, was in the police station, and washed The Times, that he had, one or two witnesses, so to say, up his sleeve, that will somewhat affect his case at this morning's hearing.

There will likely be something doing at Thursday's police court when Dr. Gray will appear in answer to a summons. It seems that the genial coroner is charged "with having neglected to send in a medical certificate in regard to the death, last December of one, Margaret Kennedy. The doctor is, we learn, hot over the insinuation, and will probably open up the vials of his wrath on Thursday.

The Coroner's Jury Bring in Verdict

Jury Investigating Death of Edward Towns Unanimously Agree That Deceased's Death was Due to Laudanum Taken to Induce Sleep.

The adjourned inquest on the death, at an east ward hotel recently of Edward Towns, was ended last night in the police court. Coroner Dr. Gray presided, with Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney, and High County Constable, G. Cochrane present.

After a consultation between the coroner and Mr. Wood had ensued, the jury were reported all present with two exceptions.

Mrs. Ellen Hogan, the first witness called, testified that the only thing she saw of the affair, was that young Towns had his coat off, and was trying to quarrel with Mr. Walsh of Douro. Saw her husband speak to Mr. Towns, trying to get him to keep quiet. Someone came to her husband and, holding a bottle in his hand, said, "Pat, see what Towns has been taking." She rang the dinner bell to bring the men into dinner. On the evening, prior to Town's death, about 5:30, she saw Towns looking "kind of melancholy." He took her he was not feeling well. He had had powders or medicine from Dr. Kennedy. He said, he was not feeling well. He did not eat much tea. Towns went to work on Thursday, but she did not think he worked Friday. This latter was from her own knowledge, and is correct. Was not in Town's room that night. Saw him in the hall. There were several men in the hall, but does not remember who they were. The deceased seemed on Thursday evening to be sober, but on Saturday had some drink in him, and was quarrelsome.

Towns had told her "He had his own troubles," on which she advised him to take some medicine.

This ended her testimony.

Mr. Cochrane then called upon Fred Hamilton as next witness. In evidence, Hamilton said he came into the house when Towns began to quarrel with Walsh. Towns called Walsh some dirty names. Hogan came in, and told Towns he must not use such language. Hogan advised Towns to go to bed. Towns said "I refuse." Hogan called Towns out into the hall. After a time he saw that Hogan had Towns down on the floor, but did not see Hogan hit Towns. Hogan said, "Now Towns, if I let you up will you be good and go to bed." Hogan came to the hall door, when he, witness, called Hogan into the bar. Towns followed Hogan into the bar, saying "Hogan you can't bluff me yet." Hogan replied, "Eddie, I have always been a good friend of yours, come now, and go to bed." Towns tried to strike Hogan, and Hogan caught him by the wrist and took him into the hall. Towns, in ten or fifteen minutes came back, and asked for a drink. Could not say whether he got it or not. That was the last he saw of the affair.

In answer to a question by Mr. Wood, did not see Towns go up stairs.

Hugh Bailey was the next witness called. Bailey said, the first thing he saw was when he came to dinner. He saw no trouble. He next gave an account of an acquaintance of his named Christie, asking about Hogan. Saw Towns in his room, when he looked in the door, lying on his bed. He said, "Hello Eddie!" Towns said "Tell Christie I want to see him." Told Hogan Towns wanted to see Christie. Then he went to dinner. When he saw Towns on the bed, he Towns, had his coat, vest and boots off. Towns was then seemingly all right. When he first went up, he saw nothing in Christie's hand. Then he turned and went up stairs again. He met Christie coming down with a bottle in his hand. When he, witness first went into Town's room, Christie was at the head of the stairs. He left him there as stated, and went down to see Mr. Hogan. It was on hisascend trip up stairs, he saw the bottle in Christie's hand. Christie said "Some man has taken laudanum." Did not know who he referred to, nor did he ask. First knew, after he had his dinner, that something was wrong with Towns. Then he went into Towns room and asked him what was wrong. Towns told him, "None of your business." He, witness, then said, "Don't get mad," to which Towns answered, "If you want to be friends with me, get out of the room." Heard Towns say nothing more.

Then the doctor came. Towns seemed the same, but did not speak any more. Helped to take him, Towns, down stairs, when Dr. McNulty took him away in his rig. Towns was able to help himself, when he and Christie took him down stairs. Towns seemed sleepy and "kind of stupid like," when taken down stairs.

W. Warmington, the next witness, was there that day. Saw no trouble. He was in the bar attending to his duties. Saw Christie and Towns come into the bar; gave one lager to Christie but no drinks to Towns, as the latter had had enough. Christie was sober. Then they both went out of the bar.

Saw no trouble Towns and Hogan came to the bar door. Hogan said, "Eddie go and have a sleep." Saw no one with the bottle of laudanum.

Dr. Gray then took up the fatal bottle and asked Warmington, "Did you ever see that bottle, before?" Warmington said "No."

Jas. Walsh was called but not present.

William Walsh, it was explained by the coroner, had come to his Dr. Gray's house, and said he could swear he knew nothing of the affair, so he was not brought to the court.

Mr. Wood said the witnesses, of last night, merely corroborated the evidence already given, and which has not been contradicted. He did not think it necessary to call any more witnesses but, as is proper, it is the duty of the coroner to call upon all persons who might be present and able to give evidence bearing upon the death of Edward Towns.

Dr. Gray, when no response came, asked if any one present could give any further evidence or explanations, that they should come forward. To this request there was no response.

Dr. Gray then said he had got a letter from Mr. Towns's relations relative to Mr. Towns' character. He said, "We are not here to try his character but simply to look into the cause of his death."

He then went on, showing half a bottle of laudanum, the fatal bottle, to say that the deceased boy may have supped the stuff. The coroner then went on to explain how, by custom, one may get used to taking enormous does of the drug. The boy had been drinking a little, and perhaps took a little too much.

Dr. Gray next said, he believed the boy, in his excitement, by mistake, took too much. Laudanum is pure opium dissolved in alcohol. Another matter, any one intending to commit suicide, generally goes to a private room to take poison with such intent.

Coroner Gray then dismissed those present in court and sent the jury to consider their verdict, reminding them that no remarks of his should influence them in their verdict!!

THE VERDICT.

The jury, after an absence of about 15 or 20 minutes, brought in the following verdict.

We your jurors are of the unanimous opinion that the late Edward Towns came to his death by taking an overdose of laudanum with the intention of producing sharp.

Thus does away with all the malicious and unfounded rumors current reflecting most unfairly on innocent parties, who, instead, of having had any hand in the death of Edward Towns, had simply, for his own good, tried to get him to go to bed and avoid trouble.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the new of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; thus the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to wind or waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James S. Whitney of Boston, when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that he heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances can be introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

LOST EYESIGHT
Through Coffee Drinking

Some people question the statements that coffee hurts the delicate nerves of the body. Personal experience with thousands prove the general statement true and physicians have records of great numbers of cases that add to the testimony.

The following is from the Rockford, Ill., Register-Gazette:

Dr. William Langhorst, of Aurora, has been treating one of the queerest cases of lost eyesight ever in history. The patient is O. A. Leach, of Beach county, and in the last four months he has doctored with all the specialists about the country and has at last returned home with the fact impressed on his mind that his case is incurable.

A portion of the optic nerve has been ruined, rendering his sight so limited that he is unable to see anything before him, but he can see plainly anything at the side of him. There have been but few cases of its kind before, and they have been caused by whiskey or tobacco. Leach has never used either, but has been a great coffee drinker and the specialists have decided that the case has been caused by this. Leach stated himself that for several years he had drank three cups of coffee for breakfast, two at noon, and one at night. According to the records of the specialists of this country this is the first case ever caused by the use of coffee.

The nerve is ruined beyond aid and his case is incurable. The fact that makes the case a queer one is that the sight forward has been lost and the side sight has been retained. According to the doctor's statement the young man will have to give up coffee or the rest of his sight will follow and the entire nerve be ruined.—Register-Gazette.

Let it be remembered that the eyes may be attacked in one case and the stomach in another, while in others it may be kidneys, heart, bowels or general nervous prostration. The remedy is obvious and should be adopted before too late.

Quit coffee, if you show incipient disease.

It is easy if one can have well-boiled Postum Food Coffee to serve for the hot morning beverage. The withdrawal of the old kind of coffee that is doing the harm and the supply of the elements in the Postum which Nature uses to rebuild the broken down nerve cells, insures a quick return to the old joy of strength and health, and it's well worth while to be able again to "do things" and feel well. There's a reason for

How Consumption Starts

Tired When You Waken--Languid All Day—Nerves Worn Out —Snap All Gone

Your limbs feel "draggy" and excessively weak. A night's sleep seldom brings satisfying rest. Continuous headaches, exhaustion and nervous sensations destroy your health. Soon every spark of vitality is used up. Then you catch tuberculosis.

Start to-day. Build up, get new nerve force, and overcome this process of decay. Use Ferrozone, which physicians consider the most vitalizing, uplifting tonic ever made.

Ferrozone cures because it can furnish the body with sufficient nutriment and building material.

Think of the instant effect—at once the appetite increases, delightful color in the cheeks proves that rich, red blood is being circulated. Tired muscles are invigorated, flesh and weight are added. Nerve force develops, and bounding, joyous health is firmly established.

This is certain—Ferrozone restores failing strength from any cause. The experience of Mr. Thos. Dowd, of Schreiber, Ont., proves this;

"Household worries and cares had about exhausted my strength. I was weak and miserable. My cheeks lacked the color of health, and occasionally I had spells of rheumatism. Then my appetite fell off, and nothing could tempt me to eat. Worn-out feelings, chills and despondency filled my very being. I became anaemic and dwindled down to a shadow. Consumption was very near. Ferrozone put strength in my body with a rush. It built me up, strong, virile and happy, and I have been well ever since."

Ferrozone cures sickness by curing the real cause—lack of blood and nerve tone. It keeps people at their best—fit, ready and anxious for work. In 50c. boxes only, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE PATH OF DUTY.

Every member of the City Council for this year should make his conduct as a civic representative fit the necessities of the municipality.

During a campaign for office a great deal is said about retrenchment, but no alderman is expected to advocate bald economy at the expense of those interests which have to do with every householder.

There are certain fixed expenditures which must be faced. Over these the Council practically has no control. Its duty, therefore, lies in the direction of exercising good judgment in the administration of affairs generally. Serious and expensive mistakes can be made by representatives who pride themselves upon their advocacy of economy in municipal government. To avoid these aldermen must give thought and care to the discussion of civic projects and be ready to learn something from the experience of other communities. A non-elastic attitude upon the part of one or more representatives imbued with ideas or hobbies not appreciated by their colleagues will work evil. The better way is to be entirely animated by a desire to serve the people as a whole and to work along the lines of progress that have been marked out by preceding Councils and which have been endorsed by the electors in the return of old members.

The Peterboro City Council cannot this year depart very radically from beaten paths without risking censure. It ought to be a year of good administration and we believe it will be that.

A MONSTROUS THEORY.

It is strange to what lengths an enthusiast may be carried by a theory. Some of the greatest minds of the ages have been thus led into foolish positions. Several instances of this common proneness to go to extreme have lately come before the public in a somewhat ghastly form.

A woman of unusual mental ability and attainments, devoted to work for the betterment of mankind, advocates the killing of children born to vice, crime and poverty. Apparently she is serious about it. Probably she is vehemently in earnest; people who get along that far with a theory usually are. She is not alone in this line of reasoning. One professor advocates suicide for men and women who have passed their period of usefulness to their fellow human beings. Another proposes that the incurably sick and injured shall be put to death. Still another advises that the incurably insane be disposed of in the same way. The idea is not a new one. It came to the front in ancient times and has been carried into effect by savages of many lands.

It is terribly suggestive. Skip this line of reasoning, if carried far enough, would apply to criminals, drunkards, all oppressors of their fellow men and even those unfortunate enough to be weaker than the average of their fellows. Truly a simple and effectual plan for the cleansing of the human race, but a trifle drastic and the apotheosis of selfishness.

SHE ALSO HAD A PET.

But It Was Somewhat Different From Other Women's.

When the thin woman in the long gray ulster sat down in the subway car opposite the fat woman holding a bright little Scotch terrier it could be seen at once that they had points of common interest and that those points of common interest consisted of dogs.

"What a dear little fellow he is," chirped the thin woman.

"Isn't he dear?" cooed the fat woman, snuggling her pet so closely that he had to sniff for breath.

"Mine is a French poodle," ventured the thin woman. "I hear those gray terriers are coming into style, though."

"Yes, they're all the rage," said the fat woman. "I had to give up fifty for Sandy."

A handsome young woman who occupied the seat by the thin woman was an interested listener to the colloquy. She was good looking enough to attract attention anywhere, and she looked as if she loved everything that was worth loving in this world, including dogs. She leaned over and gave Sandy's head an affectionate pat, and Sandy tried to lick her gloved hand.

"You love dogs, too?" said the fat woman.

"Oh, yes," was the reply. "Who could help it?"

"What kind is yours?" came the eager query.

"Mine? Oh, I haven't any. I have a baby."

And the fat woman and the thin woman raised their brows, turned up their noses and grew coldly silent, just as if some one had said something to shock their sense of feeling.—New York Press.

BANWELL FELT HIMSELF SAFE

So Detectives Found at One Souther Hotel—Search at Erindale

Toronto, Jan. 14.—It developed yesterday that a warrant was sworn out a couple of weeks ago for the arrest of Nora Hector, the wife of Edwin St. George Banwell, the defaulting bank cashier now under arrest at Kingston, Jamaica, under the belief that the young woman had returned to her home. Information was given the police to this effect and the Erindale house was searched for the young woman.

It has also been learned through Noble's Dominion Detective Agency that Banwell registered at a hotel in Florida in his own name. This might indicate that he considered he was outside the danger zone.

In police and detective circles there is much comment on Banwell's supreme carelessness in leaving a trail of stolen bank bills for the police to pick up. He could not have chosen a route where the chances of detection would have been better. In his flight south he had a limited choice of ports of embarkation if he intended to leave the States for one of the islands of the Gulf of Mexico. From Houston, Texas, to Tampa, Fla., the Pinkertons have men posted on every wharf and west of Houston along the Mexican frontier the Noble Detective Agency of this city has correspondents in every city. It is asserted that the Pinkerton sleuths crossed the agents of the Houston people between Houston and New Orleans and the pursuit was abandoned to the New York agency. The winter resorts of Florida were covered and a systematic search was in progress when it was learned that Banwell and his bride had crossed to Havana. From that point the pursuit became comparatively easy.

An Innovation on Grand Trunk Railway

In order to facilitate the prompt delivery of baggage at Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton, and to avoid delay and annoyance often occasioned at these points, the General Baggage Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are arranging for the checking of baggage from all stations in Canada direct to residences, hotels, railway stations and steamboat wharves in the above cities.

Under this arrangement a passenger from any station on the Grand Trunk Railway System, upon payment of 25c. for each piece, will be able to check their baggage direct to any residence, hotel, etc., thus avoiding the necessity of making arrangements for delivery on arrival and insuring the prompt receipt of baggage at destination.

Under this system baggage when received from trains at destination will be immediately delivered direct to the Transfer Co. for PROMPT DELIVERY thus avoiding delays previously occasioned by placing same in baggage-room, recording, re-assorting, etc., thus saving time and unnecessary handling.

Further announcement will be made of date of this service will be put into effect.

STRICTURE AND KIDNEY DISEASE CURED.

C. E. WRIGHT.

"I had stricture for eleven years. It finally brought on Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. I had an uncomfortable shooting pain in the groin and feeling as though something was in the urethra. My back was weak and I could scarcely stoop over. Urine was full of sediment. Had a desire to urinate frequently. Finally doctors, so-called specialists, patent medicines, electric belts, all failed. I was discouraged. I had spent hundreds of dollars in vain. Finally I consulted Drs. Kennedy & Kergan as the last resort. I had heard a great deal about them and overlooked from the fact that they had been established over 25 years that they understood their business. I am delighted with the results. In one week I felt better and in a few weeks was entirely cured. Have gained sixteen pounds in weight."

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

As the light widened, the breeze which had been just perceptible all night, died away, and the sea became as calm as a mill pond. I looked about me for something to explain the noise of breakers we had heard, but at first could see nothing. When, however, I turned my head to the west I almost shouted in my surprise, for, scarcely a mile distant from us, was a comparatively large island, surrounded by three or four reef-like smaller ones. On the larger island a peak rose ragged and rough to a height of something like five hundred feet, and upon the shore, on all sides, I could plainly discern the surf breaking upon the rocks. As soon as I saw it I turned excitedly to Miss Maybourne.

"We're saved!" I cried, pointing in the direction of the island; "look there—look there!"

She turned round on the boat as well as she was able and when she saw the land, stared at it for some moments in silence. Then with a cry, "Thank God!" she dropped her head on to her hands and I could see her shoulders shaken by convulsive sobs. I did my best to console her, but she soon recovered of her own accord, and addressed herself to me again.

"These must be the Salvage Islands of which the Captain was speaking at dinner last night," she said. "How can we reach the shore? Whatever happens, we must not drift past them."

"Have no fear," I answered; "I will not let that happen, come what may."

So saying, I shifted my position to get a better purchase of the water, and then using the broken oar began to paddle in the direction of the biggest island, it was terribly hard work, and a very few moments showed me that after all the horrors of the night I was as weak as a kitten. But by patience and perseverance I at last got the boat's head round and began to lessen the distance that separated us. At the end of nearly half an hour we were within a hundred yards of the shore. By this time I had decided on a landing-place. It was a little bit of open sandy beach, perhaps sixty yards long, without rocks, and boasting less surf than any other part of the island I could see. In addition to these advantages it was nearer, and I noted that that particular side of the island looked more sheltered than the others.

Towards his haven of refuge I accordingly made my way, hoping that I should not find any unexpected danger lurking there when I should be too close in to be able to get out again. It was necessary for every reason that we should save the boat from damage for by her aid alone could we hope to make our way out to passing ships, or, if the worst came, to strike out on our own account for the Canary Islands. That the rocks we were now making were the Salvage Group, as Miss Maybourne had said, I had no doubt in my own mind, though how the skipper came to be steering such a course was more than I could tell.

At last we were so close that I could see the sandy bottom quite distinctly only a fathom or so below us. A better landing-place no man could have wished for. When we were near enough to make it safe I slid off the boat into the water, which was just up to my hips, and began to push her in before me. Having grounded her I took Miss Maybourne in my arms and carried her out of the water up on to the beach and then went back for the child. My heart was so full of gratitude at being on dry land again and having saved the two lives entrusted to my care that I could have burst into tears on the least encouragement.

Having got my charges safely ashore, I waded into the water again to have a look at the boat and, if possible, to discover what had made her capsize. She was so precious to us that I dared not leave her for an instant. To my delight she looked as sound as the day she had been turned out of the shipwright's yard, and I felt if once I could turn her over she would carry us as well as any boat ever built. But how to do that, with so much water on as she was, was a problem I could not for the life of me solve. Miss Maybourne's wits, however, were sharper than mine and helped me out of the difficulty.

"There is a rope in her bows, Mr. Wrexford," she cried; "why not drive the oar into the sand and fasten her to that? then when the tide goes out—you see it is nearly full now—she will be left high and dry, the water will have run out of her, and then you will be able to do whatever you please to her."

"You've solved the difficulty for me in a very simple fashion," I answered. "What a duffer I was not to have thought of that."

"The mouse can help the lion sometimes, you see," she replied, with a wan little smile that went to my heart.

Having got my party safely ashore, and made my boat fast to the oar, as proposed by Miss Maybourne, the next thing to be done was to discover a suitable spot where we might fix our camp, and then to endeavor to find some sort of food upon which we might sustain our lives until we should be rescued. I explained my intentions to my elder companion, and then, leaving them on the beach together, climbed the hill-side to explore. On the other side of the island the peak rose almost precipitously from the beach, and upon the side on which we stood it was, in many places, pretty stiff climbing. At last, however, to my great delight, on a small plateau some thirty yards long by twenty deep, I discovered a cave that looked as if it would suit my purpose to perfection. It was not a large affair, but quite big enough to hold the woman and the child even when lying at full length. To add to my satisfaction, the little strip of land outside was covered with a coarse grass, a quantity of which I gathered and spread about in the cave to serve as a bed. This, with a few armfuls of dry seaweed, which I knew I should be able to obtain on the beach, made an excellent couch.

What, however, troubled me more than anything else, was the fear that the island might contain no fresh water. But my doubts on that head were soon set at rest, for on the hillside, a little below the plateau on which I had discovered the cave, was a fair-sized pool, formed by a hollow in a rock. Fifty yards further on, I found it, I thought to my certain water, a little brackish it is true, but still quite drinkable. There was an abundance of fuel everywhere, and if only I could manage to find some shell fish on the rocks, or hit upon some way of catching the fish swimming in the bay, I thought we might manage to keep ourselves alive until we were picked up by some passing boat.

Descending to the beach again, I told Miss Maybourne of my discoveries, and then taking poor little Esther in my arms we set off up the hill towards the cave. On reaching it I made them as comfortable as I could and then descended to the shore again in search of food.

Leaving the little sandy bay where we had landed, I tramped along as far as some large rocks I could see a couple of hundred yards or so to my left hand. As I went I thought of the strangeness of my position. How inscrutable are the ways of Providence! However much I might have hated Bertrand, had I not met Nikola I should in all probability never have attempted to revenge myself on him. In that case I should not have been compelled to fly from England at a moment's notice, and should certainly not have sailed aboard the Fiji Princess. Presuming, therefore, that all would have gone on without me as it had done with me, Miss Maybourne would have been drowned off the coast of Spain, and the Fiji Princess would have gone to the bottom and nobody have been left to tell the tale. It was a curious thought, and one that sent a strange thrill through me to think what good had indirectly resulted from my misfortune.

Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the treatment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Ozarka Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 20th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for. But now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $40,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 700 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Improved Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1,000.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have finished the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This, will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $300,000.00 rich ore, and has 400 feet of developments, costing over $10,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OZARKA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with me. I have just put $1,500.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Ozarka Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $27.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. Cheese Sold by The Times

It pays to advertise or be mentioned by The Times. In yesterday's issue we noted that Mr. A. Rountree, the George street grocer, had procured the Ayrshire, Scotland, cheeses brought here for demonstration purposes by the E. O. Dairymen's Association. The result of this notice was that yesterday Mr. Rountree was so besieged with applicants for this peculiarly good cheese, as might be guessed by reason of, and by whom, its being brought to Peterboro.

Before 11.30 a.m. yesterday, although it had not been intended to cut these cheeses for some days yet, the demands were so frequent and clamorous, that over 50 pounds had been secured by customers. Motto, "Advertise in The Times."

Old Dame Nature Knows How.

Old dame nature has a sure way of curing sick people by food if the kind she wants is supplied the body and the person don't interfere with drugs.

She prescribes such things as fresh air and sunshine, exercise and right food as her principal agencies.

Grape-Nuts is a natural food, prepared from wholesome grains, with no drugs nor chemical ingredients or processes, and is shipped from the factory in such predigested fitness that the weakest stomach will readily assimilate it.

An Ohio woman who suffered for twelve years from nervous prostration, night sweats, imperfect circulation, insomnia, etc., tells how Grape-Nuts food restored her to health and happiness in less than twelve weeks.

"I was so reduced in strength with untold suffering, without vitality or ambition, bed-ridden and unable to even wait on myself, that I felt obliged to doctor all the time, taking one prescription after another, but deriving no permanent benefit from any. Sometimes I would feel better for a little while, but soon the effects of the medicine would pass away and I would lapse back to my former condition.

"Last May at my mother's solicitation I concluded to quit medicines and try Grape-Nuts food. It did not work a miracle at once, but slowly and surely, day by day, it built me up and strengthened me. I soon began to sit up, then to work a little, then to get out to see my friends, gaining meanwhile in sleep, till at last. By the end of June I was able to leave home for a visit, (taking my Grape-Nuts with me, be sure,) returning after a few weeks, completely restored, with a healthy interest in my domestic duties, and, thank Heaven, the strength to perform the t

A WRIT ISSUED

R. H. Hill of Dummer After Damages From Chas. Gow

And now an aftercap of the recent and deplorable shooting of young T. E. Hill by Charles Gow, for which Gow served three months in jail, comes to light.

It seems that Robert D. Hill, of Dummer, father of the boy killed, is not sufficiently satisfied with Gow's short incarceration. He has issued a writ for damages not stated, and evidently to be fixed, if at all, by a jury, against Charles Gow, also of Dummer township.

The charge is that the death of Thomas Edward Hill, son of Robert D. Hill, which occurred in August last, was caused by the wrongful act of the defendant.

The writ was issued by Mr. E. B. Edwards, K.C., acting for Hill, while Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr have been retained by the defendant. The action will be heard at the spring assizes, which open on April 23rd before Mr. Justice Magee.

The case will prove, in all probability, of great interest to the public. The history of the previous case is well known to the public, and it will be interesting to know how this action for damages will turn out.

Peterboro Bride Buys Groceries

A few days ago, it is related by one of her dearest enemies, concerning a newly married lady of Peterboro, that she, the bride, last Saturday went into a George street grocery store, not a thousand miles south of Hunter street, and ordered, "A pound of dessicated cod-fish, two pounds of paralyzed sugar and a bag of nice fresh salt." The manager of the grocery, said smilingly, after the usual question, "What else madam," with a straight face, 'Madam we have some very fine bottled horse radish." To this the young housekeeper, with rigid ideas of economy replied, "No thanks, you know we don't keep a horse!"

There is to-day a crying need of a reformation in the treatment of the body. The basis of this reformation is to be found in the thesis of Dr. R. V. Pierce: "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach."

In the forty odd years of Dr. Pierce's experience as chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., he has treated more than half a million people, with a record of ninety-eight cures in every hundred. The theory held by Dr. Pierce that the stomach is the chief breeding place of disease, is abundantly borne out by the success of his treatment which is addressed primarily to the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

No other medicine acts so powerfully and as perfectly on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Men and women afflicted with shortness of breath, heart disease, suffocation, dizziness, spots before the eyes, "liver pains," and similar ailments have been promptly and perfectly cured by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

Miss Lavilla Bonine, Curator Natural History Society, of 628 Lavawee Street, West Lansing, Mich., writes: "I suffered with chronic dyspepsia for nearly seven years, and this caused me to grow very thin and pale, at the same time my blood became poor and I was so nervous and unstrung that I was unfit to attend to my daily duties. Heart was also affected and fluttered at the least excitement. I spent a lot of money doctoring and found no relief, until I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It certainly is a wonderful medicine. It toned up my stomach and I began to have a splendid appetite; had no trouble with my digestion, and I began to pick up and get stronger; soon new, rich blood flowed in my veins, and I once more felt the beauty and joy of life. I have now enjoyed perfect health for a year, thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

ICE HARVEST BEGUN

Mr. Thos. Rehill With Staff of Men and Eight Teams at Work

Yesterday at noon, Peterboro's enterprising wholesale and retail ice dealer began work for his supply of the coming element for next summer. Mr. Rehill has now eighteen men and eight teams hard at work harvesting his ice. This lot of ice is being taken from that portion of Little Lake between McDonald's mill and the Little Lake cemetery, where the ice is purest owing to freedom of decaying or live vegetable or other matter.

The ice this winter is particularly clear and pure, but thinner than usual, it only being about one foot in thickness. Still its purity and clearness greatly compensates for the slight difference in expense of gathering.

Robin Spring of its Perquisites

Now the old settler, and sometimes the new, come to The Times sanctum to report having seen robins in mid-January. Mr. Thos. McIntee, Reid street, reports having seen one of these harbingers of spring feasting on the frozen fruit of a local orchard. A resident of our recently acquired east ware, also reports having heard one of these birds, vocally inviting the coming of warm weather, in Peterboro's Brooklyn. It was as well, however, not to shut down the family furnace yet, nor to get at loggers-heads with the local coal barons. One swallow does not make a spring, although several may make a series of them, and it takes several robins to authorize an order to the ice man.

WAR COST RUSSIA OVER A BILLION

Great Shortage in Russian Revenue Shown by Budget

DOES NOT BEG QUESTION

Ministry Admits Gravity of Financial Situation, But Hopes for Better Things

St. Petersburg, January 16.—The budget statement for 1906 which was issued yesterday, shows that it will be necessary to raise $340,500,000 by credit operations to balance the estimated receipts and expenditures. The latter include $262,500,000 for the liquidation of the expenses of the Russo-Japanese troops, the repatriation of the troops in the far East, and the reduction of the army to a peace footing. For the first time the total cost of the war, $1,650,000,000, is revealed.

The credit operations to balance the budget include the recent authorization of $700,000,000 in treasury bonds, $75,000,000 of which have already been used to renew the Mendelssohn loan, and the credit of $160,000,000 which former Finance Minister Kokoseff is now negotiating in Paris. The primary object of the latter, the proceeds of which will be retained in Paris, is understood by the Associated Press to be the maintenance of the stability of the rouble.

HEAVY DRAIN ON GOLD RESERVE.

The budget statement does not dodge the prevailing conditions in Russia. It is pointed out specifically that the receipts from nearly all sources have been scaled down, and, moreover, it is stated that if the disorders in the interior do not cease there may be some branches of revenue on which it will be impossible to count.

The budget also deals frankly with the heavy drain on the gold reserve of the State Bank balances, abroad, which have fallen $152,500,000 in the three months preceding January 1.

During the last ten days of the year the gold reserve was reduced by $50,000,000, while the issue of paper currency was increased by $30,000,000.

The increases of paper issued, the statement says, was made by the bank in an effort to come to the rescue of the business interests, which were almost paralyzed and which had been refused loans by private banks, owing to the panicky conditions and to the reductions of the foreign credits of houses with connections abroad.

THE CAUSE OF DEPRESSION.

The statement has this to say of the monetary situation; "Such a state of affairs could not fail to inspire disquietude, for our monetary system was menaced simultaneously by the diminution of the stock of gold, resulting from withdrawals which the bank was powerless to prevent, and by the exodus of capital abroad, and the increase of paper circulation, the latter being due to the necessities of the interior. It is permitted, however, to hope, thanks to the restoration of calm, that the causes which influenced the withdrawals of gold will cease and that coin will soon begin to return to the bank. The amelioration of the situation, which is anticipated, should soon restore something like normal conditions in the interior, revivify credit and thus diminish the demand for money for business affairs."

The statement concludes with the following addressed to the Emperor, which was evidently penned by Count Witte;

"Those facts and figures submitted to Your Majesty show that the present situation of Russian finances is none too favorable. This state of things is the result of the war and the troubles which followed. These troubles are of a temporary character, and it is fair to assume that they will be ameliorated in the near future."

MORE HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

Periods of economic depression, history proves, are ordinarily followed by periods of activity and prosperity. Economic agitation multiplies the energy of the ablest and most enterprising elements of the nation, and arouses the laboring masses to persevere in their work, which cannot fail to better the industrial condition of the country and likewise the finances of the state. Conditions favorable for the appearance of a period of fruitful work must be perceived even amidst the gloom of the present hour. With each day the popular conscience must be awakened more and more to a realization of the true material needs of the Fatherland.

"The awakening of these social forces has a sure guarantee in the independence granted to the Russian nation by your august will, and into the equality before the law which has been assured to all Your Majesty's subjects."

A JUSTIFIABLE KICK

A Correspondent of the Mail Backs up Young Canada

A letter, that is of local, as well as general interest, and one containing sentiments that will be endorsed by thousands of young Canadians, appeared in the Toronto Mail & Empire.

The letter, given below, was in reference to a subject dealt in these columns a few days ago, viz.,- the importation of boys from Scotland, to fill junior positions in the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The letter, which sufficiently explains itself, reads thusly;

Sir,—I ask the privilege of saying a few words on the above subject. I learn from the press that the general manager of the Bank of Commerce gives as his reason for inducing Scotch lads to come to Canada to take positions in the bank, the "great scarcity o. Canadian lads. Is there a business man in Canada today that will accept such a statement. There are hundreds, yes, thousands of young lads in Canada that would be only too glad to be taken into the Commerce. Some few years ago a lad of mine was promised a clerkship in the Commerce. After waiting six months without hearing from the bank, he accepted a position in another bank, nor have I heard from the Commerce from that day to this as regards the promise. Some six years ago another of my lads made application to one of the leading banks for a clerkship. He was accepted, but was told that there were four hundred applicants on the list before him, and he would have to wait his turn. After having waited some eighteen months he was given the promised clerkship. The general manager of the Bank of Commerce would have us believe that there is a dearth of young men in Canada to accept clerkships in the bank and, therefore, he is compelled to seek for them abroad. The introduction of those Scotch lads into Canada to fill positions that our Canadian lads are capable of filling is an insult to young Canadians.

Yours, etc.,
CANADIAN.

C.P.R. To Have a New Port Near Midland

Railway Will Build Grain Line From Its New Port, Victoria Harbor, to Peterboro, This Year---Government to Spend Millions in Improving Lake Ports.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Plans are now being perfected whereby the Dominion Government will undertake a most comprehensive scheme for the improvement of the leading Canadian ports on the Upper Lakes, so that the larger type of grain carriers, drawing up to twenty feet of water may be able to develope trade by the Canadian route between Port Arthur and Fort William and the ports of Depot Harbor and Midland, and a new deep water port to be established by the Canadian Pacific at Victoria Harbor, near Midland.

TO BE ONE HARBOR.

Port Arthur and Fort William will be made one harbor, and steps will be taken at once to extend the breakwater at Port Arthur for the protection of the shipping at that port, and to improve the lower stretches of both the Mission River and the Kaministiquia River at Fort William. As is generally known, the Canadian Northern interests have built their terminals at Port Arthur. The Canadian Pacific, on the other hand, has erected its largest elevators at Fort William on the north side of the Kaministiquia. The Grand Trunk Pacific terminals are to be at Fort William, also, and in order to give the latter deep water at their docks considerable dredging will have to be done. The Kaministiquia has two mouths, one known by that name and the other called the Mission. These join one another a short distance above Fort William, and it is proposed to excavate both to a depth of 22 feet up to the junction point, so that vessels after unloading at the C.P.R. docks, on the Kaministiquia side, may be able to go around and come out at the Mission.

TO CUT OWEN SOUND.

The Canadian Pacific program is to establish an entirely new terminal on Georgian Bay. The chief port on Georgian Bay hitherto has been Owen Sound, but the policy of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's company is to erect an entirely new terminal at Victoria Harbor, not far from Midland, and to connect it by a piece of new road with their Toronto-Montreal lines at Peterboro. The existing branch to Owen Sound is said to include some heavier grades than is suited to the carriage of grain at mini mum rates, whereas the route from Victoria Harbor to Peterboro, aside from being shorter, is understood to have no difficult curves to round or hills to climb.

TO BUILT TO PETERBORO NOW

It is said that the C.P.R. is laying its plans to build this coming season from Peterboro across to Victoria Harbor. That being so, the Government will endeavor to make at once whatever improvements are needed to open the port to the largest craft on the lakes.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the Cabinet has an important program in the matter of transportation to lay before Parliament at its approaching session.

COMMISSION FAVORS IT.

It will be satisfactory, moreover, to the public to know that the plans in question are in accord with the views of the Transportation Commission that made a careful study of the whole matter. Government engineers are now getting together the facts and figures for the proposals that will be brought before the House.

MR. DUMBLE HONORED

Annual Meeting of George Street Methodist Church

On Monday evening, with Rev. Dr. Crothers in the chair, the annual meeting of the congregation of George treet Methodist church was held in the Sunday school hall.

Dr. Crothers gave a short congratulatory address, showing the satisfactory state of the church and their finances.

Mr. A. E. Dixon, secretary-treasurer of the church debt fund, presented a short report of this department. Five or six years ago they had undertaken to raise the sum of $10,000 towards reducing the church debt and more than this had been accomplished. They had raised $10,000, had paid over $1,000 on March 4, and had $122.50 on hand for the payment of the next thousand. The mortgage on the church, he said, had been reduced to $7,000. In addition to this there was a note of $1,000, and another note on which only the interest had to be paid.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe, secretary of the Board, in his report showed a balance of nearly $1,000.

The Ladies Aid Society, after spending nearly $600 on a new piano, and other incidentals had a handsome balance left.

The board of trustees, consisting of Messrs. Lockart, Dumble, Jeffrie and Sheehy were called to the platform and presented the retiring recording secretary, Mr. Dumble with a beautifully embossed and framed address of a most complimentary character.

Mr. Dumble, taken by surprise, and evidently pleased by the thoughtful appreciation of his service, replied in fitting terms.

The evening's program included some very interesting and appreciative musical numbers, including solos by Mr. Jas. Browne, and a duet by the Misses Chanty. Refreshments were served.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Yesterday morning the case enlarged from Monday was ended. This case was one in which two young men, working in Auburn mills were charged with having, on a week ago Saturday, at six a.m., shouted and yelled at some girls boarding at 857 Water street.

William Bell, the first witness, said he lives at 857 Water street, and works at Auburn mills. Was at home a week ago Saturday morning, when their was some noise. He heard some one calling girls' names, distinguished the names of Woodall and McOracken. Did not recognize the voices that morning. It was at six o'clock, but not dark.

On the following morning hearing a similar disturbance, he was waiting at the front door as he wanted to caution the parties. They shouted something that was meant for the girls in their room, where a light was burning. Went out and told the boys they would have to stop this sort of thing. Recognized Weatherstone, whom he recognized in court. Could not recognize any other. His Worship asked "Is it the good looking one with the curly hair?" "Yes," the witness replied. This went on for some days, but was not so bad after he spoke to them. He wanted to stop the boys shouting at his house. This was why he wanted to caution them. They did not reply to him.

To Mr. McWilliams, counsel for the defendants, witness said he recognized Weatherstone. There were only three of these men there. Most of the people living in that part of the city are working people. There would not be many people passing at that early hour. He wanted to see Weatherstone in particular, as he knew him. He did not know which of the three had been making the noise. Did not know that there had been two parties in his neighborhood Saturday night.

Mrs. Sarah Bell, the next witness, wife of the last witness, said as she was getting breakfast that Saturday, she heard some one cry out the girls' names, as given by preceding witness. Saw the boys on Monday morning. She knew Mr. Stevenson, and saw him Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings.

To Mr. McWilliams, she only knows Stevenson, who was not in court yesterday.

Mr. Davidson, foreman at Auburn mills. Defendants work with him. Defendant Stevenson works with Mr. Lim. Came down with him on the 6th. Did not hear any yelling that morning. He and Stevenson walked together, and the other two some distance behind. Never heard Mr. Bell speak or saw him come out. On Saturday morning he is sure four of them came down together. He never heard the boys yell at any house.

To Mr. McWilliams. The only man he knew that would come by at that hour, would be a man working at the pulp mill.

William McNight, next witness, knows the defendants. Has had conversation about the affair with the defendants. Has seen both of them this week. McCurry came to him as he was going to work on Thursday and said, "Hello Bill, do you know a gentleman named Anglesy?" He replied that he knew several of that name, specifying them. McCurry said, "Look at what some fellow named Anglesy has done to me," showing him at the same time, a summons. Witness said to him, that must be some people I know in the north end, meaning Hella. McCurry said "What did they have me up for?" Told him he would try and find out. Found defendants were charged with had conduct on the street.

McCurry said he was sorry to be connected with the case, as the people were his friends.

On Friday his cousin made a proposition for him to go to McCurry and try to get him to pay the costs, and have the case dropped. McCurry refused, saying they were not guilty. McCurry had made no admission of having committed the offence.

The young man recognized as being Weatherstone, by Mr. Bell, went into the box and swore his name is Bellegheru.

Mr. McWilliams said the whole case is one of identification. It had been explained in the evidence that nearly every morning a group of four men including defendants pass by. The ladies aware to the disturbance being committed by three men; Mr. Bell was mistaken in his identification completely. It is a serious matter for the girls to be disturbed in this way, but more serious for the wrong men to be accused. It seemed preposterous that the young men who had nothing against the girls should yell at or try to interfere with them. There is no evidence of identification. The foreman had no interest in the matter and he never heard anything of the nature of misconduct on the part of the young men.

His Worship was quite clear the nuisance has been committed, day after day, by people passing that hour of the day. It is a mean man who would try to hurt the character of a decent girl. Her character is dear to her. None of the men showed that there are any other men passing at that hour. As to evidence. It is proved clearly that some one did commit the nuisance. Mr. Davidson might be honest in his evidence, but walking at various distances would not Listen to any Skylarking or noises. Stevens was absolutely identified. One of the girls clearly recognized the voice of one of the two parties charged. The voice is more apt to be remembered than the sight.

Mr. McWilliams interfered to say that the defendants had not to get proof for others.

His Worship replied, "You tried yourself to prove that there might be others passing at the times mentioned. There is a little uncertainty to bring it to two particular men. He has a moral conviction that these men are guilty, but they are entitled to the benefit of any doubt.

He thinks he would be justified in discharging the case.

He would only say to the young men if these girls were their sisters or mothers, they would not bother them, and risk getting their good names talked about, as might have been done with the young ladies on Water street.

Yesterday an old man, named Long, about 80 years of age, who some 30 years ago, used to run a flour and feed store on George street, and who was once in the employ of Messrs. Nicholls & Hall, predecessors of Messrs. Richard Hall & Sons, came to the police court yesterday, and asked to be "sent up." The poor old gentleman was accommodated for a period.

COUNTY COURT.

As noted in yesterday's issue of The Times an assault case was tried by County Magistrate Geo. Edmison, in Otonabee, Monday afternoon. As full reports were not available Monday night, we now give the case in extenso.

It seems that one Charles Peters laid a charge of assault against James Martin jr. It further appears that young Peters was standing on his father's property with another boy and when Martin was passing on the road Peters called to him.

Peters with martial ardor, and true generalship, lined up the forces under his command, considered that he and his friend could "take a rise" out of Martin. For this reason, he, it seems, called to Martin.

Martin, however, had an idea that he was "some pumpkins," even if not a Jiu Jitsu professional, so he, after vaulting the outworks of the assaulting or insulting (?) enemy, charged home foot and pillory on Peters, having scaled the outworks, a rail-fence, he proceeded to land one on Peters arriving him on the outermost outworks his usual appendage.

The assault, somewhat unexpected and delivered without preliminary skirmishing, or even a reconnaissance in force, settled that Jay's notion. Peters fell back in good order on his re-inforcements, the mighty arm of the law laid the enemy before "The Beak."

Martin's parental relative was quite displeased with the whole affair, thinking it "infra dig" for the boys not to have settled it as all boys generally do among themselves. In fact he intimated if his boy had squealed, begging, and other boy tapped his claret, he would have warmed his back for telling tales out of school. According to the accepted code, the elder Martin should be patted on the back and told "you are a man!"

As both boys seem to have been equal sharers in the game, barring Peter's injured proboscis, the Magistrate dismissed the case with costs, $4.74, of which Martin, who got the clip in on Peter's nose, paid two-thirds, and Peters, who received the good right fist of the enemy-on his shoulder, one-third.

Submarine Signals

The new Atlantic steamships, Empresses of Britain and Ireland, will be fitted up with the new appliances for receiving sound signals through the water. At certain important points in the St. Lawrence River submarine bells have been placed, which in thick and foggy weather are sounded automatically by pneumatic pressure. In the bow of the new Empresses, and on the port and starboard sides, transmitters will be placed and connected by wires with a telephone box in the chart room; thus the officer in charge of the ship will hear the warning bells when they are still miles away, and be able to fix the position of his ship whatever the state of the weather. Inasmuch as the submarine signals travel through the water without inconvenience, are not subject to mind-waves and give an exact location of the source of danger, it is apparent that they become an important factor of safety. The steamer James S Whitney of Boston when running at full speed, picked up these signals at eight miles' distance, and the officer in charge said the bell sounded distinctly. Another captain reported that he heard these signals clearly in a gale, when all other signals failed.

The question of expense has never been considered by the Canadian Pacific Railway when appliances can be introduced which will add to their passengers' safety.

Peterboro Wins

Yesterday morning the Peterboro Hockey team journeyed to Cobourg to play the team of that town. No excursion was run and very few local sports accompanied the home team. The ice was in good condition and fast hockey was played by both teams. There was a good attendance, and the Peterboro team won out by a score of 1—3.

A LOCAL WARNING

Manager Bradburn Has Renovated Scugogville Opera House

Referring to the Lindsay opera house, of which, as noted in a former issue of The Times, our enterprising local theatrical manager, Mr. Rupert Bradburn is now in control, the Lindsay Post says,

"When the Academy of Music doors are thrown open this evening, the initiated may see little to warrant our statement a few days ago, that great things are and have been in progress. 'Tis true that much of the most necessary scrubbing has been carried out at points not accessible to the view of the audience, but we can trust those possessed of a nice olfactory sense to detect a huge difference. The charwoman has been at work everywhere downstairs, while the man with the hoe has been laboring in the gallery and cultivating deep as a preliminary to a determined attempt to restore the original color of a floor long defiled by tobacco shewers. The management appeals to frequenters to institute a new order of things of their own free will, and not compel the adoption of repressive measures. Last week a spitter was fined $5 for fouling the floor of the Grand Opera house, Peterboro, and similar action will be taken here if necessary to preserve cleanliness and good order.

ANNUAL MEETING

Peterboro Horticultural Society Held Their Regular Session

Last night, in the Council chambers, the Peterboro Horticultural Society, to whose efforts mainly are due the splendid and beautifully kept Victoria and Central parks, held their annual meeting. President D. W. Dumble, than whom a more enthusiastic lover of flowers and trees does not live in the city, occupied the chair.

The meeting was strictly a business one, and like men of business, the members present, viz., Messrs. Dumble, president; H. Beall, secretary; James Stevenson, dean of the society; A. Jordan, Dr. Sprnahm and T. A. Hay got through their work quickly.

Four directors were elected. The board for this year is the same as for the past year with the exception of Mr. S. Jordan's name being added in place of that of Mr. A. Hall.

The secretary's report of receipts and expenditures were as follows.

EUROPE ALARMED BY FEAR OF WAR

France Preparing to Resist an Expected Attack From Germany

ARMY IS IN READINESS

All Depends Upon Kaiser's Attitude at the Morocco Conference

London, January 16. — Anxiety over the strained relations between France and Germany still prevails, and in some quarters, amounts to positive alarm.

It is pointed out that the quiet mobilization and general military activity throughout France during the last seven months has put the country on a full war footing, while German preparations have not been lacking. It is argued by some that in the present situation France is as much to be feared as Germany with regard to the danger of a breach of the peace. Two views are taken of the German attitude. Many accept the declaration of Count Von Tattenbach-Ashold, the Kaiser's former envoy at Fez, that Emperor William is heartily sick of Moroccan affairs, and desires only to see the end of the embroglio. It is further explained that the Kaiser was misled by Chancellor Von Bulow, and now sees that the acceptance of the Anglo-French entente is inevitable.

In Paris M. Clemenceau sets forth the other view with great force. He argues that it is idle to hang on the lips of the German Emperor to know if this or that day he will be in good humor. German policy, he says, always has consisted of alternations of kindly and threatening utterances, and one means just as much as the other. Germany will carry things as far against France as she is permitted, and it is France's business to see that such permission is wanting.

FRANCE PREPARING FOR WAR.

M. Clemenceau anticipates as a result of the conference an unsatisfactory patched up peace, obtained by compromise after Germany has gone as far as she dares in threatening war, and he urges his countryman to show a stiff back from the start.

There is much in the situation which opposes the belligerent view. It is quite true that the French Government has been straining every nerve to prepare for a German attack since last summer. These preparations, however, had a purely defensive object. No sane government, indeed, could have done less under the circumstances, and every effort has been made to avoid the possibility of the charge that France is animated by aggressive motives. The whole crisis has been of German inception, and French policy until the present moment has been one lof simple prudence.

It is true, also, that French national feeling harbors considerable resentment against Germany for her provocation and chattering attitude during the last year. This could scarcely have been otherwise in any self-respecting country.

FRENCH PRESS TOO AGGRESSIVE

The French press within the last few days has been perhaps a bit aggressive and contemptuous in its treatment of the Kaiser's reputed peace utterances, but it is altogether wrong to assume that there is any general desire in France to try conclusions at arms with Germany. The French Government understands perfectly that any aggressive action on its part leading to war would cost the support of Great Britain, without whose aid they could not hope successfully to resist the Kaiser's first and army. There is therefore little reason to fear the success of the German plan, if such a plan exists, to provoke the French into furnishing a plausible casus belli. It is to a certain extent true, as the spectator remarks today, that the coming conference offers a fatally easy chance for any parties thereto to make war. The task of thwarting any such intention ought not to be beyond the power of the representatives of the peaceful members of the conference.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

CURLING.

Owing to the present March weather, thrown by ticku fortuna into the middle of January, the great game of yesteryear, between the local knights of the broom and stones, and the Orillia lung enlargers, was, by mutual consent, postponed from yesterday to Thursday.

The ice here, on Charlotte street rink, was sufficiently good for them to have played, but it seems that the Orillia ice, like a tippler's promises, was soft, and not to be depended upon.

Dora Thorne

Last night a crowded house greeted the Dora Thorne Company at the Grand Opera House. The company was a strong one and the play was put on most effectively. Manager Bradburn has shown consistently, ever since the opening of our new house of the drama, his determination to only engage first-class plays, put on by recognized companies, so as to foster a spirit of trust among Peterboro theater patrons, and last night's play endorsed the wisdom of his decision. By three o'clock yesterday afternoon, enough seats had been taken to ensure not only a good house but a financial success.

It was funny to hear, after the appearance of this play here last week, how one or two local would-be literary critics, whilst admitting "Dora Thorne," as a dramatic success, say that the play was not founded upon the characters and scenes of the well known novel. Last night, one of Peterboro's best known and widely read authorities said the play was "Dora Thorne" as written by the novel.

The Scourge of Consumption

Thousands Are Dying—If Tired Languid or Run Down Get Protection Before Too Late

No child, man or woman is safe from consumption unless their blood is pure, rich and nourishing.

Allow the blood to become thin, and immediately the whole system grows weak. The lungs are deprived of resisting power and the ever-present tubercular bacilli develops.

The most positive protection against consumption is Ferrozone, which restores the blood to full strength. Weak organs are instantly strengthened. Worn-out tissues are rebuilt. New life is given to the lungs and all danger of consumption is destroyed.

Mrs. E. J. Richardson, Manotick, Ont., tells as follows of her enormous gain in health from Ferrozone:

"For two years I was not well. I was thin and anaemic. Towards spring I fell into a condition of nervous exhaustion. A dead tiredness hung over me like a load of lead. Housework of any kind I simply couldn't do. A bad cough developed that worried me greatly for I thought it might be tubercular. When I first read of Ferrozone I was convinced it was good. I took it regularly for eight weeks and the change in my condition was wonderful. My cheeks filled out and became clear and rosy. I gained eight pounds and now am strong and vigorous as possible."

Ferrozone feeds, nourishes and tones up the body—it sends the thrill and vim of robust health from head to foot—makes you feel better at once. Won't you use Ferrozone? Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

PETERBORO, JANUARY 16 1906

THEY NEVER SLEEP.

The Toronto Globe says: "A plea for separate schools was made by Rev. Father Rohleder at the final meeting of the separate school board for 1905, held last night. Replying to a vote of thanks he pointed out that separate schools in Ontario are handicapped to a certain extent. He expressed his belief that if Roman Catholic children in this province were extended the same privileges as in Quebec in regard to separate high schools the local school boards could show better results."

The Hamilton Spectator thinks that the reverend father's idea that separate high schools would show better educational results—if that was his meaning—will be considered by most people to be a good joke. But the point to this, that the agitation for greater special privileges still continues in Ontario, where almost everything that could be imagined has already been conceded to the separate school people. There is little use in any Ontario Government trying to satisfy the insatiable, and it is to be hoped that when the demand for separate high schools comes—and it will come—the refusal will be prompt, flat and conclusive.

The people of Ontario are in no mood just now to stand the granting of further special privileges to anybody.

WHY SHOULD THERE BE WAR?

It is plain that the thinkers of Germany and the thinkers of Britain do not want war. They are combining to dampen the war spirit of some of the more thoughtless elements in both nations by streams of dignified and humanitarian protest. The commercial classes do not want war. At least the majority of the industrial classes do not want war. It would be easy from all this to deduce the comforting theory that the optimists are right, and that there is no danger of war.

But, if so, why all this strenuous effort to talk down the war spirit? The college men, the scientists, the literary men and the artists of two great peoples do not turn aside from their ordinary occupations, which are sufficiently engrossing, to crusade against a spirit which does not exist. While it is plain that these men of brain do not want war, it is also plain that they fear it may come.

The cause of peace would be the gainer if these men of perception and brain would sift out for us and pillory the influences which are working toward war. If we could know who it is that these protests are directed against, then possibly we could fathom their motives and might not be so easily carried off our feet by their enthusiasms. If war is right and necessary, by all means let it come; but let us know in advance why it is right and necessary. The peoples of these two great empires are surely too intelligent and too thoroughly in control of their own governments to be stampeded into a terrible war without in the least knowing what they are fighting about and for whom they are fighting.

What the situation needs is light; and these men of light and leading and independence are the very men to supply it.

This, of course, is all preliminary to the decision that there must be war. If either party decides upon war, the other party cannot decline the challenge. And the decision of either party to make war may be shown indirectly by making war upon some one else with a view to clearing the decks for the final action. Thus if Britain were to attempt to seize Denmark, Germany would be purblind not to resist at once this act of ultimate aggression against her; and, in the same way, if Germany were to set out to cripple France, Britain could not regard the act as other than a step toward the final turning of Continental Europe against the Insular Empire.

LAND OF CENTENARIANS

In Ireland 182 Persons Died Last Year Over 100 Years Old

London, January 15.—Notwithstanding all her comparative poverty, hardships and grievances, Ireland remains the land of centenarians. As many as 182 persons aged 100 years and upwards died during 1904. The women centenarians were the most numerous—there were ninety-six females to eighty-six males. Persons aged ninety-five years and upwards who died last year numbered 711. These figures are given by the Registrar-General in his annual report. Another curious fact illustrating the stamina and longevity of the Irish is that sheer "old age" instead of any specific disease was the cause of death in 9,480 instances. Old age, indeed, ranks as high as second place in the classified causes of death.

An Innovation on Grand Trunk Railway

In order to facilitate the prompt delivery of baggage at Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton, and to avoid delay and annoyance often occasioned at these points, the General Baggage Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are arranging for the checking of baggage from all stations in Canada direct to residences, hotels, railway stations and steamboat wharves in the above cities.

Under this arrangement a passenger from any station on the Grand Trunk Railway System, upon payment of 25c. for each piece, will be able to check their baggage direct to any residence, hotel, etc., thus avoiding the necessity of making arrangements for delivery on arrival and insuring the prompt receipt of baggage at destination.

Under this system baggage when received from trains at destination will be immediately delivered direct to the Transfer Co. for PROMPT DELIVERY thus avoiding delays previously occasioned by placing same in baggage-room, recording, re-assorting, etc., thus saving time and unnecessary handling.

Further announcement will be made of date of this service will be put into effect.

His Trial Trip in Gotham.

W. Trox Bankston, editor of the New South of Ringgold, Ga., tells a story of his first and only experience as a newspaper writer in New York.

"One day there was a terrible storm in the harbor," he says, "and I was sent out to cover one end of it. In my story I said that 'the dashing of the waves was simply indescribable.'

"The city editor called me in. 'What do you mean by simply indescribable?' he asked.

"'I mean,' I said, 'that it was simply indescribable on a salary of $15 a week.'

The Luckiest of the Lot.

A celebrated financier one day in crossing a vacant lot came upon a group of laborers lying under a tree. He paused and held up a silver dollar in his hand. "The luckiest man of you gets this silver dollar," he said.

All jumped up, clutching for the dollar, but one, who continued lying on his back. The financier threw the dollar to him, saying:

"You earned it."

The idler turned over and said:

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

Reaching the rocks mentioned above I clambered on to them and began my search for limpets. Once more Fate was kind to me. The stones abounded with the molluscs, the majority of which were of larger sizes than I had met with in my life before. In considerably less than five minutes I had detached a larger supply than our little party would be able to consume all day.

My harvest gathered, I filled my handkerchief and set off for the plateau again. About half-way I looked up, to find Miss Maybourne standing at the cave mouth watching me. Directly she saw me approaching, she waved her hand to encourage me, and that little gesture set my heart beating like a wheat-flail. It was the first dawning of a knowledge that was soon to give me the greatest pain I had ever yet known in my life.

On reaching the plateau, I hastened towards her and placed my spoils at her feet.

"Fortune is indeed kind to us," I said. "See what splendid limpets I have obtained from the rocks down yonder. I was beginning to be afraid lest there should be nothing edible on the island."

"But how are we to cook them?" she answered, with a little shudder, for I must confess the things did not look appetising. "I could not eat them raw."

"I have no intention that you shall," I cried, reassuringly. "I am going to light a fire and cook them for you."

"But how can you light a fire? Have you any matches dry enough?"

I took from my waistcoat pocket a little Japanese match-box, the lid of which closed with a strong spring, and opened it in some trepidation. So much depended on the discovery I was about to make. With a trembling hand I pressed back the lid, and tipped the contents into my palm. Fortunately, the strength of the spring and the tight fit of the cover rendered the box almost water-tight, and for this reason the dozen or so matches it contained were only a little damp. In their present state, however, they were quite useless.

"I think," I said, turning them over and examining them closely, "that if I place them in a dry spot they will soon be fit for use."

Let me do it for you," she said, holding out her hand. "You have done everything so far. Why should I not be allowed to help you?"

"I shall be only too glad to let you," I answered. "I want to cut the fish out of their shells and prepare them for the fire."

So saying, I handed over the precious matches to her care; and then, taking my clasp knife from my pocket set about my work. When it was finished, and I had prepared an ample meal for three people, I placed it in a safe place in the cave, and then set about collecting a supply of fuel for the fire.

When this work was done I determined to climb to a point of vantage and search the offing for a sail. Just as I was starting, however, Miss Maybourne called to me to know where I was going. I informed her of my errand, and she immediately asked permission to accompany me. I told her that I should be very glad of her company, and when she had looked into the cave at the little child, who was still fast asleep, we set off together.

From the encampment we climbed the hill-side for a hundred feet or so, and then, reaching another small plateau turned our attention to the sea. Side by side we looked across the expanse of blue water for the sail that was to bring deliverance to us. But no sign of any vessel could be seen—only a flock of seagulls screeching round the rocks below us, and another wheeling roundabout in the blue sky above our heads.

"Nothing there," I said bitterly. "Not a single sail of any kind."

A fit of anger, as sudden as the squall that ruffles the surface of a mountain lake, rose in my breast against Fate. I shook my fist fiercely at the plane of water softly heaving in the sunlight, and but for my companion's presence could have cursed our fate aloud. I suppose Miss Maybourne must have understood, for she came a little closer to me and laid her hand soothingly upon my arm.

"Mr Wrexford," she said, "surely you who have hitherto been so brave are not going to give way now, just because we cannot see a ship the first time we look for one. No! No! I know you too well, and I cannot believe that."

"You shame me, Miss Maybourne," I replied, recovering myself directly. "Upon my word, you do. I don't know what made me give way like that. I am worse than a baby."

"I won't have you call yourself names either. It was because you are tired and little run down," she answered. "You have done too much. Oh, Mr. Wrexford, I want you to grant me a favor. I want you to kneel with me while I thank God for His great mercy in sparing our lives. We owe everything to Him. Without His help where should we be now?"

"I will kneel with you with pleasure," I said, "if you wish it, but I am not worthy. I have been too great a sinner for God to listen to me."

"Hush! I cannot let you say that," she went on. "Whatever your past may have been, God will hear you and forgive you if you pray aright. Remember, too, that in my eyes you have atoned for all your past by your care of us last night. Come, let us kneel down here."

So saying, she dropped on to her knees on that little plateau, and without a second's hesitation I followed her example. It must have been a strange sight for the gulls, that lovely girl and myself kneeling, side by side, on that windy hillside. Overhead rose the rugged peak of the mountain, below us was the surf-bound beach, and on all sides the treacherous sea from which we had so lately been delivered. What were the exact words of the prayer Miss Maybourne sent up to the Throne of Grace I cannot now remember; I only know it seemed to me the most beautiful expression of thankfulness for the past, and supplication for guidance and help in the future that it would be possible for a human being to give utterance to. When she had finished my eyes, and [illegible] given a final glance round, went down the hill again. On reaching our camping-place she went to the cave to ascertain how little Esther was, while I sought the spot where she had set the matches to dry. To my delight they were now ready for use. So placing them back in my box as if they were the greatest treasures I possessed on earth—as they really were just then—I went across to the fire I had built up. Then striking one of the matches upon a stone I lit the grass beneath the sticks, and in less time than it takes to tell had the satisfaction of seeing a fine bonfire blazing before me. This done, I crossed to the cave to obtain the fish I had placed there.

On entering, I discovered Miss Maybourne kneeling beside the child.

"How is she now?" I enquired, surprised at discovering the poor little mite still asleep upon the bed of grass.

"She is unconscious again," answered Miss Maybourne, large tears standing in her beautiful eyes as she spoke. "Oh, Mr. Wrexford, what can we do to save her life?"

"Alas! I cannot tell," I replied. "Shall we give her some more brandy I have still a little left in the flask."

"We might try it," she said. "But I fear it will not be much use. What the poor little thing needs most is a doctor's science and proper nursing. Oh! if I only knew what is really the matter, I might be able to do something for her. But, as it is, I feel powerless to help her at all."

"At any rate, let us try the effect of a few sips of this," I said, as I took the flask from my pocket. "Even if it does no good, it cannot possibly do any harm."

(To be continued.)

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 24th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 75 to 150 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1300.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developements this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $30.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

W. B. FLODING, Vice-President Oxarna Mining Company, Delphos, Ohio, U. S. A.

Who Owns the Hatchet and Chisel?

Any citizen who now mourns the loss of a cold-chisel, about eight inches long, and a hatchet, nearly new, with a good sharp edge, and a flat back, can procure the same, on identification from the local police station. Those tools were used by the party or parties who early Sunday morning gathered in $60 to $80 from the safe of Hicks & Company's office, to put the knack of the safe into disruption. It is not to be supposed that the real owner of these tools were in any way connected with the borrowing of Messrs. Hicks & Co's hard (coal) earned coin, but the reclaiming of them will not only relieve the police of their possession, but might, putting two and two together, lead to discovery of the miscreants who put the safe on the rough.

Theatrical Co. in the City

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody good." Yesterday when the train from Lakefield pulled into the Grand Trunk station, owing probably to the inclemency of the weather, no baggage or hacks met the train. On this train were fourteen members of the Raymond & Poore East Lynne Co., who Monday night played to a crowded house, and turned away several hundred from the hall doors at Lakefield. They were on their way to Hastings where East Lynn was presented last night. Owing to the lack of transportation, the company took in the first hotel they passed, the Queen's, at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets. Mine host of that caravansarey instead of scowling at the wretched weather, smiled when he saw 14 well dressed and prosperous looking ladies and gentlemen enter for dinner.

Mr. R. P. Gough Breaks His Arm

The many friends in the city of Mr. R. P. Gough, a member of the well known firm of Gough Bros., who recently disposed of their business in Peterboro, will regret to hear that, on Sunday last, Mr. Gough had a painful accident. It seems that, as Mr. Gough was walking along Broadalbane street, Toronto, on a slippery pavement, he had the misfortune to slip and fall. The result of this fall was that Mr. Gough unfortunately broke his arm, shortly above the wrist. Whilst the accident, of course, rendered neither of the fractured bones and included considerable pain, Mr. Gough will be able to attend to business.

To the Canadian Investor

DORES-MONTGOMERY MINING COMPANY
OF BULLFROG, NEVADA

The undersigned is pleased to announce to the investors of Canada that he has been appointed Canadian Fiscal-Agent of the above company, and is offering a limited amount of treasury stock at 25c. per share for development work. This property is just 1500 feet southwest of the famous Montgomery Shoshone mine and both have unquestionably the same vein. The group shows a well defined vein cropping out through, and it is a perfect fissure. A six inch talc seam on the hanging wall gives high values. We have also several other ledges, and it is only a matter of development work to make this property equal to any producer in the section.

The management of the Montgomery Shoshone conservatively estimates that the mine has produced $200,000 worth of ore. If this is right, the ore from the mine has averaged about $275 a ton, or about $1320 for every foot of sinking, the mine being 4 x 7 in clear.

Ore from the mine running less than $250 is thrown over the dump as milling ore. No less than 150 tons of ore has been shipped from this mine, all of it coming from the mine. Another shipment of 50 tons or more will be made via Las Vegas in a few days.

The figures given above are startling in the extreme, but the measurements and ore values as quoted are official—direct from the management of the wonderful mine that is today astonishing the world.

This property is only 1500 feet from the Dores Montgomery Mine.

Petition For Sidewalks And Sewers Early

The Board of Works Must Have Such Petitions in by April 1st---Early Start on Local Improvements Imperative---To Fill in Water Front.

The Board of Works met in committee last night when there were present: His Worship Mayor Henry Hunt, Chairman Ald. Hicks, and Ald. Kelly, Johnston, Adams, Graham and McIntyre.

This new Board for 1906 met sharp at eight o'clock, and energetically wiped off the slate considerable business, remaining in session till 10.40.

As the cost of public improvements by day labor, under Street Commissioner Evans' supervision, has been only 65c. a foot, Mr. Evans' salary included, against $1.05 contract price, the Board decided to construct the Pearl avenue and Boswell avenue sewers by day labor. For such work Mr. Evans, whose regular salary is $700 a year, has been getting, and will receive, $2.50 a day.

The engineer was instructed to communicate with Toronto with a view to purchasing sewer pipe now, and thus getting the advantage of present discount prices.

Ald. Johnston raised the question of getting public work under way earlier in the season, and thus avoid the congestion experienced in past years.

Ald. Kelly suggested that a notice be published, advising citizens wanting sidewalks and sewers constructed to send in their petitions to Council at the earliest practical date. This would enable such work to be commenced earlier in the season than heretofore.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Kelly, that the clerk be authorized to advertise in the local papers that at citizens desiring sewers or sidewalks constructed this year must send their petitions, sufficiently signed by April 1st—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Adams, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, who acted under the street commissioner last year, while the latter was engaged on sidewalk construction will be paid up to December 15th last.

A MISTAKE IN DISCOUNT.

The Taylor Co's account for cement sewer pipe for the Charlotte and Aylmer streets drains was disputed. The bill was for 18-inch pipe at 50c. a foot, and 12-inch pipe at 27c. a foot. Last year's Board of Works understood the Taylor Company was to supply this pipe delivered on the works at the net price for vitrified pipe in Toronto. The freight and cartage on the pipe supplied by the Taylor Co., would amount to $45.62. And this amount the engineer struck off the bill, to leave as he thought the pipe purchased from Mr. Taylor the same price, F.O.B., as vitrified pipe in Toronto. This the Taylor Company objected to, and asked that their account be paid as rendered.

During a lengthy investigation into the matter, it transpired that the Taylor Company's agreement, in writing, called for cement pipe at 50c. and 27c., delivered on the works. It eventually transpired that a mistake of the engineer in figuring but the discounts on Toronto list prices for pipes, had misled the Board as to what the Toronto F.O.B. prices for vitrified pipe really is. Consequently the Taylor Co's. account was recognized to be correct, and ordered to be paid as rendered.

His worship pointed out that he understands the Dominion Government is willing to dump their surplus dredging from the River, after utilizing that requisite for filling in behind the wharfing to be constructed between Hunter and Charlotte streets, on the city property west between the open line and the main water front. The mayor also remarked that when the cuttings between the two bridges are completed, the water will be lowered two feet; this will practically dry up all the property between the open line west and the shore, and the Government's proposition should be taken advantage of, as last between Hunter and Charlotte streets is dry now. Four cuttings in all are to be made, which will give the navigable channel a depth of ten feet and a width of 117 feet.

His Worship will write the department today, requesting that the property west of spur line be filled with the surplus dredgings, as outlined above, providing no public interests are affected thereby.

MORE POLES.

The Canadian Machine Telephone Co., write asking for additional pole privileges in the city to meet the requirements of their business. The company will be asked to submit a plan of the new poling they are asking for, and the engineer will report thereon.

OUTFALL SEWER.

Mr. Bartlett, one of the inspectors on the outfall sewer construction in Ward Five, is claiming pay for time lost by reason of Mr. Bogue not being able to prosecute the work continuously. Ald. Adams remarked that Mr. Bogue had ignored his contract in many ways. The engineer reported that Mr. Bogue stopped work on this sewer December 22nd and last Friday told him he could not make any further progress until the ice thickened. But since that time Mr. Bogue has laid 264 feet of iron pipe into the lake, without his knowledge or any inspection whatever, the inspector having been laid off.

Engineer Hay also reported that Mr. Bogue was removing stone from the sewer works alongside the G.T.R. track, to which he had no right. Ald. Adams also remarked that the G.T.R. people had intimated that they might need to use this right of way in the near future.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Graham, that the clerk be instructed to notify the Guarantee Co., Mr. Bogue's security, that he has not completed his contract in Ward Five according to contract—Carried.

Mr. Bartlett will be paid any balance coming him from actual work up to December 22nd, but not for time laid off since that date.

EXTENSION OF TIME.

Messrs. Sheehy's and Robinson's request for extension of time to July 1st, for completion of sewers was granted, subject to the consent of their bondsmen.

SEWER CONNECTIONS.

Mr. R. E. Wood, acting for St. Paul's church Board of Management, asked for reconsideration of their tax for sewer connection with the south end church. No action was taken in this matter, the Board considering this assessment very reasonable.

John Thompson asked for sewer connection with his house on Dublin street. The engineer will report.

Jas. A. Long asked for sewer connection with his terrace on Water street. He proposed connection by a six-inch pipe from McDonnell street along the lane in rear of his property, as Water street connection being unpracticable. Referred to the engineer to report on.

PRICE FOR CONNECTION.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that a lump sum of $25 be charged for connections to curtail sewers or other sewers, paid for by general tax, and not constructed as a local improvement, when the property does not or has not paid a frontage tax; this to apply to connections already made—Carried, and the solicitor will be instructed to prepare a by-law on these lines.

DIVERSION OF CREEK.

The diversion of the Aylmer street creek through 42-inch pipes along Edinburg street, or Harmardo avenue, into the river, at a cost of $3,400, was taken up but no decision as to which course and how to be paid for arrived at. The creek will, however, probably be carried along Edinburgh street and paid for by a general tax.

TIME BY THE FORELOOK.

The chairman was authorized on motion of Ald. Adams, to advertise for cement for this year, 4,000 barrels more or less.

MORE COMPLAINTS.

Ald. Johnston said that citizens are complaining that no snow plowing is done on Brown street.

Ald. Graham remarked that similar conditions exist in regard to Waterford street.

Street Commissioner Evans has already looked into the former neglect, and his attention will be drawn to the latter.

The Board then adjourned.

AN OPEN LETTER

Chief Rutherford Writes the Manager of Peterboro Radial Railway Co.

The following copy of a letter sent to the manager of Peterboro Radial Railway Company, has been handed to the Peterboro press for publication:

To Mr. J. H. Farmilth, managing director Peterboro Radial Railway.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 9th inst., in which you refuse to carry members of the Peterboro Fire Brigade, on your cars, free, except, when in uniform or, on production of certain dead head tickets you so generously (?) supply; and then only when, by interpretation of such conductor as they may meet on the cars, he sees are on their way to a fire.

Your letter seems to me to indicate remarkably short memory on your part relative to the agreement you and I made shortly after your road began operations.

The understanding, then established, was, that if the firemen would procure a distinguishing button, and wear the same, said button would entitle any fireman wearing it, to free transportation at all times. The members of my brigade, at considerable expense, relying on the credibility of your word, procured these buttons.

Your ingenuous remarks, over the matter of allowing "Firemen in full uniform to ride free," is beneath not only contempt but discussion. You, I are all our fellow citizens, are perfectly well aware that our local firemen do not wear uniforms, either on or off duty.

The Peterboro Fire Brigade differ somewhat from the Peterboro Radial Railway Company. We did not get a franchise worth easily $100,000, and a bonus of $10,000 to start with. The brigade, however has, practically for nothing, during the past 25 years, been at the services of this city, night or day, for the benefit of the city, and no looking for heavy dividends annually.

As regards the 150 dead-head tickets you send the firemen, when breaking your agreement with me, I, with full authority of the whole brigade, most respectfully beg to return them herewith. The firemen of this city have not yet got down to ask charity off you or your company.

As far as your remarks acknowledging that all other street railroads carry firemen in uniform free; when you use the well-known feet of Peterboro's volunteer firemen not wearing regulation uniform and therefore deny them privileges given everywhere else, your generosity is very thin: it was your own suggestion regarding members of the brigade wearing the buttons we bought; you even gave me a sample, and told me where to write for them. In the face of this your conduct, or possibly that of your superiors is questionable, after my men, on your advice, spent as much on buttons, for identification purposes, as would pay for several years tickets for the men. From the date of this writing, we shall neither ask nor expect any favors from your company.

GRAVE DANGER

Of War Between the United States and Japan, in Prof. Jordan's Opinion

Denver, Colo., January 18.—In an address delivered before the Colorado Teachers' Association, David Starr Jordan, President of Stanford University, stated his belief that there is grave danger of war between Japan and the United States if the United States puts up the bars against the Japanese as it has against the Chinese. He declares that the Mikado's Government will resent the action with arms. He said:

"If this measure becomes a law it will mean war between the United States and Japan. I am sure of it, because I am personally acquainted with many of the Japanese officials and know their sentiments."

THE PEOPLE ARE MAKING MONEY

Figures for 1905 Show Remarkable Prosperity in the Dominion

SAVINGS OF PEOPLE VAST

More Than $100 Per Capital is Stored Away in Vaults of Financial Institutions

Ottawa, January 17. — The year which has just closed has been one most satisfactory and progressive with the financial institutions of Canada, and the business of the chartered banks reflects the unprecedented prosperity enjoyed throughout the country during the year 1905.

The increased demands made upon the banks of the Dominion by the commercial and agricultural expansion of the year were provided for without the monetary disturbances sometimes noted in the United States. Whatever opinions may be held as to the composition of the Canadian banking system, it is claimed that its flexible currency has many commendable features, and without which the last few months of the year must have produced a money stringency with probably disastrous results. It is felt that a wider field of credit in the Dominion is needed, and consequently the capital of many existing banking institutions has been increased, and several new banks are in process of organization.

TOTAL DEPOSITS HUGE.

The chartered banks of Canada today enjoy the confidence of the general public to a greater extent than ever before. The total deposits of the people in these institutions last year were $622,517,000, which shows an increase of over $56,000,000 for the year. In actual money in bank probably no other country in the world, comparatively speaking, can make a better showing than Canada.

The total deposits of the Canadian people in the government savings banks, in special savings institutions, and in the chartered banks alone amounted last year to the enormous sum of $460,454,000. This represents an average credit balance of over $100 per head of the population of the Dominion, and it is stated that the only other country in the world that approaches this record is Denmark, where the average credit balance is about $96.80 per capita. The above figures, however, do not comprehend moneys deposited with private bankers, loan companies, mortgage corporations and trust companies, or what is hoarded up in secret hiding places.

Another indication of the financial as well as commercial and industrial progress of the country is found in the annual report of the Dominion Finance Department, while has just been issued to the public. This report shows a surplus in the Dominion treasury for the fiscal year of $7,893,000, and refers to the remarkable increase in the public revenues during the year.

PLAN RAILWAY TO ISLE.

The gigantic project of connecting by rail the Island of Vancouver with the mainland of British Columbia has long been mooted, but is just now taking some practical shape for the early commencement of this great enterprise. At the approaching session of the Dominion Parliament application will be made for an appropriation sufficient to cover the cost of survey and a report as to the expenditure approximately involved in giving Vancouver Island connection with the mainland by means of railway bridges.

The bridging of Seymour Narrows is advocated as a work of the first national importance and of great value on the ground that a saving of at least a day and a half would thereby be effected in the handling of the trade with the East. Not only would there be a saving in time, but the and smoke in the tortuous water ways which Pacific shipping now must thread to reach a mainland port would be avoided.

For the purpose of imparting to every male person of the rising generation of Canadians a rudimentary military training and thoroughly instructing him in the use of the rifle, Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, has about perfected his scheme for giving a physical training to the youths at the schools and colleges of Canada, and for teaching those over 14 years how to shoot.

A LOCAL WEDDING

Miss L. O. White Weds and Will Reside, as Mrs. Jackson, in Manitoba

A very pretty ceremony was that of the marriage yesterday afternoon, of Miss Lillian O. White, daughter of Mr. John M. White, 95 Aylmer street, to Mr. T. H. Jackson of Hartney, Man.

The ceremony which was performed in the beautifully floral decorated drawing room, was witnessed by about thirty guests, including severa, friends from distant points.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Torrance, assisted by Rev. W. M. Mackay. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Mabel Louisa White, and Mr. Manson Comstock performed the duties of groomsman. The bride looked very pretty in a costume of Japanese taffeta silk trimmed with real lace, made with berthe and sleeves of lace. She carried a bouquet of cream roses. The bridesmaid's costume was similar to that of the bride. She carried pink roses. Mendelssohn's wedding march was very efficiently rendered by Miss Florence Butcher.

After the usual wedding breakfast had been enjoyed by the assemblage, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson left on the 5.10 train for western points. The wedding tour will include Goderich, St. Catharines, Wingham and several other places.

The happy couple will, previous to going to their home in Hartney, Man., spend about two weeks in this city. The bride's going away gown was of broadcloth, with seal furs and hat to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst and necklace of pearls, and to the bridesmaid a pearl ring.

CENTENARIAN DEAD

Yesterday morning, an old lady who has seen the summers and winters of more than a decade over the century mark, Mrs. Wm. Badge, lay still in her last sleep at the Protestant Home, having died there on Tuesday.

The deceased had reached the venerable age of 111 years. Mr. Badge, husband of the deceased for some time was engaged in blacksmithing at the village of Ida, and is well known by most of the surrounding farmers.

Mrs. Badge was born in England, and was married in that country. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

MR. KENDRY APPOINTED

New License Commissioners Appointed—Mr. Graham Resigns

The Ontario Government has made a wise selection in their new slate of license commissioners for West Peterboro, in selecting Mr. James Kendry, vice Mr. Jonathan Graham, of Lakefield, resigned. It is expected that the new Board comprised of Messrs. Dr. Morrison, H. LeBrun, and Jas. Kendry, will be gazetted this week.

The appointment of Mr. Kendry is a good one, he being a man of broad mind and sound judgment, and will materially add to the strength and efficiency of the Board, the administration of which, during the past year, has been all that could be desired. The re-appointment of Messrs. Morrison and LeBrun will give general satisfaction. The reappointed commissioners will hold a meeting in a few days to organize for the year.

A GOOD THING

When It Comes Along Don't let It Get Away From You

"I really feel that it is hardly possible to say too much in favor of Grape-Nuts as a health food," writes a Chicago woman:

"For 9 or 10 years I had suffered from indigestion and chronic constipation, caused by the continued use of coffee and rich, heavy, greasy foods. My ailments made my life so wretched that I was eager to try anything that held out a promise of help. And that is how I happened to buy a package of Grape-Nuts food last spring.

"That ended my experiments. For on Grape-Nuts I found exactly what I wanted and needed. From the day I began to use it I noticed an improvement and in a very few weeks I found my health completely restored. My digestive apparatus now works perfectly and my chronic constipation has been entirely relieved. I have gained in weight materially, and life is a very pleasant thing to me so long as I use Grape-Nuts once or twice a day. I have found by experiment that if I leave it off for a few days my health suffers.

"A physician in our town has great success in treating stomach troubles, and the secret of it is that he compels his patients to use Grape-Nuts food—it always brings back the power of digestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Lytellton Goes Down In the Political Storm

Mr. Chamberlain's Successor as Colonial Secretary Shares the Same Fate as His Premier Did in Manchester.

London, Jan. 17.—An unbroken series of twenty-two gains, including the triumph of Mr. John Burns and the defeat of Mr. Alfred Lyttelton, the former Secretary for the Colonies was Tuesday's contributions to the polls. Fifty-one seats were decided. At the start 43 were held by Conservatives; at the finish only 21 remained in the fold. Of the residue 14 were captured by the Liberals and 8 by the Labor party. Seats held for twenty years by the Conservatives by large majorities changed their allegiance and democratic Labor men displaced knights and aristocrats. Thus the varying sentiments merged into a gain to date of 63 to the Liberals and 23 to Labor, as against, the loss of only one.

As less than half the total seats have yet been decided, it seems not improbable that the Liberals will have a majority even over the Labor, as well as the Irish.

In striking contrast to the fate of the ex-ministers, John Burns, after a hard fight, increased his majority in Battersea from 254 to 1,600. Mr. Benn, his opponent, was formerly in the lumber business in Canada. The Socialists worked actively against Mr. Burns, alleging he had been faithless to the cause by accepting office.

STOP SALVATION STREET SERVICES

Montreal to Prohibit Prayer Meetings on Street Corners

ALLEGED TO BE NUISANCE

Mr. J. E. C. Bumbray Announces He Will Shortly Take Action for the Purpose

Montreal, January 18. — Proceedings will shortly be taken by Mr. J. E. C. Bumbray, advocate, against the Salvation Army to prohibit the holding of services on the streets, on the grounds that such services constitute a public nuisance.

This is the result of the trouble in St. Louis de Mile End recently, and of the prosecution and conviction of Pierre Gauthier on a charge of disturbing a religious meeting. Mr. Bumbray defended the case, and some of his clients do not propose to let the matter drop. In the proceedings he will institute, Mr. Bumbray will act on behalf of a number of citizens whom he says have lodged formal complaints against the street services held by the Salvation Army.

"I have about fifty complaints, all of them reputable people, who say that they have been disturbed and inconvenienced by the street corner services of the Salvation Army," he said this morning. "For example, the Salvation Army held services regularly at the corner of McGill College avenue and St. Catharine street. Sometimes the sidewalk is blocked to pedestrians as a result, and frequently vehicles cannot pass on the street. Residents of the neighborhood have complained of this state of things, I, or they, have nothing against the Salvation Army; they do a good work in certain directions, but when their services disturb the public peace or create a public nuisance, they must be stopped."

WHAT BRIGADIER TURNER SAYS.

Brigadier Turner, Provincial Officer of the Salvation Army for the Province of Quebec, states that he has received no intimation whatever of the Army being prohibited from holding meetings and making use of their band for religious services. "There was some talk of it in the town of St. Louis at the time the disturbances took place there, but we have heard nothing further regarding the matter," was the only comment he would make, when informed of the latest move.

A LOCAL ROMANCE

Mr. Thaxton Brown Said to be Interested in Large English Estate

What may be a stranger romance than contained in many a sensational novel is now located in our city.

It was generally rumored about the streets and market yesterday that Mr. Thaxton Brown of Albert street, is heir to a large and valuable property in England.

It seems that a lady now living in Toronto, who recently immigranted from England, some time ago, decided, when housecleaning, to give her pictures an overhauling. One of her pictures, the lady had purchased at auction in the old country. As she was going through that process, so dear to the female mind, and so accursed by all male relations of the operator, called "housecleaning," and was washing off her pictures, one of those she had got in England, as noted, passed through her hands. As she performed the usual agonizing process on this particular picture, from the paper cover at the back of the frame, out dropped an ancient and much mildewed document. She, of course picked up and unfolded the document. To her surprise, the paper in question was a will, made many years ago, by a gentleman, by name of Brown, who lived in England. Knowing this document to be of possible value to someone, the lady took it to her lawyers.

The outcome of the matter is, that from incidentals connected with the wording of this will, the Toronto lawyers entered into communication with parties in this city.

It seems that Mr. Thaxton Brown, living on Albert street, has taken the matter up, and, it was yesterday remarked that within a few days, his son-in-law, Mr. Garside, will leave for England to investigate the matter of the future.

YESTERDAY'S RACES

Large Crowds Took in the Lindsay Races

Yesterday the Lindsay races were concluded, and were carried out most successfully in every particular. The track was in splendid shape, the ponies made good time, the judges carried out their end in capital style, and a large attendance turned out to take in one of the most successful race meets Sougeoville has ever seen.

On the judges' stand were Mr. Smith, of the Buffalo Horseworld, Phil Davey of Toronto, and the proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, Ottawa.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Only one case was called at yesterday morning's police court. A crippled man, by name Thos. McDonald, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. Tom, who is perhaps thirty-five years of age, and whose feet are affected so that he walks as though his boots were full of rips, unboiled peas, had only got out of Castle Nesbitt, where he had bided a wee, for the same offence.

This morning another spitting-on-the-opera-house-floor will be tried.

The opera house authorities are, very properly, determined not to have this place of public amusement turned into a hog pen, by figthy tobacco laden saliva distributed so as to cause disease and soil garments.

George Valois, who last summer was fined $2 and costs for being drunk and disorderly, before the time was up given him to raise the simoleons, skipped by the light of the moon. He seems to have regretted this indiscretion on his return to Peterboro. And, on giving himself up, was given ten days on the bill.

WOMEN ON A SPREE.

Last night about ten o'clock two women, one of them well known locally, who has recently been a resident of a Toronto institution for females, created some excitement along George street. The women had partaken too freely, much too freely of the flowing bowl. One of them had a Gainsboro hat hanging to one ear, at an angle of about 45, and by her yells and chaos attracted a crowd of young men, who observed her crazy antics. P.C. Stewart arrested and brought to this station the women, who were creating the disturbance. They will appear before the P.M. this morning.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Miss Ada May McBain Becomes the Bride of Mr. G. H. Thompson

Yesterday afternoon a very interesting ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. J. J. McBain, 304 King street, when Rev. M. J. Abbrey, of Oshawa, and formerly of this city, united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Miss Ada May, Mr. McBain's only daughter, and Mr. George Henry Thompson, of the Toronto Savings & Loan Co.

Miss Eva Bradd played the wedding march with good effect.

The bride as she came into the rose and palm decorated drawing room where the ceremony was performed, looked charming in her costume of white crepe de chene over taffeta, made in princess style and tulle veil. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Cox, who was costumed in white Brussels net, trimmed with medallions and lace, made in princess style. The groom was supported by Mr. H. B. Edmison.

Many guests, among the large assemblage present, came from Montreal, Toronto, and other distant points.

On conclusion of the ceremony, a recherche dejeuner was served, after which the happy couple left on the 5.15 train for points west. The bride's going-away gown was of Tuscan plaid, with mink furs and toque.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl pendant necklace, to the bridesmaid, a signet ring, to the groomsman a gold fob, to Miss Bradd a gold pin set with pearls, and to the ribbon bearers handsome gold pins.

On their return from their wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in their handsome new home on Hunter street.

Ferrozone feeds the nerves and vital energies, supplies force, determination and joyous, buoyant spirits.

A case where there was lassitude and lack of strength is told by Mr. David Brown, of post-office box No. 30, Beaton, Ont.: "About a year ago my health commenced to fail. My hands and feet seemed always cold. I felt worn-out and exhausted, weak as a little child. My face twitched. My limbs and arms commenced to lose their sense of feeling and finally my left side was perfectly numb. All my color left. My appetite ran down. Ferrozone was the first to give me any help. ENGLAND'S INDUSTRIAL CRISIS.

England is making a last stand in defense of the remaining vestige of feudalism. That large and utterly unproductive class of individuals composing the aristocracy is now face to face with the most serious problem it has known for many decades. London is filled to overflowing with the starving unemployed who are daily growing more desperate. Already demonstrations have been made in the fashionable West end, where wealth and luxury abound, and the cry of the submerged millions is for work.

It is charged that the distress now abounding in London among unemployed workingmen is the result of the overcrowding" of an already exhausted country. The workingmen say they would be able to support themselves and their families if they were permitted to cultivate some of the vast tracts held by the aristocracy as private landed estates. All over England most of the tillable land is part of great parks and private shooting preserves and therefore unproductive. Millions of acres are thus denied the poor who could profitably work them. The aristocracy will not give up these heritages which by law of primogeniture are kept intact. The nobility demands these estates as special privileges, but at the same time will not cultivate them or give employment to the poor in making them profitable.

Recently an interesting experiment was launched in London. A philanthropist who is endeavoring to solve the problem of the unemployed has given $150,000 to General Booth, of the Salvation Army, to establish a rural colonization scheme. It is proposed to buy land and divide it into five-acre tracts which will be given to settlers. Money will be advanced for comfortable houses and food for these settlers until such a time as they have become self-supporting, when, through a settlers will pay back what has been system of easy installments, the settlers will pay back what has been advanced and this money will, in turn, be used for the benefit of other colonists. The scheme appears feasible, although it has not been carried out to the point of actual demonstration.

In most of our great centers of urban life the cry is back to the land. Here in America there are great stretches of virgin soil waiting for the cultivator. For some unaccountable reason the majority of those who suffer privations in our cities prefer to keep on suffering rather than go to the country where they are needed. There is room for millions of men in the farming districts of this country, yet the means not to be had. After these millions have been absorbed there are great states and territories of the Union where land may be secured almost for the asking. This is the solution of the problem of the unemployed and England is finding it out.

GRAFT OF WAR.

A depressing instance of the universality of corruption in Russia official circles comes from Port Arthur. When General Nogi captured the place he demanded an investory of all the public stores, which was furnished by Stoessel. Almost immediately discrepancies in the accounts began to appear. While it had been reported to the Czar that there was not a ton of coal for the ships at Port Arthur to make another sortie, there was found 8150,000 tons of good Cardiff coal on hand. The explanation is that whenever a ship emerged from Port Arthur she was reported as having taken on from one to two thousand tons more coal than she actually carried. Whenever a sufficient graft fund had been accumulated by these false reports, the surplus was sold to dealers, and by them resold to the government.

This seems bad enough even in Russia, but when it is known that the same thing was done in South Africa by British officers and made the subject of a searching inquiry by a royal commission, one may realize to what depths men may fall who are engaged in what is known as the honorable profession. War produces its scoundrels as well as its heroes. The financial operations of a great war are a good deal like running a current of electricity through a wire. It is not expected that the full current will be obtained in power. The owners are satisfied to receive a percentage of its value and to wait for some discovery of science which will save the rest. It is the same in war. Until some miraculous discovery in bookkeeping and accounting is made, nations do not expect to get away from the graft element in war.

FAKING ANIMAL HORNS.

Methods Adopted by Dealers to Fool the Unwary.

It is not strange that the desire for the horns and heads of great game animals should at times be catered to by the American fakir, whom, like the poor of holy writ, we have with us always. But fortunately for honest people the "faking" of horns is in most cases impossible. It is decidedly risky to the party of the first part and almost certain to be found out. Two young taxidermists of my acquaintance once came to grief by a clumsy and foolish attempt at grafting one pair of elk antlers upon another to secure great length of beam. Faked "death lock" antlers are becoming so common that no collector need be without a pair. Whenever a pair is offered you for inspection note whether or not the opposing antlers have rubbed each other at their points of contact. If they have not, then the antlers were interlocked by the interposition of hot water and wooden wedges.

It is becoming rather common for Ovis poli horns from Tibet to be mounted by using "scalps" of the white sheep of Alaska. This is so cheap a fraud it is a wonder that any man will through it deliberately threw away his reputation. And yet one case of that kind occurred in Chicago, and quite recently another broke out in Colorado.

The drollest of all faked horns, however, appeared in a New York magazine about four years ago. An enterprising assisting subeditor, having more ink than experience, decided he would make up an article about "Big Game Hunting With a Camera." So he obtained a nom de plume, a lot of animal photographs taken in the New York and Washington zoological parks, some ink, pens and paper, mixed them thoroughly and made an article. It was an unqualified thriller, and the climax came to his adventures borne on the horns of a female white tailed deer. He related that after several daily pettings of the fawn of the aforesaid doe, while she was gadding about making calls, she suddenly returned to her fiat, caught him unawares, charged him repeatedly, smashed his (imaginary) cameras and in her final charge missed him and buried her horns in a tree!—"Heads and Horns," by W. T. Hornaday, in Scribner's.

Lavish Loubet.

President Loubet on his visit to Spain made presents to an almost oriental extent. Not a member of the Spanish royal family, from queen mother to the youngest infant in arms, and not a person of any standing at court was forgotten. There was even a costly present for the municipality of Madrid. This last and that to the queen mother were superb. For her majesty the president brought a table service of the choicest Sevres, including forty-eight figures representing the different dances. This service resembles one which adorns the table of the Elysee on rare state occasions of the first magnitude. The gift to the municipality is a colossal Sevres vase of perfect workmanship. It stands fifty-eight inches high and is ornamented at the sides with highly effective bronze work.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, loosness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 6 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of my disease have since appeared. My boys, three years old, are sound and healthy. I cheerfully can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial if you wish." The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

I knelt beside her, and having opened the little child's mouth, poured into it a few drops of the precious spirit. We then set to work and chafed her hands as briskly as possible, and in a few minutes were rewarded by seeing the little eyes open and look about her.

"Thank God," said Miss Maybourne, devoutly. "Oh, Esther darling, do you know me? Do you remember Aggie?"

To show that she understood what was said to her, the little one extended her hand and placed it in that of her friend. The action was so full of trust and confidence that it brought the tears to my eyes.

"How do you feel now, darling?" asked her friend, as she lifted the little sufferer into a more comfortable position.

"A pain here," faltered Esther, placing her hand on the side of her head. Then looking round the cave as if in search of someone, she said, "Miss Maybourne, where is mother?"

At this point my pluck forsook me altogether, and seizing the fish for which I had come, I dashed from the cave without waiting to hear what answer the brave girl would give her. When she joined me, ten minutes later, large tears were running down her cheeks. She made no attempt to hide them from me, but came across to where I knelt by the fire, and said, in a choking voice:

"I have been preparing that poor child for the sad news she must soon hear, and I cannot tell you how miserable it has made me. Do you really think in your own heart that we are the only people who escaped from that ill-fated vessel? Isn't it just possible that some other boat may have been lowered, and that the child's mother may be among those who got away in her? Tell me exactly what you think, without hiding anything from me, I implore you."

"Of course it may be just possible, as you say, that a boat did get away; but I must confess that I think it is most unlikely. Had such a thing occurred, we should have been almost certain to have seen her, and in that case we should have been able to attract her attention, and she would have picked us up No, Miss Maybourne. I wish I could comfort you with such an assurance; but I fear it would be cruel to buoy you up with any false hopes, only to have them more cruelly shattered later on. I'm afraid we must accustom ourselves to the awful thought that the Fiji Princess and all her company, with the exception of ourselves, have met a watery grave. Why I should have been saved when so many worthier people perished I cannot imagine."

"To save us, Mr. Wrexford," she answered. "Think what you are saying, and remember that but for you we should not be here now."

"I thank God, then, for the opportunity He gave me," I answered; and what I said I meant from the very bottom of my heart.

Whatever she may have thought of my speech, she vouchsafed no reply to it; but on looking up a moment later, I discovered that her face was suffused with a beautiful blush that was more eloquent than any words. After that I turned my attention to the meal which I was preparing, and gave her time to recover herself a little.

Having no pot in which to cook the fish, I had to use the largest of the shells I had discovered. These did not prove altogether a good substitute, but as they were all I had got, I had to make the best of them or go without.

When the mussels were sufficiently done, I lifted them off the fire and invited my companion to taste the dish. She did so, and the grimace which followed told me that she was not overpleased at the result. I followed her example, and felt obliged to confess that they made but poor fare to support life upon.

"If we cannot get something better, I don't know what we shall do," she cried. "These things are too horrible."

"Perhaps I may be able to hit upon a way of catching some fish," I said; "or it is just possible I may be able to get a trap and catch some birds. There is no knowing what I may not be able to do with a little practice. In the meantime, you must endeavor to swallow as much of this mess as possible, and try to get the little one in the cave there to do the same."

Putting some of the fish into another shell, I gave it to her, and she carried it off to her sick friend. After I had scraped and washed it carefully, I filled a larger shell with pure water from the pool and gave it to them to drink. When they had finished their meal—and it was not much that they ate—I called Miss Maybourne outside and informed her that I was going to build up a large fire, after which I should set off on a tramp round the island to see if I could discover anything better to eat. While I was away, I advised her to dry her own and the child's things by the blaze, for though we had been some time under the influence of the hot sun, still our garments could not be said to be anything like dry. She promised to do as I wished, and when I had piled what remained of my heap of fuel upon the fire I made my way down to the shore, and then set off for a tramp round the island.

My first call was at the group of rocks from which I had gathered the shellfish of which my companion had so strongly disapproved. I wanted to see if I could discover a place where it would be possible for me to construct some sort of a trap for fish. But though I searched diligently, nothing suitable could I find. At last I had to give it up in despair, and set my brain to work on another plan for stocking my larder. That fish were plentiful I could see by looking over the edges of the rocks, but how I was to capture them was by no means so plain. I think at that moment I would have given a year of my life for the worst hook and line I had used as a boy among the sticklebacks of Polton Penna.

Leaving the rocks behind me, I turned the point and made for the brow of a low hill that overlooked the sea on the further side. I had noticed that the sea birds gathered here in greater numbers than elsewhere, and when I reached this hill to my delight, I found the ground literally covered with nests. Indeed, it was a matter of some difficulty to move without treading upon the eggs. My delight can scarcely be overestimated, for here was a new food supply, and one that, while it would be unlikely to give out for some weeks to come, would be infinitely preferable to the wretched limpets upon which we had almost made up our minds we should have to subsist. I hastened to fill my handkerchief and pockets with the spoil, and when I could stuff in no more, continued my walk in a much easier, and consequently more thankful, frame of mind.

As I tramped along, glancing over and anon at the sea, the sordid details of my past life rose before me. When I considered I felt almost staggered by the change that had come over me. It seemed scarcely possible that so short a time could have passed since I had plotted against Bartrand and had been so miserable in London In my present state of usefulness, I felt as if centuries had elapsed since then, instead of barely a couple of weeks, as was really the case. I wondered what would be said in England when the news got into the papers, as I supposed it inevitably must, that I had found a watery grave in the ill-fated Fiji Princess. Would there be anyone to regret me? I very much doubted it. One hope occurred to me. Perhaps, under cover of the supposition that I was dead, I might manage to outwit the law after all and then an opportunity would be afforded me of beginning a new life in a strange land—the land that was the home of Agnes Maybourne.

Gold Mining Company

One of the most promising propositions ever placed before the Canadian investors.

The Company's Offer to Discriminating Investors.

The management is assured that $15,000 will be sufficient to complete the improvements necessary to place the mine on a substantial producing and dividend paying basis. Therefore the directorate has authorized the sale of 15,000 shares of the capital stock at par. The improvements under way include the construction of a mill and concentrating plant, boarding and bunk houses for the miners employed and the installation of machinery required for the testment of the output of the mine. With dividends assured and a certainty of a sharp advance in the price of this security it is stated with emphasis that no more attractive opportunity for investments could be placed before the public. Custer, Idaho, November 16, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Ozarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 15th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings; originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,197.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OZARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings also we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,250.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Ozarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

W. E. FLODING, Vice-President Ozarna Mining Company, Delphos, Ohio, U. S. A.

Family bills to pay.
Mother rushes counters,
So does Sister Ann;
Everybody shops at our house

BREATHE HEALING BALSAMS

Hyomei, the Medicated-Air Catarrh Cure, Endorsed by Physicians

No one should confound Hyomei with the patent medicines that are advertised to cure catarrh. It is as superior to them all as the diamond is more valuable than cheap glass. Their composition is secret, but Hyomei gives its formula to all reputable physicians.

Its base is the famous eucalyptus oil, well known for its antiseptic qualities. This is combined with aromatic and healing gums and balsams, making a pure liquid which, when used in the Hyomei pocket inhaler fills the air you breathe with germ killing disease destroying and healing powers that restore health to every part of the throat, nose and lungs.

Hyomei is endorsed by physicians generally. Many of them use it themselves to break up a cold and prevent pneumonia. It is the only natural and rational way of curing catarrh.

Would it be a common sense treatment to try and cure a corn by stomach dosing? Is it not just as foolish to try and cure catarrh of the head and throat by swallowing tablets or liquids? The only natural way to cure this disease and all diseases of the respiratory organs is to breathe Hyomei.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write today for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

An Enormous Record

The subscription receipts of the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal during December were thousands of dollars over all previous records. In fact, the rush of subscriptions was so great as to cripple for a time the largest staff of clerks they ever employed. The lovely picture, "Queen Alexandra. Her Grandchildren and Dogs," given as a premium, and the big value of the Family Herald itself, are responsible for the large increase, and it is said their farmers' book, "The Farmers' Manual and Veterinary Guide," has also won them over twenty thousand new subscribers. They are printing another edition of the book, and farmers who have not secured a copy should do so at once as it is of immense value to them. Samples of book and picture can be seen at this office. No such value has ever been offered in this country.

Hastings T. V. C. Meeting Postponed

Mr. Mason was to have addressed the meeting in reference to sending delegates from the Midland district to Ottawa, to urge the Government to get a move on towards completing the Trent Valley Canal system.

Yesterday Ald. Mason received a letter from Mr. Andrew Cameron, of Hastings, to the effect that owing to the short notice the public meeting which was to have taken place last night has been postponed for a few days in order that it might be more thoroughly advertised.

Cost of World Wide Patents

Some few weeks ago an employee of the Canadian General Electric Co., who claims to have discovered an important electrical improvement, concerning the particulars of which he is naturally reticent as yet, wrote a firm of patent brokers at Washington, enquiring the prices of patents in several specified countries, asking at the same time what it would cost to patent his invention all over the world. He found that to patent an invention all over the world costs $1,500, and it requires the taking out of no less than sixty-seven different patents.

Mr. Giles Buys Grocery Stock

Yesterday afternoon at public auction, Mr. John Giles, purchased the stock, trade, fixtures and book debts of the late Carlos S. Greene, grocer and barbadier, corner of Charlotte and Dawson streets. The stock and fixtures valued at $1,671.53, were purchased at 85c. on the dollar, and the book debts, amounting to $1,227.66 at 18c. on the dollar.

Birth

DAVEY—To Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Davey, 17 St. Joseph street, on Monday, Jan. 15th, a son.

PERSUADE AN OBSTINATE CASE rather than lash it into action if you want to see good progress made. This is as true when it is a faulty human system as when it is a healky mule.

Alcoholic stimulants and alcoholic medicines whip the digestive functions into quick action but do not prevent the weakening reaction which follows so closely.

In cases of impaired appetite and digestion—mal-nutrition and wasting away, a safe and reliable tonic is needed and is the only thing that can be relied upon.

Dr. Pierce discovered, forty years ago, that Nature had provided freely for these needs of her children and that in her laboratory were the remedies. Glycerin extracts of Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root, as compound, combined and preserved without alcohol, in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, constitute the most effective and certain tonic, alterative and tissue rebuilding remedy ever offered to the public.

A prominent merchant, Mr. J. Alfred Arcand, of 69 Saint Lawrence Street, Montreal, Canada, writes: "I have used Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery off and on for nine years. When I have a in the house I need no doctor or other medicine. Nine years ago I was troubled with rheumatism. I used 'Golden Medical Discovery' and eliminated the uric acid from the system. Since that time I have never been without it in the house. There is no other medicine I think so much of, nor none I think its equal. Every one to whom I recommended it is pleased with the results, and all thank me for advising its use. It is a splendid one for stomach troubles, cures colds in a few days, and is the only cure can I know of for 'La Grippe.'"

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

To the Canadian Investor

DORES-MONTGOMERY MINING COMPANY

OF BULLFROG, NEVADA

The undersigned is pleased to announce to the investors of Canada that he has been appointed Canadian Fiscal Agent of the above company, and is offering a limited amount of treasury stock at 25c. per share for development work. This property is just 1800 feet southwest of the famous Montgomery Shoshone mine and both have unquestionably the same vein. The group shows a well defined vein cropping out through and it is a perfect fissure. A six inch talc seam on the hanging wall gives high values. We have also several other ledges, and it is only a matter of development work to make this property equal to any producer in the section.

The management of the Montgomery Shoshone conservatively estimates that the winze has produced $200,000 worth of ore. If this is right, the ore from the winze has averaged about $675 a ton, or about $1330 for every foot of sinking, the winze being 4 x 7 in clear.

Ore from the winze running less than $250 is thrown over the dump as milling ore. No less than 150 tons of ore has been shipped from this mine, all of it coming from the winze. Another shipment of 70 tons or more will be made via Las Vegas in a few days.

The figures given above are stated at the extreme, but the measurements and ore values as quoted are official—direct from the management of the wonderful mine that is today astonishing the world.

This property is only 1800 feet from the Dores Montgomery Mine.

Splendid Victory For Chamberlain

Tariff Reform Leader Scored a Great Personal Triumph, but Liberals and Labor Gained Many Seats Elsewhere.

London, Jan. 19.—Mr. Chamberlain is still king in Birmingham. Not only did he carry his own seat by an increased majority at the elections yesterday, but his candidates swept the other seven divisions as well, by aggregate majorities of 30,000, after one of the stiffest fights in history. A solid Conservative Birmingham sends forth a ray of light into the darkness which otherwise continues to enshroud the party. A strenuous campaign was prosecuted in the west divisions by R. L. Outwaite, an Australian, prominent in Labor circles, but he succeeded in polling only 2,094 against 7,173 for Mr. Chamberlain. Thus the Tariff Reform leader has a majority of 5,079, compared with 4,275 in the last contest in 1895.

In two other divisions where the Liberals and the Labor party united the forecast was more hopeful, but the result shows a majority for Sir Benjamin Stone, though reduced from 2,154 to 585 by J. Holmes, the Labor candidate. In Bordesley Jesse Collins retains his majority almost intact after an attack by J. Bruce Glasier, also a Labor candidate. In the north division the Unionist majority for J. T. Middlemore was increased by over 500.

LIBERALS CARRY LONDON.

Otherwise the tide against the Conservatives showed little abatement. They scored one more gain by winning Maidstone, but lost twelve twelves seats in London and ten in the boroughs.

The London returns are almost complete. Out of 59 seats the Liberals carry 36, in 1900 they carried eight. The Labor party carried four. In North Cumberland Mr. McNamara, a Canadian by birth, was again successful, increasing his previous majority of 1,336 to 2,817. A curious contest was waged in North Paddington, where Sir Henry Burdett ran as an independent Conservative, because neither of the straight party candidates was British born. He got 817 votes.

Two more Minister are returned. The Postmaster-General, Mr. Sydney Buxton, doubled his majority in Poplar.

CONAN DOYLE BEATEN.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle failed to defeat Mr. Thomas Shaw, the Lord Advocate of Scotland, in the Hawick Burghs.

Mr. Hanmkor Heaton carried Tariff Reform to success at Canterbury.

Labor candidates did not do so well; although polling big votes. They held their own in two ridings, and gained one. Aside from their defeats at Birmingham, the Labor candidates came third at Portsmouth, with 8,-111 votes, and at Wakefield were second with 2,086, there being a Liberal in the field in a three-cornered fight. At Witan the Labor candidate also ran second, scouring 2,205 votes.

CONSERVATIVES ARE THING.

What looks like the beginning of a boom to make Mr. Chamberlain leader of the Conservatives has been started by the Morning Post. It says, "Birmingham has begun the work of reconstruction of the party," and refers to Mr. Chamberlain as "the greatest of living statesmen." While no direct mention is made of Mr. Balfour it declares that the Birmingham result will bring regrets.

ORILLIA VICTORIOUS

Local Curlers Defeated Yesterday by Twenty-Four Points

Yesterday was a red-letter day in curling annals of Orillia and marked by sombre funerial shades on the local records.

Four of our local rinks in the morning went to Orillia. On arrival there they were met by the Orillia Knights of the broom, and used, to borrow a slang expression "whitie." Their hosts of that pretty town took entire possession of the Peterboro visitors, driving them to and from the rink and Orillia House. The local curlers were guests of their Orillia competitors for the Sheppard-Neill trophy, and entertained at the above hotel to a sumptuous banquet.

The ice at Orillia was not as good as it might have been, and the rink is considerably smaller than the Charlotte street home of the sturdy broom and lung users.

The score, by rinks, and indicated by names of the Peterboro skips, were as follows;

AT ORILLIA.

Rutherford	13—11
Ferguson	16—15
Matthews	17—25
Morrow	10—27
	56—68

Total for Orillia 12

The Peterboro players arrived home by the nine o'clock G.T.R. train, and although beaten, report having had a most enjoyable trip.

AT PETERBORO.

Four rinks, who arrived from Orillia yesterday morning, played on the old Old Charlotte street rink against four rinks of the locals. The Orillia players who spoke in very kindly terms of the Peterboro rink and ice, were entertained by their local confreres to a fine dinner at the National Hotel, and to refreshments at the upstairs parlors of the rink.

As it was in Orillia, so it was in Peterboro. The men from the town that nestles so fondly on the picturesque shores of Lake Couchiching, were too much for the Peterboro curlers. The score by rinks, and skips specified was as follows;

Brown	14—14
Connal	19—21
Giroux	15—17
Clegg	10—16

Total, Peterboro 58, Ogilvie 70; giving the visitors a gain of 12 points. This makes Orillia holders of the trophy until next year at least. The score in the trophy now stands, Peterboro 1, Orillia 2.

AFTERNOON COURT

Long before the clock struck four a large crowd had gathered round the entrance leading to the police court. These curious citizens, however, were disappointed, as Chief Rossel announced, in no uncertain terms, that the coming trial of Louisa Howell would be in private. The crowd then dispersed to various resorts where wet goods are dispensed.

Shortly after four o'clock the prisoner faced the bar of justice.

P.C. Stewart, the only witness, saw the prisoner on George street about nine o'clock, when he advised her to go home. About ten o'clock P.C. Adams told him she had gone round the Market square. He went down to the market platform, and found her when she spoke concerning the inmates of her house whilst she was in the Mercer Reformatory.

The prisoner explained that she had come back here to "fix her affairs up, and leave town." She complained that a plate glass window had been broken in her house the night of a fire at the school house, and that the police had taken no action. The magistrate sympathized with her in this, but said he was only dealing with a charge against her of being drunk. He imposed a fine of $2 and costs. Mrs. Howell gave a cheque on the Bank of Toronto in payment of the amount and left.

ATHLETIC WORLD

HOCKEY.

The two city league games played at the Brock street rink last night were fast and exciting, the quality of hockey supplied surpassing the expectations of the most sanguine advocates of the league. Two more closely contested games than those furnished by these team have not been witnessed for some time.

In the first game the Charlotte street sprung seven sprung a big surprise on the local fans by defeating the High Lifers, who were picked by many to land the trophy. The score in this game was 2—1.

The Bankers and Suicides played a tie game, 0—0. The work the goal tenders on these two teams put up was of the star variety. Many a shot that appeared billed for the lace curtains, were handled with remarkable skill by the guardians of the nets.

About 300 people were in attendance. Mr. W. Parnell handled the whistle in both games, and his work was satisfactory for both teams and the spectators as well.

Following was the line-up of the teams.

THE TURF.

Things are looking as though the Peterboro races are going to be beyond the limit. Yesterday Messrs. Geo. Powell and James Powell, the well-known Orillia horsemen arrived at noon. There also arrived yesterday the well-known horses, Minnie Bell, Orillia Belle and Cleopatra, all of which have made good records at Lindsay, Orillia and other places.

• • • •

And still the railroad cars continue to bring in ponies who will stretch to bring in ponies who will stretch neck and muscle after the goodly purses held up for Peterboro's winter races. In addition to other horses horses mentioned elsewhere are now here for the races, yesterday Mr. R. J. Munro's flyers Little Jap and Kilpelled and Mr. Lipsett's Miss Paisley yesterday arrived and are now in stable and training for the local races.

Hal Patron and Lady Gothard, the latter belonging to Mr. Martin Connors, yesterday passed through the city en route to Picton for the races there which clash, as far as dates are concerned with the local races.

That the local races will be the most successful winter speeding ever seen in Peterboro is already assured. All the horses, with few exceptions, that have raced in Port Perry and Lindsay, are now booked for the local equestrian tournament.

• • •

The railroads running into Peterboro, have now announced that they will issue return tickets to Peterboro, within a distance of 200 miles, including Toronto and Belleville, where such single fare is less than 2.50.

The horses that enter here will, after the races be shipped to Belleville and Ottawa races.

• • • •

Mr. Harry Nesbitt of this city purchased on Wednesday, the bay colt, formerly owned and driven by Mr. H McMahon, of Rearboro, Ont., which won second money in the 2.30 class at Lindsay. It is interesting to know that the colt will be here in time to start in the Peterboro winter races. It is understood that the price paid was about $400, which is good value.

• • • •

It might be noted that Mr. Nesbitt's purchase is a great horse, and was entered by the owner in the 2.50 class race the day previous. On coming to the track on Tuesday something went wrong with the harness and the race was put off with the colt as a contestant, though Mr. McMahon paid the entry fee.

A PROSPEROUS BANK

Wonderful Record Made by Bank of Nova Scotia Last Year

Canada's recent and rapid advancement in wealth and prosperity is not one well illustrated by her numerous and strong banks, but is largely due to the assistance lent by these finan financial institutions, to all classes of the commercial and industrial world.

Among Canada's strongest and most successful banks, taking an enviable position for strength and rapidly increasing business, is the Bank o. Nova Scotia, incorporated in 1832.

Those desiring a lucrative investment in safe stocks or a good medium for deposit in financial transactions, should read the report of the last annual meeting of this bank, given in another column.

SLUGGISH DEPRESSION

Proper Food Removes It.

"Before using Postum Food Coffee my wife and I were prejudiced against it," writes an Iowa man, "but now we would not be induced to give it up.

"My wife was suffering from various nervous ailments, and was especially afflicted with black spots before the eyes, with an accompanying feeling of faintness. These spells grew in frequency and at last we came to suspect that possibly coffee was the cause of them.

"We therefore determined to give up the old coffee and use Postum for awhile, to see if it would help her. The result was more than satisfactory. In a very short time, only long enough to get the coffee poison out of her system, and give the Postum a chance to build up her strength, she began and continued to improve rapidly. Several weeks have elapsed since she has had an attack of blind spells or faintness, and her other nervous troubles have disappeared.

"I have been greatly troubled from a sluggish feeling of depression that made me very miserable, and when I saw how Postum had helped the wife, I determined to see what it would do for me. So I quit the old kind of coffee and began the use of Postum, and from that day to this have been entirely free from the old depression, sluggishness and despondency.

"Our little 5-year old daughter had grown quite cross and peevish, and we put her, also, on the Postum diet. It has made such a change in her that the teacher of the school which she attends remarked upon it without knowing the cause till we told her.

"We have all been made brighter and stronger, mentally and physically, and life seems actually worth living, since we quit coffee and began to drink Postum Food Coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

I. O. O. F. OFFICERS

Last Night Officers of Otonabee and Peterboro Lodges Installed

Last night the local brethren of the Independent Order of Oddfellows gathered in great numbers in the I.O.O.F. Lodge room to participate in and enjoy that impressive ceremony, the installation of officers of the respective lodges.

As is known to the older brethren of the Order, some years ago there used to be almost a friction between these two lodges and their members. Now however, this spirit, the passing of excessive emulation has, in consonance with the motto of the order, F.L.T., been completely omitted and forgotten.

The officers for the ensuing term of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and Peterboro Lodge No. 111 were conjointly installed by D.D.G.M. Warde Patterson, of Havelock, assisted by P.G.'s J. W. Miller, F. Wise, R. J. Matchett, of Otonabee Lodge and A. A. Fowler and McW. Matchett, of Peterboro Lodge. The following is the list;

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

With their proverbial fairness, the Lindsay Race Committee offered to let the colt start in any other race to even up the entry fee charge. Wellington elected to go in the 2.30 class, putting the colt up against such good ones as "Gladstone" and a field of six other live ones.

To the astonishment of the spectators the colt cleaned the field, chasing the winner, in three straight heats, and taking second in each heat.

OLYMPIAN GAMES.

It has definitely been decided by Hamilton, Ont., athletes to send two athletes of that city to participate in the Olympian games, held in Athens, Greece, next April.

The matter was thoroughly gone into and it was decided to send two men, a long distance runner and a sprinter, and a trainer to look after them, providing the necessary funds could be raised.

After a long discussion it was decided to send Bobby Kerry, a very fast sprinter, and W. Sherring. Sherring's specialty will be in the 40 kilometer race (about 25 miles).

It will take from $1,500 to $2,000 to pay for these two men and a trainer who will accompany them.

A committee, including Mayor Biggar, A. Zimmerman, M.P., and others to discuss the ways and means of sending these athletes from the Ambitious city.

At an early date subscription lists will be placed in all of the largest offices, factories and workshops and subscriptions of five cents and upwards will be gladly received. The trainer has not yet been named.

NEW REGALIA

Local Lodges I. O. O. F. Combine to Get Splendid Regalia

Late or Wednesday night, Col. Miller and other prominent members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of Peterboro, were, by courtesy of the local customs staff, busy at the customs house passing through a large consignment of regalia, used in conferring initiation and degrees in the Order.

The new regalia ordered by Peterboro and Otonabee Lodges I.O.O.F., is exceedingly handsome. It was obtained from the Henderson-Ames Regalia Company, of Kalamazoo, Michigan, and cost in the vicinity of $1,000. Some more paraphernalia is being obtained from a Toronto firm, but it has not yet arrived. The new regalia will soon be donned by those superbing that acrobatic performance known as "Riding the goat."

HEALTH FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Emma Daigle of Moncton N B., Sends an open Letter to All Sufferers.

Most women are tired when they wake up. Housework drags along with great difficulty. Nervousness is always present, headaches seldom depart, tears are ever ready to flow.

But there is a cure, a true specific for women's ills that restored a prominent lady in Moncton, Mrs. Daigle, who tells the following experience:

"About a year ago I had a serious sickness, sort of a general breakdown. My digestion failed entirely and I was able to eat but very little. I took violent stomach pains and suffered terribly from headaches. My doctor said it was "nerve exhaustion" and I might never be well. My troubles increased, for as I grew weaker I became subject to neuralgia and rheumatism. Sleep finally forsook me and I almost lost heart. Different medicines didn't help. Doctors couldn't do me any good. I was desperate when I heard of Ferrozone. The first box convinced me it was just what I needed. It toned up my stomach, gave me a splendid appetite and then my recovery seemed easier. Ferrozone increased my weight several pounds, has restored my nerves, given me a good color and strength such as I never had before. For the weak and sickly I can truthfully recommend Ferrozone." (Signed) Emma Daigle.

REMEMBER: No mere stimulant or alcoholic concoction can take the place of this nerve and blood nourishment contained in Ferrozone. This true tonic always does what is claimed for it. Sold everywhere in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

PETERBORO, JANUARY 19 1906

ONTARIO FINANCES

Ontario provincial finances are in a most flourishing condition, and the Government can congratulate itself on the fact that its first year in office will show such a balance on the right side of the ledger. The total revenue for the Province this year if estimated at $6,128,000, which is about the same as in 1904, but in that year, $1,064,000 was derived from timber sales, while in 1905 only $520,000 was received from this item. There has been a large increase in the receipts in the Crown Lands Department, while increases are also shown in the succession duties, Provincial Secretary's Department, and in nearly every branch of the service. The Temiskaming Railway is proving a profitable concern in the divisions that are operated, and seems to show that a Government owned railway can be made to pay. The road is managed by a Commission of three gentlemen appointed by the Government, and with the great development going on in New Ontario it is proving a wonderful help to settlers, miners, and prospectors, and all interested in that new country.

CANADA IN THE CAMPAIGN

However the elections in Great Britain may turn out they are certainly giving Canada some very good advertising. More is being learned about the resources and capabilities of this country than the old world ever knew. In asking the people to vote for a great Colonial Empire, the advocates of preferential tariff tell Britons what manner of countries own allegiance to Briton's King. Canada, as the greatest of the colonies, is being "read up," and "talked up," as she never was before.

The London Globe, incidentally answering the fears of the "free-fooders," says:

"Those prophets of evil who from time to time solace their minds with predictions of soil-exhaustion in Western Canada will hardly care to put Manitoba in the witness box. The black earth of that great agricultural province not only retains its wonderful fertility, but seems to grow richer the more it is cropped. The local yield of wheat this year aggregates nearly sixty million bushels of prime quality, being, we believe, an unprecedented production. But some extensive outlying areas have still to be brought under the plough, the tide of immigration having been largely diverted to Alberta and Saskatchewan, where equally good land fetches lower prices. When the three provinces are fully developed and adequately furnished with railway transportation, they should by themselves produce sufficient food-grains to make good the British export deficiency."

MAKING A MAN

Popular Lecture by Rev. Mr. Pedley of Toronto on January 26th

It will interest those of our readers who like interesting, amusing and clever lectures, and particularly those, who have already head, Rev. Mr. Pedley of Toronto, in his lecture entitled "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," to learn that the eloquent speaker will once more address a Peterboro audience.

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band of St. Paul's church, have secured Rev. Mr Pedley for Friday evening, January 26th. This well-known lecturer will at eight o'clock that evening, in St. Paul's church Sunday school, deliver his celebrated lecture, "Making of a Man."

Studying Greek in Boston.

Opportunity to learn modern Greek has never been so good as at present in Boston. Fruit stands run by Greeks are in spots more numerous than cigar stands. Their owners are glad to give all the information possible about their native tongue, and they subscribe to and exhibit a number of newspapers printed in Greek. To those who have studied the Greek of Xenophon it is not difficult to make out what the newspapers contain, and it is a pleasure to find modern instances parading in clothes of an ancient tongue. Modern Greek seems easy to learn. A young Irishman became employed in a Massachusetts avenue Greek fruit store and in the course of a year spoke the language of his employer with astonishing proficiency.—Boston Record.

The Ancient Paropa.

An important archaeological discovery has been made in Sicily, near Collesano, about fifty miles from Palermo. In preparing some land for planting American grapevines workmen uncovered, one after the other, forty large skeletons. Further excavations were authorized, and several ancient tombs were discovered and the fronts of houses with very unusual ornamentation. Signore Salinas, the director of the National museum of Palermo, has inspected the excavations and is of the opinion that they form a part of the ancient Paropa, mentioned by Pliny.

A Great Catch.

How should you like to go fishing with a net and catch a submarine monster that towed your boat and threatened to submerge it unless you cut the ropes? This is what the commander of a five ton fishing vessel recently did off the British coast. He first thought that he had caught a monstrous whale and was not undeceived when its dark, shiny back became visible through the water. But when the hatches of a submarine vessel rose out of the sea he discovered that he had caught a warship that had been maneuvering in his neighborhood.—Youth's Companion.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment, Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

From a consideration of this important chance I fell to thinking of the girl herself. Could it have been for the reason that I was ultimately to save her life that Fate had raised her face before my eyes to warn me that miserable night in London? It looked very much like it. If, however, that was the beginning, what was the sequel to be? for surely it could not be intended that Fate, having brought me so far, should suddenly abandon me at the end. "Oh! if I were only clean-handed like my fellow-men," I cried, in miserable self-abasement, "how happy might I not be!" For I must mention here that in my own mind I had quite come to the conclusion that Agnes Maybourne entertained a liking for me. And, God knows, I on my side had discovered that I loved her better than my own soul. What was to be the end of it all? That the future alone could decide.

The other side of the island—that is to say, the side exactly opposite that upon which we had landed—was almost precipitous, and at the foot of the cliffs, extending for some distance out into the sea, were a number of small islets, upon which the seas broke with never-ceasing violence. I searched that offing, as I had done the other, for a sail, but was no better rewarded. As soon as I had made certain that there was nothing in sight, I turned upon my tracks and hastened back to the plateau as fast as I could go. For some reason or another, I experienced a great dread lest by any chance something ill might have befallen my charges. But when I reached the beach below the plateau and looked up, to see the fire still burning brightly and Miss Maybourne moving about between it and the cave, I was reassured.

The tide by this time had gone out, and the lifeboat lay high and dry upon the beach. Before rejoining my companions I made my way towards her.

To roll her over into her proper position was only a matter of small difficulty now that the water was out of her, and once this was accomplished I was able to satisfy myself as to her condition. As far as I could gather, there was nothing amiss with her, even her oars lay fastened to the thwarts as usual. How she could have got into the water was a mystery I could not solve for the life of me. I examined her most carefully, and having done so, found some pieces of wood to act as rollers, and dragged her up the beach till I had got her well above high water mark. After that I picked up my parcel of eggs and climbed the hill to the plateau. It was now well on into the afternoon, and I had still much to do before nightfall.

When I showed Miss Maybourne the eggs I had found, she expressed her great satisfaction, and we immediately cooked a couple to be ready against the little sufferer's waking.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in carrying drift wood from the beach to the plateau; for I had determined to keep a good fire burning all night, in case any ships might happen to pass, and think it worth their while to stand off and on till daylight should show them the reason of it. When I had stacked it ready to my hand here was yet another supply of grass to be cut, with which to improve the bed-places in the cave. Then my own couch had to be prepared somewhere within call. After which there was the evening meal to cook. By the time this was done, darkness had fallen, and our first night on the island had commenced.

When I bade Miss Maybourne "good night" she was kind enough to express her thanks a second time for the trouble I had taken. At if the better to give point to her gratitude, she held out her hand to me. I took it and raised it to my lips. She did not attempt to stop me, and then, with another "good night," she passed into the cave, and I was left alone.

For hours I sat watching my blaze and listening to the rumbling of the surf upon the shore. The night was as still as a night could well be. Not even a breath of wind was stirring. When I laid myself down in my corner between the rocks near the cave's mouth, and fell asleep, it was to dream of Agnes Maybourne and the happiness that might have been mine but for the one dread thing which had made it quite impossible.

CHAPTER VIII.

Long before daylight I was awake, thinking of our unenviable position, and wishing for the ladies' sake that I could do something to improve it. But, as far as I could see, I had done everything that was possible by mortal man. Somehow, though I valued their eggs above gold, I had no fancy for the sea-birds themselves. What I wanted most was a contrivance with which to capture some of the fish in the bay. A line I could easily make by unravelling the painter of the lifeboat; the hook, however, beat me. A hair-pin would have done admirably; but, unfortunately, Miss Maybourne's hair covered her shoulders just as she had run up from her cabin on hearing the first alarm. An ordinary pin would have been invaluable; but among the three of us we could not muster even one.

Just as daylight broke, however, I solved my difficulty in the simplest fashion possible, and could have kicked myself round the island, if it had been possible, for my stupidity in not having thought of it sooner. In my tie I wore a long gold pin, with an escutcheon top, which had been given me in Australia years before The remembrance of it no sooner came into my mind than I had whipped it out of the tie, and had beat the point into a fair-sized hook. This done, I rose from my couch between the rocks, and having replenished the fire, which still showed a red glow, hastened down the hill side to where the boat lay upon the sands. From the painter I extracted sufficient strands to make a line some thirty feet long, and to this I attached my hook. I very much doubt if a fish were ever honored before with so grand a hook.

Just as the sun's first rays were shooting up beyond the placid sea line, and the sea and heavens were changing from a pure pearl grey to every known color of the rainbow, I pushed the boat into the water, and rowed out for half a mile or so. Then, having baited my hook with mussel, I threw it overboard, and seating myself, line in hand, in the stern, awaited results. I looked at the island, showing so clear and rugged in the bright morning light, and thought of Miss Maybourne and the sick child. If the truth must be confessed, I believe I was happier then, even in such straits and upon so inhospitable a shore, than I had ever been before. When I thought of Bertrand, as I had last seen him, lying stretched out in the snow in that quiet street, and remembered my struggle with Nikola in Golden Square, my walk through sleeping London to Surbiton, and my journey to Southampton, it all seemed like some horrible dream, the effects of which I was at last beginning to rid myself. It was hard to believe that I had really gone through it all; that I, the man now fishing so quietly in this boat, in whom Miss Maybourne believed so much, was in reality Gilbert Pennethorne, the perpetrator of one of the mysterious murders which had entirely baffled the ingenuity of the London police. I could not help wondering what she would say if anyone should tell her the true history of the man in whom she placed such implicit confidence. Would she credit it or not?

While I was thinking of this, I felt a sharp tug upon my line, and when I drew it in, I found, to my delight, a nice fish impaled upon theb ook. Having released him and placed him securely at the bottom of the boat, I did not lose a moment in throwing the line overboard again. Within a quarter

WHAT BRIGADIER TURNER SAYS.

Brigadier Turner, Provincial Officer of the Salvation Army for the Province of Quebec, states that he has received no intimation whatever of the Army being prohibited from holding meetings and making use of their band for religious services. "There was some talk of it in the town of St. Louis at the time the disturbances took place there, but we have heard nothing further regarding the matter," was the only comment he would make, when informed of the latest move.

To the Canadian Investor

DORES-MONTGOMERY MINING COMPANY OF BULLFROG, NEVADA

The undersigned is pleased to announce to the investors of Canada that he has been appointed Canadian Fiscal Agent of the above company, and is offering a limited amount of treasury stock at 25c. per share for development work. This property is just 1800 feet southwest of the famous Montgomery Shoshone mine, and both have unquestionably the same vein. The group shows a well defined vein cropping out through, and it is a perfect fissure. A six inch talc seam on the hanging wall gives high values. We have also several other ledges, and it is only a matter of development work to make this property equal to any producer in the section.

The management of the Montgomery Shoshone conservatively estimates that the winze has produced $200,000 worth of ore. If this is right, the ore from the winze has averaged about $375 a ton, or about $125 for every foot of sinking, the winze being 4 x 7 in clear.

Ore from the winze running less than $250 is thrown over the dump as milling ore. No less than 150 tons of ore has been shipped from this mine, all of it coming from the winze. Another shipment of 50 tons or more will be made via Las Vegas in a few days.

The figures given above are startling in the extreme, but the measurements and ore values as quoted are official—direct from the management of the wonderful mine that is today astonishing the world.

This property is only 1800 feet from the Dores Montgomery Mine.

It Will Pay You to Read and Investigate this Proposition.

Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1,200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, coating over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,127.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mingling Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

MRS. J. GUERIN GONE

Sad Death of Respected Fifth Ward Resident

The many friends in this city, of Mrs. John Guerin, 580 Rogers street, east side, will regret to hear of her death on Wednesday night.

The circumstances attaching to the death are particularly sad. Mrs. Guerin, accompanied by her husband drove out to take part in a social function at the residence of Mr. J. O'Connor, Otonabee.

On arrival at Mr. O'Connor's residence, Mrs. Guerin, in seemingly good health, entered into all the festivities of the evening. About half an hour before midnight, Mrs. Guerin, who had been engaged in a game in progress, suddenly exclaimed, "I'll have to give up, and, sinking back, expired.

Dr. McNulty was at once summoned by telephone, and promptly arrived on the scene of this terrible catastrophy. The gathering at once came to a close. The majority of those present dispersing to their homes, but quite a number remained and kept lonely vigil during the night.

The deceased was long a sufferer from some heart affliction.

She was a daughter of Mr. Peter McCauley, who is in Washington at present. Besides her husband she is survived by a little daughter, Myrtle, four years of age; three brothers and seven sisters. The brothers are John McCauley, of Peterboro; Matthew McCauley, of Peterboro, and Michael McCauley, of Butte, Montana. The sisters are as follows: Mrs. John McMurray and Mrs. Matthew McMurray, of Douro; Mrs. Patrick O'Connel, Mrs. Daniel Coughlin and Mrs. Jas. Tobil, Peterboro; Mrs. Wm. Kopeland and Miss Agnes McCauley of New York.

THE TOOLS CLAIMED

Hatchet and Cold Chisel Used in Hicks and Company's Safe Robbery From Downer's Corners

As noted in former issues of The Times, the local police have had in their possession, awaiting a claimant, the hatchet and cold chisel, with which midnight marauders early Sunday morning, broke off the knob of Messrs. Hicks & Company's safe, prerarority to introducing the nitro-glycerine with which the safe door was blown to pieces.

These articles were claimed by Mr. J. B. Nayler, a brother man on the Belleville branch of the G.T.R. The tools were known to have been in the section tool house, at Downers' Corners at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon. As the burglary was committed between midnight Saturday and Sunday morning, this shows some what, that whilst the burglary may have been instigated by local men, the probability is that the artizans doing the job were from outside the city.

Yesterday's Runaway

A runaway on Brock street yesterday afternoon about five o'clock drew some attention from passers by owing to the antics methods of the horse. Two gentlemen were sitting in a cutter, drawn by the aforesaid runaway nag. The cutter proceeding along Brock street, when near the corner of Water street, was suddenly forced through the air at about the same rate that a meteorolite hustles among its surrounding celestial neighbors. After a time the driver succeeded in getting the bit in action thereby stopping the flying theophilus. When brought to a standstill the horse got even by landing to steal; and hoofs through the cutter's dash board, and in various ways putting its harness so that it is up to a saddlers' hospital to repair it. By special request we withhold the names of the drivers and owners of the outfit. Anyone requiring goods material for a toothpick factory can buy the cutters at a reasonable price.

THE DANGER TO THE CHILD

May be real or the snake may be a harmless one, but there is danger that menaces every child's life if the mother is deficient in womanly health and functional vitality.

Thousands of women have borne their sufferings and kept their troubles to themselves from motives of delicacy and feeble childhood has paid for it.

Dr. Pierce, forty years ago, consulted Nature, and found that she had provided remedies in abundance for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments and weaknesses. He found that non-alcoholic glyceric extracts of Golden Seal root, Blue Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Black Cohosh root and Lady's Slipper root, combined in just the right proportions, gave such surprising results that this compound soon became a standard favorite of his in the treatment of such cases. In a little time the demand for it became so great that he determined to put it up and provide for its general sale so that the multitudes needing it could readily supply themselves.

This is now known all over the civilized world as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and its unparalleled record of hundreds of thousands of cures, in the last forty years, justifies all that can be said of it.

It is non-alcoholic, non-narcotic. It is safe and reliable for any woman, of any age and in any condition, to use.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—only one or two a day will regulate and cleanse and invigorate a foul, bad Stomach, torpid Liver, or sluggish Bowels.

THE AGED RULER OF MONTENEGRO, HIS WIFE AND THE ELDER OF HIS CHILDREN

ONE NICHOLAS WHO IS NO LONGER AUTOCRAT

Aged Ruler of Montenegro Voluntarily Grants a Constitution to His Subjects.

THE PUBLIC REJOICES

CETTINJE, [illegible]

Prince Nicholas of Montenegro, in formally laying down his authority as an autocrat, after ruling for forty-five years, delivered an impassioned, eloquent speech.

The little capital overflowed with enthusiastic crowds eager to witness the opening of the first Parliament, and to rescue ovations to their Prince as he made his way from the Cathedral to the council room.

"In times of peace," said the Prince, addressing the new National Assembly, "I and my glorious ancestors were brothers of the Montenegrins; in times of war my ancestors fell with them. We were never despots, but only martyrs for the public weal.

"Autocracy did not clog the wheel of progress, but was a necessity of the times. The era of Montenegrin autocracy is one worthy only of admiration.

"But, convinced that the rule of autocracy should now end, I have decided to replace it by bestowing a constitution upon the people, who will now bear the burden that lay upon ourselves.

"In bidding farewell to the greatest regime, I recognize the merit of my predecessors, who bequeathed independence to us, and I thank the nation for its love and fealty."

The Prince then took the oath depriving him of the autocratic authority he had hitherto wielded in this little mountain State.

In the general rejoicing that followed, which was observed everywhere with perfect harmony and good order, there was one man who felt out of harmony with [illegible] The Prince's right-hand man, the [illegible]d Uvitovda menegro, who had s[illegible]ed him for the greater part of his [illegible]ety years, and he could not bring him [illegible]f into line with the new development o[illegible] the State, and begged leave to retire [illegible]rom public life. The Prince acceded to his request.

Brides for Royalty.

Prince Nicholas I was born October 7, 1841, and on November 8, 1860, was married to Milena Petrovna Vlouticova, daughter of Peter Vukotic, Senator and Vice President of the Council of State. The offspring of the union are three sons and six daughters. The sons are: Prince Danilo, heir to the throne; Prince Mirko and Prince Peter.

One Montenegrin Princess is the present Queen of Italy, and another now would be Queen of Servia but for her premature death, while three other daughters of Prince Nicholas are the Grand Duchess Militza of Russia, the Duchess Anastasia of Leuchtenberg, and Princess Anna of Battenberg, respectively.

The number of brides whom Montenegro has supplied to the courts of Europe is altogether disproportionate to the size and importance of the little country. Montenegro has an area of 3,630 square miles and a population of a quarter of a million. The capital, Cettinje is a village with a population of 3,000. The princely palace in which so many distinguished royal brides were born and brought up is a modest structure in which a moderately successful American tradesman would never condescend to dwell.

CARD-SHARPER NOBLE IS SENT TO PRISON

Young Polish Count Discovered to be a Cheat Challenges Accuser to Duel.

BERLIN,

A young Polish nobleman, Count Johann von Bulinski, has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment and a heavy fine at Landsberg for cheating at cards.

He played with nobleman at the shooting box of his uncle, Count Boguslaw von Bulinski, at Deschke, for sovereign points. He lost at first, but won largely on changing seats. After play had gone on for some hours, Baron Peninski accused him of cheating, and demanded an examination of the cards. The court of honor declared his play suspicious.

Count Johann thereupon challenged Baron Peninski to a duel. The latter gentleman declined, saying his challenger was not a man of honor.

According to the evidence given at the trial, Count Johann played with more than the proper number of cards. Count Wartenleben, who was a member of the party, said $300 worth of his counters disappeared, and were found in Count Johann's pockets.

In passing sentence, the court gave him an extra month for challenging to a duel.

KILLS WIFE'S LOVER; ACQUITTED BY COURT

Colonel in Roumanian Army Given Immense Reception by Sympathizing Public.

BUCHAREST,

The last act of a remarkable tragedy has been played before a court-martial in Bucharest.

A colonel of the Roumanian Army, living in a village near the capital, was intensely jealous of his young and beautiful wife. A few weeks ago he was called away on duty for twenty-four hours. But he was suspicious, and, deserting his post, made his way home. He found the doors locked, and could get no answer to his knocks. While he was waiting he looked up and saw that the lights in the drawing room were being extinguished.

He hurled himself against the door, broke it down and rushed upstairs. In the darkness he did not see his wife, who escaped him and gained the door.

But a slight noise revealed the lover, and, mad with passion, the husband seized a revolver and began firing in the dark. His shots were answered with groans, and when the lights were restored the corpse of a young Russian student was found in a corner of the room.

The colonel gave himself up and was tried by court-martial. When he was acquitted the public gave him an immense ovation in the streets. He goes free so far as the killing of the student is concerned, but is condemned to two months' arrest for having deserted his post.

BUSHRANGING RIFE IN NEW SOUTH WALES

Crowd of Unemployed Men Resort to Robbery to Make a Living.

SYDNEY,

Two days ago the mail coach running between Port Macquarie and Wauchope, in New South Wales, was held up at 6 o'clock in the morning by two men. One was armed with a Winchester rifle and the other with a revolver.

The driver and the solitary passenger were made to hold up their hands, and the robbers emptied their pockets. They then took the mail bags with them into the scrub.

Yesterday the police found the bags, which had been ransacked. Every letter had been opened, and a number of banknotes, which were known to be in the mail, were missing. The value of these is thought to be about $500.

This is only the latest of a number of recent bushranging exploits in the country districts of New South Wales, and the probable explanation of the epidemic is that there are a great many workless men about, unable to get a living except by desperate means.

THOUGHT HE WAS DETECTIVE

Man Arrested in Paris Streets by a Stalwart Lunatic.

PARIS, —While walking along the boulevards yesterday a clerk named Mascrot was arrested by a man of powerful build, who said he was a detective, and who, in spite of the clerk's struggles, led him to the police station.

The Superintendent of Police, however, did not recognize the detective, and, as he had no papers to show, refused to receive the prisoner. The detective thereupon led his prisoner from one police station to another, until, on being questioned, he was found to be a lunatic, who imagined himself to be a policeman.

The clerk was therefore at once liberated, and the madman was led by strategem to an asylum.

BRITISH WORKMEN ON TOUR

Deputation Visits Berlin to Examine Labor Conditions in Germany.

BERLIN, —All the leading establishments in Germany are being thrown open to the deputation of British workmen who have been sent out by C. A. Morsing, the Tariff Reform candidate for the Gainsborough division of Lincolnshire, to study the conditions of German working men, and thus far a number of industrial centres in Rhenish Prussia have been visited.

Judging by the accounts published in the German papers, they have found not only that the stories of German workmen having to live on horseflesh are fables, but also that the German working classes are well housed and clothed, receive adequate wages and, in short, are comfortably off, while they can claim a distinct advantage owing to the social laws of their country, which extend State aid in case of illness or accident, and secure to them pensions when incapacitated from work.

SWINDLERS MADE RICH BY BOGUS MINE SHARES

Exploits of the "Band of the Baker" Laid Bare to Their Dupes.

PARIS,

Another exploit of the "Band of the Baker," the gang of international thieves now being broken up by the police, has come to light today.

Two years ago they invented a mining company in the United States. There was no mine, but the shares were adroitly put on the market at $30 apiece. They were well subscribed, and in the course of a few months the enthroned shareholders received a preliminary dividend of 26.2% a share.

Three months later they received a further dividend of 26.2%. At the end of a third three months another letter from the company came. This time it was the notice of a general meeting of the shareholders, and an intimation that valuable mineral discoveries had been made on the company's property.

Mirabel, the leader of the band, explained at the meeting of the company that further capital was needed to develop the new discoveries. He said that the directors had decided to make a call of $15 a share, which would enable them to extend the operations to the fullest extent, and make the fortunes of the shareholders in a very little time.

By a refinement of cleverness, the shareholders who did not wish to pay the call were informed that their money would be returned to them less the dividends already paid.

Everybody paid this $15 call. Since the day they received the scrip the shareholders have not heard of the company or the directors.

BRAVE SEPOYS HONORED

Awarded the Military Order of Merit for Gallantry in Action.

CALCUTTA, —Three gallant levies, belonging to the Zhob Valley Irregulars on the Northwest frontier, have been awarded the military Order of Merit.

During an attack made by raiders last April on the Shinbas post the little band of defenders held its own, though surprised and outnumbered.

Sepoy Ali Jan was left, severely wounded, in a lower room in the hands of the raiders, but shouted, at the imminent risk of his life, to tell his comrades upstairs that the raiders were setting fire to the ceiling.

Sepoy Sultan Khan extinguished the fire by digging away the flooring, and thus exposing himself to heavy fire from below. Havildar Hayat Khan stuck stubbornly to his charge, and went on fighting, though wounded, thereby encouraging his men to continue the defense.

"NO SECT, NO HOME," NAME OF NEW CREED

Promulgation of Religion Started in Ireland Incenses Peasantry of English County.

TO INVADE AMERICA.

About two years ago a new religious sect, calling themselves, "No Sect, No Home," was started at Enniskillen, in Ireland, by a man named Mooney, who left his ordinary business to preach his new gospel. A small band of men and women quickly gathered around him, and very shortly the new religion began to spread over the north of Ireland.

Hundreds of converts were baptised in the rivers and streams, and last year the preachers extended their energies to Scotland. More recently they have appeared in England, where, in Surrey, Norfolk and Suffolk, they are zealously extending their influence.

They profess to follow literally in the footsteps of Christ, and as He was a nomad, so do they become wanderers, without home. Relatives and friends must be left behind, no thought must be given to worldly welfare, while those who possess goods must give them to the poor and live on the coarsest fare.

Some objection was taken to the method of the sect, while they were evangelizing Norfolk and Suffolk, and it was alleged that their teaching caused youths to despise their parents, while their exhortations were reputed to be blasphemous and full of untruths. The readers were the "sermons," of some of the women members of the sect that it was stated that their hearers sometimes temporarily lost their reason. The mission has also caused much indignation in Surrey.

The headquarters of the community are now at Bedford, but the conditions under which the young men and women live in the "camps," are hardly such as would appeal to aesthetic tastes. The leaders hope shortly to extend the field of their labors to America, and pilgrim teachers are, gradually being trained for evangelizing the whole world.

AN EMPEROR'S ESTATE.

Dom Pedro of Brazil Left Fortune of $700,000.

Rio Janeiro, —The inventory of the property of Dom Pedro II., who was dethroned by the revolution of 1889 is now completed, and shows that the late Emperor left an estate worth $700,000.

The children of the late Princess Leopoldina of Saxe-Coburg, the second daughter of Dom Pedro, inherit the money. Dom Pedro left no male heir, his two sons dying in infancy.

KNIVES AND TORCHES WEAPONS OF MAD MOB

Desperate Attempt to Burn Alive the Suspected Murderer of Popular Magistrate.

Paris, —A wild scene took place in the Impasse du Mont Vlos, the magistrates' quarters of Paris, last night. 50 persons attempting to burn down the residence of a man suspected of foul play.

On Christmas Eve, a magistrate named Caribet was found dead in his house, with a deep wound in his forehead. Caribet was very popular among the magistrates of the Impasse du Mont Vlos, and excitement ran high when it was known that the authorities would take no action in the matter. Suspicion was directed against a man called "Eugene the Scabber" on account of his residence to use the knife, who was known to have threatened Caribet several times.

Last night 300 men and women, armed with knives and carrying torches, surrounded the little house where Eugene lived, and ordered him to come out.

Instead, he barricaded his doors. This infuriated the mob, who gathered all the rubbish they could find, placed it against the door, and, after drenching it with petroleum, set fire to the place.

Eugene and his young wife, to whom he was married only a few days ago, were making their escape through the skylight, when a squadron of police drove the mob away, and the fire brigade succeeded in quenching the flames.

LAST SHILLING FOR POOR-BOX.

London, —Herbert Campbell, who was sentenced yesterday at the Guild Hall to six months' imprisonment for theft, handed over his last shilling for the poor box, but the jailer was instructed that it must be credited to the prisoner and returned to him on his discharge.

OLD FANATIC AWAITS HIS DEATH IN VA[illegible]

Predicts His Demise on Certain Day, But Disappoints Crowd by Living.

BOMBAY, [illegible]

The unavailing efforts of a centenarian to die on a particular day have been responsible for an extraordinary scene at the island shrine of Sadh Bela, at Sukkur, India.

On January 16 a Sadhu, aged 116, arrived at the shrine from a distant village and announced that he had arranged to die at 11 P. M. on January 16, which happened to be a specially sacred day of fasting among the Hindus. At the same time he handed the priest of the temple $150 and gave him instructions as to the kind of funeral he desired.

The news spread like wildfire throughout the district, and hundreds of people repaired daily to the island shrine to obtain a glimpse of the mysterious man. When the day he had predicted would be [illegible] the crowds of people who came were enormous, and by nightfall it is estimated that nearly 20,000 had visited the shrine.

For three days before the Sadhu had cut down his diet to a very small quantity of milk, but even this was discontinued on the day that was to have proved fatal.

All the old man's efforts, however, were in vain. Several times he tried desperately to breathe his last, but failed. Numbers of natives stayed with him until long after midnight in the expectation of seeing his prediction fulfilled. Finally, they went away, apparently much disappointed.

The chief result of the Sadhu's efforts was that a large heap of coins and sweets were placed at his feet by the curious throng of spectators.

WOMAN OF EIGHTY WEDS MAN OF THIRTY-FOUR

Had First Intended Adopting Him as Her Son, But Changed Her Mind.

VIENNA,

Mme. Cornelie Brielle, now 80 years old and once a star of the Hungarian National Theatre, was married yesterday to a man named Kolomon Rosnyaray, aged 34.

This is the conclusion of an affair that has made a great deal of noise in Budapest society. When Mme. Brielle, who is very wealthy, became engaged to M. Rosnyay, about a year ago, her relatives attempted to prevent the marriage, and finally had her confined in a lunatic asylum.

Mme. Brielle, however regained her liberty by proving her sanity to a commission of doctors, and she then declared her intention of adopting her fiancee as her son. She suddenly reverted, however, to her original decision to marry him.

Owing to her great age, Mme. Brielle was unable to go to church, and the ceremony was performed in her own house before two witnesses.

The bride was dressed in white satin, and lace, and carried a bouquet of white myrtle flowers.

WINTER SEEKS DIVORCE.

Switzerland Declines to Grant Him Citizenship for the Purpose.

Rome, —The Swiss authorities have declined to entertain Signor d'Annunzio's application for Swiss citizenship, says the Giornale d'Italia.

The celebrated writer had resolved to acquire foreign nationality in order to be able to obtain a divorce from his wife, the young and beautiful Duchess of Gallese. So long as he remained a subject of Italy, where no divorce laws exists, he could not attain that object.

RARE TIBETAN DOGS PHOTOGRAPHED BY A GRAND LAMA OF TIBET

This picture is a very unique series of photographic views actually taken by one of the three Grand Lamas of Tibet. The Tashe Lama, who took the photographs, is the holiest of the three Grand Lamas, inasmuch as the fifth Peenchen Rimbache, to quote the second title of the lamas, became the first Grand or Dalai Lama of Lhasma. The Lama, like his predecessor, showed a great interest in photography at the time of Captain Ryder's visit to Shigatse and at his own request was given a small Kodak, and it was by means of this instrument that the Lama took the photographs here reproduced. In doing this he was quite unaided.

ANARCHIST'S DOOM RESENTED BY BELGIANS

Indignant That He Should Die for Complicity in Attempt on Sultan's Life.

BRUSSELS,

Serious developments are likely to arise from the condemnation to death of the Belgian Anarchist, Joris, by a Turkish court for complicity in the attempt on the life of the Sultan.

As far back as August the Ministry for Foreign Affairs here was petitioned, and the Treaty of 1838 and the law of 1851 were recalled.

Since Joris' condemnation a serious agitation has been carried on, in which members of all political parties are taking part.

Belgian public opinion is almost unanimously in favor of the condemned man, who has numerous friends at Antwerp, and is held in high esteem. The French and Belgian Leagues of the Rights of Man have taken up the case, and a special committee has been appointed in Antwerp, where a great demonstration in Joris's favor was held to-day.

All Thin, Pale Women

Can Learn the Cause of Their Nervous, Used up Condition

With women, ill-health is usually traceable to nerve exhaustion. Feeling run-down and tired most of the time is nature's warning that more nerve-force is required.

You must build up, nourish the body, vitalize the nerves, get more flesh and blood.

It's the abundant nutriment and building material in Ferrozone that enables it to cure so many sick women. It increases the appetite, adds weight and strength, restores lost color and develops a surplus of energy and nerve force that defies sickness of any kind. There is living proof in Mrs. Daniel Ferguson, Jr., of Prescott, Ont. Read her statement:

"A year ago my health failed. I grew thin and exceedingly pale. At night it was difficult to obtain restful sleep. My appetite was variable and indigestion bothered me considerably. I became morose and suffered from heart palpitation. You could scarcely believe the benefit I derived in one week from Ferrozone. Color came back to my cheeks. My vitality and appetite increased, renewed nerve force and better spirits came also. Ferrozone did a world of good and made me well.

Remember this: No alcoholic stimulant can nourish and build up like Ferrozone. Fifty cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

PETERBORO, JANUARY 20 1906

THE DEAD OF 1905

It has been computed that more than 4,000,000 of the human race die every year, and some satirist on his species has made a further computation that not one in 1,000 does anything that makes his name worth remembering for a year after he is gone.

The list of persons distinguished in one calling or another who have died during the year just closed is a long one, and may well suggest homilies for press and pulpit. The subtle political schemer, the able ecclesiast, the wise statesman, the more or less successful poet, dramatist, novelist, editor, the judge who wore his ermine unspotted in the midst of corruption and fraud, the scholar who explored and expounded nature's laws—here are texts for sermons such as no living subjects can offer.

To us the lesson taught resolves itself to the one fact that each left us with work undone. The pure judge's life was cut short when purity was most needed. The ink was not dry on the magic pen when the hand that held it grew stiff and motionless; the scientist and teacher was busy with problems of the universe when he laid down his unfinished work. Who is left to complete it?

When we look at home we find a vacant chair; it is the one we think could least have been spared that is gone. The child with all hinted sweetness and strength of life to come in its incomplete white face, the father full of his wise plans for his little ones, the young man, alert, alive, vigorous—these are the ones who, in the midst of a task, with sentence unfinished on their lips, turned from us and went out of the door beyond which to our mortal vision is only darkness. Went out, their unfinished work teaches, to higher work elsewhere. Nature makes no mistakes, wastes not one atom of available force. None is wasted here, though the lips of the great dead return us no answer. If there is no other proof of immortality, of the eternal unity and order of the life hereafter, taken as a whole, we find it here and base our faith on it, not only for those strong helpers of humanity who have won a name for themselves, but our own household dead. They have lain down in no ignoble sleep. With the old wit and wisdom or acuteness or kindly affection which we knew and which made them dear to us, they are at work again elsewhere on higher levels.

If the dark portal should unclose on its noiseless hinges for us also to pass through in the year whose threshold our feet have just crossed, we may be sure that there is no curtain in the grave to fall upon our lives as on a finished drama. The tragedy or comedy goes on as we have lived here.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Yesterday morning at the police court, Jos. Rickerby was charged with having on Wednesday night, broken a window in the house of Archibald Armstrong, Smith street, near the bridge.

Armstrong, the first witness, said that on Wednesday evening, he was sitting in his house, and heard some one walking by. Shortly after a pane of glass in his window was broken. He saw no stone or other missile. Looked out and saw defendant about a foot and a half away. Asked defendant if he broke the glass. Defendant said "no." The window cost 40c, it would take $2 to put in the new window and put on a new blind; the old blind was out in three places. His wife was in the house at the time.

To Mr. McWilliams, acting for defendant. Knew of no reason why defendant should try to injure him or his property. The blind flew up when the glass struck it. Defendant was not sober that night.

Rickerby, the defendant, went into the box. He was passing the house on his way to Auburn. Denied any knowledge of how the window was broken. Saw two little kids, running away.

Chas. Mendrum was next called. On the evening in question, he was at his house, some 100 feet away from where the window was broken. Saw defendant walking east on Smith street. After the window was broken he saw defendant lingering about and told him to go home as the police were coming.

Mrs. Armstrong's evidence was practically corroborative of her husband's.

The magistrate imposed a fine of $2 with $2 compensation for the damaged property.

Cecil Shannon was charged with being a vagrant and having no place of abode.

Mr. McWilliams appeared for the prisoner. The chief asked for an enlargement, which was granted until next Wednesday. As Shanahan was allowed to go on his own recognizance to appear. As he left the court the magistrate said, "If you don't appear we won't send after you." Evidently Shanahan's absence, according to the magistrate's opinion, is preferable to his company.

LATER.

As Rickerby's fine was not forthcoming, he went up on the hill.

Mr. Moffat Leaving for London

The many friends that Mr. T. J. Mowat, 235 Reid street, has made in the past seven years that he has been here, whilst congratulating him on his promotion to managership of Messrs. R. Neill & Co's London shoe store, will regret to have him leave Peterboro. Mr. Mowat as above noted, has been a resident of Peterboro for the past seven years, during which time he has been connected with Mr Neill's Peterboro store. He is well known in the city, and has become generally popular. Mr. Mowat is a first-class boot and shoe man. He has had a long experience and during his connection with Mr. Neill he has displayed his exceptional business ability. Mrs. Mowat and Master Herbert Mowat will remain in the city for a few weeks yet.

Henry Freeman Charged With Stealing Wood at Large

As noted in yesterday's issue, Harvey Freeman, of Warsaw, was arrested in that village on Thursday by High County Constable Cochrane, on a charge of stealing two cords of wood from Mr. John Payne.

The prisoner was brought before County Magistrate Edmison, and was allowed out on $300 bail, on the surety of J. Crowe of Dummer.

He will appear on Monday morning at ten o'clock. Mr. F. D. Kerr is defending the prisoner, and Mr. R. E. Wood is appearing for the Crown. The witnesses have all been subpoenaed. The case seems to have arisen over a misunderstanding between the two parties as to the ownership of some wood.

A Live Mining Man Here

Yesterday, Mr. R. C. Sturgeon, representing the Eagle Mining Co., of Chicago, whose valuable low grade, but rich-in-dividends-mine is located in New Mexico, accompanied by a Times representative, called upon some of our local citizens. Mr. Sturgeon has one of the most promising propositions for investment now before the Canadian public. Mr. Sturgeon's reason d'etre for visiting Peterboro, is to get a good live man to act as agent for his company and place stock for commission.

The Eagle Mining Co., do not offer any wild-cat, hot-air, take-your-chance-for-riches propositions. The company is now turning out 125 tons of gold ore, worth from $2 to $6 per ton, at an expense of about $1 per ton. Believing, in fact knowing, that the mine, by the addition of increased machinery, they could return heavy dividends, are now offering a limited amount of stock for sale. Mr. Sturgeon is anxious to get a good local hustler, who wants to make some money himself to handle the stock. His sole object in the matter

PROMINENT CANADIAN OWES LIFE TO PE-RU-NA.

Suffered Ten Years—Lost 100 Pounds in Flesh.

Mr. J. N. Latreille, the well known grocer and liquor dealer, of Montreal, Can., has been one of the leading business men of that city for thirty years. He writes as follows:

"I had catarrh of the head, throat and stomach for about ten years, and for the past two years had been growing worse.

"I felt exhausted and weak, and coughed continually. When in health my weight was 250 pounds, but I lost 100 pounds in a year. Catarrh had made me almost blind and deaf. I felt discouraged.

"Finally I tried Peruna, took three bottles, and now I cannot say that my health is much improved, but I have gotten rid almost entirely of the effects of that dreaded disease."

A PROSPEROUS BANK

Wonderful Record Made by Bank of Nova Scotia Last Year

Canada's recent and rapid advancement in wealth and prosperity is not only well illustrated by her numerous and strong banks, but is largely due to the assistance lent by these firm financial institutions, to all classes of the commercial and industrial world.

Among Canada's strongest and most successful banks, taking an enviable position for strength and rapidly increasing business, is the Bank of Nova Scotia, incorporated in 1832.

Those desiring a lucrative investment in safe stocks or a good medium for deposit an financial transactions, should read the report of the ... annual meeting of this bank, given in another column.

Shareholders, drawers and depositors with the Bank of Nova Scotia have every reason for congratulation over the almost marvellous record of the bank's success, not only since its inception, but more particularly during the past fiscal year.

The bank now has 23 branch offices in Nova Scotia, seven in Ontario, two in Quebec, two in Prince Edward Island, 13 in New Brunswick; one in Manitoba, two in Alberta, one in British Columbia; two in Newfoundland, three in the West Indies, two in the United States, and his representatives in Great Britain, France and Germany.

The bank has a capital of $2,500,000 and a reserve fund of $4,200,000. The assets of the Bank of Nova Scotia, amounting to $33,436,776, are comprised of the highest class known to finance, including, among other funds, specie $1,506,297, Dominion notes $1,870,776, notes and cheques for other banks, at home and abroad, $2,863,745, investments in Provincial, municipal and other bonds $5,134,095, call loans, fully secured by bonds, etc., $4,640,880, call loans secured by grain and other staples $1,849,687, notes and bills discounted $11,488,255 and other securities of equally high grade. The net earnings on average capital for the past year $3,214,780, a net profit of 21 per 20cent.

Last year the bank declared dividends to shareholders, amounting to $233,210, at the rate of 10 1-2 per cent. per annum; 10 1-2 per cent. interest on perfect security is almost unprecedented in commercial annals, and must be most encouraging to fortunate shareholders of the bank.

$18,000 was laid aside towards officers pension fund and $192,040 transfered to reserve fund.

THE LOCAL BRANCH.

Since the Bank of Nova Scotia, so short a time ago, established a branch in this city, in the Market Building, corner of George and Charlotte streets, owing to efficient management, easy accessibility to the market and business portions of the city, and to the great stability of the bank as a whole, the local branch, under management of Mr. J. H. Ferguson, has steadily increased the volume of their Peterboro business. One feature of the local branch is the universal courtesy extended towards all customers of the bank. The local offices are particularly well adapted to requirements of the bank's business, being light, cheerful, and the various departments seated with a view to customers' convenience.

HORSES FOR THE RACES

Silver and Prince Greenwood, 2.09 1-4, owned by Nat Ray, the best steeple chase rider in Canada, are now in the city, stabled at the Oriental Hotel, in readiness for the local winter races. Nat Ray has been asked to ride a horse in England, belonging to his Majesty King Edward, next summer. If his present employer will allow his contract with Ray to be changed, the latter will go to England.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

of an hour I had landed five splendid fellows, and was as pleased with my success as if I had just been created Lord Chancellor of England. To-day, at any rate, I told myself, Miss Maybourne and the little girl should have a nice breakfast.

Arriving at the beach I sprang out, and, using the same means as before, drew my boat up out of reach of the tide. Then, taking my prizes with me, I made my way up the hill-side to the plateau. Just as I reached it, Miss Maybourne made her appearance from the cave and came towards me.

"Look!" I cried, holding up the fish as I spoke. "Are these not beauties?"

"They are indeed splendid," she answered. "But how did you manage to obtain them? I thought you said last night that you could think of no way of making a hook?"

"So I did. But since then I have remembered the gold pin I wore in my tie. I found that it made a most excellent hook, and with its assistance I managed to get hold of these gentlemen. But, in my triumph, I am forgetting to enquire how you and your little friend are this morning. You were fairly comfortable in the cave, I hope?"

"Quite comfortable, thank you," she answered, gravely. "But poor little Esther is no better this morning. In fact, if anything, I fancy she is worse. She was delirious for some time in the night, and now she is in a comatose condition that frightens me more than her former restlessness. It goes to my heart to see her in this state."

"Is there nothing we can do for her, I wonder?" I said as I prepared my fish for the fire.

"I fear we are powerless," replied Miss Maybourne. "The only thing I can imagine to be the matter with her is that she must have been struck by something when we were sucked under by the sinking ship. She complains continually of pains in her head."

"In that case, I fear there is nothing for it but to wait patiently for some ship, with a doctor on board, to come in sight and take us off."

"In the meantime, she may die. Oh, poor little Esther! Mr. Wrexford, this helplessness is too terrible."

What could I say to comfort her? In my own mind I saw no hope Unless a vessel hove in sight, and she chanced to carry a doctor, the doctor must inevitably die. As soon as the breakfast was cooked, I went into the cave and looked at her. I found the little thing stretched upon the grass I had thrown down for a bed. She was unconscious, as Miss Maybourne had said, and was breathing heavily. Her pulse was almost unnoticeable, and occasionally she moaned a little, as if in pain. It was a sight that would have touched the most callous of men, and in spite of that one sinister episode in my career, I was far from being such a Nero.

At midday there was no change perceptible in her condition. By the middle of the afternoon she was worse. Miss Maybourne and myself took it in turns to watch by her side; in the intervals, we climbed the hill and scanned the offing for a sail. Our vigilance, however, was never rewarded—the sea was as devoid of ships as our future seemed of hope.

After a day which had seemed an eternity, the second night of our captivity on the island came round. A more exquisite evening could scarcely be imagined. I had been watching by the sick child's side the greater part of the afternoon, and feeling that, if I remained on shore, Miss Maybourne would discover how low-spirited I was, I took the boat and rowed out into the bay, to try and obtain some fish for our supper. This was not a matter of much difficulty, and in less than a quarter of an hour I had hauled on board more than we could possibly have eaten in three meals When I had finished, I sat in my boat watching the sunset effects upon the island. It was indeed a scene to remember, and the picture of it, as I saw it then, rises before me now as clearly as if it were but yesterday.

To right and left of the points which sheltered the bay, the deep green of the sea was changed to creaming froth, where the surf caught the rocks; but in the little indentation which we had made our home the wavelets rippled on the sand with the softest rhythm possible. The sky was cloudless, the air warmer than it had been for days past. The glow of sunset imparted to the western cliffs a peculiar shade of pink, the beauty of which was accentuated by the deep shadows cast by the beetling crags. On the hillside, directly opposite where my boat was anchored, I could see the plateau, and on it my fire burning brightly. I thought of the brave woman nursing the sick child in the cave, and of the difference she had made in my lonely life.

"Oh, God!" I cried, "if only You had let me see the chance that was to be mine some day, how easy it would have been for me to have ordered Nikola and his temptation to stand behind me. Now I see my happiness too late, and am consequently undone for ever."

As I thought of that sinister man and the influence he had exercised upon my life, I felt a thrill of horror pass over me. It seemed dreadful to think that he was still at large, unsuspected, and in all probability working some sort of evil on another unfortunate individual.

In my mind's eye I could see again that cold, impassive face, with its snake-like eyes, and hear that insinuating voice uttering once more that terrible temptation. Surely, I thought, the dread enemy of mankind must be just such another as Dr. Nikola.

When the sun had disappeared below the sea line, the color of the ocean had changed from all the dazzling tints of the king-opal to a sombre coal-black hue, and myriads of stars were beginning to make their appearance in the sky, I turned my boat's head, and pulled towards the shore again. A great melancholy had settled upon me, a vague sense of some impending catastrophe, of which, try how I would, I found I could not rid myself.

On reaching the plateau, I made my way to the cave and looked in. I discovered Miss Maybourne kneeling beside the child on the grass. As soon as she saw me she rose and led me out into the open.

"Mr. Wrexford," she said, "the end is quite close now, I feel sure. The poor little thing is growing weaker every moment. Oh, it is too terrible to think that she must die because we have not the means to save her."

I did my best to comfort her, but it was some time before I achieved any sort of success. When she had in a measure recovered her composure, I accompanied her back to the cave and examined the little sufferer for myself. Alas! one glance showed me how very close the end was. Already the child's face and hands were cold and clammy, her respiration was gradually becoming more and more difficult. She was still unconscious, and once I almost thought she was dead.

All through that dreadful night she lingered on. Miss Maybourne remained with her until close upon midnight, when I relieved her. Shortly before sunrise I went to the mouth of the cave and looked out. The stars were almost gone from the sky, and the world was very still. When I returned, I thought the child had suddenly grown strangely quiet, and knelt down to examine her. The first grey shafts of dawn showed me that at last the end had come. Death had claimed his victim. Henceforth we need feel no more concern for poor little Esther—her suffering were over. She had gone to join her mother and the little ones who had lost their lives two days before. Having convinced myself that what I imagined was correct, I reverently closed the little eyes and crossed the frail hands upon her breast, and then went out into the fresh air. The sun was in the act of making his appearance above the peak, and all our little world was bathed in his glory. I looked across to the place between the rocks where I usually slept, and saw Miss Maybourne rising from her rest. My presence outside the cave must have told her my news, for she came swiftly across to where I stood.

"It is all over," she said, very quietly. "I can see by your face that the end has come."

Rehnked Him.

"I had a peculiar dream last night, Mary," said a Kansas City railroad man to his wife yesterday. "I dreamed I was appointed agent for our line in San Francisco at double the salary I'm now getting."

"How fine," said his wife, with a smile.

"Yes," continued the man, "and I started for San Francisco to take the place. At a small station in Kansas, where the train stopped, I saw a dog fight going on, and stepped off the car to witness it. The train went on without me, and I woke up before I could catch another."

The wife's smile changed to a look of keen disappointment. "Henry," she said, with emphasis, "you have the instincts of a brute. Why didn't you stay on that train and let that dog fight alone? You'll never get a good job if you act like that."—Kansas City Times.

The Tree Escaped.

One afternoon the doctor received a hurried telephone message asking him to come immediately, as a boy had fallen clear from the top of a tree. The doctor, wanting to know what his work was to be, so as to take the proper medicines, instruments, etc., asked if "there were any limbs broken."

"Oh, yes," was the answer; "he came right straight through."—Magazine of Fun.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased), of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

APPLICATION FOR PATENT should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of his intention to do so.

Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1906.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 25th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $180,000.00 net, and has one mile of developments, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $10,187.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00, on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,000.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Minging Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken, for the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

Their Belated Wedding

By RITA KELLEY

Copyright, 1905, by E. C. Parcells

Samantha Sanders had always wanted a cuckoo clock.

The sandwich man half a block ahead announced them for sale for $1.98—"fine cuckoo clocks, best made." She was racing after him as fast as her prim New England dignity would allow. She upset a child with an all day sucker in its mouth and left it screaming on the walk. It hurt her conscience terribly, but if for one moment she lost sight of the sign he might turn into a side street, and she wouldn't know where to get the clock.

Samantha Sanders was the thrifty, unromantic janitress of a bachelor apartment building. Her father and mother had died when she was fifteen and left her without a penny and with an overweening desire to possess a clock with a little bird that popped out of a little door every hour, along with more domestic ambition.

Samantha Sanders never had cared for any one person so much as she had for making a home. Hiram Shell had asked her to marry him, but her thrifty soul told her she would be happier making a comfortable living for herself than eking out a bare existence with such a man. Hiram was all right, only he never stuck to say one thing long enough and his inventions never seemed to be the things people wanted.

"HIRAM!" SHE CRIED. "HIRAM SHELL!"

Now she was almost up to the big red and white sign. Never before had she felt free to indulge her pet extravagance, but now with a steady, tidy income and good clothes in plenty it did seem that Providence had put that sandwich man right there ahead of her.

Breathless and excited, she rushed past the man to get a front view of the clock. Oh, joy! There was the long hoped for little face and the cuckoo half emerging from his arch as though the clock had stopped just as he started to announce the hour.

Samantha clapped her hands in an ecstasy of rapture.

"Oh!" she cried. "Can I get one down on Thirteenth street now?"

For the first time she turned her eyes from the sign to the man whose way she had blocked. All the light of joy faded from her face and left it ashen.

"Hiram!" she cried. "Hiram Shell!"

"Yes, Samanthy," he said, meek as ever, looking at the trim little woman before him and pulling surreptitiously at his worn and soiled vest.

The pallor of her face changed to a flush of anger and resentment as she looked at the disheveled old man.

"Hiram Shell," she said forcibly, "what you doin' trampin' the streets like this? Shiftless and good for nothin', same as you always was!"

"I don't know, Samanthy. I never did seem to 'mount to anything." The cuckoo clock swayed perilously near a barber pole, but Samantha did not notice. She was looking at the man's lantern jawed haggard visage and thinking hard.

"Hiram Shell," she accused, "you haven't had enough to eat. You can't keep your knees stiff."

He smiled weakly. "Well, it do be hard off an' on to get a plenty, 'specially when it takes quite a bit for wire. My new patent clothes wringer, Samanthy"—

"Hiram Shell, you go right straight down to Thirteenth street and tell those clock people you haven't got sense enough to pound sand in a rat hole!" But even as she spoke her eyes were moist. "And, Hiram, you bring a clock up to my house. I'm going home now to get supper ready." She counted out $2.08 (5 cents for car fare), gave him her address and told him vigorously to hurry up before he forgot what he was to do. She left him standing stupefied in the middle of the walk gazing after her with meek if hungry eyes.

"She be just the same as ever," he whispered to himself. "She'd 'a' made me a good wife, Samanthy would."

Samantha Sanders was bustling feverishly about her rooms at the New Rochelle apartments. True to her provident New England instincts, she had a plentiful supply of cake, pie, apple butter and baked beans on hand. She had ordered recklessly at the green-grocer's on her way home, and the table was beginning to look like a feast of plenty.

Poor old Hiram! She could not get the image of his pitiable figure out of her mind. Even the prospect of the new clock could not dispel the feeling of utter heartsickness. Hiram Shell, whose father had been justice of the peace, tramping the streets as a sandwich man!

There was a dull aching at her heart that was incomprehensible to her until just as she shoved the beans found into the oven to warm. She stiffened up with something like a groan and clapped her hands to her head.

"I'd ought to 'a' married Hiram Shell," she cried, with the bitterness of delayed realization. "I'd ought to 'a' married him! No one ever believed in him. Just because he didn't get out and work like the others they said he was crazy! Geniuses ain't like anybody else, and if anybody had ever encouraged him and helped him along he might have struck somethin' that people wanted. And here I've been comfortable and him trampin' the streets!"

Hiram was late in arriving. She wondered indulgently whether he had gone off to buy wire with that money instead of getting the clock. Strangely enough, she did not care much. The thought was tormenting her that she who always had put duty foremost had after all failed in the greatest crisis of her life. Women were intended to make men stronger, to bring out the best in the men they loved, and she—

He came, more haggard and all but tottering, with two packages under his arm. She took them from him, tumbled them helter skelter on the sofa and drew up an armchair for him close to the table laden with good things.

"Now, Hiram," she said, "eat!"

He looked at her wildly for a moment, trying to get his breath. "The package," he said. "Is it all right?"

"The clock? Of course. Go on an' eat now." She passed him the bowl of savory pork and beans.

He pushed back from the table, peering about.

"Hiram Shell, if you don't stop actin' the fool and set to eatin' I'll throw out the cuckoo clock and be done with it!"

"No, Samanthy, 'tain't the clock; it's that new patent clothes wringer I been making. Thought you might like it to wash your clothes."

Samantha collapsed into a chair.

"Hiram Shell, I haven't done my wash for five years. It goes to the laundry."

"Well, now, ain't that nice!" He pushed back the apple butter she handed him. He had not touched a bite, though his plate was piled high with good things. Samantha saw his face had gone white.

"I guess I'd better be moving on. The docter at the dispensary he said I'm ailin' some." He clutched at his heart. "It's queer, right in here."

Samantha pushed him back into the chair and ran for the brandy.

"Did—you call the ambulance?" he asked when he opened his eyes again.

"No, I didn't, Hiram Shell. You don't need no ambulance. All you need is a good square meal and the parson. We're going to get married, Hiram."

He looked at her, with tears streaming down his cheeks.

"Well, now," he said, "Samanthy, ain't that nice!"

Too Pointed.

When somebody asked Graham Saunders why he did not go to visit the squire's family any more he hesitated for a moment before he ventured to put his reason into words.

"I'm not one that's looking for slights," he drawled at last, "and I never paid much attention when they spoke about folks that generally came at mealtimes nor any of their remarks about large appetites. Nor I never applied any o' their statements in regard to not waiting for invitations or outstaying your welcome to myself. I considered such talk wasn't worth noticing.

"But when squire come out to me at about four thirty one afternoon when I could smell baked beans cooking as easy as I'm sitting here and said he'd count it a favor if I'd note down where the grass stood on our north porch at 6 o'clock that night and at 8 in the morning, twelve thutty at noon and 6 p. m. for the next three days and then let him know at the postoffice so's he could compare it with theirs, I called it pretty considerable like a hint for a man that claims to have good manners, given to one that's got a sensitive streak, same as I have, though I try to keep it out o' sight."—Youth's Companion.

A trip around the world in 60 minutes at a mere trifle.

Laughable, interesting and exciting scenes from every land--A trip around the world at almost no cost.

Scores upon scores of people are daily taking advantage of our very liberal and decidedly interesting offer.

Magnificently finished and exquisitely photo-color views in place of the oldtime and antiquated views of the past. A most pleasant and interesting hour to spend journeying around the globe viewing the places of greatest interest, most beautiful scenery, etc., at a mere trifle of cost through our liberal plan. These views illustrate some of the most noted places in the world—mountain scenery both in America and Europe—waterfalls and other famous natural phenomena, some of the world's most famous buildings, places of historical interest and places famous for beautiful architecture or beautiful natural scenery. This set is of the greatest educational value, presenting, as it does, such realistic likenesses of scenes and places that we all should know about. We want every household in this city to have one of these sets. Imagine yourself taken through the Orient, on a trip to California, through the world's Fair to see the splendid scenes as though you were right there on the spot. By a special process, a combination of lithographing and half-tone work, we are able to offer a collection of colored views from every part of the world in the most beautiful, natural and startling life-like color effects, which must be seen to be appreciated. It is impossible to describe the grandeur and beauty of these views. Come and see them. We want each and every household in this city to have a set of these.

The most beautiful scenes from every land, among which are the following:

Yellow Stone Park, U. S. A.; The Swiss Alps; On board a Russian Man-of-War; Scene from a Klondyke Camp; The Famous Ferry Depot, San Francisco; Cathedral from the Grand Canal, Rotterdam; Moulin Rouge, Paris; Street Scene, Mexico City; Emperor Wm. II Inspecting a Regiment; Chickamauga Park; Cotton Plantation Scene; On the Pike at the World's Fair, St. Louis; Holiday Street Scene Parade in Havana, Cuba; Scene Showing a Public Well, Pekin, China; Lookout Mountain; Steamboat Scene on the Mississippi; Garden of Gethsemane, Palestine; Scene Showing the Famous Southern Trestle; Hauling Trains Through Mountains in the South; The National Capitol at Washington, D. C.; The Pantheon at Rome; Victory Monument; Leipsic; Luna Island at Niagara Falls; David's Judgment Seat, Jerusalem; Interior View of President Diaz' Palace, Mexico; Ostrich Farm, Egypt; Royal Gardens, Dresden, Germany; (very beautiful), Palm Garden, Frankfort, Germany; Morro Castle, Havana; Plaza, World's Fair, St. Louis; Bird's Eye View of St. Louis Exposition; The Tomb of Gen. Grant, N. Y., Street Scene of Cairo, Egypt; Street Scene in Venice, Italy; Japanese Royal Garden Scene; Zoological Garden at Berlin, Germany; Ice Cave at Niagara Falls, N. Y., etc., etc., besides dozens of comic, sentimental and interesting views of every nature. These pictures are the genuine Oleo Stereoscopic Views, made especially for this purpose and are executed in a most artistic manner, being a combination process of lithographing and half-tone work enabling a magnificent depth of detail and splendid color reproduction true to life. You cannot enjoy an hour more delightfully than by viewing a set of these beautiful and decidedly interesting pictures.

It wasn't so very long ago that hundreds of thousands of people spent many pleasant hours with the stereoscope, but heretofore they were compelled to pay enormous prices for views, think of it, as high as 50c each for colored pictures. We sold thousands upon thousands of stereoscopic views, in colors, at 50c each in those days, but imagine each and every view had to be colored by hand. In the past few months we have had repeated demands for them, and being able to secure the latest and most beautiful colored views to furnish to the public at a ridiculously low price, we entered into the stereoscope plan on quite a large scale, and have taken immediate advantage of the International Art Association, who have spent an enormous amount of money to get out special color plates and have finally completed their end, namely: To place on the market thousands of magnificent stereoscopic views, the most beautiful, interesting and exciting scenes from every land, in the grandest and most exquisite natural colors.

Now we come to our great special offer. Read our plan carefully as it describes the stereoscope and tells how to secure the scope and views at almost no cost to you.

First the stereoscope. The Stereoscope is our world-famous "Aluminum Crystal Lens" Stereoscope. Genuine aluminum hood, bound with dark rich red velvet. Frame is of fine finished cherry wood with patent folding handle, folding underneath frame, and sliding bar. The lenses are extra fine quality, selected for clearness and brilliancy, 1¾ inches in diameter, ground from best quality glass and carefully adjusted. This Crystal Lens Aluminum "Scope" has won universal praise from lovers of the beautiful, and as a means of entertainment stands second to nothing.

VICTORY FOR CHAMBERLAIN

Tariff Reform Leader Scored a Great Personal Triumph.

London, Jan. 19.—Mr. Chamberlain is still king in Birmingham. Not only did he carry his own seat by an increased majority at the elections yesterday, but his candidates swept the other seven divisions as well, by aggregate majorities of 30,000, after one of the stiffest fights in history. A solid Conservative Birmingham sends forth a ray of light into the darkness, which otherwise continues to enshroud the party. A strenuous campaign was prosecuted in the west divisions by B. L. Outwaite, an Australian, prominent in Labor circles, but he succeeded in polling only 2,096 against 7,170 for Mr. Chamberlain. Thus the Tariff Reform leader has a majority of 5,079, compared with 4,275 in the last contest in 1895.

In two other divisions where the Liberals and the Labor party united the forecast was more hopeful, but the result shows a majority for Sir Benjamin Stone, though reduced from 2,154 to 985 by J. Holmes, the Labor candidate. In Bordesley Jesse Collins retains his majority almost intact after an attack by J. Bruce Glasier, also a Labor candidate. In the north division the Unionist majority for J. T. Middlemore was increased by over 500.

LIBERALS CARRY LONDON.

Otherwise the tide against the Conservatives showed little abatement. They scored one more gain by winning Maidstone, but lost twelve twelves seats in London and ten in the boroughs.

The London returns are almost complete. Out of 59 seats the Liberals carry 36; in 1900 they carried eight. The Labor party carried four. In North Camberwell Dr. MacNamara, a Canadian by birth, was again successful, increasing his previous majority of 1,398 to 2,317. A curious contest was waged in North Paddington, where Sir Henry Burdett ran as an independent Conservative, because neither of the straight party candidates was British born, he got 817 votes.

Two more Ministers are returned. The Postmaster-General, Mr. Sydney Buxton, doubled his majority in Poplar.

CONAN DOYLE BEATEN.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle failed to defeat Mr. Thomas Shaw, the Lord Advocate of Scotland, in the Hawick Burghs.

Mr. Hemmiker Heaton carried Tariff Reform to success at Canterbury.

Labor candidates did not do so well although polling big votes. They held their own in two ridings, and gained one. Aside from their defeats at Birmingham, the Labor candidates came third at Portsmouth, with 8,171 votes, and at Wakefield were second with 2,086, there being a Liberal in the field in a three-cornered fight. At Wilan the Labor candidate also ran second, securing 2,205 votes.

To the Canadian Investor

DORES-MONTGOMERY MINING COMPANY

OF BULLFROG, NEVADA

The undersigned is pleased to announce to the investors of Canada that he has been appointed Canadian Fiscal Agent of the above company, and is offering a limited amount of treasury stock at 25c. per share for development work. This property is just 1800 feet southwest of the famous Montgomery Shoshone mine and both have unquestionably the same vein. The group shows a well defined vein cropping out through, and it is a perfect fissure. A six inch talc seam on the hanging wall gives high values. We have also several other ledges, and it is only a matter of development work to make this property equal to any producer in the section.

The management of the Montgomery Shoshone conservatively estimates that the winze has produced $200,000 worth of ore. If this is right, the ore from the winze has averaged about $975 a ton, or about $1820 for every foot of sinking, the winze being 4 x 7 in clear.

Ore from the winze running less than $250 is thrown over the dump as milling ore. No less than 150 tons of ore has been shipped from this mine, all of it coming from the winze. Another shipment of 50 tons or more will be made via Las Vegas in a few days.

The figures given above are startling in the extreme, but the measurements and ore values as quoted are official—direct from the management of the wonderful mine that is today astonishing the world.

This property is only 1800 feet from the Dores Montgomery Mine.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood Meet

The St. John's Chapter of St. Andrew's Brotherhood, in connection with St. John's church, held their annual reunion at the residence of Mr. R. M. Dunnington, on Thursday evening. A very pleasant evening during which refreshments were served, was enjoyed by all present. Rev. Canon Davidson gave a very interesting address on the need of young men to come forward and offer themselves for the Church's work. He spoke of the stimulating effect of the church upon the young. He was satisfied to say that the future of the church was safe in the hands of such a class of young men as were in the present company.

A splendid program, including solos, choruses, club swinging, stories and other interesting forms of entertainment was rendered. Several of the guests spoke in eulogistic terms of their host's services in the Bible class.

Mr. H. Francis Ferguson, acting choirmaster at St. John's church, for January, gave a piano solo, "Marche, et Finale from Sonata, op. 2, No. 1, Beethoven," after which the company broke up, singing "Auld Lang Syne," and "God Save the King," and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

—The knock of the postman.
It gives you a thrill,
You look for a cheque,
And he hands you a bill.

—It is not yet intended where the 57th will take their annual trip next summer. Stratford, Hamilton and Brantford are on the route.

—The adjourned meeting of the Public Library Board will be held on Monday evening. All those interested are requested to be present.

—On February 9th, several young men from Centerville Presbyterian church will visit St. Andrew's young men's guild and will hold a debate.

—Ensign Edwards of Toronto, financial specialist, will pay his quarterly official visit to the local corps of the Salvation Army on January 31st and February 1st.

—The Baraca Class of Murray St. Baptist church held a meeting yesterday evening, when an address on "Nature Study," was given by Mr. E. Elcome, taxidermist.

—The special services at the Salvation Army barracks in connection with the two months' revival now being carried on, are being well attended each night. A highly successful meeting was held last night.

—The statement that Mr. Carnegie is awakened every morning by the notes of an organ is interesting information. The editor of this great family journal is usually awakened by the notes which he has to pay at the bank.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. John Guerin will take place from the family residence, 580 Rogers' street at nine o'clock this morning and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

—Any one who has had anything to do with the running of coal ranges or furnaces, or who has a contract to heat large buildings, has effected a big saving in fuel this year on account of the mild weather. In many cases in town citizens have saved over a ton of coal, or $7 as Earlhis season.

—Already many towns and cities are making preliminary arrangements for an Old Boys' day and the year 1906 is likely to be a busy one in the line of re-unions. Why could not Peterboro have a large gathering this year? It is a large movement but a popular one, and it behooves all interested to see that it is properly talked up and organized.

PETERBORO TALENT ABROAD

Millbrook Mirror's Opinion of Our Musical Artists

The Millbrook Mirror, in referring to the sacred concert recently given in that village, says:

"St. Paul's church choir, of Peterboro, consisting of thirty-two magnificent and well trained voices, had kindly offered to come and give the programme, and notwithstanding the very inclement weather, they did not disappoint those who had come to hear them. The choir, with their efficient leader, Mr. John Crane, and a number of friends, came by special train, and their visit to our pretty town will no doubt be long remembered by them. * * *

"The solos taken by Messrs. McIlroy and Dawson and the Misses Davies and Moore, were certainly very creditable. Especially did Miss Davies' rich and clear voice appeal to the audience in her brilliant rendering of her beautiful selection, 'I'm a Pilgrim,' and in the solo part in the famous 'Glory Song.' Miss Moore's delightful voice was perhaps heard to best advantage in her clever rendition of the solo part in that inspiring number, 'The Birthday of a King.'

"Words fail to express the appreciation our citizens and particularly the Presbyterian congregation and pastor feel towards St. Paul's choir and its splendid leader for such a delightful evening, and we hope they will favor us with another visit at no great distant date, when they would be greeted by a much larger but not a more appreciative audience than was present on Tuesday evening.

THE FIREMEN'S STATUS

A Correspondent Objects to Personal Attack on Mr. Larmouth

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—In the Review of last night appeared a letter over the signature "Black-head," in reference to the recent publication of a letter addressed to Mr. J. H. Larmouth, manager of the Peterboro Street Railroad.

The writer of this letter strikes a note that should resound throughout our city. He compares the action of the Street Railway Company in stopping our local firemen from riding free on their cars, with the noble work done by the Peterboro Fire Brigade.

In this matter it is hardly fair, perhaps, to personally accuse Mr. Larmouth of the contemptible mean action of refusing firemen free transportation. Mr. Larmouth is merely an employe of the Chicago syndicate owning the Peterboro Street Railroad, and has to do as he is told by them. I cannot but think, that by this time, after several years residence in Peterboro, Mr. Larmouth must know that our local Fire Brigade, as stated by "Black Head" work at all hours, practically for nothing, for the preservation of our town from fire, I cannot but believe, that if Mr. Larmouth had any real control of this branch of the Chicago company's possession, given by the town of Peterboro for a song, he would, impelled by public sentiment, keep his word as pledged to the firemen, after advising them to buy the buttons in now, probably under compulsion, repudiates as means of free transportation.

It is not fair to personally attack an individual for the actions of those by whom he is employed. It is now for the town to see if their employes cannot be carried free by the street cars which certainly did not a good thing out of an unscrupulous and easy going community.

FAIR PLAY.

MR. CHARLES RE-ELECTED

Popular Bank Manager Re-Elected President of Peterboro Industrial

Once more Mr. Hughes-Charles, manager of the local branch of Canadian Bank of Commerce, has been re-elected president of Peterboro's great fall exhibition management. In selecting so intelligent, capable, and well fitted an official as Mr. Charles has proved himself to be in the past, proves that the Peterboro Industrial Fair of next fall must be a success.

Mr. Hughes-Charles, as is well known to those of our fellow citizens in the know, as regards our local fair matters are concerned, is the right man in the right place. Not as a prominent banker is he altogether adapted to the position, but as a gentleman well qualified in others respects, and as a hustling, indefatigable worker for the local fall show, Mr. Hughes-Charles is without an equal.

At the annual meeting of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition Co., held in the Council Chamber with Mr. Hughes-Charles in the chair, their financial statement was presented and is as follows:—

Receipts—Balance from 1904, $626.64; balance cheques not passed, $45.41; Legislative grant, $438; county and city grants, $400; admission fees, $1,428.10; privileges, $163.50; miscellaneous, $80.50; donations, $176.50; entry fees, $349.85; rent paid by Turf Club, $152.50; bank overdraft, $23.47; miscellaneous receipts, $52.32; entry fees, races, $80; total, $4,368.49.

Payments—Prize cheques, $2,085.75; Dragoons, $338.15; band, $102.50; Howard's ponies and dogs, $125; races, $230; rent, light and buildings, $507.07; judges' expenses, $49.30; secretary and assistant, $105; working expenses, $169.43; advertising and printing, $434.54; total, $4,366.49.

This is a most satisfactory financial statement, and highly creditable to those gentlemen who, at the expense of much of their time and trouble, devoted many hours to the good of our city and county affairs.

Mr. Hughes-Charles, in presenting this statement, congratulated the members upon the good exhibition which was held last September, stating that, although financially they had apparently gone behind, still in other respects, the exhibition was on a much higher level than it had ever attained before. In all departments stock exhibits were superior to anything ever shown before in Peterboro, and it was stated by the judges who came from a distance that the organization and management were better than anything they had ever seen. "Considering that we paid out $2,002.75 in prize money and that our expenses in getting the grounds into proper shape were abnormally high last year we may well congratulate ourselves that our statement only shows a deficit of $23.47. The attendance considering the attractions offered, was very disappointing, and we hope in future that the citizens generally of the town and county, will show their appreciation of the efforts of the directors by attending in much larger numbers."

"We have to thank a number of the leading manufacturers of the town for their handsome donations to our funds, otherwise our deficit would have been much larger.

"I want to call the attention of the farmers to the following figures. All prizes are paid in cash, and for horses we paid $620 in prize money; cattle, $403; sheep, $166; swine, $71.00; and poultry, $163. We would like them to compare these amounts with what is paid by any other county or district exhibition."

Adverting to the above remarks made by the president, we have no hesitation in prophesying that next year, basing our prophesy on the general hearsay, we heard everywhere the attendance will be treble that of last year. It takes some time to get good men acquainted with the public, and for the public to appreciate their efforts, but the fall fair of Peterboro advertized its own success.

The financial statement was unanimously adopted.

COMPANY WOUND UP

Judge Weller Gives Order Winding Up Cold Storage & Provision Co.

A local concern, that promised not only on the part of its promoter, but also in general estimation to be a lively and live proposition has now gone through that process, very applicably known as "Winding and being wound up."

At the court house before his Honor Judge Weller, on the application of Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., on behalf of a number of shareholders an order was granted for the winding up of the Peterboro Cold Storage & Provision Co., Ltd. The judge held that the petition presented by Mr. E. B. Edwards, B.A., on behalf of the company itself could not be acted upon as it was without the authority of the shareholders and he refused to allow any costs of this or of any previous petition presented by Mr. Dumble, as it was also improperly launched. The petitions were opposed by a number of shareholders through Mr. D. O'Donnell. Mr. Poussette acting with him. As a result the money in the hands of the company would now be distributed amongst the shareholders after deducting the expenses to date.

Dr. Hamilton Cures Rheumatism

You Use His Mandrake and Butter milk Pills—He Guarantees Lasting Cure.

Rheumatism begins and ends in the blood which at no time is ever free from poison. But if the kidneys are healthy, they will filter out the wastes and poisons.

In case of rheumatism, the kidneys are not doing their work. As a result poisons crystalise around the joints and cause pain almost akin to torture.

There can be no cure, no permanent relief until the kidneys are stimulated. First get them into working order. For this purpose Dr. Hamilton's Pills excel all other remedies; they heal and strengthen the kidneys as no other poisons depart from the blood and all medicine can do. Once the kidneys are renewed by Dr. Hamilton's Pills the trace of rheumatism disappears.

No Case is Too Chronic to Yield to the Marvellous Influence of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I spent nearly three years experimenting with rheumatic remedies," writes Geo. P. Sunbury, of Portland "I had almost given up hope, when I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they completely cured me No remedy could be better."

You will never regret using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Get a supply today from your druggist, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

In Good Shape.

The Lindsay Central Exhibition Association appears to be in a flourishing condition. Last season the prize list was $200 greater than any previous year, yet there was a balance, after paying all expenses, of $78 on the right side of the ledger. This society has total assets of $11,978 and liabilities of $9,116. Here is food for reflection for those who are interested in the Peterboro Agricultural Show.

Steady Company

"The thing that makes newspaper and magazine advertising overshadow all forms of publicity in the minds of advertisers is the fact that definite knowledge of the results it brings can be obtained," observes Profitable Advertising. The merchant who makes intelligent use of the columns of a daily newspaper covering a productive field knows what the publicity is worth to him as well as he knows his own name. Mild December.

Report shows that December, 1905, was the mildest since 1891, the average temperature for the month being scarcely one degree below freezing point. The mean temperature for December, 1891 and 1902, was 17 above or 15 below freezing point, which does not seem so bad until one remembers that at times the mercury was far below zero. It is likely that the saving of coal in Ontario amounts to $300,000, as compared with the previous year.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL TO MEET ON TUESDAY

The House of Refuge Matter May Be Finally Disposedof.

The County Council will meet on Tuesday next in their half-yearly session. The most important question to come before the Council at this session will be the matter of the erection of a House of Refuge. The erection of an institution of this kind has been up for discussion quite a number of times in the County Council and on various occasions joint action between the City and County was proposed. The Norwood Register thinks that opinion seems to have changed considerably lately in this respect, and there seems to be a general feeling in favor of the County acting independently of the City. Many are of the opinion that it would be better for the County to erect and equip a building suitable to its own requirements, and not entangle its affairs with the City any further. A committee of prominent men from Norwood district will likely wait upon the Council and present the claims of Norwood as a central and convenient location for the institution, while Lakefield will also put up a fight for the institution.

A DUMMER WEDDING

Nuptials of Louisa Parker and Mr. T. J. Buck.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at "Spring Valley Farm," the residence of Mr. Robert Parker, on Wednesday, January 10th, at 6 o'clock, when his youngest daughter, Louisa, was united in matrimony to Thomas J. Buck, also of Dummer. The ceremony was performed under a handsome arch of carnations and evergreens, by the Rev. Mr. Johnston, of South Dummer, after which a sumptuous repast was partaken of. The bride's dress was of blue cord de chine, trimmed with white satin and lace. She carried a handsome bouquet of carnations and smilax, and was given away by her brother, W. R. Parker. The bridesmaid, Miss Annie McKay, cousin of the bride, was very becomingly dressed in white, while the groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. John Buck, of Asphodel. The young couple have taken up their abode on Mr. Buck's farm in Dummer, and are followed by the good wishes of a host of friends.

MAKING A MAN

Popular Lecture by Rev. Mr. Pedley of Toronto on January 26th

It will interest those of our readers who like interesting, amusing and clever lectures, and particularly those, who have already head, Rev. Mr. Pedley of Toronto, in his lecture entitled "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," to learn that the eloquent speaker will once more address a Peterboro audience.

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band of St. Paul's church, have secured Rev. Mr Pedley for Friday evening, January 26th. This well-known lecturer will at eight o'clock that evening, in St. Paul's church Sunday school, deliver his celebrated lecture, "Making of A Man."

The Sunday Funeral.

It is natural enough for the clergyman to desire to escape from the work incident to the so-called Christian burial on Sunday. That is his busy day, and when he adds a funeral to his other work, he has not much time to spare. But there are only a few clergymen, and there are many laymen who prefer Sunday funerals for the reason that they have more time to spare on that day than upon any other day. A week-day funeral involves the loss of half a day to every man who attends it, and there are few who can easily stand the consequent loss in wages. The greatest good to the greatest number is not a bad motto.

He Surprized Eliza.

A story was told The Times yesterday this is too good to lose. A well known farmer, who lives out the Douro way, had worn an old suit until everybody was tired of it, and his estimable wife was almost ashamed of him. But one day when selling produce in town he determined to buy a new suit and a happy thought struck him. He would surprise Eliza. So he bundled a new suit into the wagon, hurried towards home, and at the bridge at Nassau he stood up on the wagon and "peeled" and threw the despised old suit into the waters below. Then he reached for his new clothes. They were gone—had jolted out of the wagon! The night was cold and his teeth chattered as he skurried for home. He surprised Eliza even more than he anticipated.

Peterboro's Popular Auctioneer.

Millbrook Mirror: Tuesday was the most stormy day of the season. The wind blew harder than it has done since Joe Preston swept the riding. On Tuesday James Gardiner was to sell farm stock, etc., on the Fallis line. James was on the ground early, but the outlook was blew and James would not recognise it. A happy thought struck him, he crossed the road and rigged up A. Fallis' windmill to switch the wind, but the mill was blown down. Then James was angered and said, "This sale is postponed till next Tuesday when I will slaughter this man's goods as hath never been seen in these parts." So he hitched up his braces and, hearing no jingle in his pockets, departed sorrowing. But the wise farmer said, "I will line my pockets with checkies and return next Tuesday, for Gardiner will do as he saith.

WEDDED IN MANITOBA

Cavan Young Lady Married in the Prairie Province.

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday, January 9th, at three o'clock, in the Methodist church at Wellwood, Manitoba, when one of Cavan's most estimate young ladies, Miss Ada May Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Porter, of the 4th Line of Cavan, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. James Johnstone, a popular and prosperous young man of Wellwood.

The interesting ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Cruikshanks, pastor of the church.

As the sweet strains of the Wedding March (beautifully rendered by Miss Minnie Hutchinson), were heard, the groom entered the church, and took his place at the altar. The bride then entered, leaning on the arm of Mr. Jas McCullough, who gave her away.

The bride looked charming in her beautiful wedding gown of white cashmere with silk embroidered chiffon and pearl trimmings. A handsome bouquet of orange blossoms, carried by the bride, also added to the pleasing effect.

The ushers were Messrs. Robert Johnstone and N. Wright. The church was filled to the doors with well wishers of the happy couple who had come from far and near to witness the pleasing event.

After the ceremony was performed and congratulations extended, a sumptuous wedding delauner was served at the home of Mr. James McCullough.

The presents to the bride were both numerous and costly, an evidence of the high esteem in which she was held during her short acquaintance in Wellwood. Among the presents were a gold clock, a gold tray and a silver tea pot. The groom's present to the bride was a $100.00 check.

The Carbery cab drove out and conveyed the happy couple to the depot. They left on the 10.30 train for a two months' visit with friends at Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and other places, followed by the hearty good wishes of a host of friends.

The bride's travelling suit was of blue lady's cloth with velvet turban to match. After their return, Mrs. Johnstone will receive on and after April 9.

The Times joins with the numerous friends of the bride in this district in wishing her and Mr. Johnstone many years of prosperity and happiness.

DANGER AVERTED.

If a man should cross a deadly snake in his pathway, he would quickly crush it beneath his heel before it could sink its poisonous fangs into his flesh. He would not step out of the way and temporize with the danger.

Yet how many people are there who temporize with a still more deadly enemy—consumption. Like a silent serpent, it glides along almost unnoticed. First a cold, or sore throat, then a slight cough, then catarrh, then bronchitis, then bleeding from the lungs and finally death. The way to crush out the threatening evil is to fortify the system and purify the blood with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Every weakness and abnormal condition that prevails in no matter so named, by this non-alcoholic remedy. At the first sign of derangement of stomach, liver and blood, look out! It is only a question of time until the lungs will be attacked through the impure blood, and then the danger will be most deadly.

It should be known to every sick person that Dr. R. V. Pierce will give carefully considered, faithful, professional advice by mail to all who write him at Buffalo, N. Y. No charge or fee of any nature is asked.

Mr. Moses Horner of Shubletown, Penn'a, writes: "Last fall I took a severe cold (the result of two colds) and then bronchitis set in and remained which lasted all winter. I used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two or three vials of the "Pleasant Pellets," also one package of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. I am now cured. Many thanks to you."

An honest dealer will not try to persuade you to take a worthless substitute in place of the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the sake of a little added profit.

Militia Budget This Year Will Provide for Increase in the Force of Over 44,000---Training Plans.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—It is understood that Canada's military budget for the year 1906 will provide in the training establishments for the addition of two regiments each of cavalry and infantry and six new four-gun batteries of artillery to the active militia. The changes contemplated will make the militia establishment 44,801. The authorized strength of the permanent corps will be raised from 1,000 to 4,677, in order to provide for the new garrisoning of Halifax and Esquimalt, and for the new instruction schools that it is intended to establish. Canada's active forces, volunteer and permanent together, will then amount to 49,478.

The training establishments of the militia will be made up as follows: Cavalry, 6,125; artillery, 5,135; engineers, 708; guides, 185; infantry, 29,624; army service, 1,160; army medical, 1,568; signaling, 90. The training establishments of the permanent corps are as follows: Cavalry, 1,063; artillery, 1,505; engineers, 393; infantry, 1,256, army service, 150; army medical, 150; ordnance stores corps 160.

The new regiments of cavalry and infantry will all be raised in the New Provinces of the Canadian West. The new batteries will be located in the following places; Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, London, Peterboro, and the Eastern Townships.

It is proposed to transfer to the reserve the supernumerary officers and non-coms, which was decided to various corps throughout the country under Lord Dundonald's advice as the nucleus of a second line of defence. It had been intended to effect these reductions during 1905, but on account of a number of regiments having already trained with their supernumerary strength before the Departmental order was issued, the reduction was postponed for a year.

The action of the Department in this matter will involve a considerable cutting down of the number of officers attached.

The Militia Department will continue to receive during the coming year additions to its stock of up-to-date ordnance, including both eight-inch howitzer-pounders and field guns. The contract for these weapons was made two years ago in London, and has yet two years more to run.

A SUCCESSFUL BANK

Annual Meeting Develops Most Encouraging Reports.

Mr. J Turnbull, general manager, and the Board of Directors of the Bank of Hamilton have every reason for congratulation over the eminently successful outcome of last year's business.

At the annual shareholders' meeting held on the 15th inst, the directors of the Bank of Hamilton submitted an annual report of the bank's business done during the fiscal year ending 30th November, that will be hailed with joy by shareholders, management, depositors, and all having the prosperity of Canada's financial institutions at heart.

The profits of the bank, after deducting charges of management, and providing for all bad or doubtful debts, amounted to $367,273.12. A tidy sum was added to the bank's wealth by premiums on new stock sold, the premiums amounting to $205,421.

Those fortunate enough to hold stock in the Bank of Hamilton, hold a well paying investment as the bank last year declared two semi-annual dividends of 5 per cent., or ten per cent. per annum.

The assets of the Bank of Hamilton are of an especially high and conservative character; its assets, among others of equally assuring nature include good and silver coin, $470,022, and Dominion Government notes $1,150,114, besides due from other Canadian and American banks, $1,402,044, the total assets amounting to $29,891,049.

Last year has been the most successful during the thirty-four years history of the Bank of Hamilton, the net earnings on capital being 15.42 per cent.

During the past year new agencies were opened at College and Ossington streets, Toronto; Toronto Junction; Carberry, Kenton and Killarney, Man.; Battleford, Sask.; and at Fernie, B.C. Although some of these new agencies may seem to have been located in places containing but small populations, it must be remembered that one great function of a bank, is helping to move the farmers' crops, and these new agencies are mainly placed in rich agricultural centers, where there is great demand for the services of money lenders and discounters.

It was decided to issue $500,000 additional capital stock. The demand, even at 100 per cent. premium, was prompt and general.

The officers and directors were re-elected unanimously.

BEAUTIFUL RUSSIAN SPY

Popular Woman Must Answer Espionage Charge in Germany.

Berlin, January 20.—Mlle. Zinaida Smolianinoff, a beautiful young Russian woman, has been obliged to appear in court at Leipsig to answer the charge of perpetrating espionage in Germany on behalf of the Russian Government.

She has been a prominent figure in the most fashionable society of the German capital for several years past, and came here with warm letters of introduction from prominent Russians, describing her as a woman of noble family with great literary accomplishments.

Mlle. Smolianinoff passed as a woman of independent means, who dabbled in literature for her own pleasure. She is of distinguished appearance, gay and fascinating manners, and was a great social success. She made many friends among officers and high state dignitaries.

The result of the espionage will probably be revealed by the proceedings at the Leipsig court before the case is ended. Many former friends in high society have been summoned to give evidence against Mlle. Smolianinoff, and sensational revelations are expected in the event of her conviction.

NEW USES FOR ALUMINUM

Output Constantly Increased to Keep Up With the Demand.

Niagara Falls, January 20.—More aluminum is manufactured in Niagara Falls than in any other place in the world. It was on August 26, 1895, that the works at Niagara Falls started operation, and in the ten years that have passed the development has been wonderful, greatly benefiting for in the modern method of making steel aluminum is used in small quantities. Usually from two to five ounces of aluminum are put in each ton of open hearth steel made, and from six to eight ounces into a ton of Bessemer steel. In fact, had every ton of steel made in the United States in 1904 been subjected to this treatment, something like 5,000,000 pounds of aluminum would have been consumed by the steel industry alone.

In 1894 8,000,000 pounds of aluminum were made in the United States, an increase of 1,100,000 pounds over 1903. In 1902 the output in the United States was 7,000,000 pounds. The output in 1903 is of particular interest, because of the fact that twenty years before that the output was only eighty-three pounds, and at the end of the first decade of manufacture in 1895, only 139,620 pounds were made.

Every day aluminum is applied to new uses, increasing the consumption to a wonderful degree. Aluminum paper is one of the latest products, and it is said to be far superior to tin foil and similar articles. Aluminum is used for household utensils as well as those for military purposes. In textile mill work aluminum spools and bobbins are very popular, and as a setting for lenses aluminum is much lighter than brass. It is used on railway cars, on locomotives, lithographic plates, letter boxes, in patented explosives, for making acid carboys, and many other chemical vessels.

SHORTAGE IN HOGS

Messrs. Geo. Matthews Co. May Have To Reduce Their Brantford Output.

In addition to the difficulty experienced in Ottawa and Hull, by Messrs. Geo. Matthews & Co., by shortage in hogs, and in which cities, as noted in The Times a few days since, the company may, for a time have to partly close down, there now seems to be the same trouble at Brantford.

The Brantford Expositor in reference to it, says:—

"The Matthews Packing Company, of this city, are barely running over one half their capacity at the present time. It was stated in some circles that this was due to the embargo against American hogs. Mr. Matthews was seen by the Expositor this afternoon, and asked concerning conditions.

"It is true that we are only running to a limited capacity," said Mr. Matthews. "No, I would not care to say that it is altogether due to the embargo. We cannot get Canadian hogs at all."

"Mr. Matthews did not care to make any comment upon what he thought future conditions would be like. He was of the opinion that certain Toronto newspapers, notably the Farmers' Sun and the Toronto World, were trying to make themselves favored among the farmers at the expense of the packers."

POLICE COURT NEWS

At 8.20 Saturday night, as P.C. Adams was on his beat, he found a gentleman hailing from Lindsay, collapsed on the pavement near the National Hotel. The member from Scugogville, had taken in a round of local hotels, sampling not wisely but too well, of their wares. He is evidently not posted on the different brand of red-eye sold here, and the Scugog diluted farmers' joy is as accustomed to.

The sturdy guardian of the peace, tried to awaken the Lindsay man, but he was too far gone from blamistures of various hotel products. The constable had to play a lone hand in the game of shouldering and carrying sacks of grain or other burdens, and toted his slumbering load to the hotel den cops. Explanations will be in order this morning at the police court.

Alex. Duncan, of Brantford, was charged, at Saturday morning's police court, with being drunk and having used bad language on Friday night in a local hotel. The proprietor gave evidence to Duncan's having used such bad language he had been compelled to telephone the police.

Duncan pleaded for "a chance." "Let me go won't you please mister, I was never arrested in my life before." The magistrate, replied, "Well you have come to a bad town to start in on. $2 to be paid forthwith." Duncan not having the simoleons in his jeans was led down stairs and sent out to try and raise the $2.

As Duncan's friends did not seem to be in anxious and immediate need of his services, they failed to put up the $2. This however will be paid the evening of the 24th inst, thus saving Duncan from putting in the whole ten days, which was alternative of the fine being paid.

COUNCIL AT CHURCH

Mayor and Aldermen Hear Good Sermon at George St. Church.

Last night by invitation, the Mayor and aldermen of Peterboro, attended in a body, the George street Methodist church.

Rev. Dr. Torrance of St. Paul's church, preached an eloquent sermon, at this annual function, replete with good practical views on the proper performance of their civic duties.

The Mayor and his civic parliament met at the city clerk's office, shortly before seven o'clock, and proceeded to the pews specially reserved for them. All present greatly appreciated the rev. doctor's well timed remarks.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

To Arrange Excursions for Annual Meeting Next Summer.

Officers and members of East and West Peterboro Farmers' Institutes are now concluding arrangements for a joint meeting of their several executives here, on Feb. 3rd.

This meeting will be called to consider the question of the annual excursion for the coming summer.

The principle point to be considered will be, where the excursion will be run to. At the present time Guelph seems to lead in the matter of choice, Niagara Falls holding second place. Owing to the advantages accruing from a visit to the Agricultural College in the Royal City, Guelph is a probable winner.

If it is decided to visit Guelph, June 14 will, in all probability be the date selected.

Mr. William Collins, secretary of the local institute, is making the arrangements for the meeting of the executives.

A SAD DEATH

Miss Mina M. Daubaz Succumbs to Appendicitis.

The many friends in this city and district of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Daubaz, 539 Reid street, will unite in heartfelt condolence with them in their great loss sustained on Saturday.

Their eldest daughter, Miss Mina Magdalen Daubaz passed away in the Nicholls Hospital, on Saturday morning, as the result of an attack of appendicitis.

It seems that an operation was performed upon the late Miss Daubaz on Tuesday last for appendicitis, which was successful, and she was on a fair way to recovery, but complications set in and she died from the effects on Saturday. The deceased is survived by her parents and one sister, Miss Edith, who lives at home. Miss Daubaz has four brothers, viz, Jas. Crawford, Ottomian, Walter, of Toronto, and Richard and Charles, of Lakefield. The funeral which will take place today at 2.30 to the Little Lake cemetery, will be strictly private.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY

Large Electric Co. of Indiana Seeking Location for their Factory.

Peterboro is now, through her city fathers in communication with still another large industry that is seeking a location.

The chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, Ald. McWilliams, has received, and replied, to a request from the concern, whose headquarters are in Indiana, asking for information in reference to the advantages offered by Peterboro for a Canadian branch of their business. This firm, which manufacturers electrical supplies and appliances, is anxious to open a factory in Canada, and considers Peterboro as a desirable location.

The letter received by Mr. McWilliams, bore more urgently upon transportation facilities of both raw and finished materials than upon the amount of bonus, if any, required to procure the industry.

As yet nothing definite has been given or asked as to the number of hands to be employed, but those in the know are favorably impressed by the correspondence.

WORKS WITHOUT FAITH

Faith Came After the Works Had Laid the Foundation.

A Bay State belle talks thus about coffee:

"While a coffee drinker I was a sufferer from indigestion and intensely painful nervous headaches, from childhood.

"Seven years ago my health gave out entirely. I grew so weak that the exertion of walking, if only a few feet, made it necessary for me to lie down. My friends thought I was marked for consumption—weak, thin and pale.

"I realized the danger I was in and tried faithfully to get relief from medicines, till, at last, after having employed all kinds of drugs, the doctor acknowledged that he did not believe it was in his power to cure me.

"While in this condition a friend induced me to quit coffee and try Postum Food Coffee, and I did so without the least hope that it would do me any good. I did not like it at first, but when it was properly made I found it was the most delicious and refreshing beverage. I am especially fond of it served at dinner ice-cold, with cream.

"In a month's time I began to improve, and in a few weeks my indigestion ceased to trouble me, and my headache stopped entirely. I am so perfectly well now that I do not look like the same person, and I have so gained in flesh that I am 15 pounds heavier than ever before.

"This is what Postum has done for me. I still use it and shall always do so." Name given by Postum Co, Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

OLDEST CONVICT IN STATE

William Kelly Celebrates 89th Birthday in Sing Sing.

New York, January 20. — William Kelly celebrated yesterday in Sing Sing his 89th birthday. He is the oldest convict in the State, and has been incarcerated longer than any person now in the New York State institution.

Kelly was placed behind the bars 34 years and four months ago, for murder in the second degree, committed in Queen's County. The judge, and, so far as is known, all the jurors have long since died.

After Kelly had been in prison for a little more than twenty years, he became stone blind. For twelve years he sat in darkness. Then a New York professor visited Sing Sing. In passing through the hospital ward, he noticed the blind convict.

"I should think this case ought to be cured," remarked the specialist. Kelly agreed to an operation, saying he could not be any blinder. The operation was a success, and the old man's sight was completely restored.

CZAR'S LUCKY ESCAPE

Anniversary of the Event to Be Observed.

St. Petersburg, January 20. — The miraculous escape from assassination of the Czar and the other members of the royal family on the nineteenth day of January last year was celebrated here yesterday by impressive thanksgiving services in all the churches. This being the day of Epiphany, when, according to an ancient custom the Czar, being the head of the Greek Churches of Russia, blesses the waters of the Neva, the whole city was in holiday attire. The blessing of the Neva is one of the greatest and most popular celebrations of Russia, and usually attracts many thousands of people from all parts of the country. This year the ceremony was not as elaborate as in former years and greater precautions were taken to prevent a repetition of the attempt upon the life of the Czar, which marred the festivities last year.

The ceremony of blessing the waters of the river had just ended, about one o'clock in the afternoon of January 19, 1905, and the Czar still stood in the little chapel built over the frozen Neva, in front of the Winter palace, surrounded by members of the diplomatic corps and high dignitaries of the state, when the salute from the batteries on the big square in front of the Bourse was fired. A perfect hail of shot, as big as pigeons eggs, struck the chapel, narrowly missing the Czar and the members of the imperial family, who occupied the windows and balconies of the palace, overlooking the scene of the ceremony.

An investigation showed that a full load of grapeshot had been fired from one of the cannons on the place in front of the Bourse. The gun had been carefully trained on the chapel, which stood in a line with the palace and it was considered a miracle that neither the Czar nor any member of his family was killed or injured. Many windows of the palace were shattered by the grape shots, but not a single person was injured. The police arrested the officers and men attending the battery and the latter were afterwards court martialled. It was never ascertained whether the firing of the grapeshot was an accident or intentional. The theory was advanced that the gun had been held in readiness for an attack by the mob of strikers and had been loaded with grapeshot, and that it had been neglected to remove the grape shell and substitute a blank cartridge when the time came to fire the salute.

APPEAL FOR MISSIONS

Mr. Hodgins of Toronto Delivers Address in St. John's Church.

Yesterday might have been termed Laymen's Day in St. John's church. At the morning service, Mr. Hodgins, of the Home Missions' Board of the Church of England, Toronto, instead of the usual sermon by the rector, delivered a spirited address on the subject of missions. During his address, Mr. Hodgins made a strong appeal for the missions and missionaries, saying that there was a lamentable weakness both in men and funds in this branch of the church's work. He asked young men to enter into the service of the church. After the collection had been taken in, the whole congregation, in honor of the King's accession anniversary, on their feet, sang, with great fervour, "God Save the King." The evening service was also characterised by a layman's address, namely along the same line as that of the morning.

PROPHETS AT HOME

Toronto the Home of Ontario's Temperance Party Went "Wet"

Commenting on the recent electoral snow fall which buried the Toronto advocates of reduction of hotel and shop licenses, particularly the latter, the Brockville Recorder says:

Toronto is the home of the Dominion Alliance.

Toronto is the home of F. S. Spence, the alliance secretary, as well as of G. F. Marter, its president.

Toronto is the home of the Pioneer, the alliance newspaper.

Toronto is the center of the W.C.T.U.

Toronto is the home of Dr. Chown.

Toronto is the home of the Globe, the News, the Star, the Telegram, that have told Ontario just what they ought to do with the liquor trade.

But the combined energy of all these forces could not induce their neighbors of Toronto, their home, to reduce even by twenty per cent. the number of places where liquor is sold in that city.

They seem to be long-range moral reformers whose greatest influence is farthest from home.

We have received a handsome illustrated programme of European travel. Free copies will be sent on application to the Rev. Dr. Withrow, Toronto.

Venezuela Now Preparing For Fight

Belligerent Attitude is Displayed by Both Parties---Venezuela's Peculiar Position as to Customs Revenue.

Willemstadt, Curacao, Jan. 22. — The Venezuelan Government is actively engaged in garrisoning the ports of the republic and in furnishing the troops with supplies.

According to the advices received here the general public in Venezuela received the news of the rupture of diplomatic relations between Venezuela and France with the utmost indifference, but diplomatic circles at Caracas are indignant at the action of the Venezuelan Government in not allowing Mr. Taigny, the retiring French charge d'affaires, to return to the shore after he had gone on board the French line steamer Martinique at La Guaira, Jan. 14, in order to obtain his correspondence.

The Venezuelan Government is considering a project for laying a cable between La Guaira and Porto Rico.

DEPENDS ON WASHINGTON.

Paris, Jan. 22.—The apparent hesitation in France's decision relative to Venezuela appears to be prompted by the desire not to begin active measures without first receiving the advice of the authorities at Washington. For this purpose Ambassador Jusserand has been fully instructed regarding his Government's point of view, which he is laying before the American Government.

The officials here agreed that France is somewhat hampered owing to Venezuela's peculiar situation, the foreign claims upon the customs being regarded as putting a blockade almost out of the question. It is feared that if France stopped commerce with the exterior President Castro would immediately seize this as a pretext for refusing to comply with Venezuela's obligations towards other nations.

It is admitted that preparations are going on for reinforcing the French squadron, but the object of this step is still undefined.

This much is regarded as certain—France's next move will depend on the result of Jusserand's conferences at Washington.

The French Cable Company has not had any communication with Venezuela for two days and is not aware whether the rest of its agents have been expelled.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

THE TURF.

Keep your memory fixed on the great winter races. They begin tomorrow, and continue through Wednesday. The horses are here now, and are the best bunch Peterboro has ever had gathered together in this county. The track is in grand shape, the management have completed all arrangements for this meeting being the best on record. These races which will be good, clean, fast Canadian sport, help as much as anything in sports to advertise Peterboro abroad. The races, however, not only run for wind, but for $600 good hard dollars, cannot be run on hot-air. Every man should bring his wife or best girl to the Driving Park, and, both by their presence and entry fee, encourage good clean winter sport.

HOCKEY.

The Cobourgs have evidently weakened. As noted in Saturday's issue of The Times, the Cobourg team was to have played here Monday night. However, on Saturday, they notified the local club that they would not be on hand. This gives the local club another game to their credit, but Peterboro prefers to win by merit than default. Cobourg gave no reasons for their action. The standing of the clubs in this district is now as follows, owing to Cobourg not coming:

	Won	Lost	To Play
Peterboro	5	0	2
Port Hope	1	3	4
Cobourg	1	4	2

MOROCCO ON WARPATH.

INDIAN GETS RECEIPT

Sturdy Descendant of the Race of Hunters, Declined to Hunt Through Hades.

A few days ago, an Indian from a Rice Lake reservation was in the city on business. During his calls on various places of business, this descendant of the original owners of the country, although prohibited from such attainments of an effete civilization, managed to lay in a sufficient stock of wet goods to render him over cautious.

The Indian owed some money to a George street merchant, and came in to pay his bill. After doing so he wanted a receipt. In vain the merchant told him a receipt was unnecessary. "Me must have to show me owe you nothing," said the Indian. "Me go to heaven and the lord ask injun if he pay debts. Injun says yes. Lord ask injun where is receipt. What injun do? Can't go all over Hades to look for you." He got the receipt.

COMING THIS WAY.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—The police have been asked to arrest Fred L. Durbar, jr., a mulatto, who is wanted on the charge of murdering E. H. Fisher, a prominent merchant of Salley, South Carolina.

Durbar is thought to have friends in Toronto. Rewards of $200 by Governor Hayward, and $300 by Fisher's friends, have been offered.

ONTARIO DAIRY OUTPUT

Improved in Quality---Value Increased Seven or Eight Million Dollars.

Toronto, January 20.—Reports from dairy instructors throughout the province indicate that the work of the past season has been most gratifying to producers, proprietors and makers. While there has been greater uniformity in the cheese products, and some advance in the quality, there has been also a much more marked betterment in the quality of the butter. The butter shipped to the Old Country has never been better than this year. It is expected that the dairy products of Ontario this year will show an increase in value over those of last year of between seven and eight million dollars.

UNEASY FEELING CREATED

France and Germany, Through Their Delegates, Unable to Get Inkling of Scope of Each Other's Intentions.

Algeciras, Jan. 22.—Behind the screen of amiability that envelops the relations of the envoys of the powers to the Moroccan conference, a rising feeling of distrust is observed, due seemingly to the unwillingness of both France and Germany to define their positions beyond reaffirming now somewhat wearisomely their adherence to the open door, the sovereignty of the Sultan and the integrity of his territories.

The French delegates in all their conversational reconnaissances with their opponents, have been unable to learn precisely what is the position of Germany, nor apparently have the German representatives been able to ascertain the joint intentions of France and Great Britain.

Extreme caution and lack of confidence have begun to destroy the favorable atmosphere for negotiation which was created by the courtesies and assurances of the first day. There is a feeling among the ambassadors of the less interested powers that trouble is in sight.

The Moroccan delegates have become cognizant of this and take satisfaction therefrom.

All Thin, Pale Women

Can Learn the Cause of Their Nervous, Used-up Condition

With women, ill-health is usually traceable to nerve exhaustion. Feeling run-down and tired most of the time is nature's warning that more nerve-force is required.

You must build up, nourish the body, vitalize the nerves, get more flesh and blood.

It's the abundant nutriment and building material in Ferrozone that enables it to cure so many sick women. It increases the appetite, adds weight and strength, restores lost color and develops a surplus of energy and nerve force that defies sickness of any kind. There is living proof in Mrs. Daniel Ferguson, Jr., of Prescott, Ont. Read her statement:

"A year ago my health failed. I grew thin and exceedingly pale. At night it was difficult to obtain restful sleep. My appetite was variable and indigestion bothered me considerably. I became morose and suffered from heart palpitation. You could scarcely believe the benefit I derived in one week from Ferrozone. Color came back to my cheeks. My vitality and appetite increased, renewed nerve force and better spirits came also. Ferrozone did a world of good and made me well.

Remember this: No alcoholic stimulant can nourish and build up like Ferrozone. Fifty cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

SELECTIONS

A PARENT'S PLEA

My little boy is eight years old.
He goes to school each day;
He doesn't mind the tasks they set;
They seem to him but play.
He heads his class at raffia work
And also takes the lead
At making dinky paper boats—
But I wish that he could read.

They teach him physiology,
And, oh, it chills our hearts
To hear our prattling innocent
Mix up his inward parts!
He also learns astronomy
And names the stars by night—
Of course he's very up to date,
But I wish that he could write.

They teach him things botanical;
They teach him how to draw;
He babbles of mythology
And gravitation's law,
And the discoveries of science
With him are quite a fad.
They tell me he's a clever boy,
But I wish that he could add.

—Life.

Wordsworth's "Jobe."

A rare old book, called "The Living Authors of England," published in 1820, commences with a study of Wordsworth, in which is recorded what is said to be the only joke the poet ever made. At a friend's house after dinner, it appears, the conversation turned upon wit and humor. Thomas Moore, who was present, told some anecdotes of Sheridan, whereupon Wordsworth observed that he did not consider himself a witty poet. "Indeed," he said, "I do not think I was ever witty but once in my life."

Being pressed to tell the company what this special drollery was, the poet said, with some hesitation: "Well, I will tell you. I was standing some time ago at the entrance of my cottage at Rydal Mount when a man accosted me with the question, 'Pray, sir, have you seen my wife pass by?' whereupon I answered, 'Why, my good friend, I didn't know till this moment that you had a wife!'"

The company stared and upon realizing that this was all there was to the poet's joke burst into a roar of laughter, which Wordsworth smilingly accepted as a genuine compliment to the brilliancy of his wit.

He Had Reference.

In her book "A Southern Girl In '61" Mrs. D. Giraud Wright tells a capital story about General John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky. He was invited by a certain lady of rank in London to luncheon. The lady had just advertised for a footman. Mistaking the hour, General Breckinridge reached the house before the appointed time and by some accident was ushered into Lady Blank's presence without being announced. The day was in June. Owing to the heat the blinds were drawn, letting in subdued light. Lady Blank, glancing at the advancing figure, to the astonishment of the visitor, greeted him thus: "Have you a reference from your last place?" The general took in the situation instantly and, with a twinkle in his eye, unobserved by the hostess, answered respectfully, "Yes, my lady." "What were your duties?" was the next query. "Well, my lady, in the last three places I held I was vice president of the United States, major general in the Confederate army and secretary of war of the Confederate States of America."

When Lincoln Had Few Friends.

In 1864 Lincoln was of all men the least commended by the Republicans in congress. On one occasion an editor visiting Washington asked Senator Thaddeus Stevens to introduce him to some members of congress who were favorable to Lincoln's re-election. Stevens led him to the desk of Mr. Arnold of Illinois. "There," said he, "is the only Lincoln member of congress that I know!" Stevens himself regarded Lincoln as incompetent and weak. Henry Wilson (afterward vice president) spoke of him as politically a failure. Greeley had a low opinion of his ability. His personal friends, such as Washburn, Raymond and Thurlow Weed, believed his re-election an impossibility. Even Lincoln himself at one time doubted it.—H. T. Peck in Bookman.

The Lord's Prayer.

The question having arisen as to whether the English version of the Lord's Prayer is a true reproduction of the original as found in Matthew, a native Greek scholar proceeds to answer it. He deals with the petitions in order, translates each word with all the shades of meaning of the original and then presents the whole in this form:

"Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name—thy dominion come—thy (fixed) purpose be done, as in heaven, so, too, on earth. Give us this day our mere (or simple) bread and forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors theirs, and let us not fall into a tempter's snare, but deliver us from the evil one."

Very Lively.

A London paper relates that a crowd of sightseers scurrying across the road from the Strand caused a partial block in the traffic. The lagging of a particularly pompous old gentleman roused the ire of a held up cabby. "Now, then, hurry up there, can't yer?" he shouted. "Am I not hurrying, cabman?" was the mild expostulation.

"'Urryin'?" snorted cabby, with a flick of his whip. "You're a-jumpin' about like a bit o' stickin' plaster!"

A Diplomatic Answer.

Admiral Drake when a lad at the beginning of his first engagement was observed to shake and tremble very much and, being rallied upon it, observed with a presence of mind, or, at all events, of humor, in which even Nelson was lacking, "My flesh trembles at the anticipation of the many and great dangers into which my resolute and undaunted head will lead me."

First Treaty of Portsmouth.

The first treaty of Portsmouth, N. H., was signed July 11, 1712, the contracting parties being belligerent Indians and the whites. The news of the treaty of Utrecht, which ended Queen Anne's war, reached the city Oct. 29, 1712. The Indians desired a treaty, and it was formally signed on the above date.

Learning a Lesson.

Judge—You are charged with assault and battery. What have you to say? Prisoner—Not a word, yeronner. It was sayin' too much got me into this scrape.

Quite a Feat.

Judge—Who bit your ear off? Mrs. Black (wishing to protect her husband)—I—I did it mahself.

An obstinate man does not hold opinions—they hold him.—Butler.

The Directors have pleasure in pointing out that, after paying the customary 10 per cent. dividend, they have been able to place to Reserve Fund, out of profits, the substantial sum of $125,000. The year's earnings are, in the opinion of the Directors, very satisfactory indeed, considering that out of the year's profits, the maximum estimated loss ($90,000) which the Bank has sustained by the embezzlement and forgeries of T. Hillhouse Brown has been provided for.

The Directors beg to report that the progress of the Bank still continues in a marked degree, and that, while they had thought it prudent to open during the year a few new branches in Ontario and Manitoba, in recognition of the rapid development of the country, they had mostly confined themselves to the strengthening and building up of the business at the various points at which offices had already been established. It is proposed, however, to ask of the Shareholders at the Annual Meeting, power to increase the Capital of the Bank by $500,000, in order that the Directors, in case it become advisable, may be in a position thus to provide for the future growth of the Bank's business.

The Directors have noted the growing tendency, on the part of Banks and other Corporations, to pay dividends quarterly, and believing that such a practice may become more or less general, have decided to adopt it, and propose hereafter to declare dividends every three months.

WM. GIBSON,
President.

Bank of Hamilton,
Hamilton, November 30th, 1905.

J. TURNBULL,
General Manager.

In moving the adoption of the annual report, Hon. Mr. Gibson said:

Gentlemen,—Your Board of Directors has to express the pleasure they have in being able to present the report to the shareholders. During the whole history of the bank, covering a period of thirty-four years, this year would have been the best and the most successful that we have ever enjoyed but for the unfortunate incident in connection with our east end branch in this city. Had that not occurred, our net earnings would have been 19.30 per cent. on our capital, and notwithstanding that we had to make provision for that loss the net earnings of the year are 15.45. After deducting the loss of $90,000 already referred to, our earnings for the year are considerably greater than the average for the past ten years. In the period from 1875 to 1885 the rate of earnings was 10.1; 1885 to 1895, 11.05; 1895 to 1905, 12.80. I invite the attention of the shareholders to the fact that every dollar earned by the bank, except what has been carried to rest, has been paid to the shareholders, and that the misfortune of the past year in the east end branch is likely to fall on the employes more heavily than upon the shareholders, for, as you know, though the bank has had under consideration, and it is still its intention, to establish a pension system, such has not yet been begun.

During the year new agencies have been opened at College and Ossington streets, Toronto; Toronto Junction; Carberry, Keston, and Killarney, Man.; Battleford, Sask.; and at Fernie, B.C. While we have been somewhat conservative in opening new branches, we have been endeavoring to strengthen those where we already have agencies. It may be said that some of the places where we have opened branches are small in the manner of population, but it must be remembered that they are in growing centers, surrounded by rich country, and that the prospect for increased business in the future is very bright. The directors have great faith in the country. I am very glad to notice that the bank is popular with the investing public. Last year there were 645 shareholders on our books, and this year the number is 713, showing that the stock is going into the hands of investors.

At the same time we have made 68 new friends for the bank.

By the report I have just read you will see that it is proposed to increase the capital stock by $500,000. During the last six months a quarter of a million dollars was taken up at a premium of 100 per cent. The same care will be exercised in issuing the new stock only as the business of the bank requires it.

Now in regard to the incident in the east end. Much comment and criticism have been indulged in. I may draw away from the country at the time, but I want to say for the members of the board that they acted like men in the best interests of the public and of the bank. The board determined to give the public the result as soon as the result could be ascertained. Our inspection is as rigid as that of other banks. We can do something with the staff of the bank when the agent is honest, but when the agent is not honest, and adds forgery to his stealings, the bank is largely at his mercy. You have to trust the people employed by you, and we have to depend on the fidelity of our agents, and while one man has proven false, the 300 other employes of the bank have not, and we have confidence in them. You may say that the inspection is not rigid enough. I believe that you may have too much inspection. If you let an agent think that he is being spied upon he will probably sit and do nothing, and your business is bound to suffer. Now, in regard to quarterly dividends I need not say much—they cannot come too often.

Mr. John Proctor seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

On motion of Mr. Samuel Barker, M.P., seconded by John A. Brown, the following motion was unanimously carried:

"That the thanks of this meeting be given to the President and Directors for their services during the past half year." Carried and replied to by Hon. Mr. Gibson.

Mr. W. A. Robinson moved, seconded by Dr. Russell:

"That the thanks of this meeting be given to the General Manager, Assistant General Manager, Inspectors, Agents, and other officers of the bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties."

This was carried and responded to by Mr. Turnbull.

Hon. Mr. Gibson moved the adoption of the by-law to increase the capital stock from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000. Mr. John Proctor seconded the resolution, and it was carried unanimously.

The Scrutineers reported the following gentlemen unanimously elected Directors for 1906: Hon. William Gibson, John Proctor, Hon. J. S. Hendrie, George Rutherford, Cyrus A. Birge, C. C. Dalton, and J. Turnbull.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Hon. Wm. Gibson was re-elected President and Mr. J. Turnbull Vice President.

The Lust of Hate

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc., Etc.

I nodded. For the life of me, I could not have spoken just then. The sight of that agonized face before me and the thought of the dead child lying in the cave behind me deprived me of speech entirely. Miss Maybourne noticed my condition, and simply said, "Take me to her." I did as she commanded, and together we went back to the chamber of death. When we reached it, my companion stood for a few moments looking at the peaceful little figure on the couch of grass, and then knelt down beside it. I followed her example. Then, holding my hand in hers, she prayed for the child from whose body the soul had just departed; then for ourselves still left upon the island. When she had finished, we rose, and, after a final glance at our dead companion, went out into the open air again.

By this time I had got so much into the habit of searching the sea for ships that I did it almost unconsciously. As I passed the cave I glanced out across the waste of water. Then I stood still, hardly able to believe the evidence of my eyes. There, fast rising above the horizon, were the sails of a full-rigged ship. Miss Maybourne saw them as soon as I did, and together we stood staring at the vessel with all our eyes. My companion was the first to speak.

"Do you think she will come near enough to see us?" she cried, in a voice I hardly recognized, so agitated was it.

"She must be made to see us," I answered, fiercely, "Come what may, she must not pass us."

"What are you going to do? How are you going to prevent it? Tell me, and let me help you if I can."

A notion had seized me, and I determined to put it into practice without an instant's delay.

"Let us collect all the wood we can find and then make a large bonfire. When that has been done, we must launch the boat and pull out to intercept her. If she sees the flare she will make her way here, and if she does not, we may be able to catch her before she gets out of our reach. Thus in either case we shall be saved.

Without another word we set to work collecting wood. By the time the hull of the vessel was above the horizon we had accumulated a sufficient quantity to make a large beacon. We did not set fire to it at once, however, for the reason that I had no desire to waste my smoke before those on board the ship would be able to distinguish it from the light clouds hovering about the peaks above. But before we could dream of leaving the island there were two other matters to be attended to. The first was to fill up the mouth of the cave with stones, for there was no time to dig a grave, and so convert it into a rough sepulchre; the second was to cook and eat our breakfast. It was certain we should require all our strength for the undertaking, and to attempt such a long row on an empty stomach would, I knew, be worse than madness. These things I explained to Miss Maybourne, who willingly volunteered to officiate as cook while I set about the work first mentioned. In something less than a quarter of an hour I had rolled several large rocks into the mouth of the cave, and upon these had placed others until the entrance was effectually barricaded. By the time this work was completed it was necessary to light the bonfire. This I did, setting fire to the dry grass at the bottom with a log from the blaze at which Miss Maybourne had just been cooking. In a few minutes we had a flare the flames of which could not have been less than twenty feet in height.

We ate our breakfast with our eyes fixed continually upon the advancing ship. So far she seemed to be heading directly for the island, but my fear was that she might change her course without discovering our beacon, and in that case be out of range before we could attract her attention. Our meal finished therefore, I bid Miss Maybourne down the hill to the beach, and then between us we pushed the lifeboat into the water. My intention was to row out a few miles and endeavor to get into such a position that whatever course the vessel steered she could not help but see us.

As soon as we had pushed off from the shore I turned the boat's head, and taking up the oars, set to work to pull out to sea. It was not altogether an easy task, for the boat was a heavy one and the morning was strangely warm. The sky overhead was innocent of cloud, but away to the west it presented a hazy appearance; the look of which I did not altogether like. However, I stuck to my work, all the time keeping my eyes fixed on the rapidly advancing ship. She presented a fine appearance, and it was evident she was a vessel of about three thousand tons. I hoped she would turn out to belong to our own nationality, though under the circumstances any other would prove equally acceptable. At present she was distant from us about six miles, and as she was still heading directly for the island I began to feel certain she had observed our signal. For this reason I pointed my boat's head straight for her and continued to pull with all the strength I possessed. Suddenly Miss Maybourne uttered a little cry, and seeing her staring in a new direction I turned in my seat to discover what had occasioned it.

"She is leaving us," cried my companion, in agonized tones, pointing to the vessel we had been attempting to intercept. "Look, look, Mr. Wrexford, she is leaving us!"

There was no need for her to bid me look, I was watching the ship with all my eyes. Heaven alone knows how supreme was the agony of that moment. She had gone about, and for this reason it was plain that those on board had not seen our signal. Now unless I could manage to attract her attention, it would be most unlikely that she would see us. In that case we might die upon the island without a chance of escape. At any cost we must intercept her. I accordingly resumed my seat again and began to pull wildly after her. Fortunately the breeze was light and the sea smooth, otherwise I should have made no headway at all. But when all was said and done, [illegible] it was but little that I could accomplish. The boat, as I have already said, was a large and heavy one, and my strength was perhaps a little undermined by all I had gone through in the last two or three days. But, knowing what depended on it, I toiled at the oars like a galley slave, while Miss Maybourne kept her eyes fixed upon the retreating ship. At the end of an hour I was obliged to give up the race as hopeless. My strength was quite exhausted, and our hoped-for saviour was just showing hull down upon the horizon. Realizing this I dropped my head on to my hands like the coward I was and resigned myself to my despair. For the moment I think I must have forgotten that I was a man. I remembered only the fact that a chance had been given us of escaping from our prison, and that just as we were about to grasp it, it was snatched away again. Our fate seemed too cruel to be endured by mortal man.

"Courage, friend, courage," said Miss Maybourne, as she noticed my condition. "Bitter as our disappointment has been we have not done with hope yet. Because that vessel did not chance to rescue us it does not follow that another may not do so. Had we not better be getting back to the island? It is no use our remaining here now that the ship is out of sight."

DORES-MONTGOMERY MINING COMPANY OF BULLFROG, NEVADA

The undersigned is pleased to announce to the investors of Canada that he has been appointed Canadian Fiscal Agent of the above company, and is offering a limited amount of treasury stock at 25c. per share for development work. This property is just 1800 feet southwest of the famous Montgomery Shoshone mine and both have unquestionably the same vein. The group shows a well defined vein cropping out through, and it is a perfect fissure. A six inch talc seam on the hanging wall gives high values. We have also several other ledges, and it is only a matter of development work to make this property equal to any producer in the section.

The management of the Montgomery Shoshone conservatively estimates that the mines has produced $700,000 worth of ore. If this is right, the ore from the mines has averaged about $975 a ton, or about $1826 for every foot of sinking, the mines being 4 x 7 in clear.

Ore from the mines running less than $250 is thrown over the dump as milling ore. No less than 150 tons of ore has been shipped from this mine, all of it coming from the mines. Another shipment of 50 tons or more will be made via Las Vegas in a few days.

The figures given above are startling in the extreme, but the measurements and ore values as quoted are official—direct from the management of the wonderful mine that is today astonishing the world.

This property is only 1800 feet from the Dores Montgomery Mine.

The Eagle Mining & Improvement Company

314 Tacoma Building, Chicago, Illinois

It Will Pay You to Read and Investigate this Proposition.

Custer, Idaho, November 15, 1905.

To the Stock Holders of The Oxarna Mining Co.:—

We have steadily continued the development of our properties since last advising you June 24th. At that time we had no plant erected or contracted for, but now I am pleased to report that we have secured a Ten Stamp Mill, together with Boarding House, Assay Office and all other necessary buildings, originally costing $15,000.00, hence you will know that we have been making great progress, and are rapidly approaching a productive stage, but as we have a final payment to make on this Mill, we will not withdraw our stock from the market until this money is raised. We are now making preparations so that by early spring we can start our Mill for a long and continuous run. You will be advised later on as to the date when we will start so that you can be present if possible.

In addition to this Mill, which is now erected, with all machinery in place and in perfect running order, we have secured the machinery for an other Ten Stamp Mill, consisting of Battery, Seventy-five Horse Power Engine, two Forty Horse Power Boilers, and all other necessary machinery which we expect to install in the Mill now already equipped, which will increase the capacity of our plant from 750 to 1500 tons a month, which means a great saving in the cost of reducing our ores, as it takes about the same labor to operate a Ten Stamp Mill as it does to operate a Twenty Stamp Mill, about the only additional expenses necessary to operate the larger Mill is a little additional fuel. In addition to above machinery we have also purchased an Ingersoll Air Compressor for use in the Mines, at a cost of $1200.00.

We are assured funds to complete our payment on the Ten Stamp Mill and for other purposes, and never having any brokers to place our stock, we have had no commissions to pay, hence we have financed the Company for a less sum than is usually required. We have no debts and will pay no salaries until after the Mill goes into commission.

I also beg to advise you that we expect to take over the control of the stock of the Corning Mining Company, at an early date, giving a part of our stock in payment therefore. This will give us an additional eighty acres of Mineral Land, twenty acres of which is the Black Mine. This Mine has produced $100,000.00 net, and has one mile of development, costing over $70,000.00, and an additional sum of $40,000.00 has been expended in developments this and last summer. Our Mill is on this group and is adjoined by "The Lucky Boy Mine," which has produced $1,000,000, and by "The Badger Group," which has paid $600,000.00 on a capital of $1200.00.

The time is rapidly approaching when THE OXARNA COMPANY WILL BE ONE OF THE STEADY PRODUCERS, and I urge each of the stock holders to buy all the stock that he or she can pay for while it can be had at the exceedingly low price of 10 cents a share. The officers are increasing their holdings and we want to give all the stock holders an equal chance with us. I have just put $1,500.00 more cash into the Company's Treasury for stock at 10 cents a share, the same that you will pay if you take advantage of this opportunity NOW.

I trust that you will be pleased with this report and with the efforts that are being made by your officers for the interests of each stock holder.

REGINALD CORYELL, Manager Oxarna Gold Mining Company.

To the readers of "The Times":—

The above report has been sent out to all our stock holders, and the allotment of stock for sale at 10 cents a share is being rapidly taken. For the ore that we are now taking out averages over $67.00 a ton and, with our Twenty Stamp Mill in operation, our earnings will not be less than $30,000.00 net per month, which will enable us to pay at least 100 per cent. (ten times the present cost) in dividends within six months from the time we put the Mill in commission. For immediate acceptance only, I can offer this stock for 10 cents a share cash, or one-quarter of the amount with order and a like amount in 30, 60 and 90 days. Make all orders payable to the undersigned, or remit through the NATIONAL BANK OF DELPHOS.

W. E. FLODING, Vice-President Oxarna Mining Company. Delphos, Ohio, U. S. A.

Diseases of Women

OFTEN DUE TO

Deranged Kidneys

When the Kidneys Are Weak It is Impossible for Any Women to be Happy or Healthy.

If the girls and women who are silently suffering with what they suppose is, "female trouble," would look to their kidneys they would soon find the source of their ill-health.

The kidneys are very closely allied with the female organs and if the vitality of the kidneys is in any way impaired, great suffering is sure to occur.

No better medicine is known for the kidneys than Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Buttermilk; they stimulate and strengthen the kidneys and thereby assist the other organs to do nature's work. Instant benefit and certain cure are guaranteed in every case.

Sufferer, don't wait, begin treatment with Dr. Hamilton's Pills at once; they will cure you as they did Mrs. A. B. Coburn, a well-known resident of the town of Portland. Read her experience;

"For two years past I have been sickly and weak. My color was dull and sallow, and I felt exhausted and weary, as if all my strength were being eaten up with some hidden trouble. I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and decided to use them. The change in a few days was surprising. They regulated my kidneys and bowels and cured all my suffering; to-day I am perfectly well."

Every woman can take Dr. Hamilton's Pills with safety and benefit. Their occasional use keeps the system in healthy, well regulated order. No medicine more gentle or more prompt in results. Now is the time to get Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A. and Kingston, Ont.

The Toboggan Slide.

A kicker is out with a letter in an evening contemporary, finding fault with the Jackson Park toboggan slide. Some people expect pate de fois gras, and humming birds tongues in a ten cent dish of corn-beef hash! The toboggan slide is all right. A few trips down this slide is good as Scotch high balls for the spirits, better for the health, and makes an appetite that would bankrupt a boarding house.

Collegiate Site.

The question of attempting to make an advantageous exchange in the collegiate institute site will probably be discussed tomorrow night by the Board of Education; it is expected that those interested in the armories site will also be present to discuss this vexed question, and try to attain some means of arrangement mutually satisfactory. This meeting is an outcome of the Property Committee of the Board's meeting last Friday night.

Art Culture Club Meet.

The Peterboro Art Culture Club, with Mrs. McFarlane Wilson in the chair, enjoyed on Friday night, an excellent paper, by Mrs. T. Mowatt, on Longfellow.

President — Mrs. McFarlane Wilson.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment, Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ST. PAUL'S Y. M. G.

Make Presentation to Mr. Ferguson on His Leaving For Arnprior.

A pleasing feature of the last meeting of St. Paul's young men's guilds' Executive Committee, held in Mr. R. F. McWilliams' law office, the presentation to Mr. Graham Ferguson, of the staff of the Bank of Ottawa with a beautiful souvenir in appreciation of his faithful service in the Guild. Mr. Ferguson has been an active member of this organization for over five years ago. He has been for several years a member of the executive.

Mr. Ferguson left yesterday for Arnprior, to which place he has been transferred, by the bank.

With the removal of Mr. Graham, the Guild has lost, by removal to others towns, three members of its executive committee since last September. In all probability three new members will be elected at the next meeting.

During the meeting an invitation was extended and unanimously accepted, whereby the guild will meet, on 31st January at the residence of Mrs. Torrance, 201 Rubidge street.

Two weeks later, at the regular February meeting, held in the guild rooms, an interesting debate will be held.

"COMPLETELY DISCOURAGED"

Is the feeling and plaint of women who are "run-down" so low that work drags, head aches, back aches, hands tremble, voice quivers, little things annoy and "everything goes wrong."

Look at the other side and see what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for more than a half-million women in the last thirty years.

What it has done for others it can do for you.

Believing that alcoholic, stimulating medicines were doing much harm, Doctor R. V. Pierce turned his thoughtful mind upon the problem of producing a remedy for the use of weak and suffering women that should be free from alcohol and at the same time

Dr. Pierce has provided scientifically for such needs and Dr. Pierce found in native medicinal plants such as the roots of GOLDEN SEAL, LADY'S SLIPPER, BLACK COHOSH, UNICORN and MAIS CORDIAL the needed medicinal properties which by peculiar processes only his own, without the use of alcohol, he has extracted, preserved and combined in exact proportions to secure from each its best effect. This compounded into "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" is a remedy for the pains and drains, weaknesses and ills peculiar to the uterine system that has won world-wide fame by curing more than ninety-nine out of every hundred who have used it properly.

In taking this you will know what you take and take what you know to be good.

If in any doubt as to what is best for you, write and ask advice of Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y., and reliable medical advice will be sent you by return mail in securely sealed envelope. All correspondence free and strictly confidential.

MY MAGAZINE, "INVESTING FOR PROFIT" (which I'll send free) is worth $10 a copy to any man who intends to invest any money, however small, who has money invested unprofitably, or who can save $5 or more per month, but who hasn't learned the art of investing for profit.

It demonstrates the real earning power of money—the knowledge financiers and bankers hide from the masses.

It shows how to invest small sums and how to make them grow into fortunes—the actual possibilities of intelligent investments.

It reveals the enormous profits bankers make and shows how one can make the same profits safely.

It explains HOW stupendous fortunes are made and WHY they are made—how $1,000 grows to $32,000.

To introduce my magazine into new homes I will mail it SIX MONTHS FREE. Mention this paper and I'll send it SIX MONTHS FREE.

BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN EASTERN ONTARIO

VOL XXXIV, NO 19 PETERBORO, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1906. PRICE TWO CENTS

A General Tax For Diversion of Streams

Aylmer St. Creek to Be Divided at Barnardo Avenue---City Will Support C.P.R. in Proposed New Line North---The Sites For Armories and Institute Under Consideration.

The City Fathers met in Committee of the Whole last night. There were present, Mayor Henry Heat, and Aldermen Tovey, Hicks, Duncan, G. Elliott, Graham, McIntyre, Ball, Johnston, Mason, McWilliams and Adams.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

The question of police commissioners was taken up first. His Worship pointed out that Judge Weller was not inclined to act on this Board unless paid $200 a year. The police magistrate's increase to $200 a year under the city incorporation act is made in payment of his extra duties as a police commissioner.

It transpired that under the act the mayor and the magistrate are bound to act as police commissioners, whereas it is optional with the county judge to accept or refuse this office, for which by legislature no provision is made for additional salary for extra duty thus entailed.

The Council could not see their way clear to pay Judge Weller $200 a year for this service.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Ball, that no action be taken in reference to this matter.—Carried.

In the meantime, his Worship and the police magistrate only form the city's Board of Police Commissioners. A third member as yet to be appointed.

THE CITY'S SHARE.

Ald. Mason moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the city's arbitrator, Mr. John Carnegie be authorized to agree to $224.20 as the city's share in full of the administration of justice, assets and liabilities, for 1904, in connection with Ashburnham, and that portion of Smith, incorporated with this city.—Carried.

ASSESSORS FOR 1906.

John Kincaid and Thos. B. McGrath applied for the appointment as assessors for this year.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that these gentlemen receive the appointment.

Ald. Johnston opined that it would be in the interests of the city to engage but one permanent assessor, who would be in touch with this important work from one year to the other. He admitted that last year's assessors did good work under the new act, and if Council did not agree with his views on the question of appointing a commissioner, it would be an injustice to act tonight, as Mr. McKee's application was not yet in. The matter should at least be left over till next meeting.

To Ald. Ball, Ald. Adams admitted that an assessment commissioner would have to employ help.

Ald. Ball thought the city was paying enough now for ornaments, to say nothing of paying a high salaried commissioner, and perhaps assisted commissioner and perhaps two assistants.

Ald. Hicks thought the city would be following along pretty safe lines in appointing two assessors, which policy was eminently successful last year. He also thought the assessors were not any too well paid.

Ald. Adams replied that last year's assessors were perfectly satisfied with their salary of $600 each.

Ald. McWilliams agreed that it had proved a decided improvement appointing two men instead of four as prior to 1905.

In the big cities an assessment commissioner spends a good deal of his time in looking after manufacturers, the other work being done by assistants; but Peterboro has not yet reached sufficient size to warrant a similar policy being adopted; were Peterboro on a par with say Hamilton, he would advocate the appointment of a commissioner. Continuing, he offered that Mr. McKee was the best man of the four who filled this important office prior to 1905, and it would be an unfortunate mistake to drop him off, if he would accept the position. Last year, it was taken for granted that Mr. McKee should be appointed, only question being between Messrs. McGrath and Kincaid; he favored retaining the same two men from year to year, although he would be quite agreeable to have this question open now, and give other men an opportunity of sending in their applications.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Mason, that in the opinion of this committee it is advisable to appoint two assessors for 1906.—Carried.

Ald. Johnston moved in amendment that an assessment commissioner be appointed, but he could not get a seconder.

Ald. Johnston asked that his name be placed on record in favor of an assessment commissioner.

The assessors were not named, but Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. Ball,—That the salary of the assessors be fixed at $500 each for 1906.—Carried.

DIVERSION OF CREEKS.

The question of diverting, and how to pay for such diversion of the creeks in Ward five and that on Aylmer street, was once more introduced by Ald. Adams, and elicited considerable discussion. His Worship advocated paying for the latter by a general tax, and assessing the property improved by the former work commensurate with the improvement effected thereby.

Ald. Adams argued that it would be unfair to assess for the ward five drain under the drainage act, and thus force those ratepayers so assessed to contribute to the Aylmer street drain by a general tax.

Ald. Hicks remarked that citizens along Aylmer street, don't care whether that drain is diverted or not; all they ask is that the city shall take care of it, and prevent flooding in the spring.

Ald. Mason thought both works should be paid for in the same way, and he was not sure that diverting Aylmer street drain would altogether avoid the nuisance. Anyway he would not support diverting it on Edinburgh street, when so many citizens north of that street line on the line of the creek's distructuvative freshets each spring.

Ald. Adams pointed out that should these measures be paid for under the drainage act, property owners will be assessed twice for the work, as immediately their property is improved the assessors will raise their assessment.

Ald. Graham remarked that the creek in ward five ran for a considerable distance through private property.

In deference to Ald. Mason and Ald. Elliott, it was decided to divert the Aylmer street creek at Barnardo avenue, and

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the diversion of both streams, the one in ward five at Wilson street, and the Aylmer street creek at Barnardo avenue, be paid for by a general tax, and the chairman of the Board of Works be authorized to undertake the work as soon as practicable.—Carried.

This means that the G.T.R. will contribute $500 toward the cost of diverting the Aylmer street stream. The solicitor will apply for legislation in accordance with this resolution.

SCHOOL AND ARMORIES.

Ald. McWilliams asked that the city take active steps toward an agreement being reached between the School Board, the city and the military authorities, as to the sites for the Collegiate Institute and Armories, respectively. We ought to get together, he said, and come to some definite conclusion. It is very important that all interested should agree, so that interests will not conflict, and the architectural beauty of the spot not marred. The School Board had suggested that the armories be built on the north-eastern lots facing Melbourne street, the Institute where the old drill shed now stands, and the old Separate school building retained intact; but this would spoil the parade ground, partly in consideration of which the Government donated $10,000. He offered a plan for the armories on the north-western half of the ground, the institute on the south-eastern lots between the present drill shed and the Separate school building, nearest the latter, if anything, which would still be retained. This would afford a good parade ground running north and south, and facing Central Park. The Council seemed very favorable to this suggestion.

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, That the Mayor, Ald. Tovey, Adams and the mover, constitute a committee to consult with the School Board and the 57th Regt. officers.

RADIAL RY. CO. EXTENSION.

Ald. Ball moved that the Peterboro Radial Ry. Co's application to the Legislature for an extension of time in which to complete their extensions outside the city was an attempt to override this city with which they entered into an agreement in consideration of a valuation and free franchise.

It was explained, however, that this application applied to extensions to Clear and Rice Lakes and Bridgenorth, and did not affect the city's agreement, but the company's charter from the Legislature.

Ald. McWilliams—"If their object is to save their charter, our interests lies in supporting them."

This matter was left in abeyance, until a copy of the bill is laid before the Council.

PROPERTY QUALIFICATIONS.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Mason, that the Legislative Committee be asked to take the necessary steps to reduce the property qualifications for freeholders and tenants to vote at municipal elections, in cities with a population up to 25,000, from $400 to $300.—Carried.

Ald. McWilliams, in support of this, remarked that under the present act, too many citizens having an interest in city affairs are debarred from voting.

Ald. McWilliams moved, that the Legislative Committee be instructed to take such steps as advisable to permit members of the municipal council to be elected for two years, half retiring each year.

Ald. Ball opposed this measure on the grounds that affairs would be left in the hands of a few. An intelligent vote could not be secured, he said, and we should legislate on advanced ideas. "If you are going to appoint a commissioner to run this city, I'll support that; but the present system is an excellent one, and I don't wish to see the masses at the mercy of the few."

Ald. Ball moved, seconded by Ald. Graham, that this Council do not apply to have this present system of electing Aldermen changed.—Carried by a vote of 7—4.

The committee adjourned to meet the Board of Trade tonight re the C.P.R. extension northward to Victoria Harbor. The G.T.R. are opposing this, and the city fathers will support the C.P.R. for all they are worth.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Only one case was brought before yesterday's police court. A young many from Lindsay, as noted in yesterday's issue, who was picked up on the pavement Saturday night in a sleep rendered death-like from frequent and mixed potations, was allowed by Magistrates Rush and Eyres to depart, on his solemn promise not to do it again."

COUNTY COURT.

Yesterday morning, H. Freeburn, of Warsaw, in the court house, was tried by County Police Magistrate Edmuson, on a charge of stealing wood from a neighbor named J. B. Payne.

The prisoner, who refused to elect, after some witnesses had been heard, was committed for trial.

The prisoner admitted having stolen the wood, but claimed that he had done so to get value from Payne for an account due him (Freeburn). The evidence showed that Payne had bought the wood from Freeburn and that the latter had then turned turned around and stolen it. Fred Sharpe was the only witness called for the defence.

Freeburn will likely come up before the county judge at an early date.

Danie' Leary, of Lakefield, whom our readers will remember, was allowed to go on suspended sentence, a few months ago, when proven of having stolen a watch, was charged with having failed to return a horse he had hired from a village livery. Not only did Dan fail to remember not to forget to remember to return the nag, but left it standing uncovered on a cold day. Both of these little police court happenings will be dealt with on Thursday.

NO RACES TO-DAY.

Owing to the soft weather, the winter races have been postponed. Should ice form in a day or two, so that good sport can be offered, the events advertised and carefully arranged for, will be run off.

THE HEALTHIEST CITY

Peterboro's Death Rate is Lowest in Ontario--So Says Dr. Bingham

The annual meeting of the Peterboro Board of Health was held yesterday morning in the City Clerk's Office. Those present were: Mr. Eyres, chairman; Messrs. Dr. Burnham, Dr. McNulty, and W. Parker.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. John Amyot's report of water from well in North Ward school, City water as drinking fountain and Lowe's well, 781 George street, was read. It recommended that Mr. Lowe's well showed some chemical pollution. None of the specimens showed any harmful bacteria.

It was moved by Dr. McNulty, seconded by Mr. Parker, that Jas. Lynch's account of $6 be paid.—Carried.

The annual report of Dr. Bingham, M. H. O., was read and adopted. The report read as follows:

DR. BINGHAM'S REPORT.

Gentlemen of the Board of Health:

This report contains a brief outline of the sanitary condition of Peterboro in 1905. It is highly gratifying to say that no fatal epidemics visited the citizens during that year. Infectious diseases barely made their appearance for a short time and then departed. Of scarlet fever, we had only eight cases; of diphtheria, nine cases; and of typhoid fever, ten cases. During the year an epidemic of small pox appeared in some parts of the province, but, fortunately, the disease was of a mild type. In the autumn months of that year more than one hundred cases of small pox occurred not far from our borders, but the infant city was spared from a visitation of that much dreaded disease. During the time when the citizens felt some anxiety on account of the nearness of the disease, two visitors from the infected district entered the city. They were promptly quarantined, as a precautionary measure against the spread of the disease; but it turned out that the parties were free from the infection. And here, it might not be out of place to warn the heads of unvaccinated families, that their children are living in danger every day, and we would strongly advise parents or guardians, who have children under their care, to have them vaccinated, as it is the only protection we know of against the ravages of small pox. A good deal has been said in favor of compulsory vaccination, but the Anglo-Saxon race has such an abiding hatred of coercion that it would take long to reconcile them to compulsory vaccination.

During the year that is past, the mortality in the city numbered 224. That is 29 less than in the previous year. It may be mentioned, too, that many of these deaths took place in the hospitals, the patients having been brought in from adjoining townships, and in a bill of mortality they could hardly be recorded among the deaths belonging to this city. Taking this view of the matter, it makes the death rate very low, and shows Peterboro to be the healthiest city in the province.

As usual, during the past year, many complaints from different parts of the city reached the health office, but, with the assistance of your sanitary inspector, all complaints were attended to without delay, and it is only fair to say, that we found the citizens, at all times, willing to cooperate with us in our sanitary labors, and every year we find them more expert in the use of disinfectants.

Many samples of milk were examined in the course of the year, and they were all found to be up to the standard. Here it may be suggested, as a sanitary reform, that dairymen should deliver the milk in bottles, as they do in Toronto, instead of in open cans, in by-lanes and back-yards, where it is exposed to bad air, and to dust heavily laden with germs of disease. Of all our food supplies, milk is the most susceptible to infection, and hence it should be handled under strictest sanitary precautions.

By taking a general view of the situation, as it appears to us at present, with an intelligent Council to administer the affairs of the city, with an energetic Board of Health to look after the welfare of the people, and with all the material advantages in our favor, we feel assured that Peterboro will occupy an honorable position among the cities of this fair Dominion.

(Signed) J. BINGHAM, M. H. O.

Peterboro, January 23, 1906.

The meeting then adjourned to assemble next at the call of the chairman.

W. H. WRIGHTON ROBBED

Bold Burglar Bags $300 Worth of Booty.

Peterboro is now a city and with her newly acquired dignity seems to be getting her share of the disagreeables of modern city life.

Within a very few days two bold burglaries have been successfully carried through.

A week ago Sunday night, as our readers will remember, the safe of Hicks & Co., was blown open and a large sum of money taken.

On Sunday night whilst Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wrighton and other members of the household, 45 McDonnel street, were at church, between seven and 8.30 p.m., some person or persons entered the house and removed cash, and probably $300 worth of jewellery, including a gold chain and locket, a gold watch, bracelet and five rings.

Mr. Wrighton was the first to arrive home after church, and it was he who discovered the robbery. He at once 'phoned to the police station and Constables Stewart and Adams were detailed to look into the matter.

The Times, shortly after discovery of the robbery, was in full knowledge of the burglary, but was requested, for reasons relating to police investigations and required secrecy, was requested to defer making the matter public until certain matters had been looked into.

Miss Rudd who lives with Mrs Wrighton, was out of the house when the robbery was committed.

The gold watch and the $20 in bills were the property of Miss Rudd. Mr. Wrighton owned the $5 in silver and bills and the remainder of the stolen articles belonged to Mrs. Wrighton.

When the policemen arrived at Mr. Wrighton's house, they naturally mad a searching investigation, and discovered footprints of a boy going from the house to the street, and also from one window to another.

No further clews, as far as can be ascertained, have yet come to light.

It seems the robbery gained an entrance through the back kitchen window. That was the only window which was not double, and it was not fastened. The burglars first attempted to get in through the double windows, but failed.

The thieves threw things in every direction. They went through nearly every drawer in the house in search of money or jewellery. Downstairs they found a $20 bill, and they got $6 in one room, and $20 and a gold watch in Miss Rudd's room. In other rooms the thieves secured rings, bracelets and other jewellery.

With two burglaries, and serious ones at that, within a fortnight, it seems about time that some police patrol and protection should be given the city outside of the central business portions.

It is strange that slick operators in the burglary line, have taken this long to discover that Peterboro's residential, and always most vulnerable, portion is absolutely at the mercy of such gentry.

With only four policemen, to duty during 24 hours of the day, it is absolutely impossible, but that residences must be sacked and possibly citizens assaulted or shot down in cold blood. With even one more man on at night, for the residential portions of the city, burglars, would be handicapped if a loose system of patrol were inaugurated.

37TH ANNUAL MEETING

Peterboro Mechanics' Institute Receive Report and Elect Directors.

Last night, the largest meeting for years, was held in the rooms of the Peterboro Mechanic Institute, on the event of their annual meeting. Dr. George Burnham, president, occupied the chair.

The principle business transacted was the receipt and adoption of the Board of Management's annual report, financial statement, and election of officers for the ensuing year.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

To the members of the Peterboro Public Library;—

Your Board of Management beg to submit for the consideration of the members, and also of the citizens generally, the following statement of the affairs of the Public Library for the year 1905. The Public Library has now been in existence for over 37 years, and during that time has made continued, though somewhat slow progress, and is in a better condition now than at any previous time. But, notwithstanding all this, has failed to keep pace with the more rapid progress of the city, and something should be done to help it to make a more rapid advance.

At present, and in fact, ever since it was established the library has labored under several disadvantages. The rooms are too small and the accommodations inadequate. A good many members complain of having to climb so many steps when they want to read the periodicals or to exchange books. Some also find fault because they cannot get as many new books or some special kind as they would like, but your directors while admitting these defects and some others, claim that with the very limited means at their disposal they have done all that any reasonable person could expect. The income of the library either increases very slowly, or does not increase at all, for while the amount received for membership fees is getting larger, the grant received from the Ontario Government is gradually becoming less and so offsets the other.

The ordinary expenses, such as rent, fuel, light, salaries and incidentals continue about the same from year to year, and when these are taken from the total income, the amount left to be expended in books is not very large.

As at least 19 out of every 20 members read mostly for amusement, it is necessary to expend a considerable portion of the amount left on works of fiction, or tales suitable for the junior members, for if a fresh supply of these were to diminish the membership would be apt to do the same.

Your Board, therefore, gives this plain statement of the affairs of the library in hopes that it may stir up some of our leading citizens to take more interest in, and in some way devise means to make the library keep pace with, or surpass the rapid growth of our city.

The financial statement was as follows:

A communication from Rev. Canon Davidson was read. In this the writer stated that he had about completed arrangements for two good smart men to canvas the city for subscribers to the library. He afterwards spoke most enthusiastically on the library's prospects, and expects that fully 200 to 300 members will be added in a year's time. He also spoke as to the inadequate quarters of the library, and hoped, when these new members were added, and the consequent gain in funds should be in evidence, the library should secure ground floor rooms.

A number of ladies, representing the Peterboro Ladies Reading Club were present, and presented grievances against the library. They represented, and fairly, that the magazines purchased and on tyle, were, as regards high standard, out of proportion to their membership. They objected further to the difficulty they experienced in getting access to such magazines as they wanted when in the library. The ladies made an appeal for a higher class of novels and other books, in this purchasing by the library. They were given a good hearing, and their complaints will receive due attention.

The election of directors resulted as follows, Messrs

Dr. G. Burnham.
John Corkery.
Wm. H. Hill.
Jas. English.
T. A. S. Hay.
J. S. Knapman.
Wm. Hamilton.
Wm. Pringle.
Robt. Robertson.

Next Monday the directors will appoint officers for the ensuing year.

Pacific Cable Scores Victory Over Rival

Government-Owned Line Secures From Australia the Same Concessions as Rival Line Enjoys in New South Wales.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—Word has reached prospects had been seriously handed Ottawa that the Parliament of the dissapproval by the committee that New Australian Commonwealth has given South Wales had granted to the rival effect to the wishes of the Pacific lines. Now, however, that the Eastern Cable Conference that was held in Extension Company and Pacific London last summer, and which Sir Cable are to be put on an equal William Mulock attended, and that footing as regards the facilities for as a result the concessions granted handling New South Wales messages, by the State of New South Wales to it is hoped that the latter will make the Eastern Extension Telegraph a better financial showing than it has Company, instead of lasting forever as hitherto originally contemplated, will definitely cease in five years' time. In the meantime the same concessions are to be accorded to the Pacific Cable, that is to say, the use of the Government telegraph stations throughout New South Wales for the receipt and despatch of cable messages.

The Eastern Extension Company was anxious to negotiate a pooling arrangement between itself and the Pacific Cable in regard to cable traffic to and from Australia. This proposal has, it is learned, been turned down, upon the ground that it gave too much of a lion's share of the proceeds to the interest who suggested it.

From the inception of the Government-owned Pacific cable its business

PRAISE FOR THE C.P.R.

What a Travelled Scotsman Says of the Transcontinental Line.

Alex. McOwan, writing in the Winnipeg Free Press, says:—

It is perhaps a healthy sign suggestive of a progressive spirit, but the Western Canadian is disposed to be extremely critical of his governments, his institutions and his great corporations. He regards almost as a heritage, for instance, his right to abuse the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for its iniquities of one sort and another, but more especially its excessive freight rates. These appeals to young and old alike and the theme of them is ever fresh and the outcry against them made with utmost sincerity of conviction. Robert Burns, the Scottish bard, prays that a higher power may endow us with the gift of seeing ourselves as others see us, and perhaps it would be interesting for readers of the Free Press to know how our greatest railway company is regarded in the old country. When in Scotland at the beginning of the year, on immigration business, my attention was directed to a complaint in the Scotsman newspaper, the national organ of the country. It was written by a well-known Scotch cattle breeder, a landed proprietor, near the town of Oban, on the west coast of Scotland. In his letter this gentleman complained that the rate at Calgary and the C. P. R. would haul it to St. John, N. B., a distance of about 3,000 miles, transship it to one of their ocean steamers and carry it over sea another 3,000 miles, landing it in Liverpool cheaper than he could ship a beast by freight from Oban to London. You can depend that this gentleman did not think the Canadian farmer had not much to complain about in comparison with his own grievances.

Another case was brought under my notice by Mr. W. Haxton, of Dundee, of the firm of Fleming Haxton, shipping agents, through whose hands thousands of emigrants for Manitoba and the North-West have passed within the last ten or twelve years. "That Canadian Pacific of yours is a marvel for low rates," said Mr. Haxton to me one day, I ventured to remark that if he were on the other side he would hear more about it. "Oh! it'll be the old story," he said pawkily, "A prophet is always without honor in his own country."

He then laid before me the details of a comparison he had just made between Home and Canadian rates. Two years ago a family had passed through his hands from Forfarshire and gone to Brandon. A year after settling there, they sent home for some household effects that had been left behind. The weight was somewhere about two tons. The goods were shipped from Glasgow to Halifax and thence to Brandon. Out of curiosity, Mr. Haxton asked a quotation for the same weight of material from Dundee to London, and was more than astonished to find that the difference was a shilling in favor of the Brandon consignment. Now, Mr. Haxton is a man doing business, in the course of the year, with agents of almost every railway system in the world, and yet out of all these he was disposed to regard the C.P.R. as a marvel."

It has been my own privilege, at one time or another, to travel over nearly every one of the railways of Britain. I have also sampled, at odd times, those of Germany, France and Belgium, but nowhere in these countries can one enjoy the same comfort in travelling as one may do on the C.P.R. system. This same regard for the comfort of its passengers is displayed on the company's ocean going steamers, and I bid fair to say that if two or three fast boats were added to the Atlantic fleet the line would soon become the most popular between Britain and the Dominion.

It seems to me that during its history the policy of the company has been to promote the development of the West, first by encouraging production and again by providing for that produce being placed on the world's market on terms which will permit of its holding its own. I do not suggest that this has been undertaken as a philanthropic enterprise. The company is out for profit like every other business organization, but as a factor in the marvellous development of the West, the master minds which inaugurated and successfully if profitably carried out, the details of this policy have earned in my estimation no little measure of honor. When one reflects that billions of dollars are invested in railroads in America which are not earning a cent of dividend for the investors, one can understand the full meaning of what the Hon. Clifford Sifton said in as many words at the monster meeting at Brandon last October, that the success of the C.P.R. had not so much depended upon the fact that they had no opposition, but on a fact more creditable to its officials that it was one of the best managed railroads in the world.

QUIET, EFFECTIVE WORK

Right Food Builds Up and Strengthens While You Wait.

"The improvement in my condition came very soon after I had begun to use Grape-Nuts food, and so easily and naturally that I was a well woman almost before I knew it," writes a Nebraska woman:

"For years I have suffered from chronic constipation, with its accompanying headaches, languor and extreme nervousness. This condition had gone on so long without permanent relief from anything I could take that I had become fairly resigned to it, as something to be endured with patient fortitude.

"Five years ago Grape-Nuts became a very popular dish with all sorts and conditions of people in our village, and I bought a package just to see what it was like, with no thought of any special benefit that I might derive from its use. I liked the crisp, nutty flavor of the new food from the beginning and kept on using it.

"If I had been told in advance of the salutary effect that eating Grape-Nuts would have on me I would doubtless have been incredulous, and it was a most pleasing surprise to suddenly realize that my constipation was gone and with it my headaches, while my nerves had grown steady and normal and my strength was nearly doubled—that I was actually in the enjoyment of the natural health that had been denied me for at least 15 years.

"This is what Grape-Nuts food did for me, and this is the condition in which it has kept me for the past 5 years. I am still fond of it, and would eat it even if it had not proved so signally beneficial.

"When my baby was recovering from a severe attack of cholera infantum, I found that Grape-Nuts food was not only a much relished but most strengthening and wholesome food for her, but it continues an indispensable item in her daily menu." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Exhaustion All Gone!

To-day She is Buoyant With Health and Vital Energy Given by A Medicine Suited to the Female Sex

There is no medicine for health and strength that accomplishes so much as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For womanly troubles they have no equal.

Miss Katie E. Emerson, one of Brockton's popular young ladies, in the following letter voices the conviction of hosts of her friends:

"Two months ago I was completely used up. I was weak and miserable. My strength was gone, and I had no appetite or energy left. What I needed was a blood purifier and systematic tonic which I found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills. To-day I am brimming over with spirits and virile good health that came from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

No one can over-estimate the true worth of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Their concentrated curative power makes this marvel. You soon have richer blood, better appetite, clearer complexion, freedom from weakness and ill-health. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are sold everywhere 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. "LITTLE JAP" NO LONGER.

Within the last decade the world has given many occasions for revising histories and geographies. Remarkable changes have been wrought in many corners of the earth where for centuries contented and unprogressive peoples have nodded among the poppies and lotus. We have been accustomed to consider Japan as a scattered archipelago of small islands inhabited by a decadent nation. "Little Japan" it has always been to us, but now it must be "Big Japan," for the people of Nippon are taking an important place in the world's affairs.

An interesting light is thrown upon Japan by the New York Sun, which publishes some simple but effective comparisons. The Sun says:

"The recent arrangement with Korea makes the Emperor of Japan ruler over a territorial area which altogether is very close to that of the State of Texas. But while the Governor of Texas represents a population of about 3,500,000, the Mikado holds away over some 60,000,000 people. In other words, a country of which we are accustomed to think as 'little Japan' now exceeds in area and equals in population the German Empire. It exceeds France in both area and population. It also exceeds Austria-Hungary in both respects. Its population exceeds by by nearly 50 per cent. the entire population of South America. This is the 'little Japan' which has recently taken a seat among the world powers."

Japan is experiencing national reincarnation. With the continental foothold secured in Korea, and the acquisition of Manchuria, which is now open to negotiation, Japan promises to dominate the Orient. Already there are six Japanese to nine Americans, and three Japanese to two citizens of Great Britain. With their awakened genius for accepting civilization, they become a potentiality to be figured on in the world's doings. "Little Japan" has been expanded into a continental and insular empire that some day may rule Eastern Asia.

A WORD TO FARMER BOYS

The experience a young man gains on the farm is a most valuable asset. He should, therefore, reflect well before deciding to throw it away by entering some other calling in which this experience is of no special value. This is particularly true when we consider the extent to which most of the other lines are crowded and the unusual opportunities now offered in agriculture. Every ambitious farmer's boy in Ontario should plan to supplement this experience by a training in the college of agriculture, so as to be prepared for the greatest possible success. Ten years ago it was freely predicted that the demand for trained men in agriculture would soon be ever supplied. The supply today is many times greater, and the demand is farther from being supplied than ever and is growing more rapidly than the number of young men fitting themselves to take such positions is increasing.

Practical experience is given at the Guelph Agricultural College in courses in handling commercial fertilizers, pruning trees, judging live stock, diagnosing diseases, manufacturing butter and cheese and in testing milk, etc.

The courses are inexpensive to the citizens of Ontario, and go young man who is about to begin farming, or who has recently started, can afford not to avail himself of this opportunity to get the most up-to-date ideas and practices in relation to his special business.

APPEAL TO TEDDY.

Worlds Famous Statesmen Ask Roosevelt to Interfere in Turkish Problem.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Prominent European statesmen, educators, publicists, and citizens whose fame is world-wide, have joined in a petition to President Roosevelt to endeavor to bring about "the concert of the powers of Europe with the view of securing "for the subjects of the Ottoman Empir that condition of public peace and order of which the absence has already drawn down upon that empire so many disasters, menacing it with the catastrophe of its total annihilation."

The appeal was presented to President Roosevelt by James B. Reynolds of New York. It was prepared by M. Berthelot, formerly Senator and Secretary of Foreign Affairs of France.

The President has promised Mr. Reynolds to give it the most careful consideration.

MIDDIES HAD PLUCK.

Overpowered a Neapolitan Boatman That Tried to Hold Them Up.

Naples, Jan. 22.—Two midshipmen and a sailor of H.M.S. Formidable gave a salutary lesson to a Neapolitan boatman the other evening. They had hired him at a fare of one franc each to take them to their ship from Santa Lucea. Thinking from their youthful appearance that he could intimidate them, the boatmen rowed out to sea, and refused to take them back to their ship unless they gave him five francs.

Their remonstrances being of no avail, they knocked the man down, held him fast in the bottom of the boat, and rowed themselves to the Formidable.

Good Hat for Firemen.

Paris, Jan. 22.—A new headdress for firemen and divers, which makes air tubes unnecessary, is being tested by the French Academy of Medicine. The poisonous gases exhaled are absorbed by granulated potash. The oxygen consumed by the wearer is supplied by compressed air. The inventors claim that with their apparatus a man can remain ten hours under water without a fresh supply of air. It has been suggested that the apparatus can be utilized by submarine boats, at least in cases of emergency.

SOCIALISTS ON TRIAL.

Paris, Jan. 22.—A score of Socialists have been on trial for signing an appeal to French soldiers to throw down their arms and refuse to fire on strikers. The appeal also stated that it would be better for the soldiers to fire on their officers rather than on the strikers.

Parted Twins.

Born the same day, married the same day and so much alike that their husbands are able to tell them apart only by means of their wedding rings, Mrs. Thomas Evenden and Mrs. Charles Allen of Bondurant find themselves now for the first time in their lives living under different roofs. Their trousseaux were exactly alike, and the minister end respective bridegrooms had to take their words for it at the double marriage as to which they were marrying.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wealth of Russian Imperial Family.

All members of the imperial family have large fortunes invested out of Russia, usually in France, England and the United States. The Grand Duke Michael Nicolaievitch and the Grand Duke Vladimir Alexandrovitch are believed to be the richest members of the imperial family, next to the czar himself, whose resources are practically inexhaustible, as he draws ad lib. on the imperial treasury and is the owner of vast estates which include valuable mines and forests.

The Kaiser's Rules of Life.

The German emperor endeavors to follow the "rules of life" laid down by his favorite physician, as follows: "Eat fruit for breakfast. Eat fruit for lunch. Avoid pastry and hot cakes. Only take potatoes once a day. Don't drink tea or coffee. Walk four miles every day, wet or fine. Take a bath every day. Wash the face every night in warm water. Sleep eight hours every night." The kaiser ascribes his excellent physical condition to close adherence to this advice.
